(a) In general. This section provides special rules relating to the transfer of the assets of a foreign branch with previously deducted losses. Paragraph (b) of this section provides generally that such losses must be recaptured by the recognition of the gain realized on the transfer. Paragraph (c) of this section sets forth rules concerning the character of, and limitations on, the gain required to be recognized. Paragraph (d) of this section defines the term "previously deducted losses." Paragraph (e) of this section describes certain reductions that are made to the previously deducted losses before they are taken into income under this section. Finally, paragraph (g) of this section defines the term "foreign branch."

(b) Recognition of gain required—(1) In general. If a U.S. person transfers any assets of a foreign branch to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 367(a)(1), then the transferor shall recognize gain equal to—

(i) The sum of the previously deducted branch ordinary losses as defined and reduced in paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section; and

(ii) The sum of the previously deducted branch capital losses as defined and reduced in paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section.

(2) No active conduct exception. The rules of this paragraph (b) shall apply regardless of whether the assets of the foreign branch are transferred for use in the active conduct of a trade or business outside the United States.

(c) Special rules concerning gain recognized—(1) Character and source of gain. The gain described in paragraph (b)(1)(i) of this section shall be treated as ordinary income of the transferor, and the gain described in paragraph (b)(1)(ii) of this section shall be treated as long-term capital gain of the transferor. Gain that is recognized pursuant to the rules of this section shall be treated as income from sources outside the United States. Such recognized gain shall be treated as foreign oil and gas extraction income (as defined in section 907) in the same proportion that previously deducted foreign oil and gas extraction losses bore to the total amount of previously deducted losses.

(2) Gain limitation. For a rule limiting the amount of gain required to be recognized under section 367(a) upon any transfer of property to a foreign corporation, including the transfer of assets of a foreign branch with previously deducted losses, see §1.367(a)-1T(b)(3).

(3) Foreign goodwill and going concern value. For purposes of this section, the assets of a foreign branch shall include foreign goodwill and going concern value related to the business of the foreign branch, as defined in §1.367(a)-1T(d)(5)(iii). Thus, gain realized upon the transfer of the foreign goodwill or going concern value of a foreign branch to a foreign corporation will be taken into account in computing the limitation on loss recapture under paragraph (c)(2) of this section.

(4) Transfers of certain intangible property. Gain realized on the transfer of intangible property (computed with reference to the fair market value of the intangible property as of the date of the transfer) that is an asset of a foreign branch shall be taken into account in computing the limitation on loss recapture under paragraph (c)(2) of this section. For rules relating to the crediting of gain recognized under this section against income deemed to arise by operation of section 367(d), see §1.367(d)-1T(g)(3).

(d) Previously deducted losses—(1) In general. This paragraph (d) provides rules for determining, for purposes of paragraph (b)(1) of this section, the previously deducted losses of a foreign branch any of whose assets are transferred to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 367(a)(1). Initially, the two previously deducted losses of a foreign branch for a taxable year are the total ordinary loss ("previously deducted branch ordinary loss") the total capital loss ("previously deducted branch capital loss") that were realized by the foreign branch in that taxable year (a "branch loss year") prior to the transfer and that were or will be reflected on a U.S. income tax return of the transferor. The previously deducted branch loss year is reduced by expired net ordinary losses under paragraph (d)(2) of this section, while the previously deducted capital loss for each loss year is reduced by expired net capital losses under paragraph (d)(3) of this section. For each branch loss year, the remaining previously deducted branch ordinary loss and the remaining previously deducted branch capital loss are then reduced, proceeding from the first branch loss year to the last branch loss year, to reflect expired foreign tax credits under paragraph (d)(4) of this section. The reductions are made in the order of the taxable years in which the foreign tax credits arose. Finally, similar reductions are made to reflect expired investment credits under paragraph (d)(5) of this section.

(2) Reduction by expired net ordinary loss—(i) In general. The previously deducted branch ordinary loss for each branch loss year shall be reduced under this paragraph (d)(2) by the amount of any expired net ordinary loss with respect to that branch loss year. Expired net ordinary losses arising in years other than the branch loss year shall reduce the previously deducted branch ordinary loss for the branch loss year only to the extent that the previously deducted branch ordinary loss exceeds the net operating loss, if any, incurred by the transferor in the branch loss year. The previously deducted branch ordinary losses shall be reduced proceeding from the first branch loss year to the last branch loss year. For each branch loss year, expired net operating losses shall be applied to reduce the previously deducted branch ordinary loss for that year in the order in which the expired net ordinary losses arose.

(ii) Existence of expired net ordinary loss. An expired net ordinary loss exists with respect to a branch loss year to the extent that—

(A) The transferor incurred a net operating loss (within the meaning of section 172 (c));

(B) That net operating loss arose in the branch loss year or was available for carryover or carryback to the branch loss year under section 172(b)(1);

(C) That net operating loss has neither given rise to a net operating loss deduction (within the meaning of section 172(a)) for any taxable year prior to the year of the transfer, nor given rise to a reduction of any previously deducted branch ordinary loss (pursuant to paragraph (d)(2) of this section) of any foreign branch of the transferor upon a previous transfer to a foreign corporation; and

(D) The period during which the transferor may claim a net operating loss deduction with respect to that net operating loss has expired.

(3) Reduction by expired net capital loss—(i) In general. The previously deducted branch capital loss for each branch loss year shall be reduced under this paragraph (d)(3) by the amount of any expired net capital loss with respect to that branch loss year. Expired net capital losses arising in years other than the branch loss year shall reduce the previously deducted branch capital loss for the branch loss year only to the extent that the previously deucted branch capital loss exceeds the net capital loss, if any, incurred by the transferor in the branch loss year. The previously deducted branch capital losses shall be reduced proceeding from the first branch loss year to the last branch loss year. For each branch loss year, expired net capital losses shall be applied to reduce the previously deducted branch capital loss for that year in the order in which the expired net capital losses arose.

(ii) Existence of expired net capital loss. An expired net capital loss exists with respect to a branch loss year to the extent that—

(A) The transferor incurred a net capital loss (within the meaning of section 1222(10));

(B) That net capital loss arose in the branch loss year or was available for carryover or carryback to the branch loss year under section 1212;

(C) That net capital loss has neither been allowed for any taxable year prior to the year of the transfer, nor given rise to a reduction of any previously deducted branch capital loss (pursuant to paragraph (d)(3) of this section) of any foreign branch of the transferor upon any previous transfer to a foreign corporation; and

(D) The period during which the transferor may claim a capital loss deduction with respect to that net capital loss has expired.

(4) Reduction for expired foreign tax credits—(i) In general. The previously deducted branch ordinary loss and the previously deducted branch capital loss for each branch loss year remaining after the reductions described in paragraph (d)(2) and (3) of this section shall be further reduced under this paragraph (d)(4) proportionately by the amount of any expired foreign tax credit loss equivalent with respect to that branch loss year. The previously deducted branch losses shall be reduced proceeding from the first branch loss year to the last branch loss year. For each branch loss year, expired foreign tax credit loss equivalents shall be applied to reduce the previously deducted branch loss for that year in the order in which the expired foreign tax credits arose.

(ii) Existence of foreign tax credit loss equivalent. A foreign tax credit loss equivalent exists with respect to a branch loss year if—

(A) The transferor paid, accrued, or is deemed under section 902 or 960 to have paid creditable foreign taxes in a taxable year;

(B) The creditable foreign taxes were paid, accrued, or deemed paid in the branch loss year or were available for carryover or carryback to the branch loss year under section 904(c);

(C) No foreign tax credit with respect to the foreign taxes paid, accrued, or deemed paid has been taken because of the operation of section 904(a) or similar limitations provided by the Code or an applicable treaty, and such taxes have not given rise to a reduction (pursuant to this paragraph (d)(5)) of any previously deducted branch loss of the foreign branch for a prior taxable year or of any previously deducted branch losses of any foreign branch of the transferor upon a prior transfer to a foreign corporation; and

(D) The period during which the transferor may claim a foreign tax credit for the foreign taxes paid, accrued, or deemed paid has expired.

(iii) Amount of foreign tax credit loss equivalent. The amount of the foreign tax credit loss equivalent for the branch loss year with respect to the creditable foreign taxes described in paragraph (d)(4)(ii) of this section is the amount of those creditable foreign taxes divided by the highest rate of tax to which the transferor was subject in the loss year.

(5) Reduction for expired investment credits—(i) In general. The previously deducted branch ordinary loss and the previously deducted branch capital loss for each branch loss year shall be further reduced under this paragraph (d)(5) proportionately by the amount of any expired investment credit loss equivalent with respect to that branch year. The previously deducted branch losses shall be reduced proceeding from the first branch loss year to the last branch loss year. For each branch loss year, expired investment credit loss equivalents shall be applied to reduce the previously deducted branch loss for that year in the order in which the expired investment credits were earned.

(ii) Existence of investment credit loss equivalent. An investment credit loss equivalent exists with respect to a branch loss year if—

(A) The transferor earned an investment credit (within the meaning of section 46(a)) in a taxable year;

(B) The investment credit was earned in the branch loss year or was available for carryover or carryback to the branch loss year under section 39;

(C) The investment credit earned by the transferor in the credit year has been denied by section 38(a) or by similar provisions of the Code and has not given rise to a reduction (pursuant to this paragraph (d)(5)) of any previously deducted branch loss of the foreign branch for a preceding taxable year or of the previously deducted losses of any foreign branch of the transferor upon any previous transfer to a foreign corporation; and

(D) The period during which the transferor may claim the investment credit has expired.

(iii) Amount of investment tax credit loss equivalent. The amount of the investment credit loss equivalent for the branch loss year with respect to the investment credit described in paragraph (d)(5)(ii) of this section is 85 percent of the amount of that investment credit divided by the highest rate of tax to which the transferor was subject in the loss year.

(e) Amounts that reduce previously deducted losses subject to recapture—(1) In general. This paragraph (e) describes five amounts that reduce the sum of the previously deducted branch ordinary losses and the sum of the previously deducted branch capital losses before they are taken into income under paragraph (b) of this section. Amounts representing ordinary income shall be applied to reduce first the sum of the previously deducted branch ordinary losses to the extent thereof, and then the sum of the previously deducted branch capital losses to the extent thereof. Similarly, amounts representing capital gains shall be applied to reduce first the sum of the previously deducted capital losses and then the sum of the previously deducted branch ordinary losses.

(2) Taxable income. The previously deducted losses shall be reduced by any taxable income of the foreign branch recognized through the close of the taxable year of the transfer, whether before or after any taxable year in which losses were incurred.

(3) Amounts currently recaptured under section 904(f)(3). The previously deducted losses shall be reduced by the amount recognized under section 904(f)(3) on account of the transfer.

(4) Gain recognized under section 367(a). The previously deducted branch losses shall be reduced by any gain recognized pursuant to section 367(a)(1) (other than by reason of the provisions of this section) upon the transfer of the assets of the foreign branch to the foreign corporation.

(5) Amounts previously recaptured

under section 904(f)(3)—(i) In general. The previously deducted branch losses shall be reduced by the portion of any amount recognized under section 904(f)(3) upon a previous transfer of property that was attributable to the losses of the foreign branch, provided that the amount did not reduce any gain otherwise required to be recognized under section 367(a)(3)(C) and this section (or Revenue Ruling 78-201, 1978-1 C.B. 91).

(ii) Portion attributable to the losses of the foreign branch—(A) Branch property. The full amount recognized under section 904(f)(3) upon a previous transfer of property of the branch shall be treated as attributable to the losses of the foreign branch.

(B) Non-branch property. The portion of the amount previously recognized under section 904(f)(3) upon a transfer of non-branch property that was attributable to the losses of the foreign branch shall be the sum, over the taxable years in which the transferor sustained an overall foreign loss some portion of which was recaptured on the disposition, of the recaptured portions of those overall foreign losses after multiplication by the following fraction:

For purposes of this fraction, the term "losses of the foreign branch for the year" means the losses of the foreign branch that were taken into account under section 904(f)(2) in determining the amount of the transferor's overall foreign loss for the year, and the term "all foreign losses for the year" means all of the losses of the transferor that were taken into account under section 904(f)(2).

(6) Amounts previously recognized under the rules of this section. The previously deducted losses shall be reduced by the amounts previously recognized under the rules of this section upon a previous transfer of assets of the foreign branch.

(f) Example. The rules of paragraphs (b) through (e) of this section are illustrated by the following example.

Example. (i) Facts. X, a U.S. corporation, is a calendar year taxpayer. On January 1, 1981, X established a branch in foreign country A. On July 1, 1986, X organized corporation Y, a country A subsidiary, and transferred to Y all of the assets of its country A branch, including goodwill and going concern value. During the period from January 1, 1981, through July 1, 1986, X's country A branch earned income and incurred losses in the following amounts:

Country A branch

Year	Ordinary income (loss)	Capital gain (loss)
1982	(300)	(100)

At the time of the transfer of X's country A branch assets to Y, those assets had a fair market value of $2,500 and an adjusted basis of $1,000. For each of the assets, fair market value exceeded adjusted basis. X had no net capital loss or unused investment credit during any taxable year relevant to the transfer. In 1984, X incurred a net operating loss of $400, $200 of which was carried back to prior years. An additional $50 of the 1984 net operating loss was carried over to 1985. The remaining $150 of the 1984 net operating loss was not used in any year prior to the transfer. In 1979, X paid creditable foreign taxes of $330 that could not be claimed as a credit in that year or any earlier year because of section 904. Of those foreign taxes, $100 were carried over and claimed as a credit in 1983, but the remaining $230 were not used in any year prior to the transfer. X was not required to recognize any gain under section 904(f)(3) on account of the 1986 transfer or any prior transfer. X was not required to recognize gain upon the transfer under section 367(a) (other than by reason of the provisions of this section).

(ii) Previously deducted losses. The previously deducted losses of X's country A branch are $575 of ordinary losses and $25 of capital losses, computed as follows: Initially, the branch has previously deducted ordinary losses of $1,000 ($200 + $300 + $400 + $100), and previously deducted capital losses of $100. (See paragraph (d)(1) of this section.)

(iii) Expired losses and credits. Under the facts of this example, there are no reductions for expired net ordinary losses or expired net capital losses under paragraph (d)(2) or (3) of this section. However, the previously deducted losses are reduced proceeding from the first branch loss year to the last branch loss year to reflect the expired foreign tax credit from 1979. The amount of the foreign tax credit loss equivalent with respect to 1981 is $500 ($230/.46). It reduces the previously deducted losses for 1981 proportionately. Thus, the previously deducted ordinary loss for 1981 is reduced from $200 to $0. (See paragraph (d)(4) of this section.) The amount of the foreign tax credit loss equivalent with respect to 1982 is $300 ($500 − $200, i.e., $138/.46). (See paragraph (d)(4)(ii)(C) of this section.) It reduces the previously deducted losses for 1982 proportionately. Thus, the previously deducted ordinary loss for 1982 is reduced from $300 to $75, and the previously deducted capital loss for 1982 is reduced from $100 to $25.

(iv) Further reductions. The previously deducted ordinary losses of $575 and the previously deducted capital losses of $25 are reduced by the taxable income earned by the branch prior to the date of the transfer ($250). (See paragraph (e)(2) of this section.) Since that income was ordinary income, it is applied first to reduce the previously deducted ordinary losses of $575 to $325. (See paragraph (e)(1) of this section.)

(v) Recapture. Since the gain realized by X upon its transfer of the branch assets to Y exceeds the sum of the previously deducted branch losses as defined and reduced above ($325 + $25), the limitation in paragraph (c)(2) of this section does not apply. Thus, X is required to recognize $325 of ordinary income and $25 of long-term capital gain upon the transfer. (See paragraph (b) and (c)(1) of this section.)

(g) Definition of foreign branch—(1) In general. For purposes of this section, the term "foreign branch" means an integral business operation carried on by a U.S. person outside the United States. Whether the activities of a U.S. person outside the United States constitute a foreign branch operation must be determined under all the facts and circumstances. Evidence of the existence of a foreign branch includes, but is not limited to, the existence of a separate set of books and records, and the existence of an office or other fixed place of business used by employees or officers of the U.S. person in carrying out business activities outside the United States. Activities outside the United States shall be deemed to constitute a foreign branch for purposes of this section if the activities constitute a permanent establishment under the terms of a treaty between the United States and the country in which the activities are carried out. Any U.S. person may be treated as having a foreign branch for purposes of this section, whether that person is a corporation, partnership, trust, estate, or individual.

(2) More than one branch. If a U.S. person carries on more than one branch operation outside the United States, then the rules of this section must be separately applied with respect to each foreign branch that is transferred to a foreign corporation. Thus, the previously deducted losses of one branch may not be offset, for purposes of determining the gain required to be recognized under the rules of this section, by the income of another branch that is also transferred to a foreign corporation. Similarly, the losses of one branch shall not be recaptured upon a transfer of the assets of a separate branch. Whether the foreign activities of a U.S. person are carried out through more than one branch must be determined under all of the facts and circumstances. In general, a separate branch exists if a particular group of activities is sufficiently integrated to constitute a single business that could be operated as an independent enterprise. For purposes of determining the combination of activities that constitute a branch operation as defined in this paragraph (g), the nominal relationship among those activities shall not be controlling. Factors suggesting that nominally separate business operations constitute a single foreign branch include a substantial identity of products, customers, operational facilities, operational processes, accounting and record-keeping functions, management, employees, distribution channels, or sales and purchasing forces. For examples of the application of the principles of this paragraph (g)(2), see Revenue Ruling 81 – 82, 1981 – 1 C.B. 127.

(3) Consolidated group. For purposes of this section, the activities of each of two domestic corporations outside the United States will be considered to constitute a single foreign branch if—

(i) The two corporations are members of the same consolidated group of corporations; and

(ii) The activities of the two corporations in the aggregate would constitute a single foreign branch if conducted by a single corporation.

Notwithstanding the preceding rule of this paragraph (g)(3), gains of a foreign branch of a domestic corporation arising in a year in which that corporation did not file a consolidated return with a second domestic corporation shall not be applied to reduce the previously deducted losses of a foreign branch of the second corporation (but may be applied to reduce such losses of the foreign branch of the first corporation) upon the transfer of the two branches to a foreign corporation, even though the two domestic corporations file a consolidated return for the year in which the transfer occurs and the two branches are considered at that time to constitute a single foreign branch. For an example of the application of the principles of this paragraph (g)(3), see Revenue Ruling 81-89. 1981-1 C.B. 129.

(4) Property not transferred. A U.S. transferor's failure to transfer any property of a foreign branch shall be irrelevant to the determination of the previously deducted losses of the branch subject to recapture under the rules of this section. Thus, if the activities with respect to untransferred property constituted a part of the branch operation under the rules of this paragraph (g), then the losses generated by those activities shall be subject to recapture, notwithstanding the failure to transfer the property. For an example of the application of the principles of this paragraph (g)(4), see Revenue Ruling 80-247, 1980-2 C.B. 127, relating to property abandoned by the U.S. transferor.

(h) Anti-abuse rule. If—

(1) A U.S. person transfers property of a foreign branch to a domestic corporation for a principal purpose of avoiding the effect of this section; and

(2) The domestic corporation thereafter transfers the property of the foreign branch to a foreign corporation, then, solely for purposes of this section, that U.S. person shall be treated as having transferred the property of the branch directly to the foreign corporation. A U.S. person shall be presumed to have transferred property of a foreign branch for a principal purpose of avoiding the effect of this section if the property is transferred to the domestic corporation less than two years prior to the domestic corporation's transfer of the property to a foreign corporation. This presumption may be rebutted by clear evidence that the subsequent transfer of the property was not contemplated at the time of the initial transfer to the domestic corporation and that avoidance of the effect of this section was not a principal purpose for the transaction. A transfer may have more than one principal purpose.

(i) Basis adjustments. Basis adjustments reflecting gain recognized pursuant to this section shall be made as described in §1.367(a)-1T(b)(4)(ii).

Par. 5. Section 1.367(d)-1T is added immediately after §1.367(c)-2, to read as follows:

§1.367(d)-1T Transfers of intangible property to foreign corporations (temporary).

(a) Purpose and scope. This section provides rules under section 367(d) concerning transfers of intangible property by U.S. persons to foreign corporations pursuant to section 351 or 361. Paragraph (b) of this section specifies the transfers that are subject to section 367(d) and the rules of this section, while paragraph (c) provides rules concerning the consequences of such a transfer. In general, the U.S. transferor will be treated as receiving annual payments contingent on productivity or use of the transferred property, over the useful life of the property (regardless of whether such payments are in fact made by the transferee). Paragraphs (d), (e), and (f) of this section provide rules for cases in which there is a later direct or indirect disposition of the intangible property transferred. In general, deemed annual license payments will continue if a transfer is made to a related person, while gain must be recognized immediately if the transfer is to an unrelated person. Paragraph (g) of this section provides several special rules, including a rule allowing appropriate adjustments where deemed payments under section 367(d) are not in fact received by the U.S. transferor of the intangible property, and a rule providing for a limited election to treat certain transfers of intangible property as sales at fair market value (in lieu of applying the general useful life-contingent payment rule). In addition, paragraph (g) of this section provides rules coordinating the application of section 367(d) with other relevant Code sections. Paragraph (h) of this section defines the term "related person" for purposes of this section. Finally, paragraph (i) of this section provides the effective date of this section. For rules concerning transfers of intangible property pursuant to section 332, see §1.367(a)-5T(e).

(b) Intangible property subject to section 367(d). Section 367(d) and the rules of this section shall apply to the transfer of any intangible property, as defined in §1.367(a)-1T(d)(5)(i). However, section 367(d) and the rules of this section shall not apply to the transfer of foreign goodwill or going concern value, as defined in §1.367(a)-1T(d)(5)(iii), or to the transfer of intangible property described in §1.367(a)-5T(b)(2). However, the transfer of those items to a foreign corporation is subject to the rules set forth in §1.367(a)-6T, and the transfer of intangible property described in §1.367(a)-5T(b)(2) is subject to the rules set forth in §1.367(a)-5T. For a special rule relating to the transfer of operating intangibles, as defined in

§1.367(a)-1T(d)(5)(ii), see paragraph (g)(3) of this section. Transfers of intangible property to foreign corporations pursuant to section 351 or 361 are subject to the rules of this section regardless of whether the property is to be used in the United States, in connection with goods to be sold or consumed in the United States, or in connection with a trade or business outside the United States.

(c) Deemed payments upon transfer of intangible property to foreign corporation—(1) In general. If a U.S. person transfers intangible property that is subject to section 367(d) and the rules of this section to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 351 or 361, then such person shall be treated as having transferred that property in exchange for annual payments contingent on the productivity or use of the property. Such person shall, over the useful life of the property, annually include in gross income an amount that represents an appropriate arms-length charge for the use of the property. The appropriate charged shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of section 482 and regulations thereunder. See §1.482-2(d). The amount of the deemed payment thus calculated shall be reduced by any royalty or other periodic payment made or accrued by the transferee to an unrelated person during that taxable year for the right to use the intangible property. Amounts so included in the transferor's income shall be treated as ordinary income from sources with the United States. For purposes of computing estimated tax payments, deemed payments under this paragraph (c) shall be treated as received by the transferor on the last day of its taxable year.

(2) Required adjustments. The following adjustments shall be made with respect to a U.S. person's recognition of a deemed payment for the use of intangible property under this paragraph (c):

(i) For purposes of chapter 1 of the Code, the earnings and profits of the transferee foreign corporation shall be reduced by the amount of such deemed payment; and

(ii) For purposes of subpart F of part III of subchapter N of the Code, the transferee foreign corporation may treat such deemed payment as an expense (whether or not that amount is actually paid), properly allocated and apportioned to gross income subject to subpart F, in accordance with the provisions of §§1.954-1(c) and 1.861-8.

No other special adjustments to earnings and profits, basis, or gross income shall be permitted by reason of the recognition of a deemed payment under this paragraph (c). However, see paragraph (g)(1) of this section for rules permitting the establishment of an account receivable with respect to deemed payments not actually received by the U.S. person.

(3) Useful life. For purposes of this section, the useful life of intangible property is the entire period during which the property has value. However, in no event shall the useful life of an item of intangible property be considered to exceed twenty years. If intangible property derives its value from secrecy or from protections afforded by law, the useful life of such property shall terminate when the property is no longer secret or no longer legally protected.

(4) Blocked income. No deemed payment included in a taxpayer's income under paragraph (c)(1) of this section shall be treated as deferrable income for purposes of applying rules relating to blocked foreign income. See Revenue Ruling 74-351, 1974-2 C.B. 144.

(d) Subsequent transfer of stock of transferee foreign corporation to unrelated person—(1) Treatment as sale of intangible property. If a U.S. person transfers intangible property that is subject to section 367(d) and the rules of this section to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 351 or 361, and within the useful life of the intangible property that U.S. transferor subsequently disposes of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation to a person that is not a related person (within the meaning of paragraph (h) of this section), then the U.S. transferor shall be treated as having simultaneously sold the intangible property to the person acquiring the stock of the transferee foreign corporation. The U.S. transferor shall be required to recognize gain (but not loss) from sources within the United States in an amount equal to the difference between the fair market value of the transferred intangible property on the date of the subsequent disposition and the U.S. transferor's former adjusted basis in that property (determined as of the original transfer). If the U.S. transferor's disposition of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation is subject to U.S. tax other than by reason of this paragraph (d), then the amount of gain otherwise required to be recognized with respect to the stock of the transferee foreign corporation shall be reduced by the amount of gain recognized with respect to the intangible property pursuant to this paragraph (d).

(2) Required adjustments. If a U.S. person disposes of the stock of a transferee foreign corporation, and under paragraph (d)(1) of this section is treated as having simultaneously sold intangible property, then, for purposes of computing basis and earnings and profits, the person acquiring the stock of the transferee foreign corporation shall be deemed to have purchased that property at fair market value and to have immediately thereafter contributed it to the transferee foreign corporation in a transaction not covered by section 367(d). Therefore, for purposes of chapter 1 of the Code—

(i) The transferee foreign corporation's basis in the intangible property will be equal to its fair market value (as calculated for purposes of determining the gain required to be recognized by the U.S. transferor);

(ii) The acquiring person's basis in the stock of the transferee foreign corporation shall be determined as if no portion of the consideration given by the acquiring person for the stock is attributable to the intangible property; and

(iii) The earnings and profits of the transferee foreign corporation will not be affected by the transfer of its stock or the deemed transfer to it of the intangible property.

(e) Subsequent transfer of stock of transferee foreign corporation to related person—(1) Transfer to related U.S. person treated as disposition of intangible property. If a U.S. person transfers intangible property that is subject to section 367(d) and the rules of this section to a foreign corporation in an exchange desribed in section 351 or 361 and, within the useful life of the transferred intangible property, that U.S. transferor subsequently transfers the stock of the transferee foreign corporation to U.S. persons that are related to the transferor within the meaning of paragraph (h) of this section, then the following rules shall apply:

(i) Each such related U.S. person shall be treated as having received (with the stock of the transferee foreign corporation) a right to receive a proportionate share of the contingent annual payments that would otherwise be deemed to be received by the U.S. transferor under paragraph (c) of this section.

(ii) Each such related U.S. person shall, over the useful life of the property, annually include in gross income a proportionate share of the amount that would have included in the income of the U.S. transferor pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section. Such amounts shall be treated as ordinary income from sources within the United States.

(iii) The amount of income required to be recognized by the U.S. transferor pursuant to the rule of paragraph (d)(1) of this section shall be reduced to the amount determined in accordance with the following formula:

(d) (1) amount X (100% −

For purposes of the above formula, the "(d)(1) amount" is the income that would otherwise be required to be recognized by the transferor corporation pursuant to paragraph (d)(1) of this section, and the "(e) percentage" is the percentage of the transferor corporation's total deemed rights to receive contingent annual payments under paragraph (c) of this section that is deemed to be transferred to related U.S. persons under the rules of this paragraph (e).

(iv) The rules of paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section shall be reapplied in the case of any later transfer of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation by a related U.S. person that received such stock in a transfer that was subject to the rules of this paragraph (e). For purposes of reapplying the rules of paragraphs (d) and (e), each such related U.S. person shall be treated as a U.S. transferor of intangible property to the transferee foreign corporation (to the extent of the interest attributed to such person pursuant to subdivision (i) of this paragraph (e)(1)).

(2) Required adjustments. If a U.S. person transfers stock of a transferee foreign corporation to a U.S. related person in a transaction that is subject to the rules of paragraph (e)(1) of this section, the following adjustments shall be made:

(i) For purposes of chapter 1 of the Code, the earnings and profits of the transferee foreign corporation shall be reduced by the amount of any payment deemed to be received by a related U.S. person under paragraph (e)(1)(ii) of this section;

(ii) For purposes of subpart F of part III of subchapter N of the Code, the transferee foreign corporation may allocate and apportion such deemed payments (whether or not such payments are actually made) to gross income subject to subpart F to the extent appropriate under the provisions of §§1.954-1(c) and 1.861-8;

(iii) For purposes of reapplying the rules of paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section, if the related U.S. person is deemed to have received a right to contingent annual payments for the use of intangible property, then the U.S. related person shall be deemed to have held a proportionate share of the property with a basis equal to a proportionate share of the U.S. transferor's adjusted basis plus the gain, if any, recognized by the U.S. transferor on the earlier transfer of the stock to the U.S. related person, and then to have transferred that proportionate share of the property to the foreign corporation in a transfer subject to section 367(d); and

(iv) If the U.S. transferor is itself required to recognize gain upon the transfer by reason of the operation of paragraphs (d)(1) and (e)(1)(iii) of this section (because stock of the transferee foreign corporation is also transferred to unrelated persons), then those unrelated persons shall be deemed to have purchased a proportionate share of the transferred intangible property at fair market value and immediately contributed that property to the transferee foreign corporation, consistent with the general rule of paragraph (d)(2) of this section concerning transfers of stock to unrelated persons. Therefore, for purposes of chapter 1 of the Code—

(A) Each unrelated person's basis in the stock of the transferee foreign corporation shall be increased to the extent of the gain recognized by the U.S. transferor upon the deemed purchase of intangible property by that person; and

(B) The transferee foreign corporation will receive an increase in its basis in the transferred intangible property equal to the fair market value of that portion of the intangible property deemed to be contributed to the transferee foreign corporation by unrelated persons (as calculated for purposes of determining the gain required to be recognized by the U.S. transferor).

(3) Transfer to related foreign person not treated as disposition of intangible property. If a U.S. person transfers intangible property that is subject to section 367(d) and the rules of this section to a foreign corportion in an exchange described in section 351 or 361, and within the useful life of the transferred intangible property, the U.S. transferor subsequently transfers any of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation to one or more foreign persons that are related to the transferor within the meaning of paragraph (h) of this section, then the U.S. transferor shall continue to include in its income the deemed payments described in paragraph (c) of this section in the same manner as if the subsequent transfer of stock had not occurred. The rule of this paragraph (e)(3) shall not apply with respect to the subsequent transfer by the U.S. person of any of the remaining stock to any related U.S. person or unrelated person.

(4) Proportionate share. For purposes of this paragraph (e), any "proportinate share" shall be determined by reference to the fair market value (at the time of the original transfer) of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation that was transferred by the U.S. transferor and the fair market value of all of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation originally received by the U.S. transferor.

(f) Subsequent disposition of transferred intangible property by transferee foreign corporation—(1) In general. If a U.S. person transfers intangible property that is subject to section 367(d) and the rules of this section to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 351 or 361, and within the useful life of the intangible property that transferee foreign corporation subsequently disposes of the intangible property to an unrelated person, then—

(i) The U.S. transferor of the intangible property (or any person treated as such pursuant to paragraph (e)(1) of this section) shall be required to recognize gain from U.S. sources (but not loss) in an amount equal to the difference between the fair market value of the transferred intangible property on the date of the subsequent disposition and the U.S. transferor's former adjusted basis in that property (determined as of the original transfer); and

(ii) The U.S. transferor shall be required to recognize a deemed payment under paragraph (c) of this section for that part of its taxable year that the intangible property was held by the transferee foreign corporation and thereafter shall not be required to recognize any further deemed payments under paragraph (c) or (e)(1) of this section with respect to the transferred intangible property disposed of by the transferee foreign corporation.

(2) Required adjustments. If a U.S. transferor is required to recognize gain under paragraph (f)(1) of this section, then—

(i) For purposes of chapter 1 of the Code, the earnings and profits of the transferee foreign corporation shall be reduced by the amount of gain required to be recognized; and

(ii) The U.S. transferor's recognition of gain will permit the establishment of an account receivable from the transferee foreign corporation, in accordance with paragraph (g)(1) of this section.

(3) Subsequent transfer of intangible property to related person. The requirement that a U.S. person recognize gain under paragraph (c) or (e) of this section shall not be affected by the transferee foreign corporation's subsequent disposition of the transferred intangible property to a related person. For purposes of any required adjustments, and of any accounts receivable created under paragraph (g)(1) of this section, the related person that receives the intangible property shall be treated as the transferee foreign corporation.

(g) Special rules—(1) Establishment of accounts receivable—(i) In general. If a U.S. person is required to recognize income under the provisions of paragraph (c), (e), or (f) of this section, and the amount deemed to be received is not actually paid by the transferee foreign corporation, then the U.S. person may establish an account receivable from the transferee foreign corporation equal to the amount deemed paid that was not actually paid. A separate account receivable must be established for each taxable year in which payments deemed to be received are not actually made. Payments received from the transferee foreign corporation must be designated as payments upon a particular account and must be deducted from that account. Accounts receivable under this paragraph (g)(1) may be established and paid without further U.S. income tax consequences to the U.S. transferor or the transferee foreign corporation. No interest shall be paid or accrued on an account receivable created under this paragraph (g)(1), nor shall any bad debt deduction be allowed under section 166 with respect to any failure to receive payment on an account.

(ii) Unpaid receivable treated as contribution to capital. If any portion of an account receivable established under this paragraph (g)(1) remains unpaid as of the last day of the third taxable year following the taxable year to which the account relates, then—

(A) Such portion shall be deemed to have been paid on that date; and

(B) The U.S. person shall be deemed to have contributed an equivalent amount to the capital of the foreign corporation, and the U.S. person's basis in the stock of the foreign corporation shall, therefore, be increased by that amount.

(2) Election to treat transfer as sale. A U.S. person that transfers intangible property to a foreign corporation in a transaction subject to section 367(d) may elect to recognize income in accordance with the rules of this paragraph (g)(2), if—

(i) The intangible property transferred constitutes an operating intangible, as defined in §1.367(a)-1T(d)(5)(ii); or

(ii) The transfer of the intangible property is either legally required by the government of the country in which the transferee corporation is organized as a condition of doing business in that country, or compelled by a genuine threat of immediate expropriation by the foreign government; or

(iii) (A) The U.S. person transferred the intangible property to the foreign corporation within three months of the organization of that corporation and as part of the original plan of capitalization of that corporation;

(B) Immediately after the transfer, the U.S. person owns at least 40 percent but not more than 60 percent of the total voting power and total value of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation;

(C) Immediately after the transfer, at least 40 percent of the total voting power and total value of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation is owned by foreign persons related to the U.S. person;

(D) Intangible property constitutes at least 50 percent of the fair market value of the property transferred to the foreign corporation by the U.S. transferor; and

(E) The transferred intangible property will be used in the active conduct of a trade or business outside of the United States within the meaning of §1.367(a)-2T and will not be used in connection with the manufacture or sale of products in or for use or consumption in the United States.

A person that makes the election under this paragraph (g)(2) shall not be subject to the provisions of paragraphs (c) through (f) of this section. Such person shall instead recognize in the year of the transfer ordinary income from sources within the United States in an amount equal to the difference between the fair market value of the intangible property transferred and its adjusted basis. A U.S. person shall make an election under this paragraph (g)(2) by notifying the Internal Revenue Service of the election in accordance with the requirements of section 6038B and regulations thereunder, and subsequently including the appropriate amounts of gross income in a timely filed tax return for the year of the transfer.

(3) Intangible property transferred from branch with previously deducted losses. If income is required to be recognized under section 904(f)(3) and the regulations thereunder or under §1.367(a)-6T upon the transfer of intangible property of a foreign branch that had previously deducted losses, then the income recognized under those sections with respect to that property shall be credited against amounts that would otherwise be required to be recognized with respect to that same property under paragraphs (c) through (f) of this section in either the current or future taxable years. The amount recognized under section 904(f)(3) or

§1.367(a)-6T with respect to the transferred intangible property shall be determined in accordance with the following formula:

For purposes of the above formula, the "loss recapture income" is the total amount required to be recognized by the U.S. transferor pursuant to section 904(f)(3) or §1.367(a)-6T. The "gain from intangibles" is the total amount of gain realized by the U.S. transferor pursuant to section 904(f)(3) and §1.367(a)-6T upon the transfer of items of intangible property that are subject to section 367(d). ("Gain from intangibles" does not include gain realized upon the transfer of property described in §1.367(a)-5T(b)(2), foreign goodwill or going concern value, or intangible property with respect to which the taxpayer has made the election provided for in §1.367(d)-1T(g)(2).) The "gain from all branch assets" is the total amount of gain realized by the transferor upon the transfer of items of property of the branch in which gain is realized. The fraction shall not exceed 1.

(4) Coordination with section 482—(i) In general. Section 367(d) and the rules of this section shall not apply in the case of an actual sale or license of intangible property by a U.S. person to a foreign corporation. If an adjustment under section 482 is required with respect to an actual sale or license of intangible property, then section 367(d) and the rules of this section shall not apply with respect to the required adjustment. If a U.S. person transfers intangible property to a related foreign corporation without consideration, or in exchange for stock or securities of the transferee in a transaction described in sections 351 or 361, no sale or license subject to adjustment under section 482 will be deemed to have occurred. Instead, the U.S. person shall be treated as having made a transfer of the intangible property that is subject to section 367(d).

(ii) Sham licenses and sales. For purposes of paragraph (g)(4)(i) of this section, a purported sale or license of intangible property may be disregarded, and treated as a transfer subject to section 367(d) and the rules of this section, if—

(A) The purported sale or license is made to a foreign corporation in which the transferor holds (or is acquiring) an interest; and

(B) The terms of the purported sale or license differ so greatly from the economic substance of the transaction or the terms that would obtain between unrelated persons that the purported sale or license is a sham.

The terms of a purported sale or license, for purposes of applying the rule of this paragraph (g)(4)(ii), shall be determined by reference not only to the nominal terms of the agreement but also to the actual practice of the parties under that agreement. A sale or license of intangible property shall not be disregarded under this paragraph (g)(4)(ii) solely because other property of an integrated business is simultaneously transferred to the foreign corporation by the U.S. transferor in a transaction described in section 367(a)(1) or any statutory or regulatory exception to section 367(a)(1).

(5) Determination of fair market value. For purposes of determining the gain required to be recognized immediately under paragraph (d), (f), or (g)(2) of this section the fair market value of transferred property shall be the single payment arm's-length price that would be paid for the property by an unrelated purchaser determined in accordance with the principles of section 482 and regulations thereunder. The allocation of a portion of the purchase price tointangible property agreed to by the parties to the transaction shall not necessarily be controlling for this purpose.

(6) Anti-abuse rule. If a U.S. person—

(i) Transfers intangible property to a domestic corporation with a principal purpose of avoiding the effect of section 367(d) and the rules of this section; and

(ii) Thereafter transfers the stock of that domestic corporation to a related foreign corporation, then solely for purposes of section 367(d) that U.S. person shall be treated as having transferred the intangible property directly to the foreign corporation. A U.S. person shall be presumed to have transferred intangible property for a principal purpose of avoiding the effect of section 367(d) if the property is transferred to the domestic corporation less than two years prior to the transfer of the stock of that domestic corporation to a foreign corporation. The presumption created by the previous sentence may be rebutted by clear evidence that the subsequent transfer of the stock of the domestic transferee corporation was not contemplated at the time the intangible property was transferred to that corporation and that avoidance of section 367(d) and the rules of this section was not a principal purpose of the transaction. A transfer may have more than one principal purpose.

(h) Related person. for purposes of this section, persons are considered to be related if—

(1) They are partners or partnerships described in section 707(b)(1) of the Code; or

(2) They are related within the meaning of section 267(b), (c), and (f) of the Code, except that—

(i) "10 percent or more" shall be substituted for "more than 50 percent" each place it appears; and

(ii) Section 1563 shall apply (for purposes of section 267(f)), without regard to section 1563(b)(2).

(i) Effective date. Except as specifically provided to the contrary elsewhere in this section, this section applies to transfers occurring after December 31, 1984.

Par. 6. Section 1.6038B-1T is added immediately after §1.6038A-1, to read as follows:

§1.6038B-1T Reporting of transactions described in section 367 (temporary).

(a) Purpose and scope. This section sets forth information reporting requirements under section 6038B, concerning certain transfers of property to foreign persons. Paragraph (b) of this section provides general rules explaining when and how to carry out the reporting required under section 6038B. Paragraphs (c) and (d) of this section specify the information that is required to be reported with respect to transfers of property that are described in section 367(a) and (d), respectively. Finally, paragraph (f) of this section sets forth the consequences of a failure to comply with the requirements of section 6038B and this section. Except as specifically provided to the contrary elsewhere in this section, this section applies to transfers occurring after December 31, 1984.

(b) Time and manner of reporting—(1) In general. Any U.S. person that is required to report pursuant to section 6038B and the rules of this section must attach the required information to Form 926 (Return by Transferor of Property to a Foreign corporation, Foreign Estate or Trust, or Foreign Partnership). Form 926 and the required attachments must be filed at the Internal Revenue Service Center where the U.S. person is required to file its Federal income tax return. Notwithstanding any statement to the contrary on Form 926, the form and attachments must be filed with the transferor's tax return for the taxable year that includes the date of the transfer (as defined in paragraph (b)(3) of this section). However, in the case of a transfer that occurred prior to June 16, 1986, Form 926 and the required attachments must be filed by September 16, 1986, if that date is later than the date the filing would otherwise be required under the preceding sentence. Section 7502 and regulations thereunder shall apply in determining whether the form and attachments are timely filed. Any attachment to Form 926 required under the rules of this section is filed subject to the transferor's declaration under penalties of perjury on Form 926 that the information submitted is true, correct, and complete to the best of the transferor's knowledge and belief.

(2) Person required to file—(i) In general. Form 926 and the attachments required under the rules of this section must be filed by each U.S. person that makes a transfer described in section 367(a) or (d). No notice shall be required under this section with respect to a distribution described in section 367(e). No notice shall be required under this section with respect to a transfer of stock of securities described in §1.367(a)-3T(f)(1) or with respect to a transfer described in section 367(a)(2). If two or more persons transfer jointly-owned property to a foreign corporation in a transfer with respect to which a notice is required under this section, then each person must report with respect to the particular interest he transferred, specifying the nature and extent of the interest. However, a husband and wife (and their minor children) may jointly file a single information return. If two or more U.S. persons owning stock or securities in a corporation transfer such stock or securities to a foreign corporation in the same translation, then the corporation whose stock or securities are transferred may, at its choice, file the notice required by this section on behalf of its shareholders. In that case, a single form 926, signed by the responsible officer of the corporation, shall be filed, containing the required information with respect to each shareholder, other than shareholders described in §1.367(a)-3T(f)(1).

(ii) Indirect transfers. If a U.S. person that holds an interest in an entity is considered to make an indirect transfer (when the entity transfers property to a foreign corporation) under the provisions of—

(A) Section 367(a)-1T(c)(2)(i)(B) (concerning mergers to which section 368(a)(2)(D) applies);

(B) Section 367(a)-1T(c)(2)(i)(C) (concerning mergers to which section 368(a)(2)(E) applies);

(C) Section 367(a)-1T(c)(2)(ii) (concerning reorganizations described in section 368(a)(1)(B));

(D) Section 367(a)-1T(c)(2)(iii) (concerning reorganizations described in section 368(a)(1)(C));

(E) Section 367(a)-1T(c)(3)(i) (concerning transfers of property by a partnership); or

(F) Section 367(a)-1T(c)(4) (concerning transfers of property by a trust or estate), then the requirements of this section shall apply with respect to each such person. However, the requirements of this section may be satisfied by the entity, on behalf of its interest-holders, by the filing of a single information return containing the required information with respect to each interest-holder (other than persons described in §1.367(a)-3T(f)(1)) that is considered to make a transfer described in section 367(a). If the entity chooses to satisfy the requirements of this section on behalf of its interest-holders, Form 926 must be signed by a responsible officer in the case of a corporation, by a general partner in the case of a partnership, and by a trustee, executor, or equivalent fiduciary in the case of a trust or estate.

(3) Date of transfer—(i) In general. for purposes of this section, the date of a transfer described in section 367 is the first date on which title to, possession of, or rights to the use of stock, securities, or other property passes pursuant to the plan for purposes of subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. A transfer will not be considered to begin with a decision on a board of directors or similar action unless the transaction otherwise takes effect for purposes of subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code on that date.

(ii) Termination of section 1504(d) election. A transfer deemed to occur as a result of the termination of an election under section 1504(d) will be considered to occur on the date the contiguous country corporation first fails to continue to qualify for the election under section 1504(d). The rule of this paragraph (b)(3)(ii) is illustrated by the following example.

Example. Domestic corporation W previously made a valid election under section 1504(d) to have its Mexican subsidiary S treated as a domestic corporation. On August 1, 1986, W disposes of its right, title, and interest in 10 percent of the stock of S by selling such stock to an unrelated United States person who is not a director of S. S first fails to continue to qualify for the election under section 1504(d) on August 1, 1986, since on such date it ceases to be directly or indirectly wholly owned or controlled by W. The construction transfer of assets from "domestic" corporation S to Mexican corporation S is considered to occur on that date.

(iii) Change in classification. A transfer deemed to occur as a result of a change in classification of an entity caused by a change in the governing documents, articles, or agreements of the entity (as described in §1.367(a)-1T(c)(6)) will be considered to occur on the date that such changes take effect for purposes of subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code.

(iv) U.S. resident under section 6013(g) or (h). A transfer made by an alien individual who is considered to be a U.S. resident by reason of a timely election under section 6013(g) or (h) will be considered to occur, for purposes of this section (but not for purposes of section 367), on the later of—

(A) The date on which the election under section 6013(g) or (h) is made; or

(B) The date on which the transfer would otherwise be considered to occur under the rules of this paragraph (b)(3).

The rule of this paragraph (b)(3)(iv) is illustrated by the following example.

Example. D is a nonresident alien individual who is married to a United States citizen. On March 1, 1986, D transfers property to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 351. On April 15, 1987, D and the spouse timely file with their tax return for the taxable year ended December 31, 1986, an election under section 6013(g) for D to be treated as a United States resident. The election is effective on January 1, 1986. For purposes of section 6038B, the transfer described in section 367(a) made by D in connection with the section 351 exchange is considered to occur on April 15, 1987, the date on which the timely election was made under section 6013(g).

(c) Information required with respect to transfers described in section 367(a)(1). A U.S. person that transfers property to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 367(a)(1) (other than a transfer described in section 367(a)(2)) must provide the following information in paragraphs labelled to correspond with the number or letter set forth below. If a particular item is not applicable to the subject transfer, list its heading and state that it is not applicable.

(1) Transferor. Provide the name, U.S. taxpayer identification number, and address of the U.S. person making the transfer.

(2) Transfer. Provide the following information concerning the transfer:

(i) Name, U.S. taxpayer identification number (if any), address, and country of incorporation of transferee foreign corporation;

(ii) A general description of the transfer, and any wider transaction of which it forms a part, including a chronology of the transfers involved and an identification of the other parties to the transaction to the extent known.

(3) Consideration received. Provide a description of the consideration received by the U.S. person making the transfer, including its estimated fair market value and, in the case of stock or securities, the class or type, amount, and characteristics of the interest received.

(4) Property transferred. Provide a description of the property transferred. The description must be divided into the following categories, and must include the estimated fair market value and adjusted basis of the property, as well as any additional information specified below.

(i) Active business property. Describe any transferred property (other than stock or securities) to be used in the active conduct of a trade or business outside of the United States. Provide here a general description of the business conducted (or to be conducted) by the transferee, including the location of the business, the number of its employees, the nature of the business, and copies of the most recently prepared balance sheet and profit and loss statement. Property listed within this category may be identified by general type. For example, upon the transfer of the assets of a manufacturing operation, a reasonable description of the property to be used in the business might include the categories of office equipment and supplies, computers and related equipment, motor vehicles, and several major categories of manufacturing equipment. However, any property that is includible both in this subdivision (i) and in subdivision (iii) of this paragraph (c)(4) (property subject to depreciation recapture under §1.367(a)-4T(b)) must be identified in the manner required in subdivision (iii). If property is considered to be transferred for use in the active conduct of a trade or business under a special rule in §1.367(a)-4T, specify the applicable rule and provide information supporting the application of the rule. If property is subject to section 367(a)(1) regardless of its use in a trade or business under the rules of §§1.367(a)-4T or 1.367(a)-5T, list the property only in response to subdivision (vii) of this paragraph (c)(4).

(ii) Stock or securities. Describe any transferred stock or securities, including the class or type, amount, and chracteristics of the transferred stock or securities, as well as the name, address, place of incorporation, and general description of the corporation issuing the stock. In addition, provide the following information if applicable:

(A) Active trade or business stock. If the stock or securities are considered to be transferred for use in the active conduct of a trade or busines soutside of the United States under the rules of §1.367(a)-3T(d)(2), provide information supporting the application of the rule.

(B) Application of special rules. If any provision of §1.367(a)-3T applies to except the transfer of stock or securities from the rule of section 367(a)(1), provide information supporting the claimed application of such provision (including information supporting the nonapplicability of either anti-abuse rule under §1.367(a)-3T(h)). If the transferor is entering into an agreement to recognize gain upon a later disposition of the transferred stock by the transferee foreign corporation under §1.367(a)-3T(g), attach the agreement and waiver as required by the rules of that paragraph.

(iii) Depreciated property. Describe any property that is subject to depreciation recapture under the rules of §1.367(a)-4T(b). Property within this category must be separately identified to the same extent as was required for purposes of the previously claimed depreciation deduction. Specify with respect to each such asset the relevant recapture provision, the number of months in which such property was in use within the United States, the total number of months the property was in use, the fair market value of the property, a schedule of the depreciation deduction taken with respect to the property, and a calculation of the amount of depreciation required to be recaptured.

(iv) Property to be leased. Describe any property to be leased to other persons by the transferee foreign corporation (unless such property is considered to be transferred for use in the active conduct of a trade or business and was thus listed under subdivision (i) of this paragraph (c)(4)). If the rules of §1.367(a)-4T(c)(2) apply to except the transfer from the rule of section 367(a)(1), provide information supporting the claimed application of such provision.

(v) Property to be sold. Describe any transferred property that is to be sold or otherwise disposed of by the transferee foreign corporation, as described in §1.367(a)-4T(d).

(vi) Transfers to FSCs. Describe any property that is subject to the special rule of §1.367(a)-4T(g) for transfers to FSCs. Provide information supporting the claimed application of that rule.

(vii) Tainted property. Describe any property that is subject to §1.367(a)-5T (concerning property that is subject to the rule of section 367(a)(1) regardless of whether it is transferred for use in the active conduct of a trade or business outside of the United States). Such description must be divided into the relevant categories, as follows:

(A) Inventory, etc. Property described in §1.367(a)-5T(b);

(B) Installment obligations, etc. Property described in §1.367(a)-5T(c);

(C) Foreign currency, etc. Property described in §1.367(a)-5T(d);

(D) Intangible property. Property described in §1.367(a)-5T(e); and

(E) Leased property. Property described in §1.367(a)-4T(c).

If any exception provided in §1.367(a)-5T applies to the transferred property (making section 367(a)(1) not applicable to the transfer), provide information supporting the claimed application of such exception.

(viii) Foreign loss branch. Provide the information specified in paragraph (c)(5) of this section.

(ix) Other intangibles. Describe any intangible property sold or licensed by the transferor to the transferee foreign corporation, and set forth the general terms of each sale or license.

(5) Transfer of foreign branch with previously deducted losses. If the property transferred is property of a foreign branch with previously deducted losses subject to the rule of §1.367(a)-6T, provide the following information:

(i) Branch operation. Describe the foreign branch the property of which is transferred, in accordance with the definition of §1.367(a)-6T(g).

(ii) Branch property. Describe the property of the foreign branch, including its adjusted basis and fair market value. For this purpose property must be identified with reasonable particularity, but may be identified by category rather than listing every asset separately. Substantially similar property may be listed together for this purpose, and property of minor value may be grouped into functional categories. For example, a reasonable description of the property of a business office might include the following categories: word processing or data processing equipment, other office equipment and furniture, and office supplies.

(iii) Previously deducted losses. Set forth a detailed calculation of the sum of the losses incurred by the foreign branch before the transfer, and a detailed calculation of any reduction of such losses, in accordance with §1.367(a)-6T(d) and (e).

(iv) Character of gain. Set forth a statement of the character of the gain required to be recognized, in accordance with §1.367(a)-6T(c)(1).

(d) Transfers subject to section 367(d)—(1) Initial transfer. A U.S. person that transfers intangible property to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 351 and 361 must provide the following information in paragraphs labelled to correspond with the number or letter set forth below. If a particular item is not applicable to the subject transfer, list its heading and state that it is not applicable. The information required by subdivisions (i) through (iii) need only be provided if such information was not otherwise provided under paragraph (c) of this section. (Note that the U.S. transferor may subsequently be required to file another return under paragraph (d)(2) of this section.)

(i) Transferor. Provide the name, U.S. taxpayer identification number, and address of the U.S. person making the transfer.

(ii) Transfer. Provide information concerning the transfer, including:

(A) Name, U.S. taxpayer identification number (if any), address, and country of incorpoartion of the transferee foreign corporation;

(B) A general description of the transfer, and any wider transaction of which it forms a part, including a chronology of the transfer involved and an identification of the other parties to the transaction to the extent known.

(iii) Consideration received. Provide a description of the consideration received by the U.S. person making the transfer, including its estimated fair market value and, in the case of stock or securities, the class or type, amount, and characteristics of the interest received.

(iv) Intangible property transferred. Provide a description of the intangible property transferred, including its adjusted basis. Generally, each intangible asset must be separately identified. Operating intangibles and foreign goodwill or going concern value, as defined in §1.367(a)-1T(d)(5)(ii) and (iii), should be so identified and classified.

(v) Annual payment. Provide and explain the calculation of the annual deemed payment for the use of the intangible property required to be recognized by the transferor under the rules of section 367(d).

(vi) Election to treat as sale. List any intangible with respect to which an election is being made under §1.367(d)-1T(g)(2) to treat the transfer as a sale. Include the fair market value of the intangible on the date of the transfer and a calculation of the gain required to be recognized in the year of the transfer by reason of the election.

(vii) Coordination with loss rules. List any intangible property subject to section 367(d) the transfer of which also gives rise to the recognition of gain under section 904(f)(3) or §1.367(a)-6T. Provide a calculation of the gain required to be recognized with respect to such property, in accordance with the provisions of §1.367(d)-1T(g)(4).

(viii) Other intangibles. Describe any intangible property sold or licensed by the transferor to the transferee foreign corporation, and set forth the general terms of each sale or license.

(2) Subsequent transfers. If a U.S. person transfers intangible property to a foreign corporation in an exchange described in section 351 or 361, and at any time thereafter (within the useful life of the intangible property) either that U.S. person disposes of the stock of the transferee foreign corporation or the transferee foreign corporation disposes of the transferred intangible, then the U.S. person must provide the following information in paragraphs labelled to correspond with the number or letter set forth below. The information required by subdivisions (i) and (ii) need only be provided if such information was not otherwise provided in the same return, pursuant to paragraph (c) or (d)(1) of this section. For purposes of determining the date on which a return under this subparagraph (2) is required to be filed, the date of transfer is the date of the subsequent transfer of stock or intangible property.

(i) Transferor. Provide the name, U.S. taxpayer identification number, and address of the U.S. person making the transfer.

(ii) Initial transfer. Provide the following information concerning the initial transfer:

(A) The date of the transfer;

(B) The name, U.S. taxpayer identification number (if any), address, and country of incorporation of the transferee foreign corporation; and

(C) A general description of the transfer and any wider transaction of which it formed a part.

(iii) Subsequent transfer. Provide the following information concerning the subsequent transfer:

(A) A general description of the subsequent transfer and any wider transaction of which it forms a part;

(B) A calculation of any gain required to be recognized by the U.S. person under the rules of §1.367(d)-1T(d) through (f); and

(C) The name, address, and identifying number of each person that under the rules of §1.367(d)-1T(e) and (f) will be considered to receive contingent annual payments for the use of the intangible property.

(e) Transfers subject to section 367(e). [Reserved]

(f) Failure to comply with reporting requirements—(1) Consequences of failure. If a U.S. person is required to file a notice under §1.6038B-1T(b) and fails to comply with the applicable reporting requirements of section 6038B and this section, then with respect to the particular property as to which there was a failure to comply—

(i) That property shall not be considered to have been transferred for use in the active conduct of a trade or business outside of the United States, for purposes of section 367(a) and regulations thereunder;

(ii) The U.S. person shall pay a penalty equal to 25 percent of the amount of gain realized on the exchange of that property (without regard to whether gain is recognized on the transfer); and

(iii) The period of limitations on assessment of tax upon the transfer of that property shall not begin to run until the date on which the transferor does comply with the applicable reporting requirements.

Thus, the time for assessment of tax is extended indefinitely if the transferor's failure to comply is continued indefinitely.

(2) Failure to comply. A failure to comply with the requirements of section 6038B is—

(i) The failure to report at the proper time and in the proper manner any material information required to be reported under the rules of this section; or

(ii) The provision of false or inaccurate information is purported compliance with the requirements of this section.

Thus, a transferor that timely files Form 926 with the attachments required under the rules of this section shall, nevertheless, have failed to comply if, for example, the transferor reports therein that property will be used in the active conduct of a trade or business outside of the United States, but in fact such property continues to be used in a trade or business within the United States.

(3) Reasonable cause exception. The provisions of paragraph (f)(1) of this section shall not apply if the transferor shows that a failure to comply was due to reasonable cause and not willful neglect. The transferor may do so by providing a written statement to the district director having jurisdiction of the taxpayer's return for the year of the transfer, setting forth the reasons for the failure to comply. Whether a failure to comply was due to reasonable cause shall be determined by the district director under all the facts and circumstances.

Par. 7. The authority for Part 7 is amended by adding the following citation:

Authority: 26 USC 7805. * * * Section 7.367(b)-1 and 7.367(b)-4 also issued under 26 USC 367(b).

Par. 8. Section 7.367(b)-1 is amended by removing the last sentence of paragraph (a) and adding in lieu thereof the following two new sentences.

§7.367(b)-1 Other transfers.

(a) Scope. * * * An exchange to which section 367(b) applies is an exchange described in section 367(b) and in section 332, 351, 354, 355, 356, or 361 with respect to which the status of a foreign corporation as a corporation is relevant for determining the extent to which gain shall be recognized and in connection with which there is no transfer described in section 367(a). An election by a domestic corporation under section 1504(d) to treat a corporation organized under the laws of a contiguous foreign country as a domestic corporation shall be considered to be a transfer of property made pursuant to an exchange to which section 367(b) applies.

Par. 9. Section 7.367(b)-4 is amended by revising paragraph (b)(2)(ii) to read as follows:

§7.367(b)-4 Certain exchanges described in more than one Code provision.

* * * * *

(b) Treatment of certain exchanges described in both section 354 and in either section 351 or 361.

(2) Exceptions. * * *

(ii) Specified treatment. If an exchange of stock in a foreign corporation by a U.S. person is an exchange to which the rules under section 367(a) apply, then the gain required to be included in gross income under paragraph (b)(1)(i)(B) or paragraph (b)(1)(ii) of this section shall not be required to be immediately recognized under this paragraph (b), and instead the transaction shall be treated in accordance with the regulations under section 367(a). See §1.367(a)-3T.

Par. 10. The authority citation for Part 602 is as follows:

Par. 11. Section 602.101(c) is amended by inserting in the appropriate place in the table "§1.367(a)-1T . . . .

Part IV. Items of General Interest

Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

LR-3-86

SUMMARY: * * * [T]he Internal Revenue Service is issuing temporary regulations that add new §§1.367(a)-1T through 1.367(a)-6T, relating to transfers of property by U.S. persons to foreign corporations, new §1.367(d)-1T, relating to transfers of intangible property by U.S. persons to foreign corporations, and new §1.6038B-1T, relating to reporting of transactions described in section 367. The text of the new sections also serves as the comment document for this notice of proposed rulemaking.

DATES: Written comments and requests for a public hearing must be delivered or mailed before July 15, 1986. The regulations are proposed generally to apply to transfers made after December 31, 1984.

ADDRESS: Send comments and requests for a public hearing to: Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: CC:LR:T [LR-3-86], Washington, DC 20224.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Charles W. Culmer of the Legislation and Regulations Division, Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20224, (Attention: CC:LR:T) (202-566-4336, not a toll-free call).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

The temporary regulations published * * * [on page 5, this Bulletin] add new §§1.367(a)-1T, 1.367(a)-2T, 1.367(a)-3T, 1.367(a)-4T, 1.367(a)-5T, 1.367(a)-6T, 1.367(d)-1T, and 1.6038B-1T to 26 CFR Part 1. The final regulations that are proposed to be based on these temporary regulations would amend 26 CFR Part 1 by adding these new temporary regulation sections as final regulation sections under sections 367 and 6038B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. For the text of the temporary regulations, see FR Doc. 80-10831 [T.D. 8087] published * * * [on page 5, this Bulletin].

REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT AND EXECUTIVE ORDER 12291

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that this proposed rule is not a major rule as defined in Executive Order 12291 and that a Regulatory Impact Analysis is therefore not required. The Secretary of the Treasury has certified that this rule will not have a significant impact on a substantial number of small entities. Few small entities would be affected by these regulations. A regulatory flexibility analysis, therefore, is not required under the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 6).

COMMENTS AND REQUESTS FOR A PUBLIC HEARING

Before adopting these proposed regulations, consideration will be given to any written comments that are submitted (preferably eight copies) to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. All comments will be available for public inspection and copying. A public hearing will be held upon written request to the Commissioner by any person who has submitted written comments. If a public hearing is held, notice of the time and place will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The collection of information requirements contained herein have been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) for review under section 3504(h) of the Paperwork Reduction Act. Comments on the requirements should be sent to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs of OMB, Attention: Desk Officer for Internal Revenue Service, New Executive Office Building, Washington, DC 20503. The Internal Revenue Service requests persons submitting comments to OMB to also send copies of the comments to the Service.

DRAFTING INFORMATION

The principal author of this regulation is Charles W. Culmer of the Legislation and Regulations Division of the Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service. However, personnel from other offices of the Internal Revenue Service and Treasury Department participated in developing the regulations on matters of substance and style.

Proposal of regulations

The temporary regulations, FR Doc. 80-10831 [T.D. 8087] published * * * [on page 5, this Bulletin], are hereby also proposed as final regulations under section 367 and 6038B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

ROSCOE L. EGGER JR.,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

(Filed by the Office of the Federal Register on May 15, 1986, 8:45 a.m., and published in the issue of the Federal Register for May 16, 1986, 51 F.R. 17990)

Announcement of the Disbarment, Suspension, or Consent to Voluntary Suspension of Attorneys, Certified Public Accountants, Enrolled Agents and Enrolled Actuaries from Practice Before the Internal Revenue Service

Under 31 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 10, an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, in order to avoid the institution or conclusion of a proceeding for his disbarment or suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, may offer his consent to suspension from such practice. The Director of Practice, in his discretion, may suspend an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary in accordance with the consent offered.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents, and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify practitioners under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and addresses of practitioners who have been suspended from such practice, their designation as attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date or period of suspension. This announcement will appear in the weekly Bulletin at the earliest practicable date after such action and will continue to appear in the weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks or for as many weeks as is practicable for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

The following individuals have been placed under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Mack I. Frank	Eunice, LA	Attorney	Indefinite from April 1, 1986
Carl Goldfarb	Charlotte, NC	Attorney	Indefinite from April 28, 1986
Dennis M. Hayes	Ann Arbor, MI	Attorney	Indefinnite from April 15, 1986
Ronald N. Kief	Warren, MI	Certified Public Accountant	Two Years from June 1, 1986
Richard L. Leopold	Ottawa, OH	Attorney	Three Months from May 1, 1986
Julius Stackel	Flushing, NY	Certified Public Accountant	Thirty Months from April 15, 1986
John Such	Lyndhurst, OH	Enrolled Agent	Eighteen Months from April 22, 1986

INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

The Introduction on page 3 describes the purpose and content of this publication. The weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin is sold on a yearly subscription basis by the Superintendent of Documents. Current subscribers are notified by the Superintendent of Documents when their subscriptions must be renewed.

CUMULATIVE BULLETINS

The contents of the weekly Bulletin are consolidated semiannually into a permanent, indexed, Cumulative Bulletin. These are sold on a single copy basis and are not included as part of the subscription to the Internal Revenue Bulletin. Subscribers to the weekly Bulletin are notified when copies of the Cumulative Bulletin are available. Certain issues of Cumulative Bulletins are out of print and are not available. Persons desiring available Cumulative Bulletins, which are listed on the reverse, may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents.

BULLETIN INDEX-DIGEST SYSTEM

The Bulletin Index-Digest System provides a fast and easy way to research Revenue Rulings, Revenue Procedures, Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and other matters of a permanent nature published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin, or Cumulative Bulletin from 1953 on. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date research tool that requires no filing or other clerical maintenance. The current revision consists of four Services, available on a subscription basis, each including a basic volume that covers the period 1953-1983/1984 and a cumulative supplement covering material published in subsequent Bulletins for the following two-year period. Cumulative supplements are issued quarterly for the Income Tax Service and semiannually for the Estate and Gift, Employment, and Excise Tax Service.

HOW TO ORDER

Check the publications and/or subscription(s) desired on the reverse, complete the order blank, enclose the proper remittance, detach entire page, and mail to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Please allow two to six weeks, plus mailing time, for delivery.

T22.23:

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing our Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

Introduction

The Internal Revenue Bulletin is the authoritative instrument of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for announcing official rulings and procedures of the Internal Revenue Service and for publishing Treasury Decisions, Executive Orders, Tax Conventions, legislation, court decisions, and other items of general interest. It is published weekly and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. Bulletin contents of a permanent nature are consolidated semiannually into Cumulative Bulletins, which are sold on a single-copy basis.

It is the policy of the Service to publish in the Bulletin all substantive rulings necessary to promote a uniform application of the tax laws, including all rulings that supersede, revoke, modify, or amend any of those previously published in the Bulletin. All published rulings apply retroactively unless otherwise indicated. Procedures relating solely to matters of internal management are not published; however, statements of internal practices and procedures that affect the rights and duties of taxpayers are published.

Revenue rulings represent the conclusions of the Service on the application of the law to the pivotal facts stated in the revenue ruling. In those based on positions taken in rulings to taxpayers or technical advice to Service field offices, identifying details and information of a confidential nature are deleted to prevent unwarranted invasions of privacy and to comply with statutory requirements.

Rulings and procedures reported in the Bulletin do not have the force and effect of Treasury Department Regulations, but they may be used as precedents. Unpublished rulings will not be relied on, used, or cited as precedents by Service personnel in the disposition of other cases. In applying published rulings and procedures, the effect of subsequent legislation, regulations, court decisions, rulings, and procedures must be considered, and Service personnel and others concerned are cautioned against reaching the same conclusions in other cases unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same.

The Bulletin is divided into four parts as follows:

Part I.—1954 Code.

This part includes rulings and decisions based on provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Part II.—Treaties and Tax Legislation.

This part is divided into two subparts as follows: Subpart A, Tax Conventions, and Subpart B, Legislation and Related Committee Reports.

Part III.—Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous.

To the extent practicable, pertinent cross references to these subjects are contained in the other Parts and Subparts.

Part IV.—Items of General Interest.

With the exception of the disbarment and suspension list included in this part, none of these announcements is consolidated in the Cumulative Bulletins.

The first Bulletin for each month includes an index for the matters published during the preceding month. These monthly indexes are cumulated on a quarterly and semiannual basis, and are published in the first Bulletin of the succeeding quarterly and semi-annual period, respectively.

The Bulletin Index-Digest System, a research and reference service supplementing the Bulletin, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. It consists of four Services: Service No. 1, Income Tax; Service No. 2, Estate and Gift Taxes; Service No. 3, Employment Taxes; Service No. 4, Excise Taxes. Each Service consists of a basic volume and a cumulative supplement that provide (1) finding lists of items published in the Bulletin, (2) digests of revenue rulings, revenue procedures, and other published items, and (3) indexes of Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and Tax Conventions.

The contents of this publication are not copyrighted and may be reprinted freely. A citation of the Internal Revenue Bulletin as the source would be appropriate.

Temporary Regulations Under Section 338 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954; Statements of Election and Due Dates

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Temporary regulations.

SUMMARY: This document contains temporary regulations primarily relating to section 338(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 ("Code") as added by the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 ("TEFRA") [Pub. L. 97-248, 1982-2 C.B. 462]. The temporary regulations provide additional guidance to taxpayers concerning the filing of certain statements of election on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986. An amendment to temporary regulations §1.338-4T clarifies the application of the mitigation of limitations provisions. The temporary regulations also extend the time for taking certain actions under section 338. The text of the temporary regulations set forth in this document also serves as the text of the proposed regulations cross-referenced * * * [on page 24, this Bulletin].

DATES: The temporary regulations under section 338(g) and the amendments to the temporary regulations generally are effective with respect to stock acquisitions made after August 31, 1982. New paragraph (m) of §1.338-1T is effective only with respect to elections under section 338 filed on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

This document amends temporary regulations §§1.338-1T, 1.338-2T, 1.338-4T, 1.338-5T, and 1.338(h)(10)-1T in Part 1 of Title 26 of the Code of Federal Regulations ("CFR"). Section 1.338-1T was published as T.D. 7942 in the FEDERAL REGISTER on February 8, 1984 (49 FR 4722) [1984-1 C.B. 92], and was amended and redesignated (as §1.338-1T) by temporary regulations published as T.D. 7975 in the FEDERAL REGISTER on September 6, 1984 (49 FR 35086) [1984-2 C.B. 81]. Section 1.338-1T also was amended by temporary regulations published as T.D. 8021 in the FEDERAL REGISTER on April 25, 1985 (50 FR 16402) [1985-1 C.B. 96]. The temporary regulations published on April 25, 1985, also added §1.338-4T. Sections 1.338-1T and 1.338-4T were amended by temporary regulations published as T.D. 8068 in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 8, 1986 [1986-8 I.R.B. 9], and by temporary regulations published as T.D. 8072 in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 29, 1986 [1986-11 I.R.B. 7]. The temporary regulations published on January 8, 1986, also added §1.338(h)(10)-1T. All these temporary regulations were further amended by temporary regulations published as T.D. 8074 published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on February 12, 1986 [1986-15 I.R.B. 4], which also added §1.338-5T. The temporary regulations amended by this document will remain in effect until superseded by later temporary or final regulations relating to these matters.

The amendments made by this document are primarily under section 338(g). That provision was originally added by section 224 of TEFRA (Pub. L. No. 97-248; 96 Stat. 485) [1982-2 C.B. 462] and was amended by section 712(k) of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 (Pub. L. 98-369; 98 Stat. 946) [1984-3 C.B. (Vol. 1) 1, 456]. Other amendments are briefly discussed at the end of this preamble.

OPERATION OF SECTION 338

In general

Section 338 generally provides that, if a corporation ("target") is acquired by another corporation ("purchasing corporation") in a qualified stock purchase, the purchasing corporation may elect (or may be deemed to elect under certain consistency rules) to have the target treated as if it: (1) sold all of its assets (as "old target") at fair market value at the close of the day on which the qualified stock purchase occurred ("acquisition date") and (2) purchased those assets as a new corporation ("new target") at the beginning of the following day for an amount generally equal to the price paid by the purchasing corporation for target stock plus liabilities of target and other relevant items. Section 338(a) and (b). The deemed sale of assets by old target generally is governed by the nonrecognition rule of section 337. In general, the tax attributes of old target are not available to new target. The net effect of a section 338 election is that the purchasing corporation obtains a basis in target assets that generally reflects the price it paid for target stock.

Effect of section 338 election on taxable year

Once a valid section 338 election has been made, old target's taxable year ends as of the close of business on the acquisition date. If the selling and purchasing groups each file separate returns (as opposed to consolidated returns) and the acquisition date occurs on a day other than the last day of target's regular taxable year, then the Federal income tax return (filed prior to making the section 338 election) for the relevant taxable year which includes the acquisition date should be amended and two separate amended returns should be filed as a result of the section 338 election. The first amended return would cover the portion of that relevant taxable year through the close of business on the acquisition date, which would include any additional Federal tax due because of target's deemed sale of assets under section 338. The second amended return would cover the balance of target's taxable year (relating to target's operations) subsequent to the acquisition date.

The impact of a section 338 election on target's taxable year will be different if old target was a subsidiary in an affiliated group that filed a consolidated return for the period that included the acquisition date and an election under section 338(h)(10) is not made. In such case, the deemed sale will be the only transaction reported on old target's final return (called a "deemed sale return"). The Federal income tax consequences of target's operations through the close of business on the acquisition date shall continue to be reported on the selling group's consolidated return for the taxable period which included the acquisition date. Likewise, the Federal income tax consequences of target's operations for the remainder of target's regular taxable year shall continue to be reported either on the purchasing group's consolidated return or on a separate return for target if the purchaser was not included on a consolidated return.

EXPLANATION OF PROVISIONS

These temporary regulations provide procedures in new paragraph (m) of §1.338-1T for filing and for perfecting certain statements of election under section 338(g) for statements of election filed on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 14, 1986. The time for making such an election is extended by these regulations to the later of the 15th day of the ninth month beginning after the month in which the acquisition date occurs or July 15, 1986. See News Release IR-86-18, dated February 27, 1986.

For elections which do not require the filing of a deemed sale return, the procedures in new paragraph (m) condition the election on either filing consents which postpone the expiration of the statute of limitations or filing closing agreements which waive the expiration of the statute of limitations and extend the period for assessment. These new procedures are applicable for each relevant taxable year for which the statute of limitation of assessment has expired or will expire on or before November 15, 1986. A relevant taxable year is one for which a Federal income tax return was filed prior to filing the statement of section 338 election, but only if there would be an increase or decrease in Federal income tax as a result of the election. Additionally, new paragraph (m) conditions an effective section 338 election upon the filing of a closing agreement in situations where a deemed sale return must be filed as a result of the section 338 election. Standard language for these agreements is prescribed in this document for the convenience of both taxpayers and the Internal Revenue Service.

The procedures described in these regulations are required whether the tax for the period affected would be increased or decreased. Increased tax may arise, for example, by reason of income or tax credit recapture caused by the deemed sale by old target and by tax attributes of old target not carrying over to new target. An example that results in a decrease in tax is higher depreciation or a similar deduction for new target that arises by reason of the deemed purchase under section 338(a)(2) by new target of assets that had a tax basis in the hands of old target lower than new target's tax basis.

Statute of limitations

As previously described, the section 338 election may create two taxable periods within a relevant taxable year which otherwise would be properly accounted for as a single taxable year before the statement of election was filed. If new target chooses the same taxable year that old target used, and if target had filed a tax return for the relevant taxable year which includes the acquisition date, the statute of limitations for any short period which may arise (as a consequence of the section 338 election) starts to run under new §1.338-1T(m)(10) on the date on which target is considered to have filed under section 6501(b) its tax return for that relevant taxable year. For example, if target is a calendar year taxpayer and a qualified stock purchase of its stock is made on December 1, 1982, the statute of limitations for target's year ending December 1, 1982 (a short period which results from the section 338 election) would begin to run on the date target is considered to have filed its return for its taxable year ending December 31, 1982.

A deemed sale return cannot be filed prior to the filing of a section 338 election. Accordingly, the statute of limitations will not begin to run until the deemed sale return is filed. See section 6501(a) and section 6501(b)(1). The closing agreements required by new paragraph (m) of §1.338-1T in these situations reflect this rule of law.

Consents to extend statute of limitations

Section 1.338-1T(m) provides for procedures in circumstances when the statement of section 338 election is filed and the statute of limitations for a relevant taxable year of target, affected target, or corporate transferee expires after August 15, 1986, and on or before November 15, 1986. As a condition for making a section 338 election, the target, affected target, or corporate transferee is required to extend under section 6501(c)(4) the period for making an assessment for each such relevant taxable year until May 15, 1987. Unless such requirement is satisfied, the statement of section 338 election is ineffective unless such condition is waived by the District Director.

The extensions required by these regulations are necessary to ensure that taxpayers do not avoid the burdens of a section 338 election while retaining its benefits. The extensions will also have the effect of extending the period to file claim for refund. The extension date of May 15, 1987, was chosen to avoid requiring taxpayers to extend the period within which an assessment can be made for a period of less than 6 months and, for administrative convenience in order to provide a uniform date to which extensions would be made. The consent procedures in §1.338-1T(m) apply only if the statute of limitations on assessment will not otherwise expire on or before August 15, 1986.

Closing agreements— no deemed sale returns

If for a relevant taxable year the statute of limitations has already expired or will expire on or before August 15, 1986, new paragraph (m) of §1.338-1T also provides that an express election filed on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986, is conditioned upon filing a closing agreement executed by target, affected target or corporate transferee wherein they (1) agree to waive the statute of limitations which has expired or is about to expire, (2) agree to file on or before November 3, 1986, amended returns which reflect the consequences of the deemed sale of assets under section 338(a)(1), and (3) agree to extend the statute of limitations for assessment of any additional tax due as a result of the deemed sale of assets until June 15, 1988. The election will be ineffective unless this condition is satisfied or is waived by the District Director.

It should be noted that even if each of the conditions for an effective election pursuant to this regulation are satisfied, certain adverse consequences may result in the event that an amended return reflecting the deemed sale is filed after July 15, 1986, and on or before November 3, 1986. Section 1.338-1T(h) of the existing temporary regulations generally permits waivers of certain additions to tax and time to act only if any required amended return is filed and certain other corrective action is taken on or before the last day for making an election under section 338. Also, section 1.338-1T(f)(7) permits a new target to adopt on its first return a taxable year other than the one target used before making the section 338 election, but only if that first return is filed on or before the last day for making an express election under section 338.

Except in the event a section 338(h)(10) election is made, the statement of section 338 election will also be ineffective if the amended return described in any closing agreement is not filed on or before the time required by the agreement unless the District Director waives this additional requirement. If a selling group participates in a section 338(h)(10) election, the selling group must agree to file an amended consolidated return which reports the deemed sale gain. However, the section 338 election and the section 338(h)(10) election are not ineffective if the amended consolidated return is not filed. This rule protects target and its purchaser from an act of omission which is beyond their control.

Section 6401(a) provides that any amount of a payment of any internal revenue tax which is assessed or collected after the expiration of the period of limitation properly applicable thereto is an overpayment. By entering into a closing agreement which waives and extends the applicable statute of limitations, any tax reported, paid, and collected as a result of the deemed sale of assets is not an overpayment within the meaning of section 6401(a).

In general, the reasons for these closing agreement procedures are similar to the reasons previously explained in this document for the requirements for consents to extend the statute of limitations. The August 15, 1986, cutoff date for the expiration of the statute of limitations for closing agreements in those cases where a deemed sale return is not required was selected in order to allow the Internal Revenue Service a reasonable amount of time to process the required documents and affix the appropriate signatures and for purposes of taxpayer convenience.

Closing agreements—deemed sale returns or combined deemed sale returns

A closing agreement is also required if a deemed sale return must be filed as a result of a section 338 election. The closing agreement procedures require that a deemed sale return or a combined deemed sale return must be filed on or before November 3, 1986, and that the statute of limitations with respect to a deemed sale return or a combined deemed sale return will not terminate prior to the expiration of three years from the date a deemed sale return or combined deemed sale return is considered filed.

Effective date

After December 6, 1985, the public was on notice that the Internal Revenue Service was going to consider the publication of rules dealing with "elections made in circumstances when the statute of limitations has expired or is about to expire for certain taxable years (such as might be the case for target's taxable year that includes the acquisition date)." See IRS News Release IR-85-115. December 9, 1985, was selected as the effective date for the procedures in new paragraph (m) because it was the first business day following the release of News Release IR-85-115.

Elections for which perfection is required

If a statement of section 338 election filed on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986, does not meet the requirements in new paragraph (m)(2) of §1.338-1T, which includes the filing of consents to extend the statute of limitations or certain closing agreements, then the election may be perfected by refiling in accordance with those requirements on or before July 15, 1986.

District Director discretion

For a statement of section 338 election filed on or before July 15, 1986, the District Director (or his delegate) has discretion to waive any requirement in new paragraph (m)(2) of §1.338-1T, including the requirement of filing any amended return as prescribed by closing agreement. This discretion is to be exercised in connection with the examination of any Federal income tax return which would be affected by a section 338 election and is to be exercised on the basis of all the relevant facts and circumstances.

Mitigation

In the absence of a section 338(h)(10) election, any tax due in any closed taxable year as the result of a section 338 election made after the close of such year may be collected through the operation of the mitigation provisions (sections 1311-1314). Section 1.338-4T(l)(5), added by this document, points out that old target and new target are the same "taxpayer" for purposes of the mitigation provisions. Although section 338(a)(2) treats target as a "new corporation" for the purpose of having "purchased all the assets" of old target "as of the beginning of the day after the acquisition date", the legislative history makes it clear that new target and old target may be regarded as the same taxpayer for purposes of carrying out the intent of the statute, e.g., nonrecognition treatment for minority shareholders who retain their stock interest in target and the requirement that new target must report as income on its return any additional recapture income arising from an adjustment of the deemed sale price to old target due to an event or events occurring after old target files its final return. See H. Rep. No. 97-760 (Conf. Rep.), 97th Cong., 2d Sess. 537 [1982-2 C.B. 600, 632]. The treatment of old target and new target as the same taxpayer is appropriate in view of the legislative history.

Postponement of due date

The temporary regulations extend the time for taking certain actions under section 338. Thus, in temporary regulations §§1.338-1T, 1.338-2T, 1.338-4T, 1.338-5T, and 1.338(h)(10)-1T, all references to "March 15, 1986" with respect to the time for making elections or taking certain other actions under section 338 will be changed to "July 15, 1986." However, references to "March 15, 1986" will not be amended where the applicability of certain rules depends on whether the acquisition date occurs after March 15, 1986.

REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT; EXECUTIVE ORDER 12291; AND PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT OF 1980

A general notice of proposed rulemaking is not required by 5 U.S.C. 553 for temporary regulations. Accordingly, these temporary regulations do not constitute regulations subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 6). The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that this temporary rule is not a major rule as defined in Executive Order 12291 and that a regulatory impact analysis therefore is not required. The collection of information contained in the regulations refer to requirements that have been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget in accordance with the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, and have been approved by OMB (Control Number 1545-070).

DRAFTING INFORMATION

The principal author of these temporary regulations is Thomas J. Kane of the Legislation and Regulations Division of the Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service. However, personnel from other offices of the Internal Revenue Service and Treasury Department participated in developing the regulations, both on matters of substance and style.

Adoption of amendments to the regulations

Accordingly, 26 CFR Part 1 is amended as follows:

Paragraph 1. The authority for Part 1 continues to read in part:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805. * * * Sections 1.338-1T, 1.338-2T, 1.338-4T, 1.338-5T, and 1.338(h)(10)-1T also issued under 26 U.S.C. 338.

Par. 2. Section 1.338-1T is amended as follows:

1. Paragraph (c) is amended by—

a. Removing from the first sentence the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

b. Adding a new sentence at the end of paragraph (c) to read as set forth below.

2. Paragraph (e) is amended by:

a. Removing, from each place it appears in paragraph (e)(1)(ii)(A) and (B), the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

b. Removing, from paragraph (e)(2)(ii)(A), the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

3. Paragraph (f)(7)(ii) is amended by removing the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

4. Paragraph (h) is amended by:

a. Removing, from each place it appears in paragraph (h)(1) and (2), the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

b. Removing, from each place it appears in Example (1) of paragraph (h)(4), the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

c. Removing, from the third sentence of paragraph (h)(4) Example (2), the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

5. Subparagraphs (2) and (4) of paragraph (j) are amended by removing, from each place it appears, the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

6. Paragraph (k) is amended by—

a. Adding a new sentence at the end of paragraph (k)(1) to read as set forth below.

b. Removing from each place it appears in subdivisions (iv) and (v) of paragraph (k)(7) the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

7. Adding at the end thereof new paragraph (m) to read as set forth below.

§1.338-1T Elections under section 338(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (temporary).

* * * * *

(c) Time and manner of making election. * * * For special rules applicable to certain statements of section 338 election filed on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986, see paragraph (m) of this section.

* * * * *

(k) Special rules for foreign corporations or DISCs—(1) Election by certain foreign purchasing corporations. * * * However, the items required under paragraph (m) of this section to be filed by such a foreign purchasing corporation with the District Director shall be filed with the District Director of the Foreign Operations District (Attention: Chief of Examination), 1325 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20225.

* * * * *

(m) Statements of section 338 election filed on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986—(1) General rule. A statement of section 338 election filed on or after December 9, 1986, and on or before July 15, 1986, is not effective unless—

(i) It meets the applicable requirements prescribed in paragraph (m)(2) of this section when it is filed,

(ii) It is perfected by refiling in accordance with paragraph (m)(4)(ii) of this section, or

(iii) The District Director or his delegate waives, under paragraph (m)(13) of this section, the applicable requirements contained in paragraph (m)(2) of this section.

(2) Applicable requirements. The requirements of this subparagraph (2) are that—

(i) The statement of section 338 election meets the filing, documentation, and Form 872 requirements of paragraph (m)(4), (5), and (6) of this section for each relevant taxable year (within the meaning of paragraph (m)(3) of this section) for which the statute of limitations on making an assessment is considered under paragraph (m)(10) of this section to expire after August 15, 1986, and on or before November 15, 1986,

(ii) The statement of section 338 election meets the filing, documentation, and closing agreement requirements of paragraph (m)(4), (5), and (7) of this section for each relevant taxable year (within the meaning of paragraph (m)(3) of this section) for which the statute of limitations on making assessment is considered under paragraph (m)(10) of this section to expire on or before August 15, 1986, and

(iii) The statement of section 338 election meets the filing and closing agreement requirements of paragraph (m)(4) and (7)(v) of this section if a deemed sale return is required to be filed and the acquisition date occurred on or before November 15, 1983.

(3) Relevant taxable year. For purposes of this paragraph (m), a taxable year is relevant if it is one for which a Federal income tax return was filed prior to filing the statement of section 338 election, but only if it is also—

(i) A taxable year of target (or an affected target) which includes its acquisition date, or

(ii) Any subsequent taxable year of target (or an affected target) or an affected taxable year of an affected corporation (within the meaning of paragraph (m)(12) of this section).

(4) Filing procedures—(i) In general. The statement of section 338 election and any documents, Forms 872, and closing agreements to which paragraph (m)(2) of this section applies shall all be filed in one envelope with the District Director (Attention: Chief of Examination) for the internal revenue district where original target had its principal place of business or where its principal office or agency was located on the acquisition date.

(ii) Perfection rule. A statement of section 338 election filed on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986, that does not comply with the applicable procedures prescribed in paragraph (m)(2) of this section is perfected by refiling in accordance with those procedures the statement of election on or before July 15, 1986, along with a copy of the previously filed statement of election.

(5) Documents required under paragraph (m)(2) of this section. The documents required by this subparagraph (5) for each relevant taxable year are—

(i) A photocopy of the face page of the income tax return (and of any amended return or returns) filed for the taxable year, and

(ii) A photocopy of any extension, consent, or other document previously entered into or filed which extended the statute of limitations on assessment for the year.

(6) Contents of Form 872—(i) In general. For purposes of paragraph (m)(2)(i) of this section, for each relevant taxable year a Form 872 must be properly completed and executed in duplicate on behalf of each target or any affected corporation and must agree to extend until May 15, 1987, the period for making an assessment with respect to any tax due as a result of the deemed sale under section 338(a)(1) by the target. A photocopy of Form 872 (including one on white paper) may be used instead of a copy supplied by the Internal Revenue Service.

(ii) Restrictive language—(A) General language. The following restrictive language shall be inserted as numbered paragraph (4) on the face page of any Form 872 to which this subparagraph (6) applies: "THIS CONSENT AND AGREEMENT IS LIMITED TO ANY FEDERAL TAX DUE FROM TAXPAYER (INCLUDING ACCRUED INTEREST THEREON) AS A RESULT OF THE DEEMED SALE OF ASSETS UNDER SECTION 338(A)(1) OF THE INTERNAL REVENUE CODE BY TAXPAYER" [if taxpayer is not the target, substitute name of target instead of last word].

(B) Year which includes the acquisition date. If the relevant taxable year of target includes the acquisition date, the Form 872 for that relevant taxable year shall contain the following language inserted as numbered paragraph (5): "THIS CONSENT AND AGREEMENT COVERS THE ENTIRE PERIOD ENDING ON THE DATE SET FORTH IN PARAGRAPH (1) OF THIS AGREEMENT, AS WELL AS ALL SHORT PERIODS WHICH RESULT AS A CONSEQUENCE OF THE SECTION 338 ELECTION AND WHICH END WITH OR WITHIN THAT ENTIRE PERIOD".

(7) Closing agreements—(i) In general. For purposes of paragraph (m)(2)(ii) and (iii) of this section, a separate closing agreement under section 7121 shall be submitted on Form 906 and must be properly completed and executed on behalf of each target or any affected corporation. For guidelines on preparation of closing agreements, see Rev. Proc. 68-16, 1968-1 C.B. 770. A photocopy of Form 906 (including one on white paper) may be used instead of a copy supplied by the Internal Revenue Service. In addition, a separate closing agreement under the provisions of paragraph (m)(2)(ii) of this section must be executed in triplicate for each relevant taxable year and contain the applicable language prescribed in paragraph (m)(7)(ii), (iii), and (iv) of this section. For special rules for applying the provisions of paragraph (m)(2)(iii) of this section with respect to a deemed sale return or a combined deemed sale return, see paragraph (m)(7)(v) of this section.

(ii) Waiver of statute of limitations—(A) In general. Each closing agreement required by paragraph (m)(2)(ii) of this section must contain an express waiver of the statute of limitations on assessment (under section 6501(a)) and credit (under section 6402(a)) with respect to any Federal tax (including accrued interest thereon) required to be reported on any return or claim for refund for the relevant taxable year of the taxpayer, using the following language: "TAXPAYER AND COMMISSIONER AGREE TO WAIVE THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR ASSESSMENT AND CREDIT WHICH (HAS EXPIRED or WILL EXPIRE) ON [insert expiration date] FOR ANY FEDERAL TAX DUE OR REFUNDABLE (INCLUDING ACCRUED INTEREST THEREON) AS A RESULT OF THE DEEMED SALE OF ASSETS UNDER SECTION 338(a)(1) OF THE INTERNAL REVENUE CODE BY TAXPAYER" [if taxpayer is not the target, substitute name of target instead of last word].

(B) Year which includes the acquisition date. If the relevant taxable year is a taxable year of target which includes the acquisition date, the closing agreement for that relevant taxable year shall contain the following language in addition to the language contained in subdivision (m)(7)(ii)(A) of this section: "TAXPAYER ACKNOWLEDGES THAT THIS CLOSING AGREEMENT COVERS THE ENTIRE PERIOD DESCRIBED IN THE PRECEDING SENTENCE, AS WELL AS ALL SHORT PERIODS WHICH RESULT AS A CONSEQUENCE OF THE SECTION 338 ELECTION AND WHICH END WITH OR WITHIN THAT ENTIRE PERIOD".

(iii) Amended returns—(A) In general. Each closing agreement must contain an express agreement on behalf of the taxpayer to file an amended Federal income tax return or returns on or before November 3, 1986, for each relevant taxable year, and an acknowledgement that the statement of section 338 election will not be effective in the event of a failure to timely file any such amended return, unless the requirement of filing an amended return is waived by the District Director or his delegate.

(B) Relevant taxable year which includes acquisition date. For the relevant taxable year which includes the acquisition date, the following language shall be inserted in the closing agreement: "FOR THE RELEVANT TAXABLE YEAR COVERED BY THIS CLOSING AGREEMENT, TAXPAYER AGREES TO FILE ON OR BEFORE NOVEMBER 3, 1986 (IF NOT ALREADY FILED), THE FOLLOWING FEDERAL INCOME TAX RETURN[S]: (1) AN AMENDED RETURN AS OLD TARGET'S FINAL RETURN, AND (2) AN AMENDED RETURN FOR NEW TARGET'S FIRST TAXABLE YEAR ENDING ON [insert date]. TAXPAYER ACKNOWLEDGES THAT A STATEMENT OF ELECTION UNDER SECTION 338 WILL NOT BE EFFECTIVE IF THE FEDERAL INCOME TAX RETURN(S) COVERED BY THIS CLOSING AGREEMENT (IS) (ARE) NOT FILED ON A TIMELY BASIS, UNLESS SUCH REQUIREMENT IS WAIVED IN WRITING BY THE DISTRICT DIRECTOR OR HIS DELEGATE." If the acquisition date occurs on the last day of target's relevant taxable year or if new target does not have a taxable year that terminates within the relevant taxable year, then the language in (2) of this subdivision (B) shall be omitted. If new target has more than one taxable year ending within the relevant taxable year covered by a closing agreement governed by this subdivision (B), then appropriate language referring to the amended returns for those years shall be added to the closing agreement, using the format set forth in this subdivision (B).

(C) Other relevant taxable years. For a relevant taxable year which does not include the acquisition date, the following language shall be inserted in the closing agreement. "TAXPAYER AGREES TO FILE AN AMENDED FEDERAL INCOME TAX RETURN ON OR BEFORE NOVEMBER 3, 1986, FOR THE RELEVANT TAXABLE YEAR COVERED BY THIS CLOSING AGREEMENT. TAXPAYER ACKNOWLEDGES THAT A STATEMENT OF ELECTION UNDER SECTION 338 WILL NOT BE EFFECTIVE IF ANY FEDERAL INCOME TAX RETURN COVERED BY THIS CLOSING AGREEMENT IS NOT FILED ON OR BEFORE NOVEMBER 3, 1986, UNLESS SUCH REQUIREMENT IS WAIVED IN WRITING BY THE DISTRICT DIRECTOR OR HIS DELEGATE."

(D) Section 338(h)(10) election. The second quoted sentence in subdivision (iii)(B) and (C) of this paragraph (m)(7) shall be omitted from any closing agreement for a relevant taxable year of a selling group referred to in paragraph (m)(11)(ii)(A) of this section (relating to section 338(h)(10) election).

(E) Waiver of certain additions to tax and time to act. See §1.338-1T(h) for rules applicable to the waiver of certain additions to tax and time to act.

(iv) Consent to extend expiration date. Each closing agreement must contain an express consent to extend until June 15, 1988, the period for further assessment (under section 6501(a)) or credit (under section 6402(a)) of any tax due or refundable (including accrued interest thereon) for any relevant taxable year resulting from the deemed sale under section 338(a)(1), using the following language: "TAXPAYER AND COMMISSIONER AGREE TO EXTEND UNTIL JUNE 15, 1988, THE PERIOD FOR MAKING ANY FURTHER ASSESSMENT OR CLAIMING ANY CREDIT OF ANY FEDERAL TAX DUE OR REFUNDABLE (INCLUDING ACCRUED INTEREST THEREON) AS A RESULT OF THE DEEMED SALE OF ASSETS UNDER SECTION 338(a)(1) BY TAXPAYER" [if taxpayer is not the target, substitute name of target instead of last word].

(v) Special rule for deemed sale return or combined deemed sale return—(A) In general. For purposes of paragraph (m)(2)(iii) of this section, if a target is required to file a deemed sale return (as defined in paragraph (f)(3)(i) of this section), then a separate closing agreement with respect to that deemed sale return must be filed in triplicate in order to make an effective election under section 338. The closing agreement shall contain the following language: "TAXPAYER AGREES TO FILE ON OR BEFORE NOVEMBER 3, 1986 (IF NOT ALREADY FILED), A DEEMED SALE RETURN REFLECTING THE CONSEQUENCES OF THE DEEMED SALE OF ASSETS BY TAXPAYER [if taxpayer is not the target, substitute the name of target instead of last word] UNDER SECTION 338. TAXPAYER ACKNOWLEDGES THAT A STATEMENT OF ELECTION UNDER SECTION 338 WILL NOT BE EFFECTIVE IF THE DEEMED SALE RETURN IS NOT FILED ON A TIMELY BASIS, UNLESS SUCH REQUIREMENT IS WAIVED IN WRITING BY THE DISTRICT DIRECTOR OR HIS DELEGATE. TAXPAYER FURTHER AGREES THAT THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS ON ASSESSMENT FOR ANY FEDERAL TAX DUE AS A RESULT OF THE DEEMED SALE OF ASSETS BY TAXPAYER [if taxpayer is not the target, substitute the name of target instead of last word] UNDER SECTION 338 WILL NOT TERMINATE PRIOR TO THE EXPIRATION OF THREE YEARS FROM THE DATE THE DEEMED SALE RETURN IS ACTUALLY FILED."

(B) Combined deemed sale return. All targets which are eligible to file a combined deemed sale return (as defined in section 338(h)(15) and §1.338-4T(k)(6)) may join together in a combined deemed sale closing agreement, instead of filing a separate closing agreement for each target under paragraph (m)(7)(v)(A) of this section. If a combined deemed sale closing agreement is filed, then a combined deemed sale return must be filed. The combined deemed sale closing agreement shall contain the language prescribed in paragraph (m)(7)(v)(A) of this section, except that the words "COMBINED DEEMED SALE RETURN" shall be substituted for "DEEMED SALE RETURN," the word "TAXPAYER" shall be expressed in the singular or plural (as the case may be), and each target's name shall be inserted in place of "TAXPAYER", if appropriate. A list containing the name address, and employer identification number of each target which is joining in the combined deemed sale closing agreement shall be included in the text of the combined deemed sale closing agreement. If the targets included in the combined deemed sale closing agreement constitute a single affiliated group within the meaning of section 1504(a), the combined deemed sale closing agreement shall be signed by an officer of the common parent of that group. Otherwise, the combined deemed sale closing agreement must be signed by an officer of each target included in the combined deemed sale closing agreement.

(8) Execution of Form 872 or Form 906—(i) On behalf of Commissioner. Any Form 872 or Form 906 properly submitted pursuant to the requirements in this paragraph (m) will be executed on behalf of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and an executed copy of each Form 872 and each Form 906 will be returned to the originating party.

(ii) On behalf of target. If target was included on a consolidated return filed by the purchasing group for a relevant taxable year, the common parent of the purchasing group shall be the proper party to execute any Form 872 or Form 906 required by this paragraph (m) for that year. See §1.1502-77(a).

(9) Exceptions. This paragraph (m) shall not apply—

(i) If the statement of section 338 election has been filed before December 9, 1985, or after July 15, 1986,

(ii) If there is no relevant taxable year of a target, affected target, or affected corporation for which the statute of limitations expires on or before November 15, 1986,

(iii) With respect to the taxable year of a selling group that files a consolidated return for the period that includes the acquisition date, if the binding contract rule in paragraph (l) of this section applies, or

(iv) With respect to the taxable year of a person that includes the acquisition date of a target, if (A) the target is a DISC, a controlled foreign corporation, or a domestic corporation described in section 1248(e) and (B) the person actually transfers the target stock (as distinguished from being treated under section 338(a)(1) as having sold it).

(10) Statute of limitations on assessment—(i) General rule. For purposes of applying this paragraph (m), the statute of limitations on assessment is considered to begin to run for a relevant taxable year, and any short period of target which may result as a consequence of a section 338 election that ends with or within that relevant taxable year, on the date target is considered under section 6501(b) to have filed its return for that relevant taxable year.

(ii) Deemed sale return. If old target's final return is a deemed sale return (within the meaning of paragraph (f)(3)(i) of this section) or a combined deemed sale return (within the meaning of section 338(h)(15)), then the period for assessment under section 6501 does not begin to run until such deemed sale return or combined deemed sale return is filed.

(11) Section 338(h)(10)—(i) Scope. This subparagraph (11) provides rules for applying this paragraph (m) as a condition for electing to report the consequences of old target's deemed sale of its assets under section 338(a)(1) on the selling group's consolidated return under section 338(h)(10).

(ii) Application. If this subparagraph (11) applies, then—

(A) A relevant taxable year under paragraph (m)(3) of this section is considered to include the period for which a consolidated return of the selling group is filed that includes the acquisition date.

(B) Any document executed or item submitted by the common parent of the selling group on behalf of that entire group with respect to that relevant taxable year is considered to be on behalf of old target (see §1.1502-77(a)).

(12) Affected taxable years of affected corporations. For purposes of this paragraph (m)—

(i) Affected taxable year. A taxable year is affected by the section 338 election if Federal tax for that year is increased or decreased as a result of the section 338 election. For example, an affected taxable year may arise if target originally filed a return for a period which ended on or after the acquisition date and the deemed sale of assets results in additional Federal tax due from target for that period, or if consideration for stock included in a qualified stock purchase is contingent and receipt of that consideration subsequent to the acquisition date is reported on new target's return under §1.338(b)-3T(h).

(ii) Affected corporation. An affected corporation is a corporation that has a basis in an asset transferred to it by a new target or another affected corporation that is determined in whole or in part by reference to the asset's basis in the hands of the transferor.

(13) Discretion of the District Director—(i) General standard. In exercising discretion to waive any of the requirements prescribed under this paragraph (m) for any statement of section 338 election or amended returns, the District Director or his delegate shall consider all of the relevant facts and circumstances.

(ii) Time when discretion is exercised. The discretion of the District Director or his delegate under this paragraph (m) can be exercised at any time in connection with the examination of any Federal income tax return which would be affected by a section 338 election.

(14) Applicability of the mitigation provisions. For application of the mitigation provisions contained in sections 1311-1314, see §1.338-4T(l)(5).

(15) Examples. The provisions of this paragraph (m) may be illustrated by the following examples.

Example (1). (i) T is an unaffiliated corporation filing income tax returns on the basis of a fiscal year ending February 28. At the close of January 20, 1983, P acquires all of T's stock in a qualified stock purchase. P does not file consolidated returns. On May 15, 1983, T timely files an income tax return (without extensions) for its taxable year beginning on March 1, 1982, and ending February 28, 1983. On May 14, 1986, P files a statement of election under section 338 which (if effective) would cause T's taxable year ending on February 28, 1983, to be divided into two periods. The first period for "old T" ends on the close of the acquisition date (January 20, 1983), and the second period for "new T" begins the next day. For T's taxable year ending February 28, 1983, the statute of limitations expires on May 15, 1986. In order for the section 338 election to be effective, the statement of election must be filed in accordance with the requirements of paragraph (m)(2)(ii) of this section. Thus, for example, there must be filed with the election, in the form prescribed in paragraph (m)(7) of this section, a closing agreement for T's taxable year ending on February 28, 1983, for which T's return was filed on May 15, 1983, extending the time within which assessments can be made until June 15, 1988. This closing agreement will cover the two periods into which that taxable year has now been divided. Additionally, the closing agreement must provide that on or before November 3, 1986, T must file old target's final return for the taxable year ending on January 20, 1983, and an amended return for the taxable year ending on February 28, 1983. The section 338 election will be ineffective unless the closing agreement procedures are followed and T files on or before November 3, 1986, the required returns, unless the District Director, in his discretion, waives any failure by P or T to comply with these requirements. However, in order for the waiver provisions contained in paragraph (h) of this section to apply, the amended returns must be filed on or before the last day for making an election under section 338, i.e., July 15, 1986.

(ii) T also timely filed an income tax return (without extensions) on May 15, 1984, for its taxable year beginning on March 1, 1983, and ending on February 29, 1984. Since the statute of limitations on assessment for the income tax return filed on May 15, 1984, expires on May 15, 1987, which is after November 15, 1986, the provisions contained in paragraph (m) of this section are not applicable with respect to that taxable year.

Example (2). Assume the same facts as in Example (1) except that P files the statement of election on April 1, 1986, and that filing does not comply with the requirements of paragraph (m)(2)(ii) of this section. On July 6, 1986, under paragraph (m)(1)(ii) of this section, P perfects the election by refiling the election in accordance with the requirements of paragraph (m)(2)(ii) and (4)(ii) of this section. As long as T timely files on or before November 3, 1986, the returns which relate to the periods covered by the closing agreement (i.e., T's taxable years ending on January 20, 1983, and February 28, 1983), the section 338 election will be valid.

Example (3). Assume the same facts as in Example (2) except that P does not perfect the election. Under paragraph (m)(1)(iii) and (13) of this section, the election is ineffective unless the District Director waives the requirements of paragraph (m)(2) of this section.

Example (4). Assume the same facts as in Example (2) except that T does not timely file the returns covered by the closing agreement. The section 338 election is ineffective under paragraph (m)(13) of this section unless the District Director waives the timely filing requirement for the amended returns.

Example (5). Assume the same facts as in Example (1). Assume further that T owns all the stock of T1 and that T11 uses the same taxable year as T. For the election to be effective, P must also file a closing agreement for T1 and T1 must file on or before November 3, 1986, the returns for the periods covered by T1's closing agreement unless those requirements are waived by District Director.

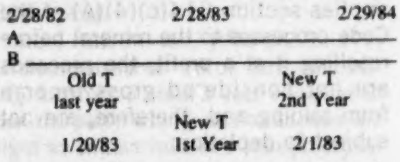
Example (6). Assume the same facts as in Example (2) except that T reports its income on the basis of a taxable year ending June 30. Assume further that on September 15, 1983, T timely filed an income tax return (without extensions) for its taxable year ending June 30, 1983, and that the statute of limitations for that year expires on September 15, 1986. In order for the section 338 election to be effective, the statement of election must be filed in accordance with the requirements of paragraph (m)(2)(i) of this section. Thus, for example, there must be filed with the election, in the form prescribed in paragraph (m)(6) of this section, a Form 872 for T's taxable year ending June 30, 1983, for which T's return was filed on September 15, 1983, extending the time within which assessments can be made until May 15, 1987. This Form 872 will cover both periods into which the taxable year has been divided. However, in order for the waiver provisions contained in §1.338-1T(h) to apply, T must file the amended returns on or before the last day for making an election under section 338, i.e., July 15, 1986. In any event, old target's final return and an amended return for the taxable year ending June 30, 1983, should be filed on or before May 15, 1987.

Example (7). Assume the same facts as in Example (1) except that T files its income tax returns on the basis of the calendar year and actually filed its returns for calendar year 1983 on March 3, 1984. No Form 872 or closing agreement is required for T's 1983 calendar year if the statute of limitations for that year expires after November 15, 1986. See paragraph (m)(1) and (9)(ii) of this section. The statute of limitations for new T's first taxable year and old T's period ending on the close of the acquisition date (January 20, 1983) did not start to run until the due date for T's 1983 return (March 15, 1984), and therefore cannot expire prior to March 15, 1987. See section 6501(b)(1) and paragraph (m)(10) of this section.

Example (8). (i) Assume the same facts as in Example (1), except that T, on its first tax return as new T filed on or before July 15, 1986, adopts a taxable year ending on January 31. The closing agreement referred to in Example (1) for the taxable year ending on February 28, 1983, will also operate to waive and extend the statute of limitations on assessment for new T's first taxable year which begins January 21, 1983, and ends on January 31, 1983. If T filed its first tax return as new T after July 15, 1986, it would not be permitted to adopt a taxable year different from the year T used before making the section 338 election. See paragraph (f)(7)(ii) of this section.

(ii) The tax consequences of new T's operations for the period that begins on February 1, 1983, and ends on February 28, 1983, will now have to be reported on an amended return which should be filed by new T for its second taxable year which begins on February 1, 1983, and ends on January 31, 1984. The statute of limitations on assessment for new T's second taxable year is controlled by the due date of the return T originally filed (without regard to the section 338 election) on May 15, 1984, for its taxable year ending February 29, 1984, which includes the last day of new T's second taxable year (i.e., January 31, 1984). Because the statute of limitations on assessment for the taxable year ending on February 29, 1984 does not expire until may 15, 1987, the provisions of paragraph (m) does not apply to new T's second taxable year.

(iii) The results of this example may be summarized with time lines. Line A represents taxable years of T for which returns were filed prior to the time that a section 338 statement of election was filed. Line B represents taxable years of old T and new T reflecting such election. Arrows show dates on Line A when T's tax returns were filed, which started the statute of limitations running for the taxable periods shown on Line B.



Example (9). Assume the same facts as in Example (1), except that T, on its first tax return as new T filed on or before July 15, 1986, adopts a taxable year ending on April 30. The closing agreement referred to in Example (1) for the taxable year ending on February 28, 1983, will waive and extend the statute of limitations on assessment only for old T's taxable year ending on January 20, 1983. The tax consequences of new T's operations for new T's taxable year which begins on January 20, 1983, and ends on April 30, 1983, will have to be reported on an amended return filed for that period. The statute of limitations on assessment for new T's first taxable year is controlled by the due date of the return T originally filed (without regard to the section 338 election) on May 15, 1984, for its taxable year ending February 29, 1984, which includes the last day of new T's first taxable year, (i.e., April 30, 1983). Because the statute of limitations on assessment for the taxable year ending on February 29, 1984, does not expire until May 15, 1987, the provisions of paragraph (m) do not apply to new T's first taxable year.

Example (10). All of T's stock is owned by S, which is included in a consolidated return that is filed for the S group on the basis of a fiscal year ending January 31. At the close November 15, 1982, P acquired all of T's stock in a qualified stock purchase. P is the common parent of an affiliated group that files consolidated returns on the basis of a calendar year. On July 1, 1986, P files a statement of election under section 338 for T. As a result of the acquisition, the results of T's operations through the close of business on November 15, 1982, was originally reported on the consolidated return for the S group which was timely filed on April 15, 1983. The results of T's operations from November 16, 1982, through December 31, 1982, were originally reported on the consolidated return for the P group, which was timely filed on March 15, 1983. Because T must file a deemed sale return (within the meaning of paragraph (f)(3)(i) of this section) and the acquisition date occurred on or before November 15, 1983, in order for the section 338 election to be effective, the closing agreement and other procedures required by paragraph (m)(2)(iii) and (7)(v) of this section must be followed and the deemed sale return must be filed on or before November 3, 1983 unless those requirements are waived by the District Director.

Par. 3. Section 1.338-2T is amended by removing, from each place they appear in Example (1) and Example (2) of paragraph (j), the words "August 23, 1985" and by adding in their place the words "July 15, 1986".

Par. 4. Section 1.338-4T is amended as follows:

1. Paragraph (a)(3) is amended by adding immediately after item (l)(4) a new item (l)(5) to read as follows: "(5) Application of mitigation provisions."

2. Paragraph (a)(4) is amended by adding in the second table immediately after the line "1248(e) . . . (b)(6) the following new line: "1311 . . . (l)(5)".

3. Paragraph (l) is amended by adding at the end thereof new subparagraph (5) to read as set forth below.

4. Paragraph (f)(6)(iv) Answer 1 (i)(C)(1) is amended by removing the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

5. Paragraph (j)(2) Answer 5(i) is amended by removing from the third sentence the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

Question: For purposes of applying sections 1311-1314 (relating to the mitigation of the effect of limitations), in the absence of a section 338(h)(10) election, are old T and new T to be treated as being the same taxpayer?

Answer: Yes.

Par. 5. Section 1.338-5T is amended as follows:

1. Paragraph (a)(2) is amended by removing from the outline of topics at both (j)(8)(ii) and (iii) the word "March" and by adding in both places the word "July".

2. Paragraph (c)(2)(v)(C) is amended by removing, from each place it appears, the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

3. Subdivisions (ii) and (iii) of paragraph (j)(8) are each amended by removing from the heading and from the text the word "March" and by adding in both places in each such subdivision the word "July".

Par. 6. Section 1.338(h)(10)-1T (d) is amended by—

1. Removing, from each place it appears in subparagraph (7)(i) and (ii), the word "March" and by adding in its place the word "July".

2. Adding at the end thereof new subparagraph (9) to read as follows:

There is a need for immediate guidance with respect to the provisions contained in this Treasury decision. For this reason, it is found impracticable to issue this Treasury decision with notice and public procedure under subsection (b) of section 553 of Title 5 of the United States Code or subject to the effective date limitation of subsection (d) of that section.

Section 611.—Allowance of Depletion for Depletion

Whether a lessee receives an economic interest upon entering into a lease under which the lessee must follow the lessors engineering plans and must sell ore extracted under the lease to the lessor at a fair market price? See Rev. Rul. 86-81, below.

26 CFR 1.613-1: Percentage depletion; general rule.

Whether under section 613 of the Code a lessor of coal properties is entitled to percentage depletion on royalty proceeds received from the lessee? See Rev. Rul. 86-81, below.

26 CFR 1.613-4: Gross income from the property in the case of minerals other than oil and gas. (Also Sections 611, 631; 1.613-1, 1.631-3).

Percentage depletion; gross income from mining. If a lessor purchases extracted mineral from a lessee and applies section 614(c)(4)(A) of the Code processes to the mineral before reselling it at a profit, the proceeds are not considered gross income from mining and, therefore, are not subject to depletion.

Rev. Rul. 86-81

ISSUE

If (1) the owner of coal properties purports to lease those properties to an operator-lessee in exchange for royalties equal to a reasonable percentage of sales proceeds of the coal mined, (2) the operator-lessee agrees to follow the owner-lessor's engineering plans for the mining operation, and (3) the owner-lessor retains an option to purchase, at the then-prevailing fair market price, the unprocessed coal so mined, then what is the proper tax treatment of the owner lessor's income from that transaction when the owner-lessor applies section 613(c)(4)(A) processes to that coal prior to its resale at a profit?

FACTS

W, a lessor of coal properties located in the United States, leased a part of those coal properties to Z, a coal operator. Z, as lessee, has the exclusive right to mine coal for a specified period of years or until the designated coal reserves are exhausted. Under the terms of the lease, Z is required to follow plans, maps, and projections for the mining and operation of the coal properties as provided by W's engineer. Z's obligation to follow the plans, maps, and projections assures W that extraction will not be done in a manner that renders unextractable an unnecessarily large portion of the mineral in place. At the option of W, failure by Z to follow these plans, maps, and projections will result in either: (1) payment of the "royalty" on any coal that was not mined because of this failure and that is deemed "lost" by W, or (2) cancellation of the lease.

W will receive two "royalty" payments that are dependent upon the extraction of the coal. These royalty payments are described as a production royalty of 10*x* percent of the amount Z receives for the coal, and an engineering royalty of x percent of the amount Z receives for the coal, which is to compensate W for the plans, maps, and projections provided by its engineer. Both royalties are reasonable in amount.

Z agrees to sell all coal mined to W and will deliver the coal to W's tipple as directed by W. Z may sell coal to others on such days that W cannot accept coal mined. W purchases the coal from Z at prevailing "market ramp prices," a fair market price for coal extracted as it comes from the mine. W will further process the coal by applying only the processes named in section 613(c)(4)(A) of the Internal Revenue Code. After application of these processes, W is able to sell the cleaned coal at a price greater than the "market ramp price" received by Z.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

Section 611(a) of the Code allows a reasonable deduction for depletion in computing taxable income. Section 611(b)(1) provides that in the case of a lease, the deduction must be equitably apportioned between the lessor and lessee.

Section 1.611-1(b)(1) of the Income Tax Regulations provides that the depletion deduction shall be allowed only to the owner of an economic interest in mineral deposits.

Section 613(b) of the Code provides a depletion allowance for coal mines of 10 percent of the gross income from the property, excluding from the gross income an amount equal to any returns or royalties paid or incurred by the taxpayer in respect of the property. With respect to coal, section 613(c)(1) defines gross income from the property as the gross income from mining. In the case of coal, section 613(c)(4) provides that cleaning, breaking, sizing, dust allaying, treatment to prevent freezing, and loading for shipment shall be considered as mining where applied by the mine owner or operator to the ore or mineral in respect of which he is entitled to a deduction for depletion under section 611.

Section 631(c) of the Code provides that in the case of the disposal of coal mined in the United States, held for more than 6 months before disposal, by the owner under any form of contract by which the owner retains an economic interest in the coal, the difference between the amount realized from the disposal of the coal and the adjusted depletion basis plus the deductions disallowed for the tax year under section 272 shall be considered as though it were a gain or loss, as the case may be, on the sale of the coal. The owner is not entitled to the allowance for percentage depletion provided in section 613 with respect to the coal. The term "owner" means any person who owns an economic interest in coal in place, including a sublessor. However, this subsection specifies that it shall not apply to income realized by an owner as a co-adventurer, partner, or principal in the mining of the coal.

Before the lease, W as owner of the coal had the right to all income from the extraction and sale of the coal and therefore had an economic interest. Through the lease, W granted to Z the right to mine all the coal for a specified term or to exhaustion. Z is to dispose of the extracted but unprocessed coal by transferring it to W at a fair market price. Therefore, Z shares in income from the extraction of the coal and has acquired an economic interest in the coal in place. W has retained as its economic interest the right to receive royalties based upon production because the production royalty for the coal and the engineering royalty for the engineering services are payable only if coal is produced and the amount of such royalties is related to the value of the coal produced.

Although the agreement provides that W is to receive from Z all the extracted coal and is to subject such coal to processes named in section 613(c)(4)(A) of the Code, these processes should not be treated as mining processes because W is not the "mine owner or operator" when it processes the coal. The substance of the agreement must prevail over its form. See Rev. Rul. 74-568, 1974-2 C.B. 183. Here, in substance, W had not retained an interest in the coal other than W's royalty interests; rather, W through the lease has disposed of its entire interest in the coal in return for retained royalty interests, and has also agreed to purchase from Z the coal extracted under the lease.

Helvering v. Bankline Oil Co., 303 U.S. 362 (1938), 1938-1 C.B. 306, established that a taxpayer who merely has the benefit of purchasing or processing minerals does not have an economic interest in the minerals. Since W acquires no economic interest in the coal it purchases from Z, W is entitled to no depletion deduction with respect to income derived from its processing of the coal.

Rev. Rul. 74-469, 1974-2 C.B. 177, is distinguishable. To be sure, that ruling involves a similar fact situation in that the party who grants to another the right to extract minerals also processes the extracted minerals. In that ruling, however, the taxpayer-grantor did not retain a royalty interest to compensate it for granting the right to extract the minerals. Rather, both the taxpayer that granted the right to extract minerals and the taxpayer who received such right directly shared in the ultimate sales price of the processed mineral. In contrast, here W and and Z do not share in the sales price of the coal because Z sells the extracted coal to W for its fair market value. Except for W's royalty interests, only Z shares in the risks of fluctuations in the value of coal in place. In purchasing the extracted but unprocessed coal from Z, W is no different than any other purchaser of extracted coal.

The next question is whether income received by W is subject to treatment under section 631(c) of the Code as capital gain or loss. Clearly, W was the owner of the coal before entering into the agreement with Z, and it retained as its economic interest the right to production and engineering royalties. Accordingly, W should receive section 631(c) treatment unless it is deemed to be a co-adventurer, partner, or principal in the mining of the coal.

The purpose of denying section 631(c) treatment to a co-adventurer, partner, or principal in the mining of coal is to distinguish between the passive interest of a lessor who retains an economic interest and the direct interest of a participant in the operation of a mine who shares in the risk and control of the venture. See Rev. Rul. 73-33, 1973-1 C.B. 307.

Because W does not process the extracted coal as a mine owner or operator but is instead a purchaser of the coal who applies nominating processes, W's processing of the coal does not constitute a sharing in the risk and control of the mining operation. Therefore, W's processing of the coal does not affect its right to treat its royalty income under section 631(c). W's providing plans, maps, and projections, which Z is to follow in mining the coal, raises the question of whether W had such risk and control of the mining operation as to warrant treating it as a co-adventurer, partner, or principal in the mining of coal.

The engineering services here, in the form of plans, maps, and projections, are designed to afford W some safeguard that the property will be developed according to the plans; in this case they are merely incidental to the extraction of the coal and, as such, do not make W a direct participant as a co-adventurer, partner, or participant in the mining operation. Under the lease agreement, W is entitled to a production royalty of 10*x* percent of the amount Z receives for the coal and an engineering services royalty of x percent of the amount Z receives for the coal. The x percent is reasonable compensation for the incidental engineering services that are part and parcel of the lease itself. Therefore, considering the lease as a whole, amounts received under it as production royalties and engineering royalties should receive section 631(c) treatment.

HOLDING

Because W is not a principal in the mining of coal, W is entitled to capital gains treatment under section 631(c) of the Code on both the production royalties and the engineering services royalties. The income derived by W from the resale of coal purchased from Z is not income from mining and consequently not subject to depletion.

Section 631.—Gain or Loss in the Case of Timber, Coal or Domestic Iron Ore

26 CFR 1.631-3: Gain or loss upon the disposal of coal or domestic iron ore with a retained economic interest.

Whether royalties received by the lessor upon the lease of coal are subject to section 631(c) of the Code capital gains treatment when the royalties are segregated into two categories, one designated as payment for conveyance of an operating interest and the other designated as payment for engineering services? Section 671.—Trust Income, Deductions, and Credits Attributable to Grantors and Others as Substantial Owners 26 CFR 1.671-3: Attribution or inclusion of income, deductions, and credits against tax.

A grantor-trustee is taxable on all trust income earned in the year the grantor-trustee borrowed the entire trust corpus. See Rev. Rul. 86-82, below

Section 675.—Administrative Powers

26 CFR 1.675-1: Administrative powers.
(Also Section 671; 1.671-3.)

Grantor Trusts; loan from trust to grantor. A grantor-trustee is treated as owner of trust assets where grantor-trustee borrows trust funds and repays the funds with interest in the same year they were borrowed.

Rev. Rul. 86-82

ISSUE

If the grantor of a trust borrows the entire trust corpus and makes complete repayment of principal and interest within the same year, is that grantor treated as owner of the trust under section 675(3) of the Internal Revenue Code?

FACTS

On May 11, 1985, A created an irrevocable trust for the benefit of A's children. The trust instrument names A trustee and gives A power to borrow trust corpus or income at the market rate of interest with adequate security. On June 11, 1985, A borrowed 100*x* dollars from the trust in compliance with these requirements. The borrowed funds comprised the entire trust corpus. On November 3, 1985, A repaid the loan plus interest. Both A and the trust are calendar year taxpayers.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

Section 671 of the Code provides that if any section of subpart E of subchapter J treats the grantor as the owner of any portion of the trust, then the grantor must include in computing taxable income those items of income, deductions, and credits which are attributable to that portion of the trust.

Section 675(3) of the Code provides that, generally, the grantor of a trust will be treated as the owner of any portion of a trust in respect to which the grantor has borrowed the corpus or income and has not completely repaid the loan, including any interest, before the beginning of the taxable year.

In Mau v. United States, 355 F. Supp. 909 (D. Hawaii 1973), the taxpayer established five separate trusts, with the taxpayer disgnated trustee of each. In 1965, the taxpayer borrowed money from each of the trusts. These amounts were not repaid until 1969. The taxpayer argued that section 675(3) of the Code did not cause the taxpayer-grantor to be liable for federal income tax on the trusts' 1965 income because the loans were not outstanding at the beginning of the year. The court rejected this interpretation of the statute, reasoning that section 675(3) was enacted to prevent the shifting of taxable income in situations where a grantor retained control and use of trust properties through borrowing. Therefore, the court held that the borrowing of trust corpus or income by a grantor at any time during a taxable year would result in the grantor being taxed on trust income for that entire year under section 675(3). The court concluded that the taxpayer was taxable on income of the trusts in 1965, the year the borrowing occurred, even though the loans were made after the beginning of the year. If section 675(3) otherwise applies for a given year, its effect is n[illegible]voided by making repayment before the year closes. Mau therefore stands for the principle that section 675(3) applies for any year during any part of which a loan by a trust to the grantor-trustee is outstanding.

In the present case, A borrowed the entire trust corpus during calendar 1985. Accordingly, A is treated as the owner of the entire trust under section 675(3) of the Code in spite of the fact that A made full payment of principal and interest before the close of 1985. See section 1.671-3(b)(3) of the regulations. Hence, under section 671, A must include in gross income all income earned by the trust in 1985.

HOLDING

Under section 675(3) of the Code, a grantor-trustee who has both borrowed the entire trust corpus and repaid the borrowed funds plus interest in the same year will be treated for federal income tax purposes as the owner of the entire trust for that year.

Second Tier Excise Taxes

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Final regulations.

SUMMARY: This document provides final regulations relating to second tier excise taxes. Changes to the applicable tax law were made by Pub. L. No. 96-596 [1980-2 C.B. 653]. The regulations will affect private foundations, black lung benefit trusts, pension plans, and disqualified persons with respect to the foregoing, who may become liable for second tier taxes within the meaning of section 4963(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

DATES: The amendments to the C.F.R. are effective upon publication in the Federal Register. The amendments to §§53.4941(e)-1(a)(1), 53.4942(a)-1(c)(1)(ii), 53.4943-9(a)(1), 53.4944-5(a)(1), and 53.4963-1(e)(7) apply to first tier taxes imposed under sections 4941, 4942, 4943, and 4944 after December 31, 1969. Under §53.4951-1(a) and (f), the amendment to §53.4941(e)-1(a)(1) applies to first tier taxes imposed under section 4951 after December 31, 1977. The amendments to §§54.4971-1(e) and §53.4963-1(e)(7) apply to first tier taxes imposed under section 4971 after September 2, 1974. The amendments to §54.4975-1(d) apply to first tier taxes imposed under section 4975 after December 31, 1974. The amendments relating to second tier taxes (as defined in section 4963(b)) apply to second tier taxes assessed after December 24, 1980.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

On February 13, 1984, the Federal Register published proposed amendments to the Foundation and Similar Excise Taxes Regulations (26 CFR Part 53), to the Pension Excise Taxes Regulations (26 CFR Part 54), to the Temporary Excise Tax Regulations under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (26 CFR Part 141) [Pub. L. 93-406, 1974-3 C.B. 1], and to the Procedure and Administration Regulations (26 CFR Part 301), under sections 4941, 4942, 4943, 4944, 4945, 4961, 4962, 4971, 4975, 6213, 6503, 6861, and 7422 [EE-16-81, 1984-1 C.B. 572]. One correction was published in the issue of Friday, March 2, 1984, at page 7836. The amendments were proposed to conform the regulations to section 2 of the Act of December 24, 1980 (Pub. L. No. 96-596, 94 Stat. 3469) [1980-2 C.B. 653]. No comments were received; no public hearing was requested or held. The amendments are therefore adopted as revised by this treasury decision.

FINAL REGULATIONS

The amendments conform the regulations to the changes to the Internal Revenue Code made by section 2 of Pub. L. No. 96-596. The Code imposes excise taxes in two tiers to insure compliance with certain provisions of the Code by private foundations, black lung benefit trusts, pension trusts, and disqualified persons with respect to the foregoing entities. A first tier excise tax is imposed automatically if the foundation, trust, or disqualified person engages in a prohibited act (such as self-dealing between a disqualified person and a private foundation), or fails to perform a required act (such as a private foundation's failure to distribute the amount described in section 4942). The Code provides for a much larger second tier excise tax which is imposed at the end of a "taxable period," which begins with the event giving rise to the tax and ends on the earliest of (i) the date a notice of deficiency with respect to the first tier tax is mailed, or (ii) the date the first tier tax is assessed if no proficiency notice is mailed, or (iii) (in some cases) the date the taxable act is corrected. Although the second tier tax is imposed at the end of the taxable period, it is not assessed until after a notice of deficiency is mailed (see sections 6211 through 6216) unless a termination assessment (section 6851) or jeopardy assessment (section 6861) is made.

Under new section 4961, if the taxpayer corrects the act (or failure to act) giving rise to the second tier tax within a "correction period," the tax is not to be assessed, and if assessed, it is to be abated, and if collected, it is to be credited or refunded as an overpayment. See §53.4961-1. The correction period begins on the day the taxable event occurs and ends 90 days after the date of mailing of a notice of deficiency with respect to the second tier tax, but may be extended in certain cases. See §53.4963-1.

Other provisions relate to court proceedings concerning the amount of tax and the timeliness of correction, as well as deferral of assessment or collection during certain court actions. See §53.4961-2.

CHANGES TO NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULEMAKING

The notice of proposed rulemaking proposed deleting or revising a special rule for determining the end of the taxable period and invited comments on this aspect of the proposal. Although no comments were received, upon reconsideration, the Internal Revenue Service has determined to retain the existing special rule. The rule is also incorporated explicitly in regulations for chapter 43 excise taxes (relating to pension plans) in light of the revision of §141.4975-13 and in the interest of promoting procedural uniformity between chapter 42 and 43 taxes.

Under the special rule, the taxable period ends upon filing of a waiver of the restrictions on assessment and collection of a deficiency in first tier tax. This rule does not apply under section 4945 because the taxable period does not affect the amount of the first or second tier tax under section 4945.

Thus, the following provisions are not deleted or revised, as originally proposed: §53.4941(e)-1(a)(3); Example 3 of §53.4941(e)-1(a)(4); §53.4942(a)-1(c)(1)(ii); §53.4943-9(a)(2); and §53.4944-5(a)(2). In addition, a clarifying change has been made to §53.4961-2, proposed new section 53.4963-1 has been adopted as §53.4963-1, and cross references to section 4963 have been adopted as cross references to section 4963.

STUDY OF §53.4943-9(a)(1)(ii)

The Internal Revenue Service believes that §53.4943-9(a)(1)(ii), which provides that the taxable period ends upon elimination of excess business holdings, may not be consistent with the statute. The Service is studying the provision and expects to propose a conforming change.

REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT

Although a notice of proposed rulemaking that solicited public comment was issued, the Internal Revenue Service concluded when the notice was issued that the regulations are interpretative and that the notice and public procedure requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 did not apply. Accordingly, the final regulations do not constitute regulations subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 6).

NON-APPLICABILITY OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 12291

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that this final rule is not a major rule as defined in Executive Order 12291 and that a regulatory impact analysis therefore is not required.

PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT

The collection of information requirements contained in these regulations have been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) in accordance with the requirements of the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980. These requirements have been approved by OMB under control number 1545-0024.

DRAFTING INFORMATION

The principal author of these regulations was George B. Baker of the Employee Plans and Exempt Organizations Division of the Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service. However, personnel from other offices of the Internal Revenue Service and Treasury Department participated in developing the regulations, both on matters of substance and style.

Adoption of amendments of the regulations

Accordingly, amendments to 26 CFR parts 53, 54, 141, 301, and 602 are adopted as set forth below:

FOUNDATION AND SIMILAR EXCISE TAXES

[26 CFR Part 53]

Paragraph 1. The authority for Part 53 continues to read in part:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805. * * *

Par. 2. In §53.4941(b)-1, paragraph (a) is amended by removing the language "correction period (as defined in §53.4941(e)-1(d))." and adding in its place the language "taxable period (as defined in §53.4941(e)-1(a)).".

Par. 3. Section 53.4941(e)-1 is amended as follows:

1. In paragraph (b)(3) and in Example (2) of paragraph (e)(2)(ii), the words "correction period" are removed and the words "taxable period" are added in their place; and

2. Paragraph (a)(1), Example (4) of paragraph (b)(4) and paragraph (d) are revised to read as set forth below.

§53.4941(e)-1 Definitions.

(a) Taxable period—(1) In general. For purposes of any act of self-dealing, the term "taxable period" means the period beginning with the date on which the act of self-dealing occurs and ending on the earliest of:

(i) The date of mailing of a notice of deficiency under section 6212 with respect to the tax imposed by section 4941(a)(1),

(ii) the date on which correction of the act of self-dealing is completed, or

(iii) The date on which the tax imposed by section 4941(a)(1) is assessed.

* * * * *

(b) Amount involved. * * *

(4) Examples. * * *

Example (4). D, a disqualified person with respect to private foundation T, purchases 100 shares of stock from T for $5,000 on June 15, 1982. The fair market value of the 100 shares of stock on that date is $4,800. D sells the 100 shares of stock on December 20, 1983, for $6,000. On December 27, 1983, a notice of deficiency with respect to the taxes imposed under subsections (a) and (b) of section 4941 is mailed to D and the taxable period ends. D fails to correct during the taxable period. Between June 15, 1982, and the end of the taxable period, the stock was quoted on the New York Stock Exchange at a high of $67 per share. The amount involved with respect to the tax imposed under subsection (a) is $5,000, and the amount involved with respect to the tax imposed under subsection (b) for failure to correct is $6,700 (100 shares at $67 per share), the highest fair market value during the taxable period.

* * * * *

(d) Cross reference. For rules relating to taxable events that are corrected within the correction period, defined in section 4963(e), see section 4961(a), and the regulations thereunder.

* * * * *

Par. 4. Section 53.4942(a)-1 is amended as follows:

1. In paragraph (a)(2), the language "correction period" and "paragraph (c)(3)" is removed and the language "taxable period" and "paragraph (c)(1)", respectively, is added in its place;

2. In paragraph (c)(4), Example (3) is removed; and

3. Paragraph (a)(4), paragraph (c)(1)(i), and paragraph (c)(3) are revised to read as set forth below.

§53.4942(a)-1 Taxes for failure to distribute income.

(a) Imposition of tax. * * *

(4) Examples. The provisions of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). M, a private foundation which uses the calendar year as its taxable year, has at the end of 1981, $50.000 of undistributed income (as defined in paragraph (a) of §53.4942(a)-2) for 1981. As of January 1, 1983, $40,000 is still undistributed. On August 15, 1983, a notice of deficiency with respect to the excise taxes imposed by section 4942(a) and (b) is mailed to M under section 6212(a) and the taxable period ends. Thus, under these facts, an initial excise tax of $6,000 (15 percent of $40,000) is imposed upon M. An additional excise tax of $40,000 (100 percent of $40,000) is imposed by section 4942(b). Under section 4961(a), however, if the undistributed income is reduced to zero during the correction period, this latter tax will not be assessed, and if assessed, it will be abated, and if collected, it will be credited or refunded as an overpayment.

Example (2). Assume the facts as stated in example (1), except that the notice of deficiency is mailed to M on September 7, 1984, and as of January 1, 1984, only $10,000 of the $50,000 of undistributed income with respect to 1981 is undistributed. Therefore, initial excise taxes of $6,000 (15 percent of $40,000, M's undistributed income from 1981, as of January 1, 1983) and $1,500 (15 percent of $10,000, M's undistributed income from 1981 as of January 1, 1984) are imposed by section 4942(a). If the $10,000 remains undistributed as of September 7, 1984, the end of the taxable period, an additional excise tax of $10,000 (100 percent of $10,000, M's undistributed income from 1981, as of September 7, 1984) is imposed by section 4942(b).

(c) Certain periods. For purposes of this section—

(1) Taxable period. (i) The term "taxable period" means with respect to the undistributed income of a private foundation for any taxable year, the period beginning with the first day of the taxable year and ending on the earlier of:

(A) The date of mailing of notice of deficiency under section 6212(a) with respect to the initial excise tax imposed under section 4942(a), or

(B) The date on which the initial excise tax imposed under section 4942(a) is assessed.

For example, assume M, a private foundation which uses the calendar year as the taxable year, has $15,000 of undistributed income for 1981. A notice of deficiency is mailed to M under section 6212(a) on June 1, 1983. With respect to the undistributed income of M for 1981, the taxable period began on January 1, 1981, and ended on June 1, 1983.

* * * * *

(3) Cross reference. For rules relating to taxable events that are corrected within the correction period, defined in section 4963(e), see section 4961(a) and the regulations thereunder.

* * * * *

Par. 5. In §53.4942(a)-3, Example (2) of paragraph (d)(3) is revised to read as follows:

§53.4942(a)-3 Qualifying distributions defined.

* * * * *

(d) Treatment of qualifying distributions. * * *

(3) Examples. * * *

Example (2). M, a private foundation which uses the calendar year as the taxable year, has undistributed income of $300 for 1981, $200 for 1982, and $400 for 1983. On January 14, 1983, M makes its first qualifying distribution in 1983 when it sets aside (within the meaning of paragraph (b) of this section $700 for construction of a hospital. On February 24, 1983 a notice of deficiency with respect to the excise taxes imposed by section 4942(a) and (b) in regard to M's undistributed income for 1981 is mailed to M under section 6212(a). M notifies the Commissioner in writing on March 24, 1983, that it is making an election under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph to have its distribution of January 14th applied first against its undistributed income for 1982, next against its undistributed income for 1981, and last against its undistributed income for 1983. Thus, $200 of the $700 qualifying distribution is treated as made out of the undistributed income for 1982; $300, out of undistributed income for 1981; and $200 ($700 less the sum of $200 and $300), out of the undistributed income for 1983. Thus, an initial excise tax of $45 (15 percent of $300) is imposed under section 4942(a). Since M made the election described above, the $300 (treated as distributed out of undistributed income for 1981) corrects (within the meaning of section 4963(d)(2)) the taxable act because the undistributed income for 1981 is reduced to zero. Furthermore, correction is effected within the correction period (as defined in section 4963(e)(1) and §53.4963-1(e)). Therefore, under the provisions of section 4961(a), the additional tax imposed by section 4942(b) will not be assessed.

* * * * *

Par. 6. In §53.4943-2, paragraph (b) is revised to read as follows:

§53.4943-2 Imposition of tax on excess business holdings of private foundations.

* * * * *

(b) Additional tax. In any case in which the initial tax is imposed under section 4943(a) with respect to the holdings of a private foundation in any business enterprise, if, at the close of the taxable period (as defined in section 4943(d)(2) and §53.4943-9) with respect to such holdings the foundation still has excess business holdings in such enterprise, there is imposed a tax under section 4943(b) equal to 200 percent of the value of such excess holdings as of the last day of the taxable period.

Par. 7. In §53.4943-9, paragraph (a)(1) and paragraph (b) are revised to read as set forth below.

§53.4943-9 Business holdings; certain periods.

(a) Taxable period—(1) In general. For purposes of section 4943, the term "taxable period" means, with respect to any excess business holdings of a private foundation in a business enterprise, the period beginning with the first day on which there is such excess business holdings and ending on the earliest of:

(i) The date of mailing of a notice of deficiency under section 6212 with respect to the tax imposed on the holdings by section 4943(a);

(ii) The date on which the excess is eliminated; or

(iii) The date on which the tax imposed by section 4943(a) is assessed.

For example, M, a private foundation, first has excess business holdings in X, a corporation, on February 5, 1972. A notice of deficiency is mailed under section 6212 to M on June 1, 1974. With respect to M's excess business holdings in X, the taxable period begins on February 5, 1972, and ends on June 1, 1974.

* * * * *

(b) Cross reference. For rules relating to taxable events that are corrected within the correction period, defined in section 4963(e), see section 4961(a) and the regulations thereunder.

* * * * *

Par. 8. Section 53.4944-2 is amended as follows:

1. In paragraph (a), the words "correction period" are removed from the first and third sentences and the words "taxable period" are added in their place, and the language "4944(e)(3)" is removed from the first sentence and the language "4944(e)(1)" is added in its place; and

2. At the end of paragraph (b), in the fourth sentence of Example (1) in paragraph (c), and in the first and second sentences of Example (3) in paragraph (c), the words "correction period" are removed and the words "taxable period" are added in their place.

Par. 9. In §53.4944-5, paragraphs (a)(1) and (d) are revised to read as set forth below.

§53.4944-5 Definitions.

(a) Taxable period—(1) In general. For purposes of section 4944, the term "taxable period" means, with respect to any investment which jeopardizes the carrying out of a private foundation's exempt purposes, the period beginning with the date on which the amount is invested and ending on the earliest of:

(i) The date of mailing of a notice of deficiency under section 6212 with respect to the tax imposed on the making of the investment by section 4944(a)(1);

(ii) The date on which the amount invested is removed from jeopardy; or

(iii) The date on which the tax imposed by section 4944(a)(1) is assessed.

* * * * *

(d) Cross reference. For rules relating to taxable events that are corrected within the correction period, defined in section 4963(e), see section 4961(a) and the regulations thereunder.

Par. 10. Section 53.4945-1 is amended as follows:

1. In the first sentence of paragraph (b)(1), the words "correction period" are removed and the words "taxable period" are added in their place; and

2. Example (2) in paragraph (c)(3) and paragraph (e) are revised to read as set forth below.

§53.4945-1 Taxes on taxable expenditures.

* * * * *

(c) Special rules. * * *

(3) Examples. * * *

Example (2). Assume the same facts as in example (1). Further assume that within the taxable period A makes a motion to correct the taxable expenditure at a meeting of the board of directors. The motion is defeated by a two-to-one vote, A voting for the motion and B and C voting against it. In these circumstances an additional tax is imposed on the private foundation in the amount of $100,000 (100 percent of $100,000). The additional tax imposed on B and C is $10,000 (50 percent of $100,000 subject to a maximum of $10,000). B and C are jointly and severally liable for the $10,000, and this sum may be collected by the Service from either of them.

* * * * *

(e) Certain periods—(1) Taxable period. For purposes of section 4945, the term "taxable period" means, with respect to any taxable expenditure, the period beginning with the date on which the taxable expenditure occurs and ending on the earlier of:

(i) The date of mailing of a notice of deficiency under section 6212 with respect to the tax imposed on taxable expenditures by section 4945(a)(1); or

(ii) The date on which the tax imposed by section 4945(a)(1) is assessed.

(2) Cross reference. For rules relating to taxable events that are corrected within the correction period, defined in section 4963(e), see section 4961(a) and the regulations thereunder.

Par. 11. Sections 53.6001-1 through 53.7101-1 (Subpart K) of Part 53 are redesignated subpart L, and a new subpart K is added to read as follows:

SUBPART K—SECOND TIER EXCISE TAXES

Sec.

53.4961-1 Abatement of second tier taxes for correction within correction period.
53.4961-2 Court proceedings to determine liability for second tier tax.
53.4963-1 Definitions.

§53.4961-1 Abatement of second tier taxes for correction within correction period.

If any taxable event is corrected during the correction period for the event, then any second tier tax imposed with respect to the event shall not be assessed. If the tax has been assessed, it shall be abated. If the tax has been collected, it shall be credited or refunded as an overpayment. For purposes of this section, the tax imposed includes interest, additions to the tax and additional amounts. For definitions of the terms "second tier tax," "taxable event," "correct," and "correction period," see §53.4963-1.

§53.4961-2 Court proceedings to determine liability for second tier tax.

(a) Introduction. Under section 4961(b) and (c), the period of limitations on collection may be suspended and assessment or collection of first or second tier tax may be prohibited during the pendency of administrative and judicial proceedings conducted to determine a taxpayer's liability for second tier tax. This section provides rules relating to the suspension of the limitations period and the prohibitions on assessment and collection. In addition, this section describes the administrative and judicial proceedings to which these rules apply.

(b) Initial proceeding—(1) Defined. For purposes of subpart K, an initial proceeding means a proceeding described in subparagraph (2) or (3).

(2) Tax Court proceeding before assessment. A proceeding is described in this subparagraph (2) if it is a proceeding with respect to the taxpayer's liability for second tier tax and is commenced in accordance with section 6213(a).

(3) Refund proceeding commenced before correction period ends. A proceeding is described in this subparagraph (3) if it is a proceeding commenced under section 7422, in accordance with the provisions of §53.4963-1(e)(4) and (5) (relating to prerequisites to extension of the correction period during certain refund proceedings), and with respect to the taxpayer's liability for second tier tax.

(c) Supplemental proceeding—(1) Jurisdiction. If a determination in an initial proceeding that a taxpayer is liable for a second tier tax has become final, the court in which the initial proceeding was commenced shall have jurisdiction to conduct any necessary supplemental proceeding to determine whether the taxable event was corrected during the correction period.

(2) Time for beginning proceeding. The time for beginning a supplemental proceeding begins on the day after a determination in an initial proceeding becomes final and ends on the 90th day after the last day of the correction period.

(d) Restriction on assessment during Tax Court proceeding. If a supplemental proceeding described in section 4961(b) and §53.4961-2(c) is commenced in the Tax Court, the provisions of the second and third sentences of section 6213(a) and the first and third sentences of §301.6213-1(a)(2) apply with respect to a deficiency in second tier tax until the decision of the Tax Court in the supplemental proceeding is final.

(e) Suspension of period of collection for second tier tax—(1) Scope. Except as provided in subparagraph (6), this paragraph (e) applies to the second tier tax assessed with respect to a taxable even tif a claim described in subparagraph (2) is filed.

(2) Claim for refund. A claim for refund is described in this subparagraph (2) if, no later than 90 days after the day on which the second tier tax is assessed with respect to a taxable event, the taxpayer—

(i) Pays the full amount of first tier tax for the taxable period, and

(ii) Files a claim for refund of the amount paid.

(3) Collection prohibited. No levy or proceeding in court for the collection of the second tier tax shall be made, begun, or prosecuted until the end of the collection prohibition period described in subparagraph (5). Notwithstanding section 7421(a), the collection by levy or proceeding may be enjoined during the collection prohibition period by a proceeding in the proper court.

(4) Suspension of running of period of limitations on collection. With respect to a second tier tax to which this paragraph (e) applies, the running of the period of limitations provided in section 6502 (relating to collection of tax by levy or by a proceeding in court) shall be suspended for the collection prohibition period described in subparagraph (5).

(5) Collection prohibition period. The collection prohibition period begins on the day the second tier tax is assessed and ends on the latest of:

(i) The day a decision in a refund proceeding commenced before the 91st day after denial of the claim described in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph (including any supplemental proceeding under §53.4961-2(c)) becomes final;

(ii) The 90th day after the claim referred to in subparagraph (2) is denied; or

(iii) The 90th day after the second tier tax is assessed.

(6) Jeopardy collection. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of the second tier tax is in jeopardy, nothing in this paragraph (e) shall prevent the immediate collection of such tax.

(f) Finality—(1) Tax Court proceeding. For purposes of this subpart K, section 7481 applies in determining when a decision in a Tax Court proceeding becomes final.

(2) Refund proceeding. For purposes of this subpart K, §301.7422-1 applies in determining when a decision in a refund proceeding becomes final.

(a) First tier tax. The purposes of this subpart K, the term "first tier tax" means any tax imposed by subsection (a) of section 4941, 4942, 4943, 4944, 4945, 4951, 4952, 4971, or 4975. A first tier tax may also be referred to as an "initial tax" in parts 53 and 54.

(b) Second tier tax. For purposes of this subpart K, the term "second tier tax" means any tax imposed by subsection (b) of section 4941, 4942, 4943, 4944, 4945, 4951, 4952, 4971, or 4975. A second tier tax may also be referred to as an "additional tax" in parts 53 and 54.

(c) Taxable event. For purposes of this subpart K, the term "taxable event" means any act, or failure to act, giving rise to liability for tax under section 4941, 4942, 4943, 4944, 4945, 4951, 4952, 4971, or 4975.

(d) Correct—(1) In general. Except as provided in subparagraph (2), the term "correct" has the same meaning for purposes of this subpart K as in the section which imposes the second tier tax or the regulations thereunder.

(2) Special rules. The term "correct" means—

(i) For a second tier tax imposed by section 4942(b), reducing the amount of the undistributed income to zero,

(ii) For a second tier tax imposed by section 4943(b), reducing the amount of the excess business holdings to zero, and

(iii) For a second tier tax imposed by section 4944(b), removing the investment from jeopardy.

(e) Correction period—(1) In general. The correction period with respect to any taxable event shall begin with the date on which the taxable event occurs and shall end 90 days after the date of mailing of a notice of deficiency under section 6212 with respect to the second tier tax imposed with respect to the taxable event.

(2) Extensions of correction period. The correction period referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph shall be extended by any period in which a deficiency cannot be assessed under section 6213(a). In addition, the correction period referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph (e) shall be extended in accordance with subparagraphs (3), (4), and (5) of this paragraph except that subparagraph (4) and (5) shall not operate to extend a correction period with respect to which a taxpayer has filed a petition with the United States Tax Court for redetermination of a deficiency within the time prescribed by section 6213(a).

(3) Extensions by Commissioner. The correction period referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph may be extended by any period which the Commissioner determines is reasonable and necessary to bring about correction (including, for taxes imposed by section 4975, equitable relief sought by the Secretary of Labor) of the taxable event. The Commissioner ordinarily will not extend the correction period unless the following factors are present:

(i) The taxpayer on whom the second tier tax is imposed, the Secretary of Labor (for taxes imposed by section 4975), or an appropriate State officer (as defined in section 6104(c)(2)) is actively seeking in good faith to correct the taxable event;

(ii) Adequate corrective action cannot reasonably be expected to result during the unextended correction period;

(iii) For taxes imposed by section 4975, the Secretary of Labor requests the extension because subdivision (ii) applies; and

(iv) For taxes imposed by chapter 42 (other than taxes imposed by section 4940), the taxable event appears to have been an isolated occurrence so that it appears unlikely that similar taxable events will occur in the future.

(4) Extension for payment of first tier tax. If, within the unextended correction period, the taxpayer pays the full amount of the first tier tax imposed with respect to the taxable event the Commissioner shall extend the correction period to the later of—

(i) Ninety days after the payment of the first tier tax, or

(ii) The last day of the correction period determined without regard to this paragraph.

(5) Extensions for filing claim for refund or refund suit. If prior to the expiration of the correction period (including extensions) a claim for refund is filed with respect to payment of the full amount of the first tier tax imposed with rspect to the taxable event, the Commissioner shall extend the correction period during the pendency of the claim plus an additional 90 days. If within that time a suit or proceeding referred to in section 7422(g) with respect to the claim is filed, the Commissioner shall extend the correction period until the determination in the suit for refund (determined without regard to a supplemental proceeding under section 4961(b)) is final, determined under §301.7422-2(a).

(6) End of correction period if waiver accepted. If the notice of deficiency referred to in paragraph (1) is not mailed because there is a waiver of the restrictions on assessment and collection of the deficiency or because the deficiency is paid, the correction period will end of the collection prohibition period described in §53.4961-2(e)(5).

(7) Date on which taxable event occurs. For purposes of subparagraph (1), the taxable event shall be treated as occurring—

(i) Under section 4942, on the first day of the taxable year for which there is undistributed income,

(ii) Under section 4943, on the first day on which there are excess business holdings,

(iii) Under section 4971, on the last day of the plan year in which there is an accumulated funding deficiency, and

(iv) In all other cases, the date on which the event occurred.

(f) Effective date. The provisions of this subpart K are effective with respect to second tier taxes assessed after December 24, 1980. The preceding sentence shall not be construed to permit the assessment of a tax in a case to which, on December 24, 1980, the doctrine of res judicata applied.

PENSION EXCISE TAX REGULATIONS
[26 CFR Part 54]

Par. 12. The authority for Part 54 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805.

Par. 13. Section 54.4971-1 is added immediately after the authority citation for Part 54 to read as follows:

§54.4971-1 General rules relating to excise tax on failure to meet minimum funding standards.

(a) [Reserved]

(b) [Reserved]

(c) Additional tax. Section 4971(b) imposes an excise tax in any case in which an initial tax is imposed under section 4971(a) on an accumulated funding deficiency and the accumulated funding deficiency is not corrected within the taxable period (as defined in section 4971(c)(3)). The additional tax is 100 percent of the accumulated funding deficiency to the extent not corrected.

(d) [Reserved]

(e) Definition of taxable period—(1) In general. For purposes of any accumulated funding deficiency, the term "taxable period" means the period beginning with the end of the plan year in which there is an accumulated funding deficiency and ending on the earlier of:

(i) The date of mailing of a notice of deficiency under section 6212 with respect to the tax imposed by section 4971(a), or

(ii) The date on which the tax imposed by section 4971(a) is assessed.

(2) Special rule. Where a notice of deficiency referred to in paragraph (e)(1)(i) of this section is not mailed because a waiver of the restrictions on assessment and collection of a deficiency has been accepted or because the deficiency is paid, the date of filing of the waiver or the date of such payment, respectively, shall be treated as the end of the taxable year.

Par. 14. Section 54.4975-1 is added immediately after §54.4974-1 to read as follows:

§54.4975-1 General rules relating to excise tax on prohibited transactions.

(a) Scope. This section provides general rules for the imposition of the excise taxes on prohibited transactions.

(b) Initial tax. Section 4975(a) imposes an initial tax on each prohibited transaction. The initial tax is 5 percent of the amount involved with respect to the prohibited transaction for each year (or part thereof) in the taxable period.

(c) Additional tax. Section 4975(b) imposes an excise tax in any case in which an initial tax is imposed under section 4975(a) on a prohibited transaction and the prohibited transaction is not corrected within the taxable period (as defined in paragraph (d) of this section). The additional tax is 100 percent of the amount involved with respect to the prohibited transaction.

(d) Taxable period—(1) In general. For purposes of any prohibited transaction, the term "taxable period" means the period beginning with the date on which the prohibited transaction occurs and ending on the earliest of:

(i) The date of mailing of a notice of deficiency under section 6212 with respect to the tax imposed by section 4975(a);

(ii) The date on which correction of the prohibition transaction is completed; or

(iii) The date on which the tax imposed by section 4975(a) is assessed.

(2) Special rule. Where a notice of deficiency referred to in paragraph (d)(1)(i) of this section is not mailed because a waiver of the restrictions on assessment and collection of a deficiency has been accepted or because the deficiency is paid, the date of filing of the waiver or the date of such payment, respectively, shall be treated as the end of the taxable period.

TAXABLE EXCISE TAX REGULATIONS UNDER THE EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT INCOME SECURITY ACT OF 1974
[26 CFR Part 141]

Par. 15. The authority for Part 141 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805.

Par. 16. In §141.4975-13, the title is revised to read as set forth below, and the language "4975(f)(2), (4), (5) and (6)" is removed and the language "4975(f)(4) and (5)" is added in its place.

§141.4975-13 Definition of "amount involved" and "correction".

PROCEDURE AND ADMINISTRATION
[26 CFR Part 301]

Par. 17. the authority for Part 301 continues to read as follows:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805.

Par. 18. In §301.6212-1 the following two sentences are added at the end of paragraph (c):

§301.6212-1 Notice of deficiency.

* * * * *

(c) Further deficiency letters restricted. * * * Solely for purposes of applying the restriction of section 6212(c), a notice of deficiency with respect to second tier tax under chapter 43 shall be deemed to be a notice of deficiency for the taxable year in which the taxable event occurs. See §53.4963-1(e)(7)(iii) or (iv) for the date on which the taxable event occurs.

Par. 19. In §301.6213-1, the first sentence of paragraph (e) is revised to read as follows:

§301.6213-1 Restrictions applicable to deficiencies; petition to Tax Court.

(e) Suspension of filing period for certain chapter 42 and chapter 43 taxes. The period prescribed by section 6213)(a) for filing a petition in the Tax Court with respect to the taxes imposed by section 4941, 4942, 4943, 4944, 4945, 4951, 4952, 4971, or 4975, shall be suspended for any other period which the Commissioner has allowed for making correction under §53.4963-1(e)(3). * * *

Par. 20. Paragraph (a) of §301.6503(a)-1 is amended by adding a new subparagraph (3) to read as follows:

§301.6503(a)-1 Suspension of running of period of limitation; issuance of statutory notice of deficiency.

(a) General rule. * * *

(3) For provisions relating to suspension of the running of the period of limitation with respect to collection of "second tier" excise taxes (as defined in section 4963) until final resolution of a refund proceeding described in sections 4961 and 7422 for the determination of the taxpayer's liability for the second tier taxes, see §53.4961-2(e)(4).

* * * * *

Par. 21. Section 301.6503(g)-1 is amended by removing all of the text that follows the word "correction" and adding the language "under section 4963(e)(1)(B)." in its place.

Par. 22. In §301.6861-1, paragraph (g) is amended by removing the last sentence.

Par. 23. Section 301.7422-1 is revised to read as follows:

(a) Finality of refund proceeding. For purposes of sections 4941, 4942, 4943, 4944, 4945, 4951, 4952, 4961, 4963, 4971, and 4975, and the regulations thereunder, a decision in a suit for refund instituted under the provisions of this section shall be final—

(1) Upon the expiration of the time allowed for filing a notice of appeal from a decision of the United States Claims Court or the United States District Court, if no timely notice of appeal is filed; or

(2) Upon the expiration of the time allowed for filing a petition for certiorari from a decision of the United States Claims Court, or from a decision of the United States District Court, which has been affirmed or the appeal dismissed by the United States Court of Appeals, if no timely petition for certiorari is filed; or

(3) If a petition for certiorari has been filed, thirty days from the denial of such petition; or

(4) Thirty days from the date of a decision of the United States Supreme Court if no timely petition for rehearing is filed; however, if a timely petition for rehearing from such a decision is filed, and is denied, thirty days from the denial thereof; or

(5) If a decision is entered upon a rehearing or if a decision is modified or reversed as the result of a decision of higher court, upon the expiration, with respect to the decision or rehearing or the modified or reversed decision, of periods similar to those provided in subparagraphs (1) through (4).

(b) Right to bring action. With respect to any taxable event, payment of the full amount of first tier tax for the taxable period shall constitute sufficient payment in order to maintain an action under this section with respect to the second tier tax.

(c) Limitation on suit for refund. No suit may be maintained under this section for the credit or refund of any tax imposed under section 4941, 4942, 4943, 4944, 4945, 4951, 4952, 4971, or 4975 with respect to any taxable event unless—

(1) No other suit has been maintained for credit or refund of any tax imposed by such sections with respect to such taxable event; and

(2) No petition has been filed in the Tax Court with respect to a deficiency in any tax imposed by such sections with respect to such taxable event.

(d) Final determination of issues. For purposes of this section, any suit for the credit or refund of any tax imposed under ection 4941, 4942, 4943, 4944, 4945, 4951, 4952, 4971, or 4975, together with a supplemental proceeding (if any) under section 4961(b), with respect to any taxable event, shall constitute a suit to determine all questions with respect to any other tax imposed with respect to such taxable event under such sections. Consequently, failure by the parties to the suit to bring before the Court any question described in the preceding sentence shall constitute a bar to the question.

(e) Definitions. For definitions of the terms "taxable event," "first tier tax," and "second tier tax," see §53.4963-1.

Inflation Adjustment for Computation of Windfall Profit Tax

Notice 86-7

Section 4989(b) of the Internal Revenue Code requires the determination of an inflation adjustment factor for use in computing the windfall profit tax.

The Service has determined that, for oil removed during the July-September quarter of 1986, the inflation adjustments are as follows:

Tier 1 or Tier 2 oil	0.4614
Tier 3 oil	0.6721

Worksheets for computation of the windfall profit tax are included in the Instructions for Form 6047, Windfall Profit Tax, and an explanation of the inflation adjustment may be found in the Specific Instructions for Line 4 of the worksheets.

Part IV. Items of General Interest

Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Section 338(g)—Statements of Election

LR-8-86

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Notice of proposed rulemaking by cross-reference to temporary regulations.

SUMMARY: * * * [T]he Internal Revenue Service is amending temporary regulations relating to section 338(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 ("Code") as added by the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 ("TEFRA") [Pub. L. 97-248, 1982-2 C.B. 462]. The amendments provide additional guidance to taxpayers concerning the filing of certain statements of election under section 338 on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986. An amendment to temporary regulation §1.338-4T also clarifies the application of the mitigation of limitations provisions. The temporary regulations also extend the time for taking certain actions under section 338. The text of the new and revised sections also serves as the comment document for this notice of proposed rulemaking.

DATES:

PROPOSED EFFECTIVE DATE

The regulations are proposed to apply generally to stock acquisitions made after August 31, 1982. Certain provisions would only apply with respect to elections under section 338 filed on or after December 9, 1985, and on or before July 15, 1986.

DATES FOR COMMENTS AND REQUESTS FOR A PUBLIC HEARING

Written comments and requests for a public hearing must be delivered or mailed by July 15, 1986.

ADDRESS: Send comments and requests for a public hearing to: Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: CC:LR:T [LR-8-86], Washington, D.C. 20224.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Thomas J. Kane of the Legislation and Regulations Division, Office of the Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20224 (Attention: CC:LR:T) or telephone 202-566-3458 (not a toll-free call).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: BACKGROUND

Temporary regulations published * * * [on page 4, this Bulletin] amend temporary regulations §§1.338-1T, 1.338-2T, 1.338-4T, 1.338-5T, and 1.338(h)(10)-1T in Part 1 of Title 26 of the Code of the Federal Regulations ("CFR"). The final regualtions that are proposed to be based on the amended temporary regulations would be added to Part 1 of Title 26 of the CFR. Those final regulations would provide guidance on filing certain statements of election under section 338(g) of the Internal Revenue Code. Section 338(g) was added by section 224 of TEFRA (Pub. L. No. 97-248; 96 Stat. 485) [Pub. L. 97-248, 1982-2 C.B. 462, 501] and was amended by section 712(k) of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 (Pub. L. No. 98-369; 98 Stat. 948) [1984-3 C.B. (Vol. 1) 1, 456]. For the text of the amendments to the temporary regulations, see T.D. 8088, published * * * [on page 4, this Bulletin]. The preamble to the temporary regulations explains the additions to the regulations.

REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT AND EXECUTIVE ORDER 12291

Although this document is a notice of proposed rulemaking that solicits public comment, the Internal Revenue Service has concluded that the regulations proposed herein are interpretative and that the notice and public procedure requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 do not apply. Accordingly, these proposed regulations do not constitute regulations subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 6). The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that this proposed rule is not a major rule as defined in Executive Order 12291 and that a Regulatory Impact Analysis therefore is not required.

COMMENTS AND REQUEST FOR A PUBLIC HEARING

Before these proposed regulations are adopted, consideration will be given to any written comments that are submitted (preferably eight copies) to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. All comments will be available for public inspection and copying. A public hearing will be held upon written request to the Commissioner by any person who has submitted written comments. If a public hearing is held, notice of the time and place will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

DRAFTING INFORMATION

The principal author of these proposed regulations is Thomas J. Kane of the Legislation and Regulations Division of the Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service. However, personnel from other offices of the Internal Revenue Service and Treasury Department participated in developing the regulations, both on matters of substance and style.

Roscoe L. Egger, Jr.,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

(Filed by the Office of the Federal Register on May 15, 1986, 8:45 a.m., and published in the issue of the Federal Register for May 16, 1986, 51 F.R. 17989)

Deletions from Cumulative List of Organizations Contributions to Which Are Deductible Under Section 170 of the Code

Announcement 86-74

The names of organizations that no longer qualify as organizations described in section 170(c)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 are listed below.

Generally, the Service will not disallow deductions for contributions made to a listed organization on or before the date of announcement in the Internal Revenue Bulletin that an organization no longer qualifies. However, the Service is not precluded from disallowing a deduction for any contributions made after an organization ceases to qualify under section 170(c)(2) if the organization has not timely filed a suit for declaratory judgment under section 7428 and if the contributor (1) had knowledge of the revocation of the ruling or determination letter, (2) was aware that such revocation was imminent, or (3) was in part responsible for or was aware of the activities or omissions of the organization that brought about this revocation.

If on the other hand a suit for declaratory judgment has been timely filed, contributions from individuals and organizations described in section 170(c)(2) that are otherwise allowable will continue to be deductible. Protection under section 7428(c) would begin on June 16, 1986, (the date of publication of this announcement) and would end on the date the court first determines that the organization is not described in section 170(c)(2) as more particularly set forth in section 7428(c)(1). For individual contributors, the maximum deduction protected is $1,000, with a husband and wife treated as one contributor. This benefit is not extended to any individual who was responsible, in whole or in part, for the acts or omissions of the organization that were the basis for revocation.

Form 3115, Application for Change in Accounting Method, Revised

Announcement 86-75

Form 3115, Application for Change in Accounting Method, has been revised.

The revised form includes a new section for use by contractors who want to change to the "completed contract" method of accounting provided by section 1.451-3(d) of the regulations. The form also includes updated referencs to the appropriate revenue procedure (now Rev. Proc. 84-74) governing changes in accounting methods.

The form and its instructions, which are now issued separately, have a revision date of April 1986. They are now available at most Internal Revenue Service district offices.

Form 990-PF, Return of Private Foundation

Announcement 86-76

The Service has received a number of inquiries regarding Part V of the 1985 Form 990-PF, Return of Private Foundation. Exempt domestic foundations use this new Part V, Qualification Under Section 4940(e) for Reduced Tax on Net Investment Income, to determine whether they met a two-part test qualifying them to be taxed on their net investment income at a one percent tax rate for 1985 rather than at the normal two percent rate.

The threshold test, which is included in the heading of Part V, is that the foundation may not have been liable for section 4942 tax with respect to the distributable amount of any year in a base period consisting of the five preceding years. This test differs from the threshold test contained in section 4940(e)(2)(B) as enacted in 1984 (a five percent minimum payout rate over the base period) but follows the amendment initially contained in the proposed Technical Corrections Act of 1985 (H.R. 1800 and S. 814). This technical amendment of section 4940(e) still has not been enacted, but the provision is noncontroversial and its eventual enactment is certain. The Service has been assured by the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation that the amendment, when enacted, will be retroactive to tax years beginning in 1985.

The Service designed Part V of the 1985 Form 990-PF anticipating this law change to obviate the need for the filing of amended returns by foundations that qualified for the one percent tax reduction under either the original provision or the provision as amended, but not under both. The Joint Committee staff and the Department of Treasury endorsed the Service's proposal to print the 1985 form incorporating the pending amendment of section 4940(e).

Foundations, therefore, should prepare Part V of the 1985 Form 990-PF in accordance with the form and instructions and without regard to current section 4940(e)(2)(B).

Form 5471 Series, Information Return With Respect to a Foreign Corporation, Revised

Announcement 86-77

Form 5471, Information Return With Respect to a Foreign Corporation, its instructions, and Schedule M have been revised to reflect a change to the regulations under section 6038 of the Internal Revenue Code. Although Schedules N and O (Form 5471) were not revised, the entire Form 5471 series was reprinted with a revision date of January 1986 and is now available in most IRS Distribution Centers.

The regulations now require the reporting of transactions between foreign corporations owned by the same U.S. person. As a result, taxpayers who control more than one foreign corporation must now report the activities between these corporations on Schedule M (Form 5471). Taxpayers are also now required to file a duplicate copy of Form 5471 and any appropriate schedule with the Philadelphia Service Center, as well as with their income tax returns.

Taxpayers whose tax years began before August 24, 1985, may use the prior version of the form, the January 1985 revision. In addition, any taxpayer whose tax year began in 1985 but after August 23 may also use the 1985 version of Form 5471; however, they must use the 1986 version of Schedule M. For tax years starting 1986 the 1986 version of Form 5471, including Schedule M, must be used.

Additionally, since regulations section 1.6038-2(g) allows the use of attached statements prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, taxpayers using the 1986 revision of Form 5471 may continue to use these attached statements in lieu of completing Schedules C, D, E, F, and I. The instructions to the 1986 revision of Form 5471 requiring the completion of these schedules may be disregarded if the attached statements are used. However, taxpayers are encouraged to complete the lines of the schedules so they can be more easily processed.

Announcement of the Disbarment, Suspension, or Consent to Voluntary Suspension of Attorneys, Certified Public Accountants, Enrolled Agents and Enrolled Actuaries from Practice Before the Internal Revenue Service

Under 31 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 10, an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, in order to avoid the institution or conclusion of a proceeding for his disbarment or suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, may offer his consent to suspension from such practice. The Director of Practice, in his discretion, may suspend an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary in accordance with the consent offered.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents, and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify practitioners under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and addresses of practitioners who have been suspended from such practice, their designation as attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date or period of suspension. This announcement will appear in the weekly Bulletin at the earliest practicable date after such action and will continue to appear in the weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks or for as many weeks as is practicable for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

The following individuals have been placed under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Mack I. Frank	Eunice, LA	Attorney	Indefinite from April 1, 1986
Carl Goldfarb	Charlotte, NC	Attorney	Indefinite from April 28, 1986
Dennis M. Hayes	Ann Arbor, MI	Attorney	Indefinnite from April 15, 1986
Ronald N. Kief	Warren, MI	Certified Public Accountant	Two Years from June 1, 1986
Richard L. Leopold	Ottawa, OH	Attorney	Three Months from May 1, 1986
Julius Stackel	Flushing, NY	Certified Public Accountant	Thirty Months from April 15, 1986
John Such	Lyndhurst, OH	Enrolled Agent	Eighteen Months from April 22, 1986

Announcement Relating to Proposed Regulations Published With Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Changes in regulations as announced below have been published in the Federal Register in tentative or proposed form to provide interested parties with an opportunity to file their objections or suggestions for consideration prior to final adoption of such regulations. These announcements will appear in the Bulletin during the period which has been prescribed for the submission and consideration of any views, arguments, or suggestions pertaining to the proposed regulations so published. Statement of such views, arguments or suggestions should be submitted in writing, preferably six copies, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: CC:LR:T, Washington, D.C. 20224.

Definition of Terms

Revenue rulings and revenue procedures (hereinafter referred to as "rulings") that have an effect on previous rulings use the following defined terms to describe the effect:

Amplified describes a situation where no change is being made in a prior published position, but the prior position is being extended to apply to a variation of the fact situation set forth therein. Thus, if an earlier ruling held that a principle applied to A, and the new ruling holds that the same principle also applies to B, the earlier ruling is amplified. (Compare with modified, below).

Clarified is used in those instances where the language in a prior ruling is being made clear because the language has caused, or may cause, some confusion. It is not used where a position in a prior ruling is being changed.

Distinguished describes a situation where a ruling mentions a previously published ruling and points out an essential difference between them.

Modified is used where the substance of a previously published position is being changed. Thus, if a prior ruling held that a principle applied to A but not to B, and the new ruling holds that it applies to both A and B, the prior ruling is modified because it corrects a published position. (Compare with amplified and clarified, above).

Obsoleted describes a previously published ruling that is not considered determinative with respect to future transactions. This term is most commonly used in a ruling that lists previously published rulings that are obsoleted because of changes in law or regulations. A ruling may also be obsoleted because the substance has been included in regulations subsequently adopted.

Revoked describes situations where the position in the previously published ruling is not correct and the correct position is being stated in the new ruling.

Superseded describes a situation where the new ruling does nothing more than restate the substance and situation of a previously published ruling (or rulings). Thus, the term is used to republish under the 1954 Code and regulations the same position published under the 1939 Code and regulations. The term is also used when it is desired to republish in a single ruling a series of situations, names, etc., that were previously published over a period of time in separate rulings. If the new ruling does more than restate the substance of a prior ruling, a combination of terms is used. For example, modified and superseded describes a situation where the substance of a previously published ruling is being changed in part and is continued without change in part and it is desired to restate the valid portion of the previously published ruling in a new ruling that is self contained. In this case the previously published ruling is first modified and then, as modified, is superseded.

Supplemented is used in situations in which a list, such as a list of the names of countries, is published in a ruling and that list is expanded by adding further names in subsequent rulings. After the original ruling has been supplemented several times, a new ruling may be published that includes the list in the original ruling and the additions, and supersedes all prior rulings in the series.

Suspended is used in rare situations to show that the previous published rulings will not be applied pending some future action such as the issuance of new or amended regulations, the outcome of cases in litigation, or the outcome of a Service study.

INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

The Introduction on page 3 describes the purpose and content of this publication. The weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin is sold on a yearly subscription basis by the Superintendent of Documents. Current subscribers are notified by the Superintendent of Documents when their subscriptions must be renewed.

CUMULATIVE BULLETINS

The contents of the weekly Bulletin are consolidated semiannually into a permanent, indexed, Cumulative Bulletin. These are sold on a single copy basis and are not included as part of the subscription to the Internal Revenue Bulletin. Subscribers to the weekly Bulletin are notified when copies of the Cumulative Bulletin are available. Certain issues of Cumulative Bulletins are out of print and are not available. Persons desiring available Cumulative Bulletins, which are listed on the reverse, may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents.

BULLETIN INDEX-DIGEST SYSTEM

The Bulletin Index-Digest System provides a fast and easy way to research Revenue Rulings, Revenue Procedures, Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and other matters of a permanent nature published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin, or Cumulative Bulletin from 1953 on. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date research tool that requires no filing or other clerical maintenance. The current revision consists of four Services, available on a subscription basis, each including a basic volume that covers the period 1953-1983/1984 and a cumulative supplement covering material published in subsequent Bulletins for the following two-year period. Cumulative supplements are issued quarterly for the Income Tax Service and semiannually for the Estate and Gift, Employment, and Excise Tax Service.

HOW TO ORDER

Check the publications and/or subscription(s) desired on the reverse, complete the order blank, enclose the proper remittance, detach entire page, and mail to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Please allow two to six weeks, plus mailing time, for delivery.

FOREWORD

The primary references for changes to the National Airspace System (NAS) are Aeronautical Charts and Airport/Facility Directories (A/FD) published for the affected area(s). Ideally, most changes to the NAS that meet NOTAM criteria are known sufficiently in advance to allow publication in these publications. When this cannot be done, changes are carried in the Notices to Airman Class II publication, or as a last resort, on the Service A telecommunications system as a NOTAM D item.

NOTAM D information printed in this publication will not be included on the Service A system and will not be provided during pilot briefings unless specifically requested by the pilot.

National Flight Data Center (FDC) NOTAMs primarily reflect changes to Standard Instrument Approach Procedures (SIAPs), Flight Restrictions, and aeronautical chart revisions. The last FDC NOTAM included in this issue is indicated by number and date above. This information insures that subsequent FDC NOTAMs, issued after the cutoff date, can be identified.

The Class II publication contains information of a temporary nature, which is expected to remain for an extended period. This temporary information is carried until it expires or is cancelled. Data of a permanent nature is sometimes carried in the Class II publication as an interim step prior to publication on the appropriate charts or in the A/FD.

The Class II publication is issued every 14 days. The A/FD is published every 56 days. Data in the Class II publication that is current on the effective date of the next A/FD will be transferred to the A/FD and removed from the Class II publication.

Facilities are responsible for forwarding data to the National Flight Data Center (NFDC). Data, still current for the next available Class II publication date, will be published.

This publication is divided into two sections:

1. Section One contains information divided into four categories:

a. GENERAL

b. AIRWAYS

c. FLIGHT RESTRICTIONS

d. AIRPORTS / FACILITIES / PROCEDURAL NOTAMS

The first subsection is listed in descending FDC NOTAM numerical order. The second and third subsections are listed by state. The fourth subsection is ordered by state, city, and airport name.

2. The second section contains special notices that are too long or that concern a wide or unspecified geographical area (which may overlap several states) and are not suitable for inclusion in the first section.

The content of these notices vary widely and are included because of their significant impact on flight safety.

NOTES

1. All times are indicated as UTC or local. During periods of Daylight Savings Time, effective hours in local time will be one hour earlier than shown. All states observe Daylight Savings Time except Arizona, that portion of Indiana in the Eastern Time Zone, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

2. (|) Vertical line items indicate new information.

FDC NOTAM LEGEND

HAZARDOUS INFLIGHT WEATHER ADVISORY SERVICE (HIWAS)

HIWAS is a national program for broadcasting hazardous weather information (SIGMET's, convective SIGMET's, Center Weather Advisories (CWA), AIRMET's, and urgent PIREP's) on a continuous basis over selected VOR's. The program is operational in the Jacksonville, Miami, and Houston Air Route Traffic Control Center (ARTCC) areas. The chart on the following page identifies the current broadcast outlet locations and frequencies. Frequencies shown in the Atlanta ARTCC area are for planning purposes only. HIWAS will be expanded on an ARTCC by ARTCC basis.

Pilots should be aware that:

* Flight service stations broadcast information on hazardous weather not yet covered by an advisory and make an announcement on their frequencies that new HIWAS information is available.

* Controllers in ARTCC's and air traffic control terminals announce updates to HIWAS information on all appropriate frequencies.

* Controllers and specialists will not routinely broadcast SIGMET's, convective SIGMET's, CWA's, AIRMET's, and urgent PIREP's in the commissioned HIWAS areas.

User comments regarding the effectiveness of the HIWAS program and any proposed revision to HIWAS procedures are solicited.

Mail comments to:

AIRPORT RADAR SERVICE AREAS (ARSA)

The National Airspace Review Terminal Airspace Task Group 1-2.2 recommended the ARSA Program as a replacement for the existing Terminal Radar Service Area Program and the FAA has adopted that recommendation. ARSA designations have been made, and effective dates established, for the locations listed below. The following is a summary of the pilot requirements and the ATC procedures for ARSA's. Graphic depictions of each ARSA are also included.

Unless otherwise authorized or required by ATC, the following provisions apply to aircraft operating within an ARSA:

1. Aircraft approaching that would penetrate the ARSA must establish two-way radio communications with ATC prior to entering the ARSA and maintain that communication while operating within the ARSA.
2. Aircraft departing the primary airport within the ARSA must establish two-way communications with ATC prior to departur and maintain that communication while operating within the ARSA. Aircraft departing a satellite airport within the ARSA must contact ATC as soon as practicable after takeoff.
3. Except in an emergency, all operations must be in complianc with ATC clearances and instructions.
4. All arrivals and departures within the ARSA must be in compliance with FAA arrival and departure traffic patterns.
5. Ultralight vehicles and parachute operations may not be conducted within the ARSA except under the terms of an ATC authorization.
6. NOTAM's pertaining to flight within the ARSA must be reviewed as a part of preflight action required by FAR 91.5

Within ARSA's, ATC will provide the following services:

1. Radar sequencing of all arrivals.
2. Standard separation between all instrument flight rules (IFR) flights.
3. Traffic advisories and safety advisories to all aircraft.
4. Resolve any potential conflict between an aircraft operatin IFR and an aircraft operating under visual flight rules by application of conflict resolution procedures.

An ARSA has been designated at the following location to be effective November 20, 1986.

Louisville, KY, Standiford Field.

ARSA's have been established at the following locations to be effective December 18, 1986.

Mobile, AL, Bates Field

Providence, RI, Theodore Francis Green State Airport.

An ARSA has been designated at the following airport to become effective on November 20, 1986

TERMINAL AREA GRAPHIC NOTICE (NOT TO BE USED FOR NAVIGATION)

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, CALIFORNIA
LAKE TAHOE AIRPORT

The Lake Tahoe Airport is closed to aircraft registering 77.1 or more decibles (as listed in FAA AC36-3 series) from 2000-0800 hours local time.

ARRIVAL PROCEDURES:

CAUTION: NORMALLY ASPIRATED PISTON ENGINES SHOULD BE LEANED TO PROVIDE A BEST-POWER MIXTURE DURING THE LANDING. DUE TO THE POSSIBILITY OF AN ABORTED APPROACH, PILOTS OF SUPERCHARGED AIRCRAFT SHOULD USE CAUTION WITH THEIR MIXTURE DUE TO FOULING OF THE SPARKPLUGS AT LOW POWER AND RICH MIXTURE.

RUNWAY 36: When arriving from the northwest through the east, enter the pattern on a wide right downwind, or as directed by the Tower.

When arriving from the southeast through the southwest, the Tower will normally direct you straight-in. If that is not practicable, request an over-flight for right traffic. Make your over-flight at or above 8000' MSL, and descend to pattern altitude on crosswind.

When arriving from the west, the Tower may direct you to cross over the field (mid-field crosswind) for right traffic.

High performance aircraft: Tower will normally assign a left downwind, fly base leg between the river and the ridge or as directed by Tower.

NOTE: CAUTION IS ADVISED DUE TO POSSIBLE DOWNDRAFTS, PARTICULARLY ON SHORT FINAL AND WHEN NORTHERLY WINDS EXCEED 15 KNOTS.

RUNWAY 18: When arriving from the northwest through the east, Tower may direct you to make a straight in. Descend north of the shoreline to cross the shoreline over the meadow, slightly west of "straight in", and at or above 7500' MSL.

When arriving from the southeast through the southwest, Tower will usually direct you to a wide left down-wind entry. If arriving from southwest to remain as far south as feasible until crossing the extended centerline.

Caution is advised due to possible traffic climbing out and/or circling the golf course to gain altitude.

When arriving from the west, Tower normally will advise you to make a straight in. Make your "base" leg north of the shoreline, and turn final at or above 7500' MSL.

CAUTION: ROTOR ACTIVITY (UP AND DOWN-DRAFTS) OFTEN EXISTS THROUGHOUT THE BASIN AND ESPECIALLY ON THE FINAL APPROACH WHEN SOUTHERLY WINDS EXIST. IF PRACTICABLE, MAKE YOUR AIM-POINT APPROXIMATELY ONE-THIRD OF THE WAY DOWN FROM THE RUNWAY (NEAR TAXIWAY "E"). OVER 5000' OF RUNWAY REMAINS FROM THAT POINT.

PATTERN ALTITUDES:

Small aircraft - 7500' MSL (1236' above the airport)
Large aircraft - 8000' MSL (1736' above the airport)

DEPARTURE PROCEDURES:

CAUTION: DENSITY ALTITUDE CAN AND DOES EXCEED 10,000'. PLEASE COMPUTE YOUR PERFORMANCE FACTORS ACCORDINGLY, USE DENSITY ALTITUDE LEANING TECHNIQUES APPROPRIATE TO YOUR AIRCRAFT PRIOR TO TAKEOFF AND ENSURE THAT YOUR WEIGHT AND BALANCE IS WELL WITHIN LIMITATIONS. (Suggestion: Reduce your useful load by at least 2.5% for each 1000' of density altitude, particularly in normally aspirated aircraft.)

NOTE: WE LIVE IN A VERY NOISE-SENSITIVE AREA. PLEASE HELP US BY CLIMBING AT YOUR BEST RATE OF CLIMB SPEED (Vy), AND BY REDUCING TO YOUR CLIMB-POWER SETTING AS SOON AS YOU FEEL IT IS PRACTICABLE.

RUNWAY 36: Follow the extended centerline approximately 3/4 mile. At that point you will be abeam a white-fenced pasture and over a large red arrow. Make a slight left turn (to approximately 320 degrees) and follow the meadow to the shoreline. Once you have crossed the shoreline, and are above 7500' MSL turn to your departure heading.

NOTE: Aircraft remaining in closed traffic may make a normal traffic pattern.

RUNWAY 18:

CAUTION: ALL TERRAIN SOUTH OF THE AIRPORT IS ABOVE THE AIRPORT ELEVATION. DOWNDRAFTS IN EXCESS OF 500FPM OFTEN EXIST THROUGHOUT THE DEPARTURE AREA. CHECK YOUR CLIMB GRADIENT AND OTHER PERFORMANCE FIGURES ACCORDINGLY.

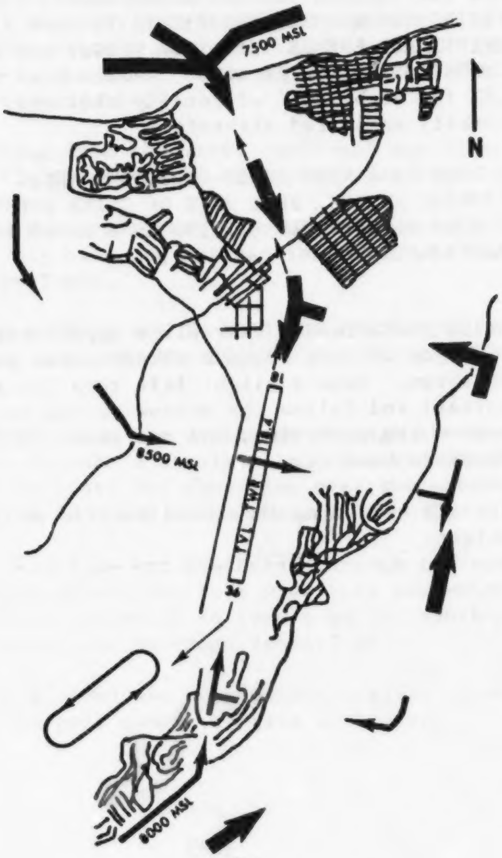
After clearing the airport boundary, make a slight right turn to follow the river. If making a downwind departure, do not turn crosswind until reaching 7500' MSL, make a wide downwind turn. If you need additional altitude, advise the Tower you will be climbing over the golf course. Use a right-turn climbing pattern, watch out for other traffic, and advise the Tower when you depart the golf course. Downdrafts often exist near the mountains - stay over the golf course.



HIGH ALTITUDE/EN ROUTE FLIGHT ADVISORY SERVICE (HA/EFAS)

HA/EFAS is an expansion of the current EFAS program (See AIM, paragraph 503). When fully implemented, it will provide a discrete frequency for each of the Air Route Traffic Control Center (ARTCC) areas for use by aircraft flying at altitudes of 18,000 feet and above within the center's area. The service expansion was initiated in July 1986 in the Salt Lake City ARTCC area on a frequency of 133.025 mHz.

As service in other areas becomes available the information will be published on charts located on the inside back cover of the Airport Facility Directories.

COLORADO SKI COUNTRY AIRPORTS
SPECIAL AIR TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

In anticipation of the large number of aircraft operating into and out of Colorado Ski Country Airports during the 1986-1987 ski season, the following procedures have been implemented to enhance safety and minimize traffic delays during this ski season.

These procedures for Colorado Ski Country Airports shall be in effect from November 14, 1986, through April 13, 1987.

FLIGHT PLANS

For the purpose of flight planning the Colorado Ski Country includes the following airports:

Aspen, Colorado
    Aspen-Pitkin County/Sardy Field Airport (ASE)

Eagle, Colorado
    Eagle County Airport (EGE)

Gunnison, Colorado
    Gunnison County Airport (GUC)

Rifle, Colorado
    Garfield County Airport (RIL)

Hayden, Colorado
    Yampa Valley Airport (HDN)

Pilots are urged to file IFR flight plans at least 4 hours prior to proposed time of departure with the nearest flight service station.

Air filed flight plans and flight plans filed less than 4 hours prior to proposed departure times, may experience delays awaiting integration into the IFR system while this program is in effect.

(Revised 11/19/86)

PREFERRED ARRIVAL ROUTING

Unscheduled IFR flights operating into a Colorado Ski Country Airport should file an appropriate preferred route during the hours 1400 UTC and 0300 UTC (0700 MST-2000 MST) daily.

To Aspen, Colorado (ASE) and Rifle, Colorado (RIL)

Route 1	From over fixes between DEN clockwise to COS; file via DEN..DBL..ASE/RIL
Route 2	From over fixes between COS clockwise to HBU; file via HBU..DBL..ASE/RIL
Route 3	From over fixes between GUC clockwise to DEN; file via DBL..ASE/RIL

To Eagle, Colorado (EGE)

Route 1	From over fixes between CHE clockwise to IOC; file via RLG.RLG189R.STUPE ..EGE
Route 2	From over fixes between IOC clockwise to FMN; file via HBU.V421.HAMPS..EGE
Route 3	From over fixes between FMN clockwise to PUC; file via JNC.V134.DBL.V421 .HAMPS..EGE
Route 4	From over fixes between PUC clockwise to CHE; file via EKR.V200.RLG.RLG189R .STUPE..EGE

To Gunnison, Colorado (GUC)

Via Airways

Exception: TRAFFIC WILL NOT BE ROUTED DEN J10/J128 HBU.

(Revised 11/19/86)

IFR ARRIVAL/DEPARTURE/PROCEDURES FOR ASPEN

Denver Air Route Traffic Control Center (ARTCC) Traffic Management Unit (TMU) may assign a control departure time (CDT) for IFR flights arriving or departing Aspen-Pitken County/Sardy Field (ASE) whenever marginal weather conditions exist.

Implementation of this part of the special Traffic Management Program will be by special notice. Pilots may obtain current delay information during preflight and inflight briefings. During marginal weather conditions, pilots are encouraged to contact the tower or flight service station prior to engine startup to obtain latest information.

To ensure the success of this special Traffic Management Program, aircraft inbound to ASE are urged to depart within plus or minus 5 minutes of CDT.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Advise ATC of alternate airport prior to starting approach.

Additional routing may be assigned by ATC based on weather and traffic density.

Pilots destined for Ski Country Airports are encouraged to plan their arrivals Monday through Thursday to avoid extensive arrival delays.

Extensive arrival delays can be anticipated between the hours of 1900 UTC and 0100 UTC (1200 MST - 1800 MST) Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Pilots may obtain additional traffic management information from the nearest flight service station.

Department of the Treasury
Internal Revenue Service

T22.23:

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing our Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

Introduction

The Internal Revenue Bulletin is the authoritative instrument of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for announcing official rulings and procedures of the Internal Revenue Service and for publishing Treasury Decisions, Executive Orders, Tax Conventions, legislation, court decisions, and other items of general interest. It is published weekly and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. Bulletin contents of a permanent nature are consolidated semiannually into Cumulative Bulletins, which are sold on a single-copy basis.

It is the policy of the Service to publish in the Bulletin all substantive rulings necessary to promote a uniform application of the tax laws, including all rulings that supersede, revoke, modify, or amend any of those previously published in the Bulletin. All published rulings apply retroactively unless otherwise indicated. Procedures relating solely to matters of internal management are not published; however, statements of internal practices and procedures that affect the rights and duties of taxpayers are published.

Revenue rulings represent the conclusions of the Service on the application of the law to the pivotal facts stated in the revenue ruling. In those based on positions taken in rulings to taxpayers or technical advice to Service field offices, identifying details and information of a confidential nature are deleted to prevent unwarranted invasions of privacy and to comply with statutory requirements.

Rulings and procedures reported in the Bulletin do not have the force and effect of Treasury Department Regulations, but they may be used as precedents. Unpublished rulings will not be relied on, used, or cited as precedents by Service personnel in the disposition of other cases. In applying published rulings and procedures, the effect of subsequent legislation, regulations, court decisions, rulings, and procedures must be considered, and Service personnel and others concerned are cautioned against reaching the same conclusions in other cases unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same.

The Bulletin is divided into four parts as follows:

Part I.—1954 Code.

This part includes rulings and decisions based on provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Part II.—Treaties and Tax Legislation.

This part is divided into two subparts as follows: Subpart A, Tax Conventions, and Subpart B, Legislation and Related Committee Reports.

Part III.—Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous.

To the extent practicable, pertinent cross references to these subjects are contained in the other Parts and Subparts.

Part IV.—Items of General Interest.

With the exception of the disbarment and suspension list included in this part, none of these announcements is consolidated in the Cumulative Bulletins.

The first Bulletin for each month includes an index for the matters published during the preceding month. These monthly indexes are cumulated on a quarterly and semiannual basis, and are published in the first Bulletin of the succeeding quarterly and semi-annual period, respectively.

The Bulletin Index-Digest System, a research and reference service supplementing the Bulletin, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. It consists of four Services: Service No. 1, Income Tax; Service No. 2, Estate and Gift Taxes; Service No. 3, Employment Taxes; Service No. 4, Excise Taxes. Each Service consists of a basic volume and a cumulative supplement that provide (1) finding lists of items published in the Bulletin, (2) digests of revenue rulings, revenue procedures, and other published items, and (3) indexes of Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and Tax Conventions.

The contents of this publication are not copyrighted and may be reprinted freely. A citation of the Internal Revenue Bulletin as the source would be appropriate.

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Prices: Domestic—$1.75 a single copy, $82.00 a year subscription. Foreign—$2.19 a single copy, $102.50 a year for subscription.

Announcement Relating To Decision of the Tax Court

It is the policy of the Internal Revenue Service to announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin at the earliest practicable date the determination of the Commissioner to acquiesce or not acquiesce in a decision of the Tax Court which disallows a deficiency in tax determined by the Commissioner to be due.

Notice that the Commissioner has acquiesced or nonacquiesced in a decision of the Tax Court relates only to the issue or issues decided adversely to the Government.

Actions of acquiescences in adverse decisions shall be relied on by Revenue officers and other concerned as conclusions of the Service only to the application of the law to the facts in the particular case. Caution should be exercised in extending the application of the decision to a similar case unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same, and consideration should be given to the effect of new legislation, regulations, and rulings as well as subsequent court decisions and actions thereon.

Acquiescence in a decision means acceptance by the Service of the conclusion reached, and does ot necessarily mean acceptance and approval of any or all of the reasons assigned by the Court for its conclusions.

No announcements are made in the Bulletin with respect to memorandum opions of the Tax Court.

The announcements published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletins are consolidated semiannually and annually. The semiannual consolidation appears in the first Bulletin for July and in the Cumulative Bulletin for the first half of the year and the annual consolidation appears in the first Bulletin for the following January and in the Cumulative Bulletin for the last half of the year.

The Commissioner ACQUIESCES in the following decisions:

Rev. Rul. 86-85

This revenue ruling contains a list of the average annual effective interest rates on new Federal Land Bank loans. Under section 2032A(e)(7)(A)(ii) of the Internal Revenue Code, rates on new Federal Land Bank loans are used in computing the special use value of real property used as a farm for which an election is made under section 2032A. This revenue ruling also contains a list of the states within each land bank district. The rates in this revenue ruling may be used by estates that value farmland under section 2032A as of a date in 1986.

Average annual effective interest rates, calculated in accordance with section 2032A(e)(7)(A) of the Code and section 20.2032A-4(e) of the Estate Tax Regulations, to be used under section 2032A(e)(7)(A)(ii) are as follows:

Part III. Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous

Refunds for AT&T Shareholders

Notice 86-8[1]

In Notice 725 (1-85), sent to all AT&T shareholders of record as of December 30, 1983, the Internal Revenue Service stated that an additional 39 cents per share must be reported in income as a taxable dividend in 1984 (resulting from the receipt of Pacific Telesis Group stock in the AT&T divestiture).

On April 17, 1986, the Tax Court of the United States in Edna Louise Dunn Trust v. Commissioner, 86 T.C. ___ (1986), ruled that no portion of the Pacific Telesis stock distributed by AT&T on January 1, 1984, represents a taxable dividend. In accordance with an agreement between the Service and AT&T, the Service will not appeal this ruling. Therefore, this decision disposes of this issue with regard to AT&T shareholders. On April 29, 1986, a News Release, IR-86-59, was issued stating that the Service was developing special procedures for claiming refunds of overpaid tax resulting from shareholders' treating a portion of the AT&T distribution as a taxable dividend. The purpose of this Notice is to describe those procedures.

Notice 773 (5-86) will be mailed to the taxpayers whom the Service had previously sent Notice 725 or other letters advising taxpayers to report the dividend as taxable income for tax year 1984. Notice 773 will describe in detail the procedures for filing a claim for refund of any additional tax that the taxpayer might have paid as a result of reporting the dividend as taxable income for tax year 1984. Accompanying Notice 773 will be a special Form 1040X overprinted with the annotation "AT&T Claim," Form 1040X instructions, and a special bar-coded return envelope. Taxpayers receiving the notices should use the bar-coded envelope provided and file their claims with the service center indicated without regard to where the original return was filed. Notice 773 will also have a detachable slip at the bottom containing a summary of the taxpayer's information. This slip should be attached to and returned with the taxpayer's completed Form 1040X.

All taxpayers who reported the Pacific Telesis stock as a taxable dividend for tax year 1984 who receive Notice 773 should use the special Form 1040X and should follow the procedures set forth in Notice 773 to claim a refund of any additional tax that resulted from reporting such dividend income. Form 843 should not be used for this purpose. The taxpayer should indicate on page 2, Part II of Form 1040X ("Explanation of Changes to Income, Deductions, and Credits") that it is an AT&T claim. Taxpayers who reported dividend income as a result of receiving pacific Telesis stock who do not receive Notice 773 should obtain and complete a regular Form 1040X (marking "AT&T Claim" on the upper left portion of the form) and mail it to the service center where the original return had been filed, indicating "AT&T Claim" on the envelope. Nominees should advise their beneficial holders to also file a regular Form 1040X with "AT&T Claim" clearly printed on the upper left corner of the form. The normal three year statute of limitations will apply to AT&T refund claims.

As a result of the Tax Court decision, some AT&T shareholders may also have to reallocate their tax basis in their AT&T stock held before the divestiture between their shares of AT&T stock and their shares in the seven regional companies that they received in the divestiture.

At the time or shortly after the divestiture, AT&T mailed a pamphlet, titled "Divestiture Tax Information for AT&T Shareowners," to its shareholders explaining how to allocate tax basis. In the pamphlet, AT&T discussed two methods of allocating basis depending on whether the shareholder reported dividend income as a result of receiving the Pacific Telesis stock. The two methods were (1) the "IRS Method," where the shareholder reported the dividend income and (2) the "Alternative method," where the shareholder did not report the dividend income. Based on the decision of the Tax Court, taxpayers who owned common stock of AT&T as of December 30, 1983, who used the "IRS Method" will have to recalculate their basis in the stock of AT&T and the seven regional companies using the "Alternative Method." The allocation factors based on the relative fair market values of such stock incorporated into "Alternative Method" may be relied on by taxpayers for allocating basis. An example demonstrating the calculation of basis under the "Alternative Method" and a worksheet are reproduced below.

In addition to recalculating basis, those shareholders of record as of December 30, 1983, who used the "IRS Method" to allocate basis and who have sold shares of AT&T common stock or stock of one or more of the seven regional companies will also have to recalculate the gain(s) or loss(es) resulting from the sale(s) using the new bases calculated under the "Alternative Method." Sales affected would include all sales of stock by such shareholders consummated subsequent to January 1, 1984, including (1) sales through the exercise of an option given to AT&T shareholders pursuant to the plan of divestiture to have the distribution agent sell shares of one or more of the regional companies and reinvest the proceeds in shares of one or more of the other companies (which would have been shown on Form 1099-B received in 1984); (2) sales resulting in shareholders receiving cash in lieu of fractional share interests in the seven regional companies; and (3) sales by independent brokers or agents. If a sale occurred in a tax year for which a tax return has been filed, taxpayers should file a Form 1040X for the year of sale to accurately report the gain or loss from such sale using the new bases calculated according to the "Alternative Method." Taxpayers who sold stock during the tax year 1984 who are also filing a claim for refund of taxes paid with respect to the reporting of dividend income from their receipt of Pacific Telesis stock should use the same Form 1040X for both, attaching (where applicable) a revised Schedule D showing the recalculation of gain(s) or loss(es) from such sale(s). Taxpayers who sold stock subsequent to tax year 1984 should also file a separate Form 1040X for the year of sale to accurately report the gain(s) or loss(es) from such sale(s) using the new bases calculated according to the "Alternative method."

If taxpayers have any questions, they may call the Internal Revenue Service tax assistance telephone number listed in their local directory.

Example for Method 2: The Alternative Method

Here is an example to help you calculate your new tax basis using the tax-free alternative method.

John Smith's tax basis in old AT&T was $50 per share.

(1) Mr. Smith writes $50 (his old tax basis) in the blank spaces of column C.

(2) Next, he calculates column D-the allocation factors in column B times his old tax basis in column C.

(3) In Column E the tax basis for a share of new AT&T is th esame number as in column D. However, for the regional companies, the new tax basis per share is 10 times column D. This is because Mr. Smith, like you, received one-tenth of a share in each of the regional companies for every share of old AT&T he owned.

(4) For Mr. Smith column E represents his new tax basis per share in AT&T and each of the seven regional companies.

You can also use Method 2 to determine your new tax basis for the fractional shares sold for you at divestiture or sold through the divestiture consolidation option process.

A Companies	B Allocation factors	C "Old" tax basis	D Allocation per share of "old" AT&T (B × C)	E New tax basis per share
AT&T (new)	.2850	X$50 =	$14.250 × 1 =	$14.25
Ameritech	.1033	× 50 =	5.165 × 10 =	51.65
Bell Atlantic	.1049	× 50 =	5.245 × 10 =	52.45
BellSouth	.1353	× 50 =	6.765 × 10 =	67.65
NYNEX	.0984	× 50 =	4.920 × 10 =	49.20
PacTel Group	.0888	× 50 =	4.440 × 10 =	44.40
Southwestern Bell	.0949	× 50 =	4.745 × 10 =	47.45
US WEST	.0894	× 50 =	4.470 × 10 =	44.70

.02 For the purpose of this revenue procedure, a substitute form is one that is not printed by IRS. In order for a substitute form to be acceptable to the IRS it must conform to the official form and the specifications outlined in this revenue procedure. DO NOT submit any substitutes for APPROVAL. Only those forms that conform to the official form and comply with the specifications set forth herein are acceptable. See Part A, Section 8 for the specifications that apply to form recipient statements (Copy B).

.03 This revenue procedure supersedes Revenue Procedures 85-25 and 85-52.

SEC. 2. NATURE OF CHANGES

.01 Ink color for Forms 1098, 1099 and 5498 has been changed.

.02 Specifications for substitute form recipient copies.

.03 Various editorial changes have been made.

.04 Form W-3G is now obsolete.

.05 Two additional copies for Forms W-2G and 1099-R are included.

.06 Substitute forms that do not totally conform to the specifications in this revenue procedure are not acceptable. IRS will no longer review proposed substitutes for acceptability. NO DEVIATIONS will be allowed. However, IRS will continue to clarify and resolve issues involving specifications.

.07 Where to file completed paper forms or magnetic media has been clarified.

.08 Improperly printed or prepared forms are subject to penalties.

.09 Specifications for recipient copies have been clarified.

.10 The importance of quality control for ink density has been stressed for acceptability of forms.

.11 New requirements for filing all forms with IRS on magnetic media have been added.

.12 Postal indicia "boxes" specification added.

SEC. 3. REQUIREMENTS FOR ACCEPTABLE SUBSTITUTE FORMS 1096, 1098, 1099, 5498 AND W-2G.

.01 Paper substitutes for Forms 1098, 1099, 5498, W-2G, (Copy A data) and Forms 1096 that totally conform to the specifications contained in this procedure may be privately printed and filed as returns with the IRS. DO NOT submit any substitutes for general approval (except for Carbonless paper listed in .05 below). Only those forms that conform with the official form and the specifications contained herein are acceptable.

If you are uncertain of any specification set forth herein and want that specification clarified, you may submit a letter citing the specification in question, your interpretation of the specification, and an example of the form with your understanding of the specification to:

Internal Revenue Service
ATTN: D:R:R:IM
1111 Constitution Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20224

You must identify the specification in question as general approval of forms is not available.

.02 Copy B (Form 1098 For Payer, other Forms 1099 For Recipient, Form 5498 For Participant, Form 1099-A For Borrower) and Copy C (Form W-2G For Winner's Records) must contain the information specified in section 8 in order to rise to the level of a "statement" or "official form" under the applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The format of this information is at the discretion of the filer with the exception of the composite Form 1099 form recipient statement specified in section 8.04.

.03 Proposed substitutes for Copy A that do not conform to these specifications are not acceptable.

.04 No IRS office is authorized to allow deviations from this revenue procedure.

.05 The use of chemical transfer paper on Copy A may be approved after review by IRS. Submit all requests with a minimum sample of 100 blank sheets of 20 lb. paper (17 × 22 − 500) to Internal Revenue Service, Attn: D:R:R:IM, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20224. The paper will be tested and the results reported to the requester.

.06 Forms 1096, 1098, 1099, 5498 and W-2G are subject to annual review and possible change. Filers are cautioned, therefore, against overstocking supplies of privately printed substitutes. The specifications contained in this revenue procedure apply to 1986 forms only.

.07 Copies of the official forms for the reporting year may be obtained from most Internal Revenue offices. IRS provides only cut sheets (no carbon interleaves) of these forms. If they are not available at your local IRS District Office you may ask them to order copies for you. You should receive your order within 10 days.

.08 Only original or ribbon copies that are typed or machine printed with black carbon based ink may be filed with IRS. Carbon copies and photocopies are not acceptable.

SEC. 4. DEFINITIONS

.01 The term "taxpayer (form recipient) identification number (TIN)" for an individual means the individual's social security number (SSN). The SSN consists of nine digits separated by hyphens as follows: 000-00-0000. For all other form recipients, the term "taxpayer (form recipient) identification number" means the employer identification number (EIN). The EIN consists of nine digits separated by one hyphen as follows: 00-0000000. A sole proprietor may have both an EIN and a SSN.

.02 In the past the terms payee and recipient were usually synonymous. The addition of new forms to the information returns family requires different terminology to identify the recipient of a copy of the form filed with IRS (i.e., 1098 is payer, 1099-A is borrower, 5498 is participant). Therefore, to alleviate any possibility of confusion, the person who is required by law to reeive a copy of the official form or information statement will be referred to as the "form recipient". The name of the appropriate form recipient (i.e., person or organization whose TIN has been provided) must be shown as the first entry in the area on the form provided for the form recipient name and address. (See Section 6 for guidelines on listing the form recipient's name and TIN). No descriptive information or other name is to precede the form recipient's name. ONLY one form recipient name should appear on the first line of the form (lined up with the arrow on the left). If more than one form recipient's name must be entered, place the responsible form recipient (person or organization whose TIN is provided) on the first line. Place other form recipient's names on the succeeding name lines (up to 3 name lines are allowable).

.03 The term "filer" means the person or organization required by law to file with IRS a form listed in section 1.01 above.

.04 A corrected and/or amended return is one that corrects previously reported information. Place an "X" within the box to left of the word "Corrected".

.05 The term "substitute form" means a paper substitute of Copy A of an official form listed in section 1.01 above that totally conforms to the provisions of this revenue procedure.

.06 The term "form recipient statement" means a paper statement of the information reported on a form listed in section 1.01 above that must be furnished to a person, as so defined (form recipient) under the applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.

.07 A composite statement is a substitute form recipient copy of official Forms 1099-DIV, INT, OID and PATR, in the aggregate or in any combination thereof. A filer may use a composite statement when such reporting payments are paid to the same form recipient during the calendar year. If the filer does not use a composite statement for these payments the filer must provide each respective statement to the form recipient as the case may be. A composite statement is one form (although the form itself may comprise more than one page) that contains all the requisite Form 1099 information (for the payments enumerated above). A composite statement may contain any combination of the above Form 1099 information. A composite Form 1099 can not be filed with IRS.

SEC. 5. INSTRUCTIONS FOR PREPARING SUBSTITUTE FORMS THAT WILL BE FILED WITH THE IRS

.01 The form recipient's name, street address, city, state, and ZIP code information must be TYPED OR MACHINE PRINTED IN BLACK INK on separate lines. The city, state, and ZIP code must be on the same line.

.02 The box below the form recipient's name and address may be used for the account designation number. This information is not required; however, special caution must be taken if an account designation number is being printed. This number must be unique and MUST NOT appear anywhere on the form other than in the box specified for this use. If window envelopes are used this number must not show through the window because the Postal Service may not accept them for metered mail.

.03 Filers must TYPE OR MACHINE PRINT data entries on the forms, use carbon-base BLACK ribbon, insert data in the middle of blocks well separated from other printing and guidelines, and take other measures to guarantee a clear, dark black, sharp image.

.04 Machine printed forms should be printed using a 6 lines/inch option. The first name line should be typed to the right of the arrow and the first address line should be printed on the fourth line from the arrow. This can be achieved by using double spacing.

.05 Machine printed forms should be printed in 10 pitch (i.e., 10 print characters per inch).

.06 On corrected returns, an "X" must be placed within the check box located at the top of the form to the left of the word "CORRECTED". The accompanying Form 1096 for a submission of corrected returns should also contain an "X" within the "CORRECTED" box at the top of the form following its form identifier number. DO NOT type the words CORRECTED RETURN on the Form 1096, 1098, 1099, 5498 or W-2G as required in the past. All required data blocks must be completed on a corrected return since it replaces and supersedes the information return previously filed.

.07 For corrected or voided documents, enter an "X" within the appropriate box using only computer print, typewriter or #2 pencil. DO NOT use a ball-point pen or felt tip marker. The machine used to "read" paper forms generally cannot "read" these ink types.

.08 Substitute forms prepared in continuous or strip form must be burst and stripped to conform to the size specified for a single sheet before they are filed with IRS. The size specified does not include pinfeed holes. Pinfeed holes MUST NOT be present on forms filed with IRS.

.09 Money amounts should be printed without dollar signs ($), ampersands (&), asterisks (*), commas (,) or other special characters. However, use decimal points to indicate dollars and cents.

.10 DO NOT FOLD Forms 1096, 1098, 1099, or 5498 mailed to IRS. Mail these forms flat in an appropriately sized envelope or box. Folded documents cannot be readily moved through the scanner transport used in IRS processing.

.11 DO NOT STAPLE Forms 1096 to the returns being transmitted. Staple holes in the vicinity of the return code number reduce our ability to machine scan the return code number which is used to identify the type of document being processed.

.12 MAIL completed paper forms addressed in this revenue procedure to the IRS service center specified in the Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498 1096, and W-2G.

.13 Filers who submit privately printed or incorrectly prepared forms and IRS determines they are not acceptable may be subject to penalties under section 6652 of the Internal Revenue code. The penalty is $50 for each form which the IRS cannot accept as a return under the provisions set out in this revenue procedure.

SEC. 6. TAXPAYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBERS

.01 Under section 6109 of the Internal Revenue Code, a person with respect to whom a return, statement, or other document is required to be made by another person must furnish his taxpayer identification number (TIN) to such other person. The number must be furnished to the filer whether or not the form recipient is required to file a tax return or is covered by Social Security. Section 6109 also requires filers to request the TIN's and place them on returns required to be filed with IRS.

.02 Filers must provide correct TIN's on all forms submitted. It is particularly important that correct social security and employer identification numbers for form recipients be provided on magnetic media or paper forms submitted to IRS.

.03 Section 6676 of the Internal Revenue code imposes a $50 penalty on filers for each return filed with an incorrect or missing TIN. For payments of interest and dividends, the penalty is self-assessable on Form 8210, Self-Assessed Penalties Return.

.04 The TIN furnished to IRS depends primarily upon the manner in which the account is maintained in the filer's records. The TIN provided must be that of the owner of record. If an account is recorded as a joint account, i.e., more than one person is listed on the account, furnish the TIN and name of the first person listed on the record. For individuals, the TIN is the SSN (those individuals operating a business as a sole proprietorship may have both an EIN and a SSN). A nonresident alien will generally have a TIN that is similar in format to a SSN. For other entities, it usually is an EIN.

.05 Sole proprietors who are reporting as filers should show their EIN on the return if required to have an EIN. If not, they should show their SSN. However, if the sole proprietor is a form recipient, then the SSN should be used.

.06 The charts below will help you determine the TIN to be furnished to IRS.

SEC. 7. MAGNETIC MEDIA FILING

.01 IRS encourages all filers or nominees (hereafter collectively referred to as filers) to file information returns on magnetic media instead of paper forms. All forms listed in Sec. 1.01 may be filed on magnetic media.

.02 Any person who is required to file more than 50 Forms 1099-DIV (for dividend reportable under section 6042 of the IRC), 1099-INT (except for interest reportable under section 6049), 1099-OID or 1099-PATR in any combination, for a calendar year MUST file these returns on magnetic media. This requirement applies to any person for any period unless such person establishes that this requirement would result in undue hardship and requests a waiver from the filing requirements. To request a waiver from filing on magnetic media, submit a waiver request 90 days before the due date of the return and send it to the following address: Magnetic Media Reporting, Internal Revenue Service, National Computer Center, P.O. Box 1359, Martinsburg, WV 25401-1359. Effective January 1, 1986, all requests for relief should be sent to the National Computer Center address.

.03 Regulations section 1.6045-1(1) requires brokers and barter exchanges to use magnetic media in reporting any Form 1099-B data to IRS. Generally, new brokers and new barter exchanges may request an undue hardship exception by filing a waiver request, by the end of the second month following the month in which they become a broker or barter exchange, with the IRS National Computer Center. Effective January 1, 1986, all requests for relief should be sent to the National Computer Center address.

.04 Regulations section 301.6011-2 requires the use of magnetic media for filing Forms 1098, 1099-A, 1099-G, 1099-MISC, 1099-R, 5498 and W-2G for payments to 500 or more form recipients for any calendar year beginning after December 31, 1985, (250 or more form recipients for any calendar beginning after December 31, 1986). This requirement applies to any person filing after the above stated periods unless such person establishes that this requirement would result in undue hardship. A request for a waiver should be submitted 90 days before the due date of the return and directed to the following address: Magnetic Media Reporting, Internal Revenue Service, National Computer Center, P.O. Box 1359, Martinsburg, WV 25401-1359. Effective January 1, 1986, all requests for relief should be sent to the National Computer Center address.

.05 Specifications for filing information returns on tape, 8 inch and 5¼ inch diskette, cassette or mini-disk are contained in various revenue procedures relating to Requirements and conditions for Filing Information Returns on Magnetic Media. Copies of these procedures may be obtained from any Internal Revenue District office or by contacting the IRS National Computer Center. Filers or agents who are required to, or want to file information returns on magnetic media, must file Form 4419, Application for Magnetic Media Reporting of Information Returns. Forms 4419, must be filed prior to submitting returns on magnetic media. IRS will provide a written reply to the applicant and further instructions at the time of approval. The application must be filed at the following address: Magnetic Media Reporting, Internal Revenue Service, National Computer Center, P.O. Box 1359, Martinsburg, WV 25401-1359. Effective January 1, 1986, the magnetic media program was centralized at the National Computer Center and all applications and information returns filed on magnetic media should be sent to the National Computer Center address in 1986.

.06 Since many states accept information returns filed on magnetic media, savings may be obtained if similar media is used for filing with IRS and state tax agencies. For information regarding state magnetic media filing requirements, filers should contact the respective state tax authority.

SEC. 8. STATEMENT TO FORM RECIPIENTS AND FORM RECIPIENT COPIES

.01 For payments of reportable interest and dividends (reportable on Forms 1099-DIV (for dividends reportable under section 6042 of the IRC), 1099-INT (except for interest reportable under section 6041), 1099-OID or 1099-PATR made in 1984 and subsequent years, an official Form 1099 must be furnished to a form recipient either in a separate first-class mailing or in person. These forms may be mailed or provided to the form recipient with other Forms 1098, 1099 or 5498 form recipient statements, or with Form W-9 and Form W-8 solicitations. However, no other information may be mailed with the form recipient statement or provided in person with the form recipient statement without violating the separate mailing requirements.

.02 The requirement to furnish form recipients with an official form 1099-DIV, INT, OID and PATR, may be met by furnishing a substitute Form 1099 (form recipient copy) if it contains language substantially similar to that of the official form such as the aggregate amount paid to (or received from) the form recipient, any amount of tax withheld under IRC section 3406, the name, address and TIN of the person making the return and any other information required by the official form. Generally, information not required by the official form should not be included on the form because it may violate the separate mailing requirements. In addition, the form recipient copy of interest, dividends, patronage dividends and original issue discount paid to the form recipient must contain the information listed below.

1 All money amounts required to be reported to the form recipient must be titled and numbered on the form recipient copy in substantially the same manner as those of the official form. For instance, dividend income must be labeled as "qualifying" or "not qualifying for exclusion".

2 The form recipient copy must contain all applicable form recipient instructions provided on the official form.

3 Form recipient copies covering reportable interest, dividends, patronage dividends and original issue discount must contain the following statement, in bold and conspicuous type, "This is important tax information and is being furnished to the Internal Revenue Service. If you are required to file a return, a negligence penalty or other sanction will be imposed on you if this income is taxable and IRS determines that it has not been reported."

4 The form recipient copy must contain the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) number prescribed on the official form.

5 The form recipient copy must show the title of the official Form 1099 for which it substitutes.

.03 If the form recipient copy contains all the information listed above, layout and format of the form is at the discretion of the filer.

.04 A composite form recipient copy is permitted for reportable payments of interest, dividends, patronage dividends, and/or original issue discount (Forms 1099-DIV, INT, OID or PATR) when one filer is reporting any or all of these payments during a calendar year to the same form recipient. Although the composite form recipient copy may be on one form, the format of the composite form recipient copy must satisfy the following requirements in addition to the requirements listed in .02 above.

1 All information pertaining to a particular type of payment must be located and blocked together on the form and must be separate from any information covering other types of payments included on the form.

2 The title of the official form or forms for which this form recipient copy substitutes must be shown at the beginning of each appropriate block of information.

3 Any information required by the official form that would otherwise be repeated in each information block is only required to be listed once in the first information block of the composite form. For example, there is no requirement to report the name of the filer in each information block.

.05 Statements to form recipients of other reportable payments on Forms 1098, 1099-A, 1099-B, 1099-G, 1099-MISC (except payments reportable under section 6045), 1099-R, 5498, 1099-DIV (except for payments reportable under section 6047), 1099-INT (for payments reportable under section 6041) and W-2G as cited in Part A, Section 1 should meet the following requirements:

1. The filer and form recipient information required on the statement must be included.

2. All money amounts and information required to be reported to the form recipient must be titled on the form recipient statement in substantially the same manner as those on the official form.

3. Form recipient statements must contain the following statement, "This information is being furnished to the Internal Revenue Service."

4. Appropriate instructions to the form recipient, similar to those on the official form, must be provided to aid in the proper reporting of the items on the form recipients' income tax returns. For payments reported on For 1099-B, the requirement to include on the statement furnished to form recipients instructions that are substantially similar to those on the official form, may be satisfied by providing form recipients with a single set of instructions with respect to all statements required to be furnished in a calendar year.

.06 Statements specified in .05 above, may contain information other than that required by the official form. However, if other information is included, such statments cannot be mailed with Forms 1099-DIV, INT, OID or PATR or their substitutes without violating the separate mailing requirements.

.07 A composite form recipient statement specified in .05 above is permitted when one filer is reporting any or all of these payments during a calendar year to the same form recipient. A composite statement is not allowable for a combination of forms listed in .05 above and forms listed in .04 above. For example, a composite statement of Form 1098 and 1099-INT (for interest reportable under section 6049) is not allowable. Although the composite form recipient copy may be on one form the format of the composite form recipient copy must satisfy the following requirements listed in .05 above.

1. All information pertaining to a particular type payment must be located and blocked together on the form and must be separate from any information covering other types of payments included on the form.

2. The title of the official form or forms for which the form recipient statement substitutes must be shown at the beginning of the appropriate block of information.

3. Any information required by the official form that would otherwise be repeated in each information block is only required to be listed once in the first information block on the composite form. For example, there is no requirement to report the name of the filer in each information block.

PART B—SUBSTITUTE FORM FORMAT REQUIREMENTS (EXCLUDING FORM W-2G)

SEC. 1. GENERAL

.01 The following specifications prescribe the format requirements of Forms 1098 (Copy A), 1099 (Copy A), 5498 (Copy A), and 1096.

.02 The form identifying number (e.g., 9191 for Forms 1099-DIV) must be printed in non-reflective black carbon-based ink in print positions 25 through 29 using an OCR A font. The ballot boxes located to the right of the form identifying number must be 10-point boxes.

Note: If the ballot box is checked indicating a corrected return or a "void" return, more than 50% of the box must be covered by an "X." Do not type "CORRECTED RETURN" on the top of the form. All required data must be completed on the corrected form since it replaces and supersedes the information return previously filed.

SEC. 2. SPECIFICATIONS FOR FORMS 1096, AND COPY A OF FORMS 1098, 1099 AND 5498

.01 The substitute form must be an exact replica of the official reproduction proof with respect to layout and contents. "Spot Carbons" are not permitted for Copy A. The printing of the Government Printing Office (GPO) symbol must be deleted. Specifications for Copy A are provided in Exhibits A thru O.

.02 Color and quality of paper. Paper for Copy A (cut sheets and continuous pinfeed forms) as specified by JCP 0-25, dated November 29, 1978, must be: White 100% bleached chemical wood, optical character recognition (OCR) bond produced in accordance with the following specifications:

NOTE: Reclaimed fiber in any percentage is permitted, provided the requirements of this standard are met.

1	Acidity: pH value, average, not less than	4.5
2	Basis Weight 17 × 22
	500 cut sheets	20
	Metric equivalent—g/m2	75
	A Tolerance of ±5 pct. shall be allowed
3	Stiffness: Average, each direction, not less than—milligrams	50
4	Tearing strength: Average, each direction, not less than—grams	40
5	Opacity: Average, not less than—percent	82
6	Thickness: Average—inch—0.0038
	Metric equivalent—mm—0.097
	A tolerance of +0.0005 inch (0.0127mm) shall be allowed.
	Paper shall not vary more than 0.0004 inch (0.0102 mm) from one edge to the other.
7	Porosity: average, not less than—seconds	10
8	Finish (smoothness): Average, each side—seconds	20-55
	For information only, the Sheffield equivalent—units	170-100
9	Dirt: Average, each side, not to exceed—parts per million	8

.03 All printing will be in maroon OCR dropout ink except for Forms 1096 (see .04 below), as specified, except for the 4-digit form identifying numbers appearing in the upper middle left margin on the official IRS form, which will be printed in nonreflective carbon-based black ink. All other printing will be in maroon OCR dropout ink with or comparable to the specifications below. The screened area of any substitute form should generally correspond to that present on the official form. Separation between fields must be 0.1 inch including screen. The numbered captions are printed as a solid with no screened background. The maroon OCR dropout ink must be Sinclair-Valentine J-31359 or an exact match. Horizontal screening should follow the standard format and allow for typewriter spacing.

OCR Specifications

Contractor must have or initiate a quality control program to assure OCR ink density. In addition he must have at or adjacent to his production area either a MacBeth PCM tester or a Kidder 082A tester in order that testing may be accomplished at regular intervals throughout a shift.

Paper and Ink

Readings will be made when printed on approved 20 lb. White OCR bond with a reflectance of not less than 85%. Black ink used must not have a reflectance greater than 15%. These readings are based on requirements of the "REI Input 80 Model C1 or D" Optical Scanner using Sinclair and Valentine J-31859 Maroon ink or equal.

MacBeth PCM II Tester

The tested Print Contrast Signal (PCS) values when using the McBeth PCM-II tester on the "C" scale must range from .13 minimum to .19 maximum.

Kidder 082A Tester

The tested Print Contrast Signal (PCS) values when using the Kidder 082A tester on the Infra Red (IR) scale must range from .32 minimum to .38 maximum. White calibration disc must be 100%, sensitivity must be set at one (1).

Alternative Tester

If an alternative tester is used it must be approved by Government so that tested (PCS) values can be established with this equipment. Approval may be obtained by writing to the following address:

Commissioner of Internal Revenue
Attn: PM:S:FM:P Room 1237
Al Thoren or Larry Porter
1111 Constitution Avenue N.W.
Washington, DC 20224

Printing exceeding the maximum screen density will cause the forms to be nonprocessable. If this happens the filer will be required to refile on acceptable forms and will be subject to a $50 penalty for each form printed or prepared that is filed in a nonprocessable format.

.04 For Forms 1096, all printing will be in red OCR dropout ink, as specified, except for the 4-digit form identifying number appearing in the upper middle margin on the official IRS form, which will be printed in nonreflective black carbon-based ink. All other printing will be in red OCR dropout ink with or comparable to the specifications below. The screened area of any substitute form should generally correspond to that present on the official form. Separation between fields must be 0.1 inch including screen. Horizontal screening should follow the standard format and allow for typewriter spacing.

The tested Print Contrast Signal (PCS) values when using the MacBeth PCM-II tester on the "C" scale must range from .01 minimum to .06 maximum.

Kidder 082A Tester

The tested Print Contrast Signal (PCS) values when using the Kidder 082A tester on the Infra Red (IR) scale must range from .12 minimum to .21 maximum. White calibration disc must be 100%, sensitivity must be set at one (1).

Alternative Tester

If an alternative tester is used it must be approved by Government so that tested (PCS) values can be established with this equipment. Approval may be obtained by writing to the following address:

Commissioner of Internal Revenue
Attn: PM:S:FM:P Room 1237
Al Thoren or Larry Porter
1111 Constitution Avenue N.W.
Washington, DC 20224

The red OCR dropout ink must be Sinclair-Valentine J-6983 or an exact match.

.05 Typography—Type must be substantially identical in size and shape with corresponding type on the official form. All rules are either 1-point or ½-point. Rules must be identical to that on the official IRS form. NOTE: The form identifying number must be nonreflective carbon-based black ink in OCR A font.

.06 Dimension—Three official Forms 1098, 1099 or 5498 (Copy A) are contained on a single page which is 8 inches wide (exclusive of any snapstubs and/or pinfeed holes) by 11 inches deep. The top margins must be 2/6 inch, and the right margin must be ¼ inch plus or minus .0313 inch. If the right and top margins are properly aligned the left margin for all forms will be correct. All margins must be free of all printing.

.07 The depth of the individual trim size of each form on a page must be the same (3⅔ inches) as that of the official reproduction proof.

.08 Perforations are required between forms on all copies (except Copy A) to enable the separation of individual forms.

.09 The words "For Paperwork Reduction Act Notice and instructions for completing this form, see Instructions for forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096 and W-2G" must be printed on Copy A and Copy C.

.10 The OMB Number must be printed on each ply in the same location as on the official form.

.11 Privately printed continuous substitute forms (Copy A) must be perforated at each 11" (3-on) page depth. No perforations are allowed between the 3⅔" forms on a single copy page of Copy A.

.12 The words "Do NOT cut or Separate forms on This Page" must be printed in maroon dropout ink (as required by form specifications) between the three forms. NOTE: Perforations are required between all of the other individual copies (Copies B and C) included in the set.

.13 The back of a substitute Copy A must be free of all printing.

.14 Carbonized. "Spot carbons" and not permitted for Copy A. Interleaved carbon must be of good quality to assure legibility of information on all parts to preclude smudging and should be black. "Chemical transfer paper" is now permitted (see Section 3.05 of Part A above).

.15 Printer's symbol—The GPO symbol must not be placed on substitute Copy A. In place of the GPO symbol, the employer identification number (EIN) of the forms printer must be printed in the bottom margin on the face of each individual form of Copy A.

.16 In the past, substitute Forms 1098, 1099 and 5498 were approved allowing a black postal indicia box in the nonscanned upper right hand corner of the form. Because of the difficulty IRS has experienced in processing these forms this deviation is NO LONGER ACCEPTABLE. However, you may use a postal indicia if it meets the following cirtiera: a) it is printed in the OCR ink color prescribed for the form; b) no part of the indicia is within 1 print position of the scannable area; c) there is a 2/6 inch head margin; and d) there is a ¼ inch right margin.

PART C. SUBSTITUTE FORM FORMAT REQUIREMENTS FOR FORM W-2G ONLY

SEC. 1. GENERAL

.01 The following specifications prescribe the format requirements of Form W-2G—COPY A ONLY.

.02 A filer may file a substitute Form W-2G with IRS (hereinafter referred to as substitute Copy A). Substitute forms submitted to IRS must be exact replicas of the official forms with respect to layout and contents. The Government Printing Office symbol must be deleted.

SEC. 2. SPECIFICATIONS FOR COPY A FOR FORMS W-2G

.01 Color and Quality of Paper.

1 Paper for Copy A must be white chemical wood bond, or equivalent, 20 pound (basis 17 × 22 — 500), plus or minus 5 percent. The paper must consist of principally bleached chemical woodpulp and be free from unbleached or ground woodpulp or recycled printed paper. It also must be suitably sized to accept ink without feathering.

2 Copies B and C (to be filed with tax return and for Winner's records) and D (For Payer) are provided in the official assembly solely for the convenience of the filer. Filers may choose the format, design, color and quantity of the paper used for these copies.

3 Copies 1 and 2 are provided to file with the state. Some states have requested the addition of these two plys and they have been included solely for the convenience of the filer.

.02 Color and Quality of Ink—All printing must be in a high quality nongloss black ink. Bar codes should be free from picks and voids.

.03 Typography—Type must be substantially identical in size and shape with corresponding type on the official form. All rules on the document are either 1-point (0.015 inch) or 3 point (0.045). Vertical rules must be parallel to the left edge of the document; horizontal rules, parallel to the top edge.

.04 Dimensions—The official form is 8 inches wide × 3⅔ inches deep, exclusive of a ⅔ inch snap stub on the left side of the form. The snap feature is not required on substitutes. The top and right margins must be ¼ inch plus or minus .0313. If the top and right margins are properly aligned the left margin for all forms will be correct. All margins must be free of all printing. If the substitute forms are in continuous or strip form, they must be burst and stripped to conform to the size specified for a single form before they are filed with IRS.

1 The width of a substitute Copy A must be 8 inches. The left margin must be free of all printing other than that shown on the official form.

2 The depth of a substitute Copy A must be 3⅔ inches.

.05 Clear Area—The back of Copy A must be free of all printing.

.06 Carbonized forms or "spot carbons"—Carbonized forms and "spot carbons" are not permitted. Interleaved carbons, if used, must be of good quality to preclude smudging and should be black.

.07 Printer's Symbol—The Government Printing Office symbol must not be printed on substitute Forms W-2G. In place thereof, the printer's employer identification number should appear in the same place on such substitute forms.

PART D. ADDITIONAL INSTRUCTIONS FOR FORMS 1098, 1099, 5498 and W-2G

SEC. 1. OTHER COPIES

.01 Copies 1 and 2, B, C and D for Forms W-2G are included in the official assembly for the convenience of the filer. Although there is no requirement that privately printed substitute forms include these copies, Copy B (and C for Form W-2G) will satisfy the requirement of law and regulations concerning the statement of information that is required to be furnished to the form recipient. Copy C (D for Forms W-2G) may be desired as a filer record copy.

.02 Arrnagement of Assembly—Except as provided in paragraph .03 below, the parts of the assembly shall be arranged, from top to bottom, as follows: Forms 1099 (except 1098, 1099-A, 1099-R, 5498, and W-2G) Copy A (Original), "For Internal Revenue Service Center"; Copy B "For Recipient"; Copy C "For Payer". Form 1098 Copy A (original), "For Internal Revenue Service Center"; Copy B "For Payer"; Copy C "For Recipient". Form 1099-A Copy A (Original), "For Internal Revenue Service Center"; Copy B "For Borrower"; Copy C "For Lender", Form 1099-R Copy A (Original), "For Internal Revenue Service", Copy 1, "For State Tax Department", Copy B, "For Recipient", Copy 2, "To be filed with recipient's state income tax return", Copy C, "For Payer", Form W-2G Copy A (Original), "For Internal Revenue Service Center"; Copy 1, "For state tax department", Copy B and C "For Winner's Records"; Copy 2 "To be filed with winners state income tax returns"; copy D "For Payer"; Form 5498 Copy A (Original), "For Internal Revenue Service Center"; copy B "For Participant"; Copy C "For Trustee or Issuer".

SEC. 2. REPRODUCTION PROOFS

.01 Reproduction Proofs—Order blanks for reproduction proofs are mailed annually to requestors of record, and to other users upon request. Printers and others wishing to obtain reproduction proofs may send their requests to:

Internal Revenue Service
Attn: Distribution Manager
PM:S:FM:P—Room 1528
1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W.
Washington, DC 20224

.02 A charge of $1.00 per printed page will be made for each reproduction proof regardless of page size. Invoices will be made after orders are filled.

SEC. 3. OMB REQUIREMENTS

.01 Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Requirements for Substitute Forms—Pub. L. 96-511 requires: (1) OMB approval of Internal Revenue Service Tax forms, (2) that each form show (in the upper right corner) the OMB approval number and any expiration date (on continuous use forms only), and (3) the form (or its instructions) state why IRS is collecting the information, how we will use it and whether it must be given to us. The official IRS forms will contain this information.

.02 As it applies to substitute Service forms this means:

1 All substitute forms must show the OMB number and any expiration date as it appears on the official IRS form.

2 For Copy A, the OMB number must appear exactly as shown on the official IRS form.

3 For any copy other than Copy A, the OMB number must use one of the following formats:

a OMB No. XXXX-XXXX (preferred) or;

b OMB # XXXX-XXXX

4 You must inform the users of your substitute forms of the reasons for IRS collection, use and requirements, as stated in the instructions for the IRS form.

5 The official OMB approval numbers may be obtained from reproduction proofs, or official IRS printed forms.

SEC. 4. EFFECT ON OTHER REVENUE PROCEDURES

Revenue Procedures 85-25 and 85-52 are superseded.

Paperwork Reduction Act Notice

We ask for this information to carry out the Internal Revenue laws of the United States. We need it to ensure that taxpayers are complying with these laws and to allow us to figure and collect the right amount of tax. You are required to give us this information.

Instructions

Changes You Should Note.—If you have received a preprinted label from IRS, place it in the name and address area of the form using the brackets as indicators. Make any necessary corrections on the label.

Do not mark in the boxes at the bottom of this page. The boxes are for use by Internal Revenue Service only.

For 1986 and later years, transmit Forms W-2G and 1099-R to IRS with Form 1096.

The box for the number of forms without TINs has been eliminated. In Box 4, enter the total Federal income tax withheld as shown on Forms 1099 or W-2G filed with this Form 1096.

Purpose of Form.—Use this form to transmit Forms W-2G, 1098, 1099, and 5498 to the Internal Revenue Service.

Completing Form 1096.—If you are not using a preprinted label, enter the filer's name, address, and taxpayer identification number (TIN) in the spaces provided on the form. A filer includes a payer, a recipient of mortgage interest payments, a broker, a barter exchange, a trustee or issuer of an individual retirement arrangement (including an IRA, SEP, or DEC), and a lender who acquires an interest in secured property or who has reason to know that the property has been abandoned. Individuals not in a trade or business should enter their social security number in Box 2; sole proprietors and all others should enter their employer identification number in Box 1. However, sole proprietors who are not required to have an employer identification number should enter their social security number in Box 2.

Group the forms by form number and submit each group with a separate Form 1096. For example, if you must file both Forms 1099-DIV and Forms 1099-INT, complete one Form 1096 to transmit your Forms 1099-DIV and another Form 1096 to transmit your Forms 1099-INT.

In Box 3, enter the number of forms you are transmitting with this Form 1096. Do not include blank or voided forms in your total. Enter the number of correctly completed forms, not the number of pages, being transmitted. For example, if you send one page of three-to-a-page Forms 5498 with a Form 1096 and you have correctly completed two Forms 5498 on that page, enter 2 in Box 3 of Form 1096. Check the appropriate box to indicate the type of form you are transmitting.

If you are transmitting forms that include TINs and others with no TINs, you may submit them with one Form 1096, as long as they are all the same form number. Show the total number of documents being transmitted in Box 3.

If you are filing a Form 1096 for corrected information returns, mark over the "X" in the CORRECTED box at the top of this form.

For more information about filing, see the separate Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W-2G.

Form W-2G Department of the Treasury - Internal Revenue Service

26 CFR 601.602: Tax forms and instructions.
(Also Part I, Section 6011, 301.6011-2.)

Rev. Proc. 86-31

SECTION 1. PURPOSE

.01 The purpose of this revenue procedure is to provide guidance to filers of certain information returns about the procedures for requesting approval for filing such information returns on a particular form of magnetic medium, or for requesting a waiver of the magnetic media filing requirements of section 6011(e) of the Internal Revenue Code and section 1.6045-1(l) of the Income Tax Regulations.

.02 Magnetic media reporting is required for the following forms: Form W-2, Wage and Tax Statement; Form W-2P, Statement for Recipients of Annuities, Pensions, Retired Pay, or IRA Payments; Form W-2G, Statement for Recipients of Certain Gambling Winnings; Form 1099 Series, Information Returns; Form 1042S, Foreign Person's US Source Income Subject to Withholding; Form 1098, Mortgage Interest Statement; Form 5498, Individual Retirement Arrangement Information; Form 6248, Annual Information Return of Windfall Profit Tax; and Form 8027, Employer's Annual Information Return on Tip Income and Allocated Tips.

SEC. 2. BACKGROUND

.01 Section 6011(e) of the Code provides that the Secretary may prescribe regulations setting forth standards for determining which returns must be filed on magnetic media.

.02 Under section 6011(e)(2)(A) of the Code and section 301.6011-2(c)(2) of the Regulations on Procedure and Administration, effective for payments made after December 31, 1983, any payor of interest, dividends, or patronage dividends that is required to file returns under sections 6042(a), 6044(a), or 6049(a) must use magnetic media if the payor has more than 50 returns for any calendar year.

.03 Under section 1.6045-1(l)(1) of the regulations, in general, a broker or barter exchange required to file information returns must file such returns on magnetic media. Under section 1.6045(l)(2), the Commissioner may waive the magnetic media requirements upon a written showing of hardship by the filer.

.04 Under section 301.6011-2(c)(1)(i) of the regulations, effective for returns filed after December 31, 1986, a person that is required to make a return of information on a particular type of form specified in section 301.6011-2(b) (other than Forms 1099-INT, 1099-DIV, 1099-PATR, or 1099-OID) must submit such information on magnetic media if:

(A) in the case of calendar year 1986,

(1) the person reasonably expected on the first day of such year to file 500 or more return son such form, or

(2) the person was required to file 500 or more returns on such form for the 1985 calendar year, or

(B) in the case of a calendar year beginning on or after January 1, 1987,

(1) the person reasonably expects on the first day of such year to file 250 or more returns on such form, or

(2) the person was required to file 250 or more returns on such form for the preceding year.

.05 As is more fully explained in Sections 3 and 4 below, under section 301.6011-2(b) of the regulations, magnetic media filers are required to obtain prior approval from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) or the Social Security Administration (SSA) of the medium used to report the information.

.06 Under section 301.6011-2(c)(4) of the regulations, the Commissioner may waive the magnetic media requirements upon a written showing of hardship by the filer. In determining whether hardship has been shown, the principal factor to be taken into account is the amount, if any, by which the cost of filing returns using magnetic media exceeds the cost of filing returns on paper forms. Except in the case of returns on Forms W-2 and W-2P for 1986 or 1987 (which are filed in 1987 and 1988, respectively), a request for waiver msut be filed at least 90 days before the filing of the first return for which a waiver is requested. In the case of 1987 returns on Forms W-2 and W-2P filed in 1988, a request for waiver must be filed on or before June 30, 1987. In the case of 1986 returns on Forms W-2 or W-2P filed in 1987, under the current regulations, a request for waiver must be filed on or before June 30, 1986; however, on June 18, 1986, the IRS announced that the regulations would be amended to permit requests for waiver to be filed on or before July 31, 1986, in the case of 1986 returns on Forms W-2 and W-2P filed in 1987.

.07 There may be situations in which the filer is seeking approval for filing on a particular form of magnetic medium for some forms and requesting a waiver from filing on magnetic media for other forms, or the filer may be unsure whether its mangetic medium is compatible with the IRS's or with the SSA's systems, or whether its waiver request will be granted. In such cases, because applications for approval of the filer's particular form of magnetic medium are due at the same time as requests for waivers from filing, certain filers may seek approval or waiver, as alternatives, by filing a single application. Filers must follow procedures outlined in Sections 3 and 4 below.

SEC. 3. APPLICATION FOR MAGENTIC MEDIA REPORTING AND REQUESTS FOR UNDUE HARDSHIP WAIVERS

CONSENTS

.01 All filers of information returns, other than Forms W-2 and W-2P, must obtain approval of their magnetic medium from the IRS before their first filing on magnetic media by submitting form 4419, Application for Magnetic Media Reporting of Information Returns, to the address listed in Section 3.05 below, at least 90 days before filing the return.

.02 The IRS will review Form 4419 and, if acceptable, will send an authorization letter within 30 days. Do not submit magnetic media until the IRS sends authorization to do so.

.03 Requests for consent to file Forms W-2 and W-2P on magnetic media must be submitted to the SSA. See Section 4 for additional information.

WAIVER REQUESTS

.04 Generally, all waiver requests, including requests for waiver from filing Forms W-2 and W-2P on magnetic media, must be sent by the filer to the IRS. However, if, in a single application with the SSA, the filer is submitting a request to file Forms W-2 and W-2P on a particular form of magnetic medium and, alternatively, seeking a waiver from the magnetic media filing requirements in the event approval is not granted, the SSA will forward the waiver request to the IRS. See Section 4 below.

.05 Effective January 1, 1986, magnetic media processing for all the IRS service centers was centralized at the national Computer Center. Forms 4419 and waiver requests should be directed to the following address:

Magnetic Media Reporting
Internal Revenue Service
National Computer Center
P.O. Box 1359
Martinsburg, WV 25401-1359

.06 Filers must submit a written statement requesting a waiver for a specific period, not to exceed one year. Waivers are granted on a case-by-case basis, and filers may not apply for a waiver for more than one year at a time. Separate waiver requests must be filed for each type of form. Form 8508, Request for Waiver From Filing Information Returns on Magnetic Media, may be used for this purpose. If it is not used, a written statement shoudl be filed containing the following information:

(a) The filer's name and address.

(b) The filer's taxpayer identification number.

(c) The tax year for which the waiver is requested.

(d) The name and telephone number of a person to contact who is familiar with the information contained in the waiver request.

(e) The form number for which the waiver is requested.

(f) The type and expected volume of each return for the tax year for which a waiver is requested and the number and type of returns to be filed on magnetic media, if any.

(g) If the filer does not currently have a magnetic media system, a cost analysis that shows the cost to convert from the filer's current paper system to a magnetic media system compatible with the IRS's or SSA's systems. Specify the type of magnetic medium considered, such as tape, cartridge, cassette, mini-disk or diskette, and

(1) a copy of a written cost estimate for magnetic media filing from two service bureaus, or

(2) written statements from at least two service bureaus indicating that they will not handle the volume of documents required by the filer.

(h) If the filer has a magnetic media system that is incompatible with the IRS's or SSA's system, or is currently in the process of installing a magnetic media system:

(1) a firm date by which the filer's system will be capable of providing a form of magnetic medium that is compatible, or

(2) a written commitment of a date from a service bureau that will convert the returns to magnetic media.

(i) In the case of Form W-2 filers, the number of permanent employees for whom Forms W-2 will be filed and the total number of employees, if different, for whom Forms W-2 will be filed.

.07 The waiver request must contain the following statement signed by a responsible person who is duly authorized to make and sign a return, statement, or other document:

> "Under penalties of perjury, I declare that I have examined this request, including accompanying documents, and to the best of my knowledge and belief the facts presented in support of this request are true, correct and complete."

.08 The IRS will notify the filer whether the request is granted or denied.

.09 With respect to returns filed on forms other than Forms W-2 and W-2P, if the filer is seeking, in a single application, approval for filing the returns on a particular form of magnetic medium and alternatively, a waiver from the magnetic media filing requirements if approval is not granted, Forms 4419 and 8508 (or a written request) should both be submitted to the IRS.

SEC. 4. PROCEDURES FOR CONSENTS/WAIVERS FOR WAGE AND PENSION INFORMATION

.01 Forms W-2 and W-2P must be filed with the SSA. The SSA will accept magnetic media filing for forms W-2 and W-2P and has issued the following Specification booklets: TIB-4a, "Magnetic Tape Reporting, Submitting FICA Wage and Tax Data to the Social Security Administration," TIB-4b, "Magnetic Tape Reporting, Submitting Annuity, Pension, Retired Pay or IRA Payment to the Social Security Administration," and TIB-4c, "Diskette Reporting, Submitting FICA Wage and Tax Data to the Social Security Administration." all filers must obtain approval of their magnetic medium before their first filing on magnetic media by submitting an SSA authorization request. The authorization request forms appear in TIBs-4a, 4b, and 4c. Copies of these publications are available from the SSA Regional Magnetic Media Coordinators. Filers must send authorization requests to:

Social Security Administration
P.O. Box 2317
Baltimore, MD 21203
Attn: Magnetic Media Group

.02 Upon receipt of the authorization request, the SSA will review the application and notify the filer in writing within 30 days whether its particular form of magnetic medium has been approved. In no event should a report be submitted before the SSA has approved the authorization.

.03 If the filer is seeking approval for filing on a particular form of magnetic medium and alternatively, requesting a waiver from the magnetic media filing requirements in a single application, Form 8508 (or a written waiver request) should be submitted with the authorization request. The SSA will forward the waiver request to the IRS for its consideration.

.04 A filer may submit form 8508 (or a written waiver request) directly to the IRS.

.05 Under the current regulations, the authorization request and/or the waiver request must be filed with the appropriate agency on or before June 30, 1986, in the case of 1986 Forms W-2 and W-2P to be filed in 1987; however, on June 18, 1986, the IRS announced that the regulations would be amended to permit authorization requests and/or waiver requests to be filed on or before July 31, 1986, in the case of 1986 returns on Forms W-2 and W-2P filed in 1987. The authorization request and/or the waiver request must be filed on or beofre June 30, 1987, in the case of the 1987 Forms W-2 and W-2P to be filed in 1988.

SEC. 5 APPLICABLE PENALTIES

If a filer fails to file on magnetic media when required to do so, and has not received a waiver from the filing requirements, the filer is subject to the penalties for failure to file a return under sections 6652 and 6693.

SEC. 6. EFFECTIVE DATE

This revenue procedure is effective June 18, 1986, for returns filed after December 31, 1986.

Instructions for Form 4419

File Form 4419 to request authorization to file any of the forms shown in Block 5 on magnetic media. Please be sure to complete all appropriate blocks. For further information, contact a magnetic media coordinator at the National Computer Center address given below under "Filing Your Application," or by telephone at (304) 263-8700.

Block 1

Enter the name and complete address of the person or organization that will prepare and submit the magnetic media.

Block 4

Show the tax year for which you are requesting authorization to file on magnetic media.

Block 5

Check the boxes next to all of the returns you will file with IRS on magnetic media.

Block 6

Note: The only type of magnetic media on which you can report Forms 1042-S, 6248, 8027 and W-4 is 1/2 inch magnetic tape.

Enter the information requested for the type of magnetic media you intend to submit. Check the appropriate boxes. Enter the name of the manufacturer and the model number or name under "Main Frame" and "Drive Unit." Under "Software," indicate whether the software was purchased or is self-programmed. If purchased, provide the name of the software company.

Block 7

If you will be preparing returns on magnetic media for filers other than yourself, attach to your application a list of names and employer identification numbers of the other filers. If you add or delete any names from your file, submit an updated list to IRS.

Block 8

The form must be signed and dated by an official of the company or organization requesting authorization to report on magnetic media.

Filing Your Application

1. Mail the completed application and any attached lists 90 days before the due date of the returns to:

If by Postal Service,
Magnetic Media Reporting
Internal Revenue Service
National Computer Center
P.O. Box 1359
Martinsburg, WV 25401-1359

If by truck or air freight,
Magnetic Media Reporting
Internal Revenue Service
National Computer Center
Route 9 and Needy Road
Martinsburg, WV 25401

2. IRS will approve or disapprove your application within 30 days of its receipt. Do not submit magnetic media until you receive an authorization letter.

3. After authorization is received, we encourage new filers to submit test data on magnetic media before the filing season. If you want to submit test data, contact the magnetic media coordinator.

4. Your authorization will be valid as long as the magnetic media submitted conforms to the specifications of the applicable revenue procedures. A new application is not required in following years unless magnetic media filing has been discontinued and you wish to resume it.

PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT NOTICE

We ask for this information to carry out the Internal Revenue laws of the United States. We need it to ensure that the magnetic media you are using will be compatible with our processing equipment. The information is also used to more efficiently schedule and manage its processing at the National Computer Center. You are required to give us this information.

Part IV. Items of General Interest

Revision of Form 56, Notice Concerning Fiduciary Relationship

Announcement 86-78

Form 56, Notice Concerning Fiduciary Relationship, has been revised to incorporate the notice requirements for qualification as executor or receiver under section 6036 of the Internal Revenue Code.

Every receiver, trustee in a bankruptcy case, assignee for the benefit of creditors, other fiduciary, or executor can now use Form 56 to notify IRS that a fiduciary relationship has been created or terminated.

The revised form also includes a new part that constitutes the notice of revocation or termination required by section 6903 of the Internal Revenue Code.

Form 56 (Rev. April, 1986) will be available in many Internal Revenue Service offices beginning July 1986. If the form is not available in your Internal Revenue Servie office, it may be ordered by calling the tax information number in the phone book listed under "United States Government, Internal Revenue Service."

Revision of Form 926, Return by a Transferor of Property to a Foreign Corporation, Foreign Estate or Trust, or Foreign Partnership.

Announcement 86-79

Form 926, Return by a Transferor of Property to a Foreign Corporation, Foreign Estate or Trust, or Foreign Partnership, has been revised to reflect the provisions of Temporary regulations section 1.6038B-1T. The regulations, which were published in the Federal Register on May 16, 1986, provide that a U.S. person who tranfers property to a foreign corporation under section 367, or who elects to apply the principles of section 367 to a transfer, must furnish information about the transfer to the Internal Revenue Service. The form will continue to be used to report transfers of property to foreign entities and to pay any excise tax due under section 1491.

The information that must be provided includes: identifying information about the transferor and the transferee, a description of the property transferred, the amount of consideration received, and a description of how the property will be used in the transferee's trade or business.

The information must be attached to Form 926 and filed with the transferor's income tax return. Taxpayers who made such transfers after 1984 and before June 16, 1986, have until the later of September 16, 1986, or when their income tax returns are due to file Form 926 and the required information. Taxpayers who are not filing section 6038B information (and Form 926) with their income tax returns should file Form 926 and the required information with the service center where they file their income tax returns.

Form 926 (Rev. May 1986) will be available at IRS distribution centers by July 15, 1986. The instructions for the form provide more information on this new use of Form 926.

Correction to Publication 509 (Rev. 10-85)

Announcement 86-80

Publication 509, Tax Calendars for 1986, contains an error on page 5. The following correction should be made.

In the third column on page 5, the last entry under the date "August 11" should be placed under the date of August 12. This entry, titled "Social security and withheld income tax," states "Deposit the tax for the period ending August 7, if $3,000 or more."

Publication 597, Information on the United States—Canada Income Tax Treaty, has been Revised

Announcement 86-81

Publication 597, Information on the United States—Canada Income Tax Treaty (revised March 1986), is now available. The publication contains an explanatory discussion, as well as the full text, of the new U.S.—Canada income tax treaty, which is generally effective for tax years beginning after 1984. (For taxes withheld at the source on dividends, interest, royalties, and pensions, the new treaty is effective beginning October 1, 1984. Overall, wherever any greater relief from tax would be provided by the old U.S.—Canada treaty, that treaty continued to have effect for the first tax year beginning in 1985.) The explanatory text is directed primarily to individual U.S. citizens and residents who receive Canadian sourced income.

New Financial Products

Announcement 86-82[1]

The Office of Chief Counsel is in the process of developing a program to identify and analyze new financial products that are being created and sold to investors in public offerings. The Office believes that early identification and analysis of these new products will be useful to the Office in fulfilling its mission of providing guidance to taxpayers concerning the tax consequences of their transactions through the issuance of revenue rulings and regulations.

To assist the Office in identifying and analyzing new financial products as they emerge in the marketplace, the Office encourages taxpayers and tax practitioners to submit to the Office prospectuses and/or other written descriptions of current investment transactions. The individual submitting information is encouraged to point out the tax issues he or she believes are presented by the transaction, as well as any other facts known to the individual concerning market reaction to the product or concerning the underlying financial or tax considerations relevant to its creation or marketability. If after reviewing such submission, the Office determines that additional information or futher clarification of the facts may be helpful in understanding a particular transaction, the Office may contact the sender and request that such additional information or clarification be provided in writing or at a personal meeting. Submissions should be sent to Peter K. Scott, Associate Chief Counsel (Technical), Attention CC:I, Room 4008, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20224.

Banks, brokers, and other middlemen who report discount on Treasury bill redemptions on Form 1099-INT must use the owner's purchase price, where available, to determine the amount of discount to report. Usually this information can be obtained from the owner's or middleman's records. However, if the owner's purchase price is not available from existing records, the middleman must report the discount as if the holder had purchased the Treasury bill at its original issue price. In this case, the middleman must use as the original issue price the noncompetitive issue price for the longest-maturity Treasury bill maturing on that date.

For Treasury bill redemptions in cases where the owner's purchase price cannot be determined, a list of the noncompetitive issue prices and corresponding amounts of discount to be reported on Form 1099-INT for Treasury bills maturing in 1986 appears below. This list, which should also help middlemen determine any amounts subject to backup withholding, supplements the list that appears in Publication 1212, List of Original Issue Discount Instruments (Rev. Dec. 1985) and Announcement 86-7, 1986-4 I.R.B. 67.

Announcement of the Disbarment, Suspension, or Consent to Voluntary Suspension of Attorneys, Certified Public Accountants, Enrolled Agents and Enrolled Actuaries from Practice Before the Internal Revenue Service

Under 31 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 10, an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, in order to avoid the institution or conclusion of a proceeding for his disbarment or suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, may offer his consent to suspension from such practice. The Director of Practice, in his discretion, may suspend an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary in accordance with the consent offered.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents, and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify practitioners under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and addresses of practitioners who have been suspended from such practice, their designation as attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date or period of suspension. This announcement will appear in the weekly Bulletin at the earliest practicable date after such action and will continue to appear in the weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks or for as many weeks as is practicable for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

The following individuals have been placed under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Mack T. Frank	Eunice, LA	Attorney	Indefinite from April 1, 1986
Carl Goldfarb	Charlotte, NC	Attorney	Indefinite from April 28, 1986
Dennis M. Hayes	Ann Arbor, MI	Attorney	Indefinnite from April 15, 1986
Ronald N. Kief	Warren, MI	Certified Public Accountant	Two Years from June 1, 1986
Richard L. Leopold	Ottawa, OH	Attorney	Three Months from May 1, 1986
Julius Stackel	Flushing, NY	Certified Public Accountant	Thirty Months from April 15, 1986
John Such	Lyndhurst, OH	Enrolled Agent	Eighteen Months from April 22, 1986

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Henry L. Creel	Cleveland, OH	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from May 15, 1986
J. Thomas Jones	Augusta, GA	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from June 1, 1986
Michael D. Sherman	Pound Ridge, NY	Enrolled Agent	Indefinite from May 27, 1986

Under Section 330, Title 31 of the United States Code (1970 ed.), the Secretary of the Treasury, after due notice and opportunity for hearing, is authorized to suspend or disbar from practice before the Internal Revenue Service any attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent, or enrolled actuary who has violated the rules and regulations governing such practice.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify such disbarred or suspended practitioners, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and address of practitioners who have been disbarred or suspended from such practice, their designation as attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolld actuary, and the date of disbarment or period of suspension. This announcement will continue to appear in the Weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended or disbarred and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

After due notice and opportunity for hearing, the following individual has been disbarred from further practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Effective Date
Earl M. Walker	Port Neches, TX	Certified Public Accountant	May 19, 1986

Announcement Relating to Proposed Regulations Published With Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Changes in regulations as announced below have been published in the Federal Register in tentative or proposed form to provide interested parties with an opportunity to file their objections or suggestions for consideration prior to final adoption of such regulations. These announcements will appear in the Bulletin during the period which has been prescribed for the submission and consideration of any views, arguments, or suggestions pertaining to the proposed regulations so published. Definition of Terms

Revenue rulings and revenue procedures (hereinafter referred to as "rulings") that have an effect on previous rulings use the following defined terms to describe the effect:

Amplified describes a situation where no change is being made in a prior published position, but the prior position is being extended to apply to a variation of the fact situation set forth therein. Thus, if an earlier ruling held that a principle applied to A, and the new ruling holds that the same principle also applies to B, the earlier ruling is amplified. (Compare with modified, below).

Clarified is used in those instances where the language in a prior ruling is being made clear because the language has caused, or may cause, some confusion. It is not used where a position in a prior ruling is being changed.

Distinguished describes a situation where a ruling mentions a previously published ruling and points out an essential difference between them.

Modified is used where the substance of a previously published position is being changed. Thus, if a prior ruling held that a principle applied to A but not to B, and the new ruling holds that it applies to both A and B, the prior ruling is modified because it corrects a published position. (Compare with amplified and clarified, above).

Obsoleted describes a previously published ruling that is not considered determinative with respect to future transactions. This term is most commonly used in a ruling that lists previously published rulings that are obsoleted because of changes in law or regulations. A ruling may also be obsoleted because the substance has been included in regulations subsequently adopted.

Revoked describes situations where the position in the previously published ruling is not correct and the correct position is being stated in the new ruling.

Superseded describes a situation where the new ruling does nothing more than restate the substance and situation of a previously published ruling (or rulings). Thus, the term is used to republish under the 1954 Code and regulations the same position published under the 1939 Code and regulations. The term is also used when it is desired to republish in a single ruling a series of situations, names, etc., that were previously published over a period of time in separate rulings. If the new ruling does more than restate the substance of a prior ruling, a combination of terms is used. For example, modified and superseded describes a situation where the substance of a previously published ruling is being changed in part and is continued without change in part and it is desired to restate the valid portion of the previously published ruling in a new ruling that is self contained. In this case the previously published ruling is first modified and then, as modified, is superseded.

Supplemented is used in situations in which a list, such as a list of the names of countries, is published in a ruling and that list is expanded by adding further names in subsequent rulings. After the original ruling has been supplemented several times, a new ruling may be published that includes the list in the original ruling and the additions, and supersedes all prior rulings in the series.

Suspended is used in rare situations to show that the previous published rulings will not be applied pending some future action such as the issuance of new or amended regulations, the outcome of cases in litigation, or the outcome of a Service study.

INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

The Introduction on page 3 describes the purpose and content of this publication. The weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin is sold on a yearly subscription basis by the Superintendent of Documents. Current subscribers are notified by the Superintendent of Documents when their subscriptions must be renewed.

CUMULATIVE BULLETINS

The contents of the weekly Bulletin are consolidated semiannually into a permanent, indexed, Cumulative Bulletin. These are sold on a single copy basis and are not included as part of the subscription to the Internal Revenue Bulletin. Subscribers to the weekly Bulletin are notified when copies of the Cumulative Bulletin are available. Certain issues of Cumulative Bulletins are out of print and are not available. Persons desiring available Cumulative Bulletins, which are listed on the reverse, may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents.

BULLETIN INDEX-DIGEST SYSTEM

The Bulletin Index-Digest System provides a fast and easy way to research Revenue Rulings, Revenue Procedures, Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and other matters of a permanent nature published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin, or Cumulative Bulletin from 1953 on. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date research tool that requires no filing or other clerical maintenance. The current revision consists of four Services, available on a subscription basis, each including a basic volume that covers the period 1953-1983/1984 and a cumulative supplement covering material published in subsequent Bulletins for the following two-year period. Cumulative supplements are issued quarterly for the Income Tax Service and semiannually for the Estate and Gift, Employment, and Excise Tax Service.

HOW TO ORDER

Check the publications and/or subscription(s) desired on the reverse, complete the order blank, enclose the proper remittance, detach entire page, and mail to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Please allow two to six weeks, plus mailing time, for delivery.

Department of the Treasury
Internal Revenue Service

T22.23:

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing our Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing our Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

Introduction

The Internal Revenue Bulletin is the authoritative instrument of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for announcing official rulings and procedures of the Internal Revenue Service and for publishing Treasury Decisions, Executive Orders, Tax Conventions, legislation, court decisions, and other items of general interest. It is published weekly and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. Bulletin contents of a permanent nature are consolidated semiannually into Cumulative Bulletins, which are sold on a single-copy basis.

It is the policy of the Service to publish in the Bulletin all substantive rulings necessary to promote a uniform application of the tax laws, including all rulings that supersede, revoke, modify, or amend any of those previously published in the Bulletin. All published rulings apply retroactively unless otherwise indicated. Procedures relating solely to matters of internal management are not published; however, statements of internal practices and procedures that affect the rights and duties of taxpayers are published.

Revenue rulings represent the conclusions of the Service on the application of the law to the pivotal facts stated in the revenue ruling. In those based on positions taken in rulings to taxpayers or technical advice to Service field offices, identifying details and information of a confidential nature are deleted to prevent unwarranted invasions of privacy and to comply with statutory requirements.

Rulings and procedures reported in the Bulletin do not have the force and effect of Treasury Department Regulations, but they may be used as precedents. Unpublished rulings will not be relied on, used, or cited as precedents by Service personnel in the disposition of other cases. In applying published rulings and procedures, the effect of subsequent legislation, regulations, court decisions, rulings, and procedures must be considered, and Service personnel and others concerned are cautioned against reaching the same conclusions in other cases unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same.

The Bulletin is divided into four parts as follows:

Part I.—1954 Code.

This part includes rulings and decisions based on provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Part II.—Treaties and Tax Legislation.

This part is divided into two subparts as follows: Subpart A, Tax Conventions, and Subpart B, Legislation and Related Committee Reports.

Part III.—Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous.

To the extent practicable, pertinent cross references to these subjects are contained in the other Parts and Subparts.

Part IV.—Items of General Interest.

With the exception of the disbarment and suspension list included in this part, none of these announcements is consolidated in the Cumulative Bulletins.

The first Bulletin for each month includes an index for the matters published during the preceding month. These monthly indexes are cumulated on a quarterly and semiannual basis, and are published in the first Bulletin of the succeeding quarterly and semi-annual period, respectively.

The Bulletin Index-Digest System, a research and reference service supplementing the Bulletin, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. It consists of four Services: Service No. 1, Income Tax; Service No. 2, Estate and Gift Taxes; Service No. 3, Employment Taxes; Service No. 4, Excise Taxes. Each Service consists of a basic volume and a cumulative supplement that provide (1) finding lists of items published in the Bulletin, (2) digests of revenue rulings, revenue procedures, and other published items, and (3) indexes of Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and Tax Conventions.

The contents of this publication are not copyrighted and may be reprinted freely. A citation of the Internal Revenue Bulletin as the source would be appropriate.

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Prices: Domestic—$1.75 a single copy, $82.00 a year subscription. Foreign—$2.19 a single copy, $102.50 a year for subscription.

Cumulative List of Announcements Relating to Decisions of the Tax Court Published in the Internal Revenue Bulletin from January 1, 1986 thru June 30, 1986

It is the policy of the Internal Revenue Service to announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin at the earliest practicable date the determination of the Commissioner to acquiesce or not acquiesce in a decision of the Tax Court which disallows a deficiency in tax determined by the Commissioner to be due.

Notice that the Commissioner has acquiesced or nonacquiesced in a decision of the Tax Court relates only to the issue or issues decided adversely to the Government.

Actions of acquiescences in adverse decisions shall be relied on by Revenue officers and others concerned as conclusions of the Service only to the application of the law to the facts in the particular case. Caution should be exercised in extending the application of the decision to a similar case unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same, and consideration should be given to the effect of new legislation, regulations, and rulings as well as subsequent court decisions and actions thereon.

Acquiescence in a decision means acceptance by the Service of the conclusion reached, and does not necessarily mean acceptance and approval of any or all of the reasons assigned by the court for its conclusions.

No announcements are made in the Bulletin with respect to memorandum opinions of the Tax Court.

The announcements published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletins are consolidated semiannually and annually. The semiannual consolidation appears in the first Bulletin for July and in the Cumulative Bulletin for the first half of the year and the annual consolidation appears in the first Bulletin for the following January and in the Cumulative Bulletin for the last half of the year.

[1] Acquiescence relating to whether the rental income received by petitioner from the lease of real estate and trucks to a brother-sister corporation, which is also 100 percent owned by petitioner's sole shareholder, constitutes an amount received as compensation for the right to use corporate property by a shareholder under section 543(a)(6) of the Code.

[2] Acquiescence relating to whether Orem State Bank is entitled to deduct accrued but unpaid business liabilities on its final corporate income tax return.

[3] Acquiescence in the issues relating to (1) whether petitioners must report as ordinary trade or business income, the gain on the sale of a thoroughbred colt which was 16½ months old, and (2) what portion, if any, of the purchase price of a mare in foal must be allocated to the foal. See Rev. Rul. 86–24, 1986–8 I.R.B. 7.

[4] Acquiescence relating to whether petitioner, a multifaceted cultural arts and educational organization, operates two art galleries to exhibit and sell the original works of individual artists, whether these operations disqualify petitioner as an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Code because operated for a substantial commercial purpose or to serve the private interests of the artists.

[5] Acquiescence relating to whether petitioner's transfer of an undivided one-half interest in ranchland to his former wife, pursuant to a property settlement agreement executed in connection with their divorce, constitutes a taxable disposition.

[6] Acquiescence relating to whether the fair rental value of lodging furnished to petitioners by their employer, the Forest Preserve District of Cook County, Illinois, is excludable from gross income under section 119 of the Code.

[7] Acquiescence relating to whether a foreign death tax credit under section 2014 of the Code is allowable when the estate of a U.S. citizen, resident of a foreign country, pays death taxes to that foreign country attributable to a bank account located in that foreign country.

[8] Acquiescence relating to whether, upon selling the stock of its subsidiaries, the petitioner must reduce its basis in that stock by the excess of accelerated over straight-line depreciation.

[9] Nonacquiescence relating to whether, for purposes of testing the coverage requirements of section 410(b)(1) of the Code, employees of two controlled corporations must be aggregated with the controlling corporation pursuant to section 414(c), when the controlled corporations are suffering substantial financial losses.

TITLE 26—INTERNAL REVENUE.—CHAPTER 1, SUBCHAPTER A, PART I—INCOME TAX; TAXABLE YEARS BEGINNING AFTER DECEMBER 31, 1953; PART 602—OMB CONTROL NUMBERS UNDER THE PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT

Possessions Tax Credit: Definition of Product, Significant Business Presence Test, and Cost Sharing and Profit Split Elections

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Final regulations.

SUMMARY: This document contains final regulations relating to the possessions tax credit. The regulations provide rules for determining whether a possessions corporation has a significant business presence with respect to a product. These regulations also provide rules which implement the cost sharing and profit split elections. This action is necessary because of changes to the applicable tax law made by the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 [Pub. L. 97-248, 1982-2 C.B. 462].

DATES: The amendments are effective for taxable years of possessions corporations beginning on or after January 1, 1983.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

On January 10, 1984, the FEDERAL REGISTER published proposed amendments to the Income Tax Regulations (26 CFR Part 1) under section 936(h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (49 F.R. 1227) [1984-1 C.B. 733]. The amendments were proposed to conform the regulations to changes made to the Internal Revenue Code by section 213 of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (the Act) (Pub.L. 97-248, 96 Stat. 452) [1982-2 C.B. 462, 486]. A public hearing was held on April 3, 1984. After consideration of all comments received regarding the proposed amendments, those amendments are adopted as revised by this Treasury decision.

DISCUSSION OF COMMENTS AND REVISED AMENDMENTS

Section 1.936-4

Intangible Property Income in the Absence of an Election out

Commenter suggested that in situations in which there is no intangible property income, a taxpayer should not be limited in computing its taxable income to cost sharing, profit split or the method under section 936(h)(1) to (h)(3). It was decided, in situations in which there is no intangible property income, to permit a taxpayer to compute its income using the appropriate method as provided under section 482 and the regulations thereunder.

Commenter suggested that the covered intangible exception should apply not only if cost sharing is elected, but also in the absence of an election out. The suggestion was rejected because there is no statutory support for permitting the covered intangible exception if the taxpayer elects to compute its income under section 936(h)(1) to (h)(3). The covered intangible exception is permitted under section 936(h)(5)(c)(i)(II), a provision dealing only with the cost sharing election.

Section 1.936-5(a)

Definition of the Term "Product"

Commenters suggested that the term "product" not be defined by means of the phrase "manufacturing process" because of possible confusion with the section 954(d)(1)(A) definition of manufacturing. They suggested broader terms such as produced, transformed, incorporated or assembled. This suggestion was adopted. For these purposes, it is intended that production, transformation, incorporation or assembly be given a broad meaning.

Commenters also suggested that the phrase "transformation, incorporation, assembly" be used instead of the phrase "further transformation." This suggestion was also adopted.

The final regulations clarify that a possessions corporation may treat the end-product form as its possession product even though the final stage or stages of production occur outside of a possession.

The final regulations provide that if a possessions corporation produces a product that is sometimes sold to unrelated parties without further processing and is sometimes sold to unrelated parties after further processing, then the possessions corporation generally must choose to treat the same item of property as its possession product, even though it is in some cases an integrated product and in some cases a component product.

Commenters suggested that the proposed regulations required taxpayers to choose either the component product, the integrated product, or the end-product form as their possession product and to apply that choice consistently for all purposes of section 936. Many possessions corporations, however, sell both an integrated product and a component contained in the integrated product. The regulations, when adopted, should not limit the possessions corporation to a return on only one of these products when both are produced in the possessions.

In response to the comments, the final regulations provide that a possessions corporation may designate a different product at each stage of the production process, if the product is sold at the end of that stage to unrelated parties. The possessions corporation's product must be defined consistently for all products sold at the same stage in the production process. Thus, if a possessions company produces a component in a possession and finishes some of the components in the possession and transfers some to an affiliate for finishing in the United States, then, for all finished products sold to third parties, the possessions company must designate either the component or the integrated product as its possession product. Furthermore, if the possessions company produces a product in a possession, sells the product to third parties, and also subjects the product to further processing before sale to third parties, then the possessions corporation may designate two possession products.

Commenters suggested that the final regulations permit taxpayers to designate their possession product by listing those components that are not included in the possession product. This suggestion was adopted.

Grouping of Products

Commenters raised several questions with respect to grouping of products. In response to those comments the final regulations clarify that products that are grouped are treated as one product, and that, if a taxpayer's grouping is disallowed, the effect of the disallowance is to require each of the products that is removed from the group and the remaining group without the excluded products to satisfy separately the significant business presence test. The final regulations also make clear that the determination of whether the production processes involved in producing the products that are to be grouped are similar is based on the production processes of the components that are included in the possession product.

Commenters stated that the usefulness of the grouping rules was limited because of the discretion given the Commissioner to require grouping or to disallow a taxpayer's grouping. The final regulations do not allow the Commissioner to require the taxpayer to group products. A primary purpose of permitting grouping is to allow taxpayers to reduce their recordkeeping burden. Because this is the case, the Commissioner will not require the taxpayer to group products.

The final regulations also provide that a taxpayer may not include in a group an item of property that is not produced in whole or in part in a possession.

Commenters suggested that the final regulations clarify whether the general rules concerning grouping apply to pharmaceuticals. The final regulations apply the general rules to pharmaceuticals. The reason for this change is that a purpose of grouping is to ease the taxpayer's recordkeeping burden with respect to isolating production costs for a particular product. If the production processes involved in producing two items are not similar, then the taxpayer should be able to separate its production costs for those items. Thus, the rules for grouping pharmaceuticals should be the same as the rules for grouping other products. These revisions also clarify that pharmaceuticals may be grouped even though they contain different active or inert ingredients so long as the production processes are similar.

Interim Period and Transitional Period Rules

The proposed regulations provided that a possessions corporation which produced a product in a possession on September 3, 1982, need not satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to that product until taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1986. For purposes of determining the product produced in the possessions, only the activities actually performed in the possession are to be taken into account. If a possessions corporation would claim a return on intangibles associated with the portion of the product produced outside of the possession, then the possessions corporation must satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to that larger product.

Commenters objected to these rules stating that the statute waives the significant business presence test with respect to products produced in the possession on date of enactment, but the effect of the proposed rules is to impose a significant business presence test on products produced on date of enactment. Commenters also claim that Congress intended to treat "old" products more favorably than, or at least as favorably as "new" products. New products are not immediately subject to the full significant business presence test but rather are entitled to a phase-in of the significant business presence test. If "old" products are to be subject to a significant business presence test prior to January 1, 1986 commenters stated that the "old" products should be allowed the benefit of phasing in the test. Furthermore, no test should apply for taxable year 1983 because the proposed regulations were not published until 1984 and, therefore, taxpayers had no opportunity to arrange their affairs so that they could satisfy this test.

These various comments were rejected for the following reasons. First, requiring the product to be produced in a possession within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A) does not impose a significant business presence test on products produced in a possession on the date of enactment. The regulations must provide guidance as to the meaning of the phrase "produces a product . . . in a possession on the date of enactment." Under the interpretative authority granted the Secretary, the Treasury has determined that this phrase means the product that is produced within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A). Second, the commenters claim that Congress intended to treat products produced in a possession on the date of enactment more favorably than products first produced in a possession after that date. There is no basis for this claim either in the statute or in the legislative history.

Section 936(h)(5)(B)(iii)(I) provides that, if a possessions corporation produced a product in a possession on the date of enactment, then, with respect to such product, the possessions corporation is not required to meet the significant business presence test for its taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986. Section 936(h)(5)(B)(iv)(I) provides that the Secretary may prescribe regulations setting forth an appropriate transitional (but not in excess of three taxable years) significant business presence test for commencement in a possession of operations with respect to products or types of service after date of enactment and not described in section 936(h)(5)(B)(iii)(I). Thus, the Code states that the Secretary has authority to prescribe regulations adopting a transitional rule in all cases except those which are covered by the statutory exemption from the significant business presence test.

It may be more advantageous to the taxpayer to satisfy a reduced significant business presence test with respect to an integrated product than to be exempted from the significant business presence test and be permitted to determine income under the cost sharing or profit split option only with respect to the component product or the end-product form. The reason that a possessions corporation might be in a better position if it could take advantage of the reduced significant business presence test is that, if the possessions corporation is able to satisfy the reduced test with respect to an integrated product, then the possessions corporation will be entitled to a return on intangibles associated with the integrated product. If, however, the possessions corporation is exempt from the significant business presence test, then the corporation will only be entitled to a return on the intangibles associated with the product produced in the possessions. Thus the income attributable to the more narrowly defined product, and against which credit will be granted, will be less. Correspondingly, the income taxed to the U.S. affiliates will be increased.

The interpretation adopted in the final regulations is consistent with the legislative history. The conference report states that:

> The conferees also intend that the provision be administered in a fashion so as to encourage increased Puerto Rican employment and investment in depreciable property at as low a cost to the Treasury as possible.
> The conferees are concerned about Puerto Rican job creation and there is continuing concern that the provision may not be adequately targeted towards that goal. (Emphasis added).

H.R. REP. No. 760, 97th Cong., 2nd Sess., at 505 (1982) [1982-2 C.B. 600, 617].The legislative history also indicates the transitional rules described above only apply to future operations and future possession products and possession services. General Explanation of the Revenue Provisions of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibilty Act of 1982; H.R. 4961, Pub. L. 97-248, at 89 (1982). If these two parts of the legislative history are read together, it is apparent that Congress intended to encourage new possessions employment and investment by providing an incentive for corporations to move new operations into the possessions after the date of enactment. Corporations which were already operating in the possessions should not get the benefit of this provision, with respect to such operations, because allowing them these benefits would not encourage new employment and investment in the possessions and would result in substantial revenue loss to the Treasury. Thus, it is believed that Congress intended to provide the benefit of a reduced significant business presence test only to corporations starting new operations in the possessions.

Different Product for Export Sales

The proposed regulations provided that a possessions corporation could not define its product differently for export sales than for domestic sales. Commenters stated that the separate election for export sales should be interpreted in such a manner that the possessions corporation's product may be defined differently for export sales than for domestic sales. They further state that foreign countries frequently require some local processing in order to avoid tariff or other import restrictions. Further, requiring the possessions corporation to define consistently its product for export and domestic sales will discourage investment in the possessions. If a company will not be allowed any return on intangibles associated with finishing a product for the domestic market there will be no incentive to set up new finishing operations in the possessions. The final regulations permit a possessions corporation to define its product differently for export sales than for domestic sales.

Section 1.936-5(b)

Significant Business Presence Test General Rules

The final regulations make clear that two related possessions corporations may not aggregate their production or direct labor costs for purposes of determining whether they satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to a single product.

Production Costs

Commenters suggested that the phrase "production costs" should be used if the regulations intended that the words be defined in the same manner as under section 471. This suggestion was adopted. The final regulations use the phrase "production costs" because it is intended that this phrase be defined consistently for purposes of sections 471 and 936. Production costs do not, however, include direct material costs and interest.

Commenters requested that the final regulations clarify whether taxpayers are permitted to include in production costs those costs that they did not include in inventoriable costs for purposes of section 471. The final regulations clarify that taxpayers may not include such costs for purposes of section 936.

The final regulations clarify that a possessions corporation may not include a cost as a production cost unless all members of the affiliated group include that cost as a production cost. Also, with respect to production costs, the final regulations clarify that taxpayers should use their current year's production costs to determine whether they satisfy the significant business presence test regardless of whether they use the FIFO or LIFO method of accounting.

Direct Labor Cost

Commenters stated that the proposed regulations were unclear as to whether the direct labor costs involved in processes that are not considered to be manufacturing under section 954(d)(1)(A) (for example, packaging) could be included in the direct labor costs of the possessions corporation. The final regulations provide that, so long as the cost in includable under section 471 in inventoriable costs, the cost may be considered a direct labor cost of the possessions corporation even though the activity would not constitute manufacturing under section 954(d)(1)(A).

Commenters suggested that the term "direct labor" should include personnel, quality control, maintenance, research and development, accounting, treasury and other functions to the extent these activities take place in the possessions. This suggestion was generally rejected because indirect labor costs are taken into account under the value added test. However, the labor associated with quality control will be considered direct labor if that quality control is an integral part of the production process.

One commenter recommended that, for purposes of the value added test, the amount of gross receipts should be reduced by any excise tax paid by the possessions corporation on units of the product sold for use or consumption in the possession. Because the term "gross receipts" is defined in the same manner as possession sales and the possession sales amount does not include these excise taxes, the gross receipts amount does not include these excise taxes either.

The proposed regulations provided that inspection and testing are indirect production costs. Therefore, the labor costs associated with inspection and testing may not be considered direct labor costs. Commenters stated that quality control is an integral part of the production process and, therefore, the labor costs associated therewith should be considered direct labor costs. This suggestion was adopted in those cases in which quality control is an integral part of the production process.

Commenters suggested that taxpayers should be able to get the benefit of the start-up significant business presence test if they begin operations at a new site in the same possession. This suggestion was rejected because starting up operations in a new possession presents more difficulties than starting at a new site within the same possession.

Commenters suggested that base period construction costs should include the costs associated with the installation of section 1245 property and that any base year that the corporation was not in existence should not be taken into account. Both of these suggestions were rejected.

Commenters recommended that the Secretary adopt additional significant business presence tests. This recommendation was rejected.

Section 1.936–5(c)

Contract Manufacturing

The proposed regulations defined the term "contract manufacturing" to include any arrangement between a possessions corporation (or another member of the affiliated group) and an unrelated person if the unrelated person uses intangibles that are related to its product and the intangibles are owned or licensed by a member of the affiliated group. Commenters stated that this part of the definition was too broad. In response to these comments, the definition of contract manufacturing has been narrowed. Contract manufacturing will only include use of an intangible if the intangible is a patent and the product produced under the patent is included in the possession product or if the intangible is a manufacturing intangible and it is established that the arrangement has the effect of materially distorting the application of the significant business presence test. The reason for these rules is to prevent taxpayers from earning intangible income attributable to the patent or other intangibles without taking into account, for purposes of the significant business presence test, the costs associated with producing the patented product. For example, if a taxpayer enters into a contract with an unrelated party whereby the unrelated party produces the patented product for the taxpayer and sells that product to the taxpayer, the unrelated party would earn a return on the manufacturing activities it performed. If the taxpayer incorporated that product into its possession product and then marketed it to the public, the income from the patent would be earned by the taxpayer without any performance of activity by the taxpayer with respect to the patented item. Therefore, the cost of producing the patented product should be taken into account. The regulations provide that these rules shall not apply to such contract manufacturing performed in taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986, nor shall the rules apply to binding contracts for the performance of such contract manufacturing entered into before June 13, 1986.

The proposed regulations treat the entire cost of contract manufacturing performed outside of the possessions as direct labor of the affiliated group performed outside of the possessions. Commenters claim that this unfairly penalizes taxpayers as the supplier's cost of materials, production costs and profit will be considered direct labor of the affiliated group. If the U.S. affiliates had performed identical manufacturing activities, only the direct labor element of the total costs would be counted against the possessions corporation. The final regulations retain this rule because it is intended to have the protested effect.

Product Area Research

Commenter suggested that product area research should apply only to those expenses with respect to which a tax benefit was obtained. This suggestion was rejected since it is inconsistent with the statutory language under section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(I)(a) which defines product area research very broadly and beyond deductible expenses.

Commenter suggested that the cost of acquisition of nonamortizable intangible property should not be included in product area research in the year of acquisition, but instead should either not be included or included over a longer period. The regulation has been amended to include the cost of acquisition of nonamortizable intangibles ratably over a 5-year period. Non-inclusion of nonamortizable intangibles was rejected because section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(I)(a) specifically requires an inclusion of "a proper allowance for amounts incurred in the acquisition of any of the items specified in subsection (h)(3)(B)(i)" (manufacturing intangibles).

Commenters suggested that the regulations make clear that payments described in section 30(b) and other payments made for amortizable and nonamortizable intangibles apply only to those payments made for the acquisition of manufacturing intangible property. This suggestion is in conformity with the statute and the suggested clarification has been made.

Commenter suggested that product area research expenditures be reduced by the income received by a possessions corporation from the sale of a manufacturing intangible to a person outside the affiliated group. The suggestion was adopted. However, the income from the sale does not reduce product area research in the year of the sale, but instead is treated as royalty payments made ratably over the remaining useful life of the intangible. If the intangible is nonamortizable, then product area research is reduced ratably over a 5-year period.

Commenter suggested that product area research not include research and development expenses incurred by a member of an affiliated group pursuant to a contract with an unrelated person who is entitled to exclusive ownership of the technology resulting from the expenditures. The suggestion was adopted. The final regulations provide that, to the extent the product area research expenditures can be allocated solely to the technology produced for an unrelated person, such expenditures will not be included in product area research provided that the unrelated person has exclusive ownership of the technology and that no member of the affiliated group has a right to use any of the technology.

Commenter requested clarification on the computation of product area research where the component product and integrated product fall within different product areas. The final regulations clarify the issue. If the component product and integrated product are in separate SIC codes and if the component product is included in the definition of the possession product, then the product area research expenditures are aggregated. If the component product is not included in the definition of possession product, then the product area research expenditures are not aggregated and the product area research expenditures incurred with respect to the component product are not included in product area research.

Possession sales and total sales

Commenter suggested that pre-TEFRA sales should be excluded from the numerator and denominator of the cost sharing fraction. The suggestion was adopted.

Commenter suggested a clarification of the sales price of a component product and an end-product form. In response to the comment the regulations have been redrafted to provide as follows. With respect to a component product, an independent sales price from comparable uncontrolled transactions must be used if such price can be determined in accordance with §1.482-2(e)(2). With respect to an end-product form, the sales price is the difference between the third party price of the integrated product and the independent sales price of the excluded component product(s) from comparable uncontrolled transactions. If an independent sales price from comparable uncontrolled transactions cannot be obtained, then the sales price of the component product shall be deemed to be equal to the transfer price, determined under the appropriate section 482 method, which the possessions corporation uses under the cost sharing method in computing the income it derives with respect to the component product. Alternatively, the possessions corporation may determine the sales price for the component product using a production cost ratio, but if this method is used, then the transfer price used by the possessions corporation in computing its income may not be greater than such sales price. A similar rule deals with an end-product form. The method chosen in the final regulations is preferable to merely using the production cost ratio since the transfer price will be used by the taxpayer in computing income and therefore, should, if possible, also be reflected in the numerator of the cost sharing fraction.

Commenter suggested that the regulations provide that excise taxes paid by the possessions corporation when the product is for ultimate use or consumption in the possession not be included in possession sales. The suggestion was adopted. The final regulations provide that the amount of excise tax is excluded from both the numerator and denominator of the cost sharing fraction.

Commenter suggested that rules be provided to permit cost sharing with respect to sales of possession products to members of the affiliated group which includes the possessions corporation where the possession product is not sold outside of the affiliated group and where the affiliate leases the product to unrelated persons. The suggestion was adopted. The final regulations provide that if an independent sales price for the possession product can be determined under 1.482-2(e)(2), then possessions corporation may use the cost sharing method with respect to a possession product which it sells to its affiliate if the affiliate leases such product to unrelated persons or uses the possession product in its own trade or business. If the possession product is a component product or an end-product form where there is not a comparable uncontrolled price, then the taxpayer may determine the sales price of the component product or end-product form under rules provided elsewhere in the regulation.

For taxable years beginning after June 13, 1986, a possessions corporation will not be entitled to the benefits of the cost sharing method with respect to units of a possession product which the possessions corporation sells to an affiliate where the affiliate then leases such units to an unrelated person or uses them in its own trade or business, unless the affiliate agrees to be treated for all tax purposes as having sold such units to an unrelated party at the time they were first leased or otherwise placed in service by such affiliate.

Credits against cost sharing payments

Commenter suggested that payments made under cost sharing arrangements with related persons should be creditable against cost sharing payments. This suggestion was not adopted since it is contrary to section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(I) which specifically sets forth the criteria which must be satisfied for a payment to be treated as a credit against the cost sharing payment.

§1.936-6(a)(5)

Effect of election under the cost sharing method

Commenter suggested that the reduction in deductions under the cost sharing method are limited to the deductions taken by the affiliates which incurred the product area research expenditures. This suggestion was not adopted since it might result in a possessions corporation being treated as the owner of a manufacturing intangible without any appropriate reduction in deductions of a related affiliate.

§1.936-6(b)(1)

Profit split computation of combined taxable income

Commenter suggested that the regulations should be modified and that the general principles under §1.861-8 should be followed without modification for allocating marketing and distribution expenses. In response to comments, the rules for allocations of marketing and other distribution expenses have been modified to permit separately identifiable expenses related solely to a specific product or group of products to be allocated to the class of gross income defined by that specific product or group of products. The rules for apportionment of these deductions remain unchanged. The rules for allocation and apportionment of other expenses are also unchanged.

Commenter raised the issue as to how samples should be treated. The final regulations take the position that samples are to be treated as a marketing expense and not as inventoriable costs. However, for taxable years beginning prior to January 1, 1986, the taxpayer at its option may treat the cost of samples as either inventoriable costs or as a marketing expense.

Commenter suggested that the regulations take the position that the non-possessions corporation's share of the profit split should be deemed to accrue on the last day of the taxable year for estimated tax purposes. The suggestion was adopted.

Commenter suggested that in allocating one-half of the combined taxable income under the profit split option to the appropriate member of the affiliated group the first allocation should be made to U.S. affiliates which have gross income with respect to the product produced in whole or in part in the possession. The suggestion was adopted.

Commenter suggested a clarification of the sales price of a component product or an end-product form in computing combined taxable income. In response to the comment, the regulations have been redrafted to provide as follows. With respect to a comparable product, an independent sales price from comparable uncontrolled transactions must be used if such price can be determined in accordance with §1.482–(e)(2). With respect to an end-product form, the sales price is the difference between the third party price of the integrated product and the independent sales price of the component product from comparable uncontrolled transactions. If an independent sales price from comparable uncontrolled transactions cannot be obtained, then the taxpayer may use the production cost ratio in computing the sales price for the component product and the end-product form.

Commenter suggested that rules be provided to permit profit split with respect to sales of possession products to U.S. members of the affiliated group of corporations which includes the possession corporation where the possession product is sold to the U.S. affiliate for use in its own trade or business or the U.S. affiliate leases the product to unrelated persons or foreign affiliates. The suggestion was adopted. The final regulations provide that if an independent sales price for the possession product can be obtained, then a possession corporation may use the profit split method with respect to a possession product which it sells to its affiliate if the affiliate leases such product to unrelated persons or uses the possession product in its own trade or business. If the possession product is a component product or an end-product form where there may not be a comparable uncontrolled price, then the taxpayer may determine the sales price of the component or end-product form under rules provided elsewhere in the regulation.

Commenters raised issues with respect to a U.S. affiliate which includes purchases of the possession product in a dollar-value LIFO inventory pool. The proposed regulations failed to convert costs into sales revenue. The regulations have been amended with special rules for determining both costs and sales revenue for purchases and sales of possession products where the U.S. affiliate uses the dollar-value LIFO inventory pool for the possession product. The sales revenue determined in this manner also applies for the cost sharing option.

Covered intangibles

Commenter suggested that a covered manufacturing intangible should not be required to be obtained directly from an unrelated person and that obtaining it indirectly from an unrelated person through an affiliate should be permitted. The suggestion was not adopted. However, the regulation has been modified to permit a manufacturing intangible to qualify as a covered intangible if it was both acquired by an affiliate from an unrelated person and transferred to the possessions corporation by the affiliate prior to September 3, 1982.

Commenter suggested that licensing of an intangible from a related party should give rise to a covered intangible. The suggestion was not adopted since the statute requires that the intangible be "acquired" from an unrelated person. A license, even an exclusive license, does not constitute an acquisition of the intangible.

§1.936–7(a)

Manner of making election

Commenter suggested that the requirement that all affiliates consent to the election should be replaced by a blanket consent by the parent. The suggestion was not adopted. However, the consent rules have been liberalized.

Commenter suggested that the election out should be on a product-by-product basis rather than a product area basis. The suggestion was not adopted.

Commenter suggested that the one-time change in election should be applicable retroactively and should apply to the absence of an election out under section 936(h)(5). The suggestion was adopted. Therefore, the taxpayer will be permitted to make a one-time change of election for all prior and subsequent years or merely for all subsequent years without the consent of the Commissioner.

Commenter suggested that, with respect to a product that does not satisfy the significant business presence test, the provisions of section 936(h)(1) through (4) should apply and the cost sharing payment should be reduced. The suggestion was not adopted. The provisions of section 936(h)(1) through (4) will apply with respect to the product, but the cost sharing payment required with respect to other products will not be reduced.

Commenter suggested that, in situations in which intangible property income of a subsidiary possessions corporation is included in the gross income of a parent possessions corporation, the distribution made under section 936(h)(4) should not be considered in determining whether the parent possessions corporation satisfies the gross income requirements of section 936(a)(2). The suggestion was adopted.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 12291 AND REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that these regulations are not major regulations as defined in Executive Order 12291 and, therefore, a regulatory impact analysis is not required. Although a notice of proposed rulemaking that solicited public comment was issued, the Internal Revenue Service concluded when the notice was issued that the regulations are interpretative and, thus, the notice and public comment procedure requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 do not apply. Accordingly, these regulations do not constitute regulations subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. Chapter 6).

PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT OF 1980

The collection of information requirements contained in this regulation have been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) in accordance with the requirements of the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980. These requirements have been approved by OMB under control number 1545–0215.

DRAFTING INFORMATION

The principal authors of this regulation are Jacob Feldman and Carol Doran Klein of the Office of Associate Chief Counsel (International), Internal Revenue Service. However, personnel from other offices of the Internal Revenue Service and Treasury Department participated in developing the regulations on matters of substance and style.

Adoption of amendments to the regulations

Accordingly, 26 CFR Part 1, and Part 602 are amended as follows:

INCOME TAX REGULATIONS

Paragraph 1. The authority for Part 1 is amended by adding the following citation:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805.

Sections 1.936–4 through –7 also issued under 26 U.S.C. 936(h)."

Par. 2. 26 CFR Part 1 is amended by the addition of the following new §§1.936–4 through 1.936–7 immediately after §1.936–1.

§1.936–4 Intangible property income in the absence of an election out.

The rules in this section apply for purposes of section 936(h) and also for purposes of section 934(e), where applicable.

Question 1: If a possessions corporation and its affiliates do not make an election under either the cost sharing or 50/50 profit split option, what rules will govern the treatment of income attributable to intangible property owned or leased by the possessions corporation?

Answer 1: Intangible property income will be allocated to the posssessions corporation's U.S. shareholders with the proration of income based on shareholdings. If a shareholder of the possessions corporation is a foreign person or a tax-exempt person, the possessions corporation will be taxable on that shareholder's pro rata amount of the intangible property income. If any class of the stock of a possessions corporation is regularly traded on an established securities market, then the intangible property income will be taxable to the possessions corporation rather than the corporation's U.S. shareholders. For these purposes, a United States shareholder includes any shareholder who is a United States person as described under section 7701(a)(30). The term "intangible property income" means the gross income of a possessions corporation attributable to any intangible property other than intangible property which has been licensed to such corporation since prior to 1948 and which was in use by such corporation on September 3, 1982.

Question 2: What is the source of the intangible property income described in question 1?

Answer 2: The intangible property income in U.S. source, whether taxed to U.S. shareholders or taxed to the possessions corporation. Such intangible property income, if treated as income of the possessions corporation, does not enter into the calculation of the 80-percent possession source test or the 65-percent active trade or business test of section 936(a)(2)(A) and (B).

Question 3: How will the amount of income attributable to intangible property be measured?

Answer 3: Income attributable to intangible property includes the amount received by a possessions corporation from the sale, exchange, or other disposition of any product or from the rendering of a service which is in excess of the reasonable costs it incurs in manufacturing the product or rendering the service) (other than costs incurred in connection with intangibles) plus a reasonable profit margin. A reasonable profit margin shall be computed with respect to direct and indirect costs other than (i) costs incurred in connection with intangibles, (ii) interest expense, and (iii) the cost of materials which are subject to processing or which are components in a product manufactured by the possessions corporation. Notwithstanding the above, certain taxpayers who have been permitted by the Internal Revenue Service in taxable years beginning before January 1, 1983, to use the cost-plus method of pricing without reflecting a return from intangibles, but including the cost of materials in the cost base, will not be precluded from doing so. (Sec. 3.02(3), Rev. Proc. 63–10, 1963–1 C.B. 490.) Thus, the Internal Revenue Service may continue in appropriate cases to permit such taxpayers to continue to report their income as they have been under existing procedures described in the previous sentence if it is appropriate under all the facts and circumstances and does not distort the income of the taxpayer.

Question 4: If there is no intangible property related to a product produced in whole or in part by a possessions corporation, what method may the possessions corporation use to compute its income?

Answer 4: The taxpayer may compute its income using the appropriate method as provided under section 482 and the regulations thereunder. The taxpayer may also elect the cost sharing or profit split method.

§1.936–5 Intangible property income when an election out is made: Product, business presence, and contract manufacturing.

The rules in this section apply for purposes of section 936(h) and also for purposes of section 934(e), where applicable.

(a) Definition of product.

Question 1: What does the term "product" mean?

Answer 1: The term "product" means an item of property which is the result of a production process. The term "product" includes component products, integrated products, and end-product forms. A component product is a product which is subject to further processing before sale to an unrelated party. A component product may be produced from other items of property, and if it is so produced, may be treated as including or not including (at the choice of the possessions corporation) one or more of such other items of property for all purposes of section 936(h)(5). An integrated product is a product which is not subject to any further processing before sale to an unrelated party and which includes all component products from which it is produced. An end-product form is a product which—

(1) Is not subject to any further processing before sale to an unrelated party;

(2) Is produced from a component product or products; and

(3) Is treated as not including certain component products for all purposes of section 936(h)(5).

A possessions corporation may treat a component product, integrated product, or end-product form as its possession product even though the final stage or stages of production occur outside the possession. Further processing includes transformation, incorporation, assembly, or packaging.

Question 2: If a possessions corporation produces both a component product and an integrated product (which by definition includes the end-product form), may the possessions corporation use the options under section 936(h)(5) to compute its income with respect to either the component product, the integrated product or the end-product form?

Answer 2: Yes. The possessions corporation may choose to treat the component product, the integrated product, or the end-product form as the product for purposes of determining whether the possessions corporation satisfies the significant business presence test. The possessions corporation must treat the same item of property as its product (the possessions product) for all purposes of section 936(h)(5) for that taxable year, including the significant business presence test under section 936(h)(5)(B)(ii), the possessions sales calculation under section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(I), the determination of income under section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(II), and the combined taxable income computations under section 936(h)(5)(C)(ii). Although the possessions corporation must treat the same item of property as its product for all purposes of section 936(h)(5) in a particular taxable year, its choice of the component product, integrated product or end-product form may be different from year to year. The possessions corporation must specify the possession product on a statement attached to its return (Schedule P of Form 5735). The possessions corporation may specify its choice by either listing the components that are included in the possession product or the components that are excluded from the possession product. The possession corporation must file a separate Schedule P with respect to each possession product. The possessions corporation must attach to each Schedule P detailed computations indicating how the significant business presence test is satisfied with respect to the possession product identified in that Schedule P.

QUESTION 3: A possessions corporation produces a product that is sometimes sold to unrelated parties without further processing and is sometimes sold to unrelated parties after further processing. May the possessions corporation choose to treat the same item of property as the possession product even though in some cases it is an integrated product and in some cases it is a component product?

ANSWER 3: Yes. Except as provided in questions and answers 4 and 5, the possessions corporation must designate a single possession product even though it is sometimes a component product and sometimes an integrated product.

QUESTION 4: A possessions corporation produces a product that is sometimes sold without further processing by any member of the affiliated group to unrelated parties or to related parties for their own consumption and is sometimes sold after further processing by any member of the affiliated group to unrelated parties or to related parties for their own consumption. May the possessions corporation designate two products as possession products?

ANSWER 4: The possessions corporation may designate two or more possession products. The possessions corporation must use a consistent definition of the possession product for all items of property that are sold to unrelated parties or consumed by related parties at the same stage in the production process. The significant business presence test shall apply separately to each product designated by the possessions corporation. The possessions corporation shall compute its income separately with respect to each product.

QUESTION 5: A possessions corporation produces a product in one taxable year and does not sell all of the units that it produced. In the next taxable year the possessions corporation produces a product which includes the product produced in the prior year. The possessions corporation could not have satisfied the significant business presence test with respect to the units produced the first taxable year if the larger possession product had been designated. May the possessions corporation designate two possession products in the second year?

ANSWER 5: Yes. The possessions corporation may designate two possession products. However, once a product has been designated for a particular year all sales of units produced in that year must be defined in the same manner. In addition, the taxpayer must maintain a significant business presence in a possession with respect to that product. Sales shall be deemed made first out of the current year's production. If all of the current year's production is sold and some inventory is liquidated, then the taxpayer's method of inventory accounting shall be applied to determine what year's layer of inventory is liquidated.

Example (1). A possessions corporation S, manufactures a bulk pharmaceutical in a possession. S transfers the bulk pharmaceutical to its U.S. parent, P, for encapsulation and sale by P to customers. S satisfies the significant business presence test with respect to the bulk pharmaceutical (the component product) and the combination of the bulk pharmaceutical and the capsule (the integrated product). S may use the cost sharing or profit split method to compute its income with respect to either the component product or the integrated product.

Example (2). The facts are the same as in example (1) except that S does not satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to the integrated product. S may use the cost sharing or profit split method to compute its income only with respect to the component product. However, if in a later taxable year S satisfies the significant business presence test with respect to the integrated product, then S may use the cost sharing or profit split method to compute its income with respect to that integrated product for that later taxable year.

Example (3). P, a domestic corporation, produces in bulk form in the United States the active ingredient for a pharmaceutical product. P transfers the bulk form to S, a wholly owned possessions corporation. S uses the bulk form to produce in Puerto Rico the finished dosage form drug. S transfers the drug in finished dosage form to P, which sells the drug to unrelated customers in the U.S. The direct labor costs incurred in Puerto Rico by S during its taxable year in formulating, filling and finishing the dosage form are at least 65 percent of the total direct labor costs incurred by the affiliated group in producing the bulk and finished forms during that period. S manufactures (within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A)) the finished dosage form. S has elected out under section 938(h)(5) under the profit split option for the drug product area (SIC 283). P and S may treat the bulk and finished dosage forms as parts of an integrated product. Since S satisifes the significant business presence requirement with respect to the integrated product, it is entitled to 50 percent of the combined taxable income on the integrated product.

Example (4). A possessions corporation, S, produces the keyboard of an electric typewriter and incorporates the keyboard with components acquired from a related corporation into finished typewriters. S does not satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to the typewriters (the integrated product). Therefore, S may use the cost sharing or profit split method to compute its income only with respect to a component product or end-product form. For taxable year 1983, S specifies on a statement attached to its return (Schedule P of Form 5735) that the possession product is the end-product form. The statement indentifies the components—for example, the keyboard structure and frame—which are included in the possession product. S's definition of the possession product will apply to all units of the electric typewriters which S produces in whole or in part in the possession and which are sold in 1983. Thus, all units of a given component incorporated into such typewriters will be treated in the same way. For example, all keyboards and all frames will be included in the possession product, and all electric drive mechanisms and rollers will be excluded from the possession product.

Example (5). Possessions corporation A produces printed circuit boards in a possession. The printed circuit boards are sold to unrelated parties. A also uses the boards to produce personal computers in the possession. A may designate two possession products: printed circuit boards and personal computers. The significant business presence test applies separately with respect to each of these products. Thus, for those printed circuit boards that are sold to unrelated parties, only the costs of the possessions corporation and other members of the affiliated group that are incurred with respect to units of the printed circuit boards which are produced in whole or in part in the possessions and sold to third parties shall be taken into account. Conversely, with respect to personal computers, only the costs incurred with respect to the personal computers shall be taken into account. This would include the costs with respect to printed circuit boards that are incorporated into personal computers but not the costs incurred with respect to printed circuit boards that are sold without further processing to unrelated parties.

Example (6). Possessions corporation S produces integrated circuits in a possession. P, an affiliate of S, produces circuit boards in the United States. P transfers the circuit boards to S. S assembles the integrated circuits and the circuit boards. S sells some of the loaded circuit boards to third parties. S retains some of the loaded circuit boards and incorporates them into central processing units. The central processing units are then sold to third parties. S may designate two possession products. S must use a consistent definition of the possession product for all units that are sold at the same stage in the production process. Thus, with respect to those units sold after assembly of the integrated circuits and the printed circuits boards, if S cannot satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to all the loaded circuit boards (the integrated product), then S must designate a lesser product, either the integrated circuit (the component product) or the loaded circuit board less the printed circuit board (the end-product form) as its possession product. With respect to the central processing units sold the same rule would apply. Thus, if S cannot satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to the entire central processing unit for all of the central processing units sold, S must designate some lesser product as its possession product.

Example (7). S is a possessions corporation. In 1985, S produced 100 units of product X. Those units were finished into product Y in 1985 by affiliates of S. Product X is a component of product Y. In 1985, S satisfies the direct labor test with respect to product X but not with respect to product Y. S designates the component product X as its possession product. In 1986 S produces 100 units of product X and finishes those units into product Y. S would have satisfied the significant business presence test with respect to product X if S had designated product X as its possession product in 1986. In addition, in 1986 S satisfies the significant business presence test with respect to the integrated product Y. In 1986, S sells 150 units of Y. One hundred of those units would be deemed to be produced in 1986. With respect to those units S may designate the integrated product Y as its possession product. Under S's method of inventory accounting the remaining 50 units were determined to have been produced in 1985. With respect to those units S must define its possession product as it did for the taxable year in which those units were produced. Thus, S's possession product would be the component product X.

Question 6: May an affiliated group establish groupings of possession products and treat the groupings as single products?

Answer 6: An affiliated group may establish reasonable groupings of possession products based on similarities in the production processes of the possession products. Possession products that are grouped shall be treated as a single product. The determination of whether the production processes involved in producing the products that are to be grouped are similar is based on the production processes of the components that are included in the possession product. The affiliated group may establish new groupings each year. Any grouping which materially distorts a taxpayer's income or the application of the significant business presence test may be disallowed by the Commissioner. The mere fact that a grouping results in an increased allocation of income to the possessions corporation does not, of itself, create a material distortion of income. If the Commissioner determines that the taxpayer's grouping is improper with respect to one or more products in a group, then those products shall be excluded from the group. The effect of excluding a product or products from the group is that the taxpayer must demonstrate that the group without the excluded products (and each excluded product itself) satisfies the significant business presence test. If the group without the excluded products, or any of the excluded products themselves, fails to satisfy the significant business presence test, then the possessions corporation's income from those products shall be determined under section 936(h)(1) through (4) and the regulations thereunder.

Example (1). The following are examples of possession products; the processes of production of which are sufficiently similar that they may be grouped and treated as a single product:

(A) Beverage bases or concentrates for different soft drinks or soft drink syrups, regardless of whether some include sweeteners and some do not;

(B) Different styles of clothing;

(C) Different styles of shoes;

(D) Equipment which relies on gravity to deliver solutions to patients intravenously;

(E) Equipment which relies on machines to deliver solutions to patients intravenously;

(F) Video game cartridges, even though the concept and design of each game title is, in part, protected against infringement by separate copyrights;

(G) All integrated circuits;

(H) All printed circuit boards; and

(I) Hardware and software if the software is one of several alternative types of software offered by the manufacturer and sold only with the hardware, and a purchaser of the hardware would ordinarily purchase one or more of the manufacturer-provided alternative types of software. In all other cases, hardware and software may not be grouped and treated as a single product.

Groupings (D) and (E) do not include any solutions which are delivered through the equipment described therein.

Example (2). A possessions corporation produces in Puerto Rico non-programmable, interactive cathode ray tube computer terminals that vary in price. These terminals all interact with a computer or controller to perform their functions of data entry, graphics word processing, and program development. The terminals can be purchased with options that include a built-in printer, different language keyboards, specialized cathode ray tubes, and different power supply features. All terminals are produced in one integrated process requiring the same skills and operations. The differences in the production of the terminals include differences in the number of printed circuit boards incorporated in each terminal, the use of unique keyboards, and the installation and testing of the built-in printer.

Some difference in direct labor time to manufacture the terminals occurs, primarily due to the differing number and complexity of printed circuit boards incorporated into each terminal. Different model numbers are assigned to various computer terminals. A grouping by the taxpayer of all of the terminals as one product will be respected by the Service, unless the Service establishes that substantial distortion results. This grouping is proper because the processes of producing each of the terminals are similar.

Examples (3). A possessions corporation, S produces several models of serial matrix impact printers and teleprinters. These products have differing performance standards based on such factors as speed (in characters per second), numbers of columns, and cost. The production process for all types of printers involves production of three basic elements: electronic circuitry, the printing head, and the mechanical parts. The process of producing all the printers is similar. Thus, all printers could be grouped and treated as a single product. S purchases electronic circuitry and mechanical parts from a U.S. affiliate. S performs manufacturing functions relative to the printing head and assembles and tests the finished printers. S does not satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to the integrated products. S therefore specifies on a statement attached to its return (Schedule P of Form 5735) that the possession product for both the serial matrix printers and the teleprinters is the end-product form. The statement identifies the components which are included in each possession product. S may group and treat as a single product the serial matrix printers and the teleprinters if both end-product forms include and exclude similar components. Thus, if the end-product form for both the serial matrix printers and the teleprinter includes the mechanical parts and excludes the electronic circuitry, then S may group and treat a single product the two end-product forms. If, however, the end-product forms for the two items of property contain components that are not similar and as a result of this definition of the end-product forms the production processes involved in producing the two end-product forms are not similar, then S may not group the end-product forms.

Question 7: Is the affiliated group permitted to include in a group an item of property that is not produced in whole or in part in a possession?

Answer 7: No.

Example (1). Possessions corporation S produces 70 units of product A in a possession. P, an affiliate of S, produces 30 units of product A entirely in the United States. All of the units are sold to unrelated parties. The affiliated group is not permitted to group the 30 units of product A produced in the United States with the 70 units produced in the possession because those units are not produced in whole or in part in a possession.

Example (2). The facts are the same as in example (1) except that the 30 units of product A are transferred to possessions corporation S. S incorporates the 100 units of product A into product B. This incorporation takes place in the possession. S may group and treat as a single product all of the units of product B even though some of those units contain units of product A that were produced in the possession and some that were produced in the United States.

Question 8: What factors should be disregarded in determining whether a particular grouping of similar items of property is reasonable?

Answer 8: In general, differences in the following factors will be disregarded in determining whether a particular grouping of items of property is reasonable:

(1) Differences in testing requirements (e.g., some products sold for military use may require more extensive or different testing than products sold for commerical use);

(2) Differences in the product specifications that are designed to accommodate the product to its area of use or for conditions under which used (e.g., electrical products designed for ultimate use in the United States differ from electrical products designed for ultimate use in Europe);

(3) Differences in packaging or labeling (e.g., differences in the number of units of the items shipped in one package); and

(4) Minor differences in the operations of the items of property.

Question 9: What rules apply for purposes of determining whether pharmaceutical products are properly grouped and treated as a single product?

Answer 9: The rules contained in questions and answers 6 through 8 of this section shall apply. Thus, an affiliated group may establish reasonable groupings based on similarities in the production processes of two or more possession products. In establishing a group the affiliated group may only compare the production processes involved in producing the possession products. The fact that two pharmaceutical products contain different active or inert ingredients is not relevant to the determiniation of whether the pharmaceutical products may be grouped. For example, if the possession products are bulk chemicals and the production processes involved in producing the bulk chemicals are similar, those bulk chemicals may be grouped and treated as a single product even though they contain different active or inert ingredients. The affiliated group may also group and treat as a single product the finished dosage form drug as long as the production processes involved in producing the finished dosage forms are similar. For these purposes, the production processes involved in producing the following classes of items shall be considered to be sufficiently similar that possession products delivered in a form described in one of the categories may be grouped with other possession products delivered in a form described in the same category. The categories are:

(1) Capsules, tablets, and pills;

(2) Liquids, ointments, and creams; or

(3) Injectable and intravenous preparations.

No distinctions should be based on packaging, list numbers, or size of dosage. The affiliated group may group and treat as a single product the integrated product (combination of the bulk and the delivery form) only if all the production processes involved in producing the integrated products are similar. The rules of this question and answer are illustrated by the following examples.

Example (1). Possessions corporation S produces two chemical active ingredients X and Y. Both chemical ingredients are produced through the process of fermentation. The affiliated group is permitted to group and treat as a single product the two chemical ingredients.

Example (2). The facts are the same as in example (1) and possessions corporation S finishes chemical ingredient X into tablets and chemical ingredient Y into capsules. The affiliated group is permitted to group and treat as a single product the combination of the bulk pharmaceutical and the finishing because the production processes involved in producing the integrated products are similar.

Example 3. Possessions corporation S produces in a possession a bulk chemical X by fermentation. A United States affiliate, P, produces in the United States a bulk chemical, Y, by fermentation. Both bulk chemicals are finished by S in the possession. The finished dosage form of X is in pill form. The finished dosage form of Y is in injectable form. If S's possession product is the integrated product or the end-product form then S may not group X and Y because the production processes involved in producing the finished dosage form of X and Y are not similar. If S's possession product is the component then S may not group X and Y because the bulk chemical Y is not produced in whole or in part in a possession.

Question 10: Will the fact that a manufacturer of a drug must submit a New Drug Application ("NDA") or a supplemental NDA to the Food and Drug Administration have any effect on the definition or grouping of a product?

Answer 10: No.

Question 11: A possessions corporation which produced a product or rendered a type of service in a possession on or before September 3, 1982, is not required to meet the significant business presence test in a possession with respect to such product or type of service for its taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986 (the interim period). During such interim period, how will the term "product" be defined for purposes of allocating income under the cost sharing or profit split methods?

Answer 11: During the interim period the product will be determined based on the activities performed by the possessions corporation within a possession on September 3, 1982. During the interim period the possessions corporation may compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split method only with respect to the product that is produced or manufactured within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A) within the possession. If the product is manufactured from a component or components produced by an affiliated corporation or a contract manufacturer, then the product will not be treated as including such component or components for purposes of the computation of income under the cost sharing or profit split methods. Thus, the possessions corporation is not entitled to any return on the intangibles associated with the component or components. Notwithstanding the preceding sentences, for taxable years beginning beforee January 1, 1986, a possessions corporation may compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split method with respect to a product which includes a component or components produced by an affiliated corporation or contract manufacturer if the possessions corporation satisfies with respect to such product the significant business presence test described in section 936(h)(5)(B)(ii) and the regulations thereunder.

Example (1). A possessions corporation, S, was manufacturing (within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A)) integrated circuits in a possession on September 3, 1982. S transferred those integrated circuits to related corporation P. P incorporated the integrated circuits into central processing units (CPUs in the United States) and sold the CPUs to unrelated parties. S continued to manufacture integrated circuits in the possession through January 1, 1986. For taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986. S may compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split method with respect to the integrated circuits regardless of whether S satisfies the significant business presence test. However, unless S satisfies the significant business presence test with respect to the central processing units. S may not compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split methods with respect to the CPUs, and thus, S is not entitled to any return on manufacturing intangibles associated with CPUs to the extent that they are not related to the integrated circuits produced by S, nor (except as provided in the profit split method), to any return on marketing intangibles.

Example (2). A possessions corporation, S, was engaged on September 3, 1982, in the manufacture (within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A)) of a bulk pharmaceutical in Puerto Rico from raw materials. S sold the bulk pharmaceutical to its U.S. parent, P, for encapsulation and sale by P to customers as the product X. Because S was not engaged in the encapsulation of X, S is not considered to have manufactured the integrated product, X, in Puerto Rico. During the interim period, S may compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split methods with respect to the integrated product, X, only if S satisfies the signfiicant business presence test with respect to X. S may compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split methods with respect to the component product (the bulk pharmaceutical).

Example (3). P is a domestic corporation that is not a possessions corporation. P manufactures a bulk pharmaceutical in the United States. P transfers the bulk pharmaceutical to its wholly owned subsidiary, S, a possessions corporation. On September 3, 1982, S was engaged in the encapsulation of the bulk pharmaceutical in Puerto Rico in a manner which satisfies the test of section 954(d)(1)(A). For taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986. S may compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split methods with respect to the end-product form (the encapsulated drug) regardless of whether S meets the significant business presence test. However, unless S satisfies the significant business presence test with respect to the integrated product, S may not compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split methods with respect to the integrated product, and thus, S is not entitled to any return on the intangibles associated with the bulk pharmaceutical.

Question 12: On September 3, 1982, a possessions corporation, S, was engaged in the manufacture (within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A)) of X in a possession. During the interim period, after September 3, 1982, but before January 1, 1986. S produced Y, which differs from X in terms of minor design features. S did not produce Y in a possession on September 3, 1982. Will S be considered to have commenced production of a new product after September 3, 1982, for purposes of the application of the significant business presence test for the interim period?

Answer 12: No. X and Y will be considered to be a single product, and therefore S will not be required to satisfy the business presence test separately with respect to Y during the interim period. In all cases in which the items of property produced on or before September 3, 1982 and the items of property produced after that date could have been grouped together under the guidelines provided in §1.936–5(a) questions and answers 6 through 10, the possessions corporation will not be considered to manufacture a new product after September 3, 1982.

Question 13: May the term "product" be defined differently for export sales than for domestic sales?

Answer 13: Yes. For rules concerning the application of the separate election for export sales see §1.936–7(b).

(b) Requirement of significant business presence—

(1) General rules.

Question 1: In general, a possessions corporation may compute its income under the cost sharing or profit split methods with respect to a product only if the possessions corporation has a significant business presence in a possession with respect to that product. When will a possessions corporation be considered to have a significant business presence in a possession?

Answer 1: For purposes of the cost sharing method, the significant business presence test is met if the possessions corporation satisfies either a value added test or a direct labor test. For purposes of the profit split method, the significant business presence test is met if the possessions corporation satisfies either a value added test or a direct labor test and also manufactures the product in the possession within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A).

Question 2: How may a possessions corporation satisfy the direct labor test with respect to a product?

Answer 2: The possessions corporation will satisfy the direct labor test with respect to a product if the direct labor costs incurred by the possessions corporation as compensation for services performed in a possession are greater than or equal to 65 percent of the direct labor costs of the affiliated group for units of the possession product produced during the taxable year in whole or in part by the possessions corporation.

Question 3: How may a possessions corporation satisfy the value added test?

Answer 3: In order to satisfy the value added test, the production costs of the possessions corporation incurred in the possession with respect to units of the possession product produced in whole or in part by the possessions corporation in the possession and sold or otherwise disposed of during the taxable year by the affiliated group to unrelated parties must be greater than or equal to twenty-five percent of the difference between gross receipts from such sales or other affiliated group for materials purchased for such units from unrelated parties.

Question 4: Must the significant business presence test be met with respect to all units of the product produced during the taxable year by the affiliated group?

Answer 4: No. The significant business presence test must be met with respect to only those units of the product produced during the taxable year in whole or in part by the possessions corporation in a possession.

Question 5: For purposes of determining whether a possessions corporation satisfies the significant business presence test, how shall the possessions corporation treat the cost of components transferred to the possessions corporation by a member of the affililated group?

Answer 5: The treatment of the cost of components transferred from an affiliate depends on whether the possession product is treated as including the components for purposes of section 936(h). If it is, then for purposes of the value added test, the production costs associated with the component shall be treated as production costs of the affiliated group that are not incurred by the possessions corporation. Those production costs, other than the cost of materials, shall not be treated as a cost of materials. For purposes of the direct labor test and the alternative significant business presence test, the direct labor costs associated with such components shall be treated as direct labor costs of the affiliated group that are not incurred by the possessions corporation. If the possession product is treated as not including such component for purposes of section 936(h), then, solely for purposes of determining whether the possessions corporation satisfies the value added test, the cost of the component shall not be treated as either a cost of materials or as a production cost. For purposes of the direct labor test and the alternative significant business presence test, the direct labor costs associated with such component shall not be treated as direct labor costs of the affiliated group. If the possession product is treated as not including such component, then the possessions corporation shall not be entitled to any return on the intangibles associated with the manufacturing or marketing of the component.

Question 6: May two or more related possessions corporations aggregate their production or direct labor costs for purposes of determining whether they satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to a single product?

Answer 6: No.

Question 7: A possessions corporation, S, purchases raw materials and components from an unrelated corporation which conducts business outside of a possession. The unrelated corporation is not a contract manufacturer. What is the treatment of such raw materials and components for purposes of the significant business presence test?

Answer 7: Where Company S purchases raw materials or components from an unrelated corporation which is not a contract manufacturer, the raw materials and components are treated as materials, and the costs related thereto are treated as a cost of materials.

(2) Direct labor costs.

Question 1: How is the term "direct labor costs" to be defined?

Answer 1: The term "direct labor costs" has the same meaning which it has for purposes of §1.417–11(b)(2)(i). Thus, direct labor costs include the cost of labor which can be identified or associated with particular units or groups of units of a specific product. The elements of direct labor include such items as basic compensation, overtime pay, vacation and holiday pay, sick leave pay (other than payments pursuant to a wage continuation plan under section 105(d)), shift differential, payroll taxes, and payments to a supplemental unemployment benefit plan paid or incurred on behalf of employees engaged in direct labor.

Question 2: May a taxpayer treat a cost as a direct labor cost if it is not included in inventoriable costs under section 471 and the regulations thereunder?

Answer 2: No. A cost may be treated as a direct labor cost only if it is included in inventoriable costs. However, a cost may be considered a direct labor cost even though the activity to which it relates would not constitute manufacturing under section 954(d)(1)(A) as long as the cost is included in inventoriable costs.

Question 3: May the members of the affiliated group include as direct labor costs the labor element in indirect production costs?

Answer 3: No. The labor element of indirect production costs may not be considered as part of direct labor costs.

Question 4: Do direct labor costs include the costs which can be identified or associated with particular units or groups of units of a specific product if those costs could also be described as quality control and inspection?

Answer 4: Yes. Direct labor costs include costs which can be identified or associated with particular units or groups of units of a specific product. Thus, if quality control and inspection is an integral part of the production process, then the labor associated with that quality control and inspection shall be considered direct labor. For example, integrated circuits are soldered to printed circuit boards by passing the boards over liquid solder. Employees inspect each of the boards and repair any imperfectly soldered joints discovered on that inspection. The labor associated with this process is direct labor. However, if a person performs random inspections on limited numbers of products, then that labor associated with those inspections shall be considered quality control and therefore indirect labor.

Question 5: Do direct labor costs of the possessions corporation include only the costs which were actually incurred or do they take into account, in addition, any labor savings which result because the activities were performed in a possession rather than in the United States?

Answer 5: Direct labor costs include only the costs which were actually incurred.

Question 6: For purposes of determining whether a possessions corporation satisfies the significant business presence test for a taxable year with respect to a product, how shall the possessions corporation compute its direct labor costs of units of the product?

Answer 6: The direct labor test shall be applied separately to products produced in whole or in part by the possessions corporation in the possession during each taxable year. Sales shall be deemed to be made first out of the current year's production. If sales are made only out of the current year's production, then the direct labor costs of producing those units that are sold shall be the pro rata portion of the total direct labor costs of producing all the units that are produced in whole or in part in the possession by the possessions corporation during the current year. If all of the current year's production is sold and some inventory is liquidated, then the direct labor test shall be applied separately to the current year's production and the liquidated inventory. The direct labor costs of producing the liquidated inventory shall be the pro rata portion of the total direct labor costs that were incurred in producing all the units that were produced in whole or in part by the possessions corporation in the possessions in the layer of liquidated inventory determined under the member's method of inventory accounting.

Example. S is a cash basis calendar year taxpayer that has made an election under section 936(a). In 1985 S produced 100 units of product X. Fifty percent of the direct labor costs of the affiliated group were incurred by S and were compensation for services performed in the possession. Thus, S did not satisfy the significant business presence test with respect to product X in taxable year 1985. During 1986 S produced 100 units of product X. One hundred percent of the direct labor costs of the affiliated group were incurred by S and were compensation for services performed in the possession. In 1986 S sells 150 units of product X. One hundred of those units are deemed to be from the units produced in 1986. With respect to those units S satisfies the significant business presence test. Under S's method of inventory accounting the remaining 50 units were determined to be produced in 1985. With respect to those units S does not satisfy the significant business presence test because only 50% of the direct labor costs incurred in producing those units were incurred by S and were compensation for services performed in the possession.

Question 7: What is the result if in a particular taxable year the possessions corporation satisfies the significant business presence test with respect to units of the product produced in one year and fails the significant business with respect to units produced in another year?

Answer 7: For those units of the product with respect to which the possession corporation satisfies the significant business presence test, the possessions corporation may compute its income under the provisions of section 936(h)(5). For those units of the product with respect to which the possessions corporations fails the significant business presence test, the possessions corporation must compute its income under section 936(h)(1) through (4).

Question 8: Do direct labor costs include costs incurred in a prior taxable year with respect to units of the possessions product that are finished in a later taxable year?

Answer 8: Yes.

(3) Direct material costs.

Question 1: How is the term "direct material costs" to be defined?

Answer 1: Direct material costs include the cost of those materials which become an integral part of the specific product and those materials which are consumed in the ordinary course of manufacturing and can be identified or associated with particular units or groups of units of the product. See §1.471–3 for the elements of direct material costs.

Question 2: May a taxpayer treat a cost as a direct material cost if it is not included in inventoriable costs under section 471 and the regulations thereunder?

Answer 2: A taxpayer may not treat such costs as direct material costs.

(4) Production costs.

Question 1: How is the term "production costs" defined?

Answer 1: The term "production costs" has the same meaning which it has for purposes of §1.471–11(b) except that the term does not include direct material costs and interest. Thus, production costs include direct labor costs and fixed and variable indirect production costs (other than interest).

Question 2: With respect to indirect production costs described in §1.471–11(c)(2)(ii) and (iii), may a possessions corporation include these costs in production costs for purposes of section 936, if they are not included in inventoriable costs under section 471 and the regulations thereunder?

Answer 2: No. A possessions corporation may include these costs only if they are included for purposes of section 471 and the regulations thereunder. If a possessions corporation and the other members of the affiliated group include and exclude different indirect production costs in their inventoriable costs, then, for purposes of the significant business presence test, the possessions corporation shall compute its production costs and the production costs of the other members of the affiliated group by subtracting from the production costs of each member all indirect costs included by that member that are not included in production costs by all other members of the affiliated group.

Question 3: Does a change in a taxpayer's method of accounting for purposes of section 471 affect the taxpayer's computation of production costs for purposes of section 936?

Answer 3: Yes. If a taxpayer changes its method of accounting for purposes of section 471, then the same change shall apply for purposes of section 936.

Question 4: For purposes of determining whether a possessions corporation satisfies the significant business presence test for a taxable year with respect to a product, how shall the possessions corporation compute its costs of producing units of the product sold or otherwise disposed to unrelated parties during the taxable year?

Answer 4: All members of the affiliated group may elect to use their current year production costs regardless of whether the members use the FIFO or LIFO method of inventory accounting. If some or all of the current year's production of a product is sold, then the production costs of producing those units sold shall be the pro rata portion of the total production costs of producing all the units produced in the current year. If all of the current year's production of a product is sold and some inventory is liquidated, then the production costs of producing the liquidated inventory shall be the pro rata portion of the production costs incurred in producing the layer of liquidated inventory as determined under the member's method of inventory accounting.

Question 5: How should the members of the affiliated group determine the portion of their production costs that is allocable to units of the product sold or otherwise disposed of during the taxable year?

Answer 5: The members of the affiliated group may use either standard production costs (so long as variances are not material), average production costs, or FIFO production costs to determine the production costs that will be considered to be attributable to units of the product sold or otherwise disposed of during the taxable year. However, all members of the affiliated group must use the same method.

Question 6: When is the quality control and inspection of a product considered to be part of the production activity for that product?

Answer 6: Quality control and inspection of a manufactured product before its sale or other disposition by the manufacturer, or before its incorporation into other products, is considered to be part of the indirect production activity for that initial product. Subsequent testing of a product to ensure that the product is compatible with other products is not a part of the production activity for the initial product. When a component is incorporated into an end-product form and the end-product form is then tested, the latter testing will be considered to be a part of the indirect production activity for the end-product form and will not be considered to be a part of the production activity for the component.

Question 7: For purposes of the significant business presence test and the allocation of income to a possessions corporation, what is the treatment of the cost of installation of a product?

Answer 7: For purposes of the significant business presence test and the allocation of income to a possessions corporation, product installation costs need not be taken into account as costs incurred in the manufacture of that product, if the taxpayer keeps such permanent books of account or records as are sufficient to establish the fair market price of the uninstalled product. In such a case, the cost of installation materials, the cost of the labor for installation, and a reasonable profit for installation will not be included in the costs and income associated with the possession product. If the taxpayer does not keep such permanent books of account or records, then the cost of installation materials and the cost of labor for installation shall be treated as costs associated with the possession product and income will be allocated to the possessions corporation and its affiliates under the rules provided in these regulations.

Question 8: For purposes of the significant business presence test and the allocation of income to a product or service, what is the treatment of the cost of servicing and maintaining a possession product that is sold to an unrelated party?

Answer 8: The cost of servicing and maintaining a possession product after it is sold is not associated with the production of that product.

Question 9: For purposes of the significant business presence test and the allocation of income to a possessions corporation, what is the treatment of the cost of samples?

Answer 9: The cost of producing samples will be treated as a marketing expense and not as inventoriable costs for these purposes. However, for taxable years beginning prior to January 1, 1986, the cost of producing samples may be treated as either a marketing expense or as inventoriable costs.

(5) Gross receipts.

Question 1: How shall the affiliated group determine gross receipts from sales or other dispositions by the affiliated group to unrelated parties of the possession product?

Answer 1: Gross receipts shall be determined in the same manner as possession sales under the rules contained in §1.936-6(a)(2).

(6) Manufacturing within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A).

Question 1: What is the test for determining, within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A), whether a product is manufactured or produced by a possessions corporation in a possession?

Answer 1: A product is considered to have been manufactured or produced by a possessions corporation in a possession within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A) and §1.954-3(a)(4) if—

(i) The property has been substantially transformed by the possessions corporation in the possession;

(ii) The operations conducted by the possessions corporation in the possession in connection with the property are substantial in nature and are generally considered to constitute the manufacture or production of property; or

(iii) The conversion costs sustained by the possession corporation in the possession, including direct labor, factory burden, testing of components before incorporation into an end product and testing of the manufactured product before sales account for 20 percent or more of the total cost of goods sold of the possessions corporation.

In no event, however, will packaging, repackaging, labeling, or minor assembly operations constitute manufacture or production of property. See particularly examples (2) and (3) of §1.954-3(a)(4)(iii).

Question 2: Does the requirement that a possession product be produced or manufactured in a possession within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A) apply to taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986?

Answer 2: A possessions corporation must satisfy this requirement for taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986, in the following cases:

(i) If the posssesions corporation makes a separate election under section 936(h)(5)(F)(iv)(II) with respect to export sales;

(ii) If the possessions corporation is electing as its possession product a product that is subject to the interim period rules of §1.936-5(a) question and answer (10); or

(iii) If the possessions corporation is electing as its possession product a product that is not subject to the interim period rules of §1.936-5(a) question and answer (10) and the possessions corporation computes its income under the profit split method with respect to that product.

For rules concerning products first produced in a possession after September 3, 1982, see §1.936-5(b)(7) question and answer (2).

(7) Start-up operations.

Question 1: With respect to products not produced (and types of services not rendered) in the possession on or before September 3, 1982, when must a possessions corporation first satisfy the 25 percent value added test or the 65 percent direct labor test?

Answer 1: A transitional period is established such that a possessions corporation engaged in start-up operations with respect to a product or service need not satisfy the 25 percent value added test or the 65 percent labor test until the third taxable year following the taxable year in which such product is first sold by the possessions corporation or such service is first rendered by the possessions corporation. During the transitional period, the applicable percentages for these tests will be as follows:

	Any year after 1982
Value added test	10	15	20
Labor test	35	45	55

Question 2: Does the requirement that a possession product be produced or manufactured in a possession within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A) apply to a product if the possessions corporation is engaged in start-up operations with respect to that product?

Answer 2: The possessions corporation must produce or manufacture the possessions product within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A) if the possessions corporation computes its income with respect to the product under the profit split method.

Question 3: When will a possessions corporation be considered to be engaged in start-up operations?

Answer 3: A possessions corporation is engaged in start-up operations if it begins operations in a possession with respect to a product or type of service after September 3, 1982. Subject to the further provisions of this answer, a possessions corporation will be considered to begin operations with respect to a product if, under the rules of §1.936-5(a) questions and answers (6) through (10), such product could not be grouped with any other item of property manufactured in whole or in part in the possessions by any member of the affiliated group in any preceding taxable year. Any improvement or other change in a possession product which does not substantially change the production process would not be deemed to create a new product. A change in the division of manufacturing activity between the possessions corporation and its affiliates with respect to an item of property will not give rise to a new product. If a possessions corporation was producing a possession product that was either a component product or an end-product form and the possessions corporation expands its operations in the same possession so that it is now producing a product that includes the earlier possession product, the possessions corporation will not be entitled to use the start-up significant business presence test unless the production costs incurred by the possessions corporation in the possession in producing a unit of its new possession product are at least double the production costs incurred by the possessions corporation in the possession in producing a unit of the earlier possession product. If any member of an affiliated group actually groups two or more items of property then, solely for the purposes of determining whether any item of property in that group is a new product, that grouping shall be respected. However, the fact that an affiliated group does not actually group two or more items of property shall be disregarded in determining whether any item of property is a new product. Notwithstanding the above, if a possessions corporation is producing a possession product in one possession and such corporation or a member of its affiliated group begins operations in a different possession, regardless of whether the items of property could be grouped, the affiliated group may treat the units of the item of property produced at the new site of operations in the different possession as a new product.

(8) Alternative significant business presence test.

Question 1: Will the Secretary adopt a significant business presence test other than those set forth in section 936(h)(5)(B)(ii)?

Answer 1: Yes. The following significant business presence test is adopted both for the transitional period and thereafter. A possessions corporation will have a significant business presence in a possession for a taxable year with respect to a product or type of service if—

(i) No less than 50 percent of the direct labor costs of the affiliated group for units of the product produced, in whole or in part, during the taxable year by the possessions corporation or for the type of service rendered by the possessions corporation during the taxable year are incurred by the possessions corporation as compensation for services performed in the possession; and

(ii) The direct labor costs of the possessions corporation for units of the product produced or the type of service rendered plus the base period construction costs are no less than 70 percent of the sum of such base period construction costs and the direct labor costs of the affiliated group for such units of the product produced or the type of service rendered.

Notwithstanding satisfaction of the above test, for purposes of determining whether a possessions corporation may compute its income under the profit split method, a possessions corporation will not be treated as having a signficant business presence in a possession with respect to a product unless the possessions corporation manufactures the product in the possession within the meaning of section 954(d)(1)(A).

Question 2: How is the term "base period construction costs" defined?

Answer 2: The term "base period construction costs" means the average construction costs incurred by or on behalf of the possessions corporation for services in the possession during the taxable year and the preceding four taxable years for section 1250 property (as defined in section 1250(c) and the regulations thereunder) that is used for the production of the product or the rendering of the service in the possession, and which represents the original use of the section 1250 property. For purposes of the proceeding sentence, if the possessions corporation was not in existence during one or more of the four preceding taxable years, its construction costs for that year or years shall be deemed to be zero. Construction costs include architects' and engineers' fees, labor costs, and overhead and profit (if the construction is performed by a person that is not a member of the affiliated group).

(c) Definition and treatment of contract manufacturing.

Question 1: For purposes of determining whether a possessions corporation satisfies the significant business presence test with respect to a product, the costs incurred by the possessions corporation or by any of its affiliates in connection with contract manufacturing which is related to that product and is performed outside the possession shall be treated as direct labor costs of the affiliated group and shall not be treated as production costs of the possessions corporation or as material costs. How is the term "contract manufacturing" to be defined?

Answer 1: The term "contract manufacturing" includes any arrangement between a possessions corporation (or another member of the affiliated group) and an unrelated person if the unrelated person:

(1) Performs work on inventory owned by a member of the affiliated group for a fee without the passage of title;

(2) Performs production activities (including manufacturing, assembling, finishing, or packaging) under the direct supervision and control of a member of the affiliated group; or

(3) Does not undertake any significant risk in manufacturing its product (e.g., it is paid by the hour).

Question 2: Does an arrangement between a member of the affiliated group and an unrelated party constitute contract manufacturing if the unrelated party uses an intangible owned or licensed by a member of the affiliated group?

Answer 2: Such an arrangement will be treated as contract manufacturing if the unrelated party makes use of a patent owned or licensed by a member of the affiliated group in producing the product which becomes part of the possession product of the possessions corporation. In addition, such use of manufacturing intangibles other than patents may be treated as contract manufacturing if it is established that the arrangement has the effect of materially distorting the application of the significant business presence test. However, the preceding sentence shall not apply if the possessions corporation establishes that the arrangement was entered into for a substantial business purpose (e.g., to obtain the benefit of special expertise of the manufacturer or economies of scale). These rules shall not apply to such contract manufacturing performed in taxable years beginning before January 1, 1986, nor shall the rules apply to binding contracts for the performance of such contract manufacturing entered into before June 13, 1986.

Question 3: For purposes of the significant business presence test, how shall a possessions corporation treat the cost of contract manufacturing performed within a possession?

Answer 3: If the possessions corporation uses the value added test, it will be permitted to treat the cost of the contract manufacturing performed in a possession, not including material costs, as a production cost of the possessions corporation. If it uses the direct labor test or the alternative significant business presence test set forth in §1.936–5(b)(8), it is permitted to treat the direct labor costs of the contract manufacturer associated with such contract manufacturing as a cost of direct labor of the possessions corporation. The allowable amount of the direct labor cost shall be determined in accordance with question and answer 4 below.

Question 4: How are the amounts paid by a possessions corporation to a contract manufacturer for services rendered in a possession to be treated by the possessions corporation in computing the direct labor cost of the product to which such contract manufacturing relates?

Answer 4: If the possessions corporation can establish the contract manufacturer's direct labor cost which was incurred in the possession, such cost will be treated as incurred by the possessions corporation as compensation for services performed in the possession. If the possessions corporation cannot establish such cost, then 50 percent of the amount paid to such contract manufacturer may be treated as incurred by the possessions corporation as compensation for services performed in the possession: provided, that not more than 50 percent of the fair market value of the product manufactured by the contract manufacturer is attributable to articles shipped into the possession, and the possessions corporation receives a statement from the contract manufacturer that this test has been satisfied. If this fair market value test is not satisfied, then the cost of contract manufacturing performed within a possession shall not be treated as a production cost or a direct labor cost of either the possessions corporation or the affiliated group.

Question 5: For purposes of the significant business presence test, what is the treatment of costs which are incurred by a member of the affiliated group (including the possessions corporation) for contract manufacturing performed outside of the possession with respect to an item of property which is a component of the possession product?

Answer 5: If the possession product is treated as including such component, the cost of the contract manufacturing shall be treated as a direct labor cost of members of the affiliated group other than the possessions corporation for purposes of the direct labor test and the alternative significant business presence test, and shall not be treated as a production cost of the possessions corporation or as a cost of materials for purposes of the value added test. If the possession product is treated as not including such component, the cost of the contract manufacturing shall not be treated as a direct labor cost of any member of the affiliated group for purposes of the direct labor test and the alternative significant business presence test, and shall not be treated as a production cost of the possessions corporation or as a cost of materials for purposes of the value added test.

§1.936–6 Intangible property income when an election out is made: cost sharing and profit split options; covered intangibles.

The rules in this section apply for purposes of section 936(h) and also for purposes of section 934(e), where applicable.

(a) Cost sharing option—(1) Product area research.

Question 1: Cost sharing payments are based on research undertaken by the affiliated group in the "product area" which includes the possession product. The term "product area" is defined by reference to the three-digit classification under the Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) code. Which governmental agency has jurisdiction to decide the proper SIC category for any specific product?

Answer 1: Solely for the purpose of determining the tax consequences of operating in a possession, the Secretary of his delegate has exclusive jurisdiction to decide the proper SIC category under which a product is classified. For this purpose, the product area under which a product is classified will be determined according to the 1972 edition of the SIC code. From time to time and in appropriate cases, the Secretary may prescribe regulations or issue rulings determining the proper SIC category under which a particular product is to be classified, and may prescribe regulations for aggregating two or more three-digit classifications of the SIC code and for classifying product areas according to a system other than under the SIC code.

Question 2: How is the term "affiliated group" defined for purposes of the cost sharing option?

Answer 2: For purposes of the cost sharing option, the term "affiliated group" means the possessions corporation and all other organizations, trades or businesses (whether or not incorporated, whether or not organized in the United States, and whether or not affiliated) owned or controlled directly or indirectly by the same interests within the meaning of section 482.

Question 3: Are research and development expenditures that are included in product area research limited to research and development expenditures that are deductible under section 174 or that are incurred by U.S. affiliates?

Answer 3: No, product area research is not limited to product area research expenditures deductible under section 174 or to expenses incurred by U.S. affiliates. Product area research also includes deductions permitted under section 168 with respect to research property which are not deductible under section 174: qualified research expenses within the meaning of section 30(b); payments (such as royalties) for the use of, or right to use, a patent, invention, formula, process, design, pattern or know-how: and a proper allowance for amounts incurred in the acquisition of manufacturing intangible property. In the case of an acquisition of depreciable or amortizable manufacturing intangible property, the annual amount of product area research shall be equal to the allowable depreciation or amortization on the intangible property for the taxable year. In the case of an acquisition of nondepreciable or nonamortizable manufacturing intangible property, the amount expended for the acquisition shall be deemed to be amortized over a five year period and included in product area research in the year of the deemed amortization. Any contingent payment made with respect to the acquisition of nonamortizable manufacturing intangible property shall be treated as amounts incurred in the acquisition of nonamortizable manufacturing intangible property when paid or accrued.

Question 4: Does royalty income from a person outside the affiliated group with respect to the manufacturing intangibles within a product area reduce the product area research pool within the same product area?

Answer 4: Yes.

Question 5: Does income received from a person outside the affiliated group from the sale of a manufacturing intangible reduce the product area research pool within the same product area?

Answer 5: In determining product area research, the income from the sale attributable to noncontingent payments will reduce product area research ratably over the remaining useful life of the property in the case of an amortizable intangible and ratably over a 5-year period in the case of anonamortizable intangible. Any income attributable to contingent amounts received with respect to the sale of manufacturing intangible property shall be treated as amounts received from the sale of the manufacturing intangible property in the year in which such contingent amounts are received or accrued.

Question 6: If a member of an affiliated group incurs research and development expenses pursuant to a contract with an unrelated person who is entitled to exclusive ownership of all the technology resulting from the expenditures, is the amount of product area research reduced by the amount of such expenditures?

Answer 6: To the extent that the product area research expenditures can be allocated solely to the technology produced for the unrelated person, such expenditures will not be included in product area research expenditures provided, however, that the unrelated person has exclusive ownership of all the technology resulting from these expenditures, and further that no member of the affiliated group has a right to use any of the technology.

Question 7: What is the treatment of product area research expenditures attributable to a component where the component and the integrated product fall within different product areas?

Answer 7: For purposes of the computation of product area research expenditures in the product area by the affiliated group, the product area in which the component falls is aggregated with the product area in which the integrated product falls. However, if the component product and integrated product are in separate SIC codes and if the component product is not included in the definition of the possession product, then the product area research expenditures are not aggregated. The same rule applies where the taxpayer elects a component product which encompasses another component product and the two component products fall into separate SIC codes. In such case, the product area in which the first component falls is aggregated with the product area in which the second component falls.

(2) Possession sales and total sales.

Question 1: The cost sharing payment is the same proportion of the total cost of product area research which the amount of "possession sales" of the affiliated group bears to the "total sales" of the affiliated group within the product area. How are "possession sales" defined for purposes of the cost sharing fraction?

Answer 1: The term "possession sales" means the aggregate sales or other dispositions of the possession product to persons who are not members of the affiliated group, less returns and allowances and less indirect taxes imposed on the production of the product, for the taxable year. Except as otherwise indicated in §1.936–6(a)(2), the sales price to be used is the sales price received by the affiliated group from persons who are not members of the affiliated group.

Question 2: For purposes of the numerator of the cost sharing fraction, how are possession sales computed where the possession product is a component product or an end-product form?

Answer 2: (i) The sales price of the component product or end-product form is determined as follows. With respect to a component product, an independent sales price from comparable uncontrolled transactions must be used if such price can be determined in accordance with §1.482–2(e)(2). If an independent sales price of the component product from comparable uncontrolled transactions cannot be determined, then the sales price of the component product shall be deemed to be equal to the transfer price, determined under the appropriate section 482 method, which the possessions corporation uses the cost sharing method in computing the income it derives from the active conduct of a trade or business in the possession with respect to the component product. The possessions corporation in lieu of using the transfer price determined under the preceding sentence may treat the sales price for the component product as equal to the same proportion of the third party sales price of the integrated product which the production costs attributable to the component product bear to the total production cost for the integrated product. Production cost will be the sum of direct and indirect production costs as defined in §1.936–5(b)(4). If the possessions corporation determines the sales price of the component product using the production cost ratio, the transfer price used by the possessions corporation in computing its income from the component product under the cost sharing method may not be greater than such sales price.

(ii) With respect to an end-product form, the sales price of the end-product form is equal to the difference between the third party sales price of the integrated product and the independent sales price of the excluded component(s) from comparable uncontrolled transactions, if such price can be determined under §1.482–2(e)(2). If an independent sales price of the excluded component(s) from uncontrolled transactions cannot be determined, then the sales price of the end-product form shall be deemed to be equal to the transfer price, determined under the appropriate section 482 method, which the possessions corporation uses under the cost sharing method in computing the income it derives from the active conduct of a trade or business in the possession with respect to such end-product form.

The possessions corporation in lieu of using the transfer price determined under the preceding sentence may use the production cost ratio method described above to determine the sales price of the end-product from (i.e., the same proportion of the third party sales price of the integrated product which the production costs attributable to the end-product form bear to the total production costs for the integrated product). If the possessions corporation determines the sales price of the end-product form using the production cost ratio, the transfer price used by the possessions corporation in computing its income from the end-product form under the cost sharing method may not be greater than such sales price. For similar rules applicable to the profit split option see §1.936–6(b)(1), question and answer 12.

Question 3: For purposes of determining possessions sales in the numerator of the coal sharing fraction, will the replacement part price of the product be treated as a price from comparable uncontrolled transactions?

Answer 3: Prices for replacement parts are generally higher than prices for equipment sold as part of an original system. Thus, prices for replacement parts cannot generally be used directly as prices for comparable uncontrolled transactions. However, replacement part prices may be used for estimating comparable uncontrolled prices where the price differential can be reasonably determined and taken into account under §1.482–2(e)(2).

Question 4: For purposes of determining possession sales in the cost sharing fraction, what is the treatment of components that are purchased by one possessions corporation from an affiliated possessions corporation and which are incorporated into a possession product where the transferor possessions corporation treats the transferred component as a possession product?

Answer 4: When one possessions corporation purchases components from a second possessions corporation which is an affiliated corporation, the purchase price of the components paid to the second possessions corporation shall be subtracted from the sales proceeds of the product produced in the possession by the first possessions corporation, and only the remainder is included in the numerator of the cost sharing formula for the first corporation. For example, assume that N corporation manufactures a component for sale to O corporation for $100 (a price which reflects prices in comparable uncontrolled transactions). Both N and O are affiliated possessions corporations. N has designated that component product as its possession product. O then incorporates that product into a second product which is sold to customers for $300. N and O must make separate cost sharing payments. The cost sharing payment of N corporation is determined by including $100 as possession sales, and the payment of O is determined by subtracting that $100 purchase price from the $300 received from customers. Thus, the possessions sales amount of O is $200. This rule is intended to prevent the double counting of the sales of a component produced by one possessions corporation and incorporated into another product by an affiliated possessions corporation.

Question 5: Are pre-TEFRA sales included in the cost sharing fraction?

Answer 5: No. Pre-TEFRA sales are sales of products produced by the possessions corporation and transferred to an affiliate prior to a possessions corporation's first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1982. Pre-TEFRA sales are not included in either the numerator or denominator of the cost sharing fraction. If the U.S. affiliate uses the FIFO method of costing inventory, the pre-TEFRA inventory will be treated as the first inventory sold by the U.S. affiliate during the first year in which sections 936(h) applies. If the U.S. affiliate uses the LIFO method of costing inventory (either dollar-value or specific goods LIFO), pre-TEFRA inventory will be treated as inventory sold by the U.S. affiliate in the year in which the U.S. affiliate's LIFO layer containing pre-TEFRA LIFO inventory is liquidated.

Question 6: How are "possession sales" determined under the cost sharing formula if members of the affiliated group (other than the possessions corporation) include purchases of the possession product, X, in a dollar-value LIFO inventory pool (as provided under §1.472-8)?

Answer 6: Possession sales may be determined by applying the revenue identification method provided under paragraph (b)(1) Question and Answer 18 of this section.

Question 7: Do possession sales include excise taxes paid by the possessions corporation when the product is sold for ultimate use or consumption in the possession?

Answer 7: No. The amount of excise taxes is excluded from both the numerator and denominator of the cost sharing fraction.

Question 8: How are "total sales" defined for purposes of the cost sharing fraction?

Answer 8: The term "total sales" means aggregate sales or other dispositions of products in the same product area as the possession product, less returns and allowances and less indirect taxes imposed on the production of the product, for the taxable year to persons who are not members of the affiliated group. The sales price to be used is the sales price received by the affiliated group from persons who are not members of the affiliated group.

Question 9: In computing the cost sharing payment, how are "total sales" computed if the dollar-value LIFO inventory pool includes some products which are not included in the product area (determined under the 3-digit SIC code) on which the denominator of the cost sharing fraction is based?

Answer 9: In such case, the amount of the total sales within the product area to persons who are not members of the affiliated group by persons who are members of the affiliated group is determined by multiplying the total sales of the products within the dollar-value LIFO inventory pool by a fraction. The numerator of the fraction includes the dollar-value of purchases by members of the affiliated group (including the possessions corporation) of products within the product area made during the year, plus any added production costs (as defined in §1.471–11(b), (c), and (d) but not including the costs of materials) incurred by the affiliates during the same period. The denominator of the fraction includes the dollar-value of purchases by members of the affiliated group (including the possessions corporation) of products within the dollar-value LIFO inventory pool made during the same period (including any production costs, as described above, incurred by the affiliate during the same period). For these purposes, purchases of a possession product are determined on the basis of the possessions corporation's cost for its inventory purposes.

Question 10: May a possessions corporation compute its income under the cost sharing method with respect to a possession product which the possessions corporation sells to a member of its affiliated group and which that member then leases to an unrelated person or uses in its own trade or business?

Answer 10: Yes, provided that an independent sales price for the possession product from comparable uncontrolled transactions can be determined in accordance with §1.482–2(e)(2), and, provided further, that such member complies with the requirements of §1.936–6(a)(2), question and answer 14. If, however, there is a comparable uncontrolled price for an integrated product and the possession product is a component product or end-product form thereof, the possessions corporation may, if such member complies with the requirements of §1.936–6(a)(2), question and answer 14, compute its income under the cost sharing method with respect to such possession product. In that case, the cost sharing payment shall be computed under the following question and answer.

Question 11: How are possession sales and total sales to be determined for purposes of computing the cost sharing payment with respect to a possession product which the possessions corporation sells to a member of its affiliated group where that member then leases the possession product to unrelated persons or uses it in its own trade or business?

Answer 11: If the possessions corporation is entitled to compute its income from such sales of the possession product under the cost sharing method, both possession sales and total sales shall be determined as if the possession product had been sold by the affiliate to an unrelated person at the time the possession product was first leased or otherwise placed in service by the affiliate. The sales price on such deemed sale shall be equal to the independent sales price from comparable uncontrolled transactions determined in accordance with §1.482–2(e)(2), if any. If the possession product is a component product or an end-product form for which there is no such independent sales price but there is a comparable uncontrolled price for the integrated product which includes the possession product, the deemed sales price of the possession product shall be computed under the rules of §1.936–6(a)(2) question and answer 2. The full amount of income received under the lease shall be treated as income of (and taxed to) the affiliate and not the possessions corporation.

Question 12: When may a possessions corporation take into account in computing total sales under the cost sharing method products in the same product area as the possession product (other than the possession product itself) where such products are leased by members of the affiliated group to unrelated persons or used by any such member in its own trade or business?

Answer 12: For purposes of computing total sales under the cost sharing method, the possessions corporation may take into account products in the same product area as the possession product itself where such products are leased by members of the affiliated group to unrelated persons or used in the trade or business of any such member, but only if an independent sales price for such products from comparable uncontrolled transactions may be determined under §1.482–2(e)(2). In such cases, the units of such products which are leased or otherwise used internally by members of the affiliated group may be treated as sold to unrelated persons for such independent sales price for purposes of computing total sales.

Question 13: Assuming that a possessions corporation is entitled to compute its income under the cost sharing method with respect to sales of a possession product to affiliates in cases where those affiliates lease units of the possession product to unrelated persons or use them internally, is the possessions corporation's income from the possession product any different than if the affiliates had sold the product to unrelated parties?

Answer 13: No.

Question 14: If a possessions corporation sells units of a possession product to a member of its affiliated group and that affiliate then leases those units to an unrelated person or uses the units in its own trade or business, what requirements must the affiliate meet in order for the possessions corporation to be entitled to the benefits of the cost sharing method with respect to such units?

Answer 14: (i) For taxable years of the possessions corporation beginning on or before June 13, 1986, the affiliate need not meet any special requirements in order for the possessions corporation be entitled to the benefits of the cost sharing method with respect to such units. Thus, the affiliate's basis in such units shall be equal to the transfer price used for computing the possessions corporation's gross income with respect to such units under section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(II), and the income derived by the affiliate from such lease or internal use shall be reported by the affiiate when and to the extent actually derived. The affiliate shall not be deemed to have sold such units to an unrelated party at the time they were first leased or otherwise placed in service for any purpose other than the computation of possession sales and total sales. A similar rule applies to other products in the same product area as the possession product which are sold by any member in its own trade or business and which the possessions corporation takes into account in computing total sales under the cost sharing method.

(ii) For taxable years of the possessions corporations beginning after June 13, 1986, a possessions corporations will not be entitled to the benefits of the cost sharing method with respect to units of the possession product which the possessions corporation sells to an affiliate where the affiliate then leases such units to an unrelated person or uses them in its own trade or business, unless the affiliate agrees to be treated for all tax purposes as having sold such units to an unrelated party at the time they were first leased or otherwise placed in service by such affiliate.

The affiliate must demonstrate such agreement by reporting its income from such units as if: (A) it had sold such units to an unrelated person at such time at a price equal to the price used to compute possessions sales under §1.936–6(a)(2), question and answer 11; (B) it had immediately repurchased such units for the same price; and (C) its basis in such units for all subsequent purposes was equal to its cost basis from such deemed repurchase. For treatment of other products in the same product area as the possession product see §1.936–6(a)(2), question and answer 12.

(iii) The principles contained in question and answers 11, 12, 13, and 14 are illustrated by the following example:

Example. Possessions corporation S and its affiliate A are calendar year taxpayers. In 1985, S manufactures 100 units of possession product X. S sells 50 units of X to unrelated persons in arm's length transactions for $20 per unit. In applying the cost sharing method to determine the portion of its gross income from such sales which qualifies for the possessions tax credit, S determines that $8 of the $10 sales price may be taken into account. S sells the remaining 50 units of X to A, and A then leases such units to unrelated persons. In 1985, A also manufactures 100 units of product Y, the only other product in the same product area as X manufactured or sold by any member of the affiliated group. A manufactured the 100 units of Y at a cost of $15 per unit, sold 50 units of Y to unrelated persons in arm's length transactions for $20 per unit, and leased the remaining 50 units of Y to unrelated persons.

S may compute its income under the cost sharing method with respect to the 50 units of X it sold to A because S can determine an independent sales price of X from comparable uncontrolled transactions under §1.482–2(e)(2). For purposes of computing both possessions sales and total sales, the 50 units of X sold to A will be deemed to have been sold by A to an unrelated person for $10 per unit. The income of S qualifying for the possessions tax credit from the sale of those 50 units of X to A, and A's basis in those units, will both be determined using the $8 transfer price determined under section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(II). For purposes of computing total sales in the denominator of the cost sharing fraction, S may also take into account the 50 units of Y leased by A to unrelated persons, as if A had sold those units for $20 per unit. A's basis in those units of Y will continue to be its actual cost basis of $15 per unit.

If all of the above transactions had occurred in 1987, S would be entitled to compute its income under the cost sharing method with respect to the 50 units of X it sold to A only if A agreed to be treated for all tax purposes as if it had sold such units for $10 per unit, realized income on such deemed sale of $2 per unit, repurchased such units immediately for $10 per unit, and then leased such units, which would then have a $10 per unit basis in A's hands. For purposes of computing total sales, S would be entitled to take into account the 50 units of X leased by A to unrelated persons as if A had sold such units for $20 per unit.

(3) Credits against cost sharing payments.

Question 1: Is the cost of product area research paid or accrued by the possessions corporation in a taxable year creditable against the cost sharing payment?

Answer 1: Yes, if the cost of the product area research is paid or accrued solely by the possessions corporation. Thus, payments by the possessions corporation under cost sharing arrangements with, or royalties paid to, unrelated persons are so creditable. Amounts (such as royalties) paid directly or indirectly to, or on behalf of, related persons and amounts paid under any cost sharing agreements with related persons are not creditable against the cost sharing payment.

Question 2: Do royalties or other payments made by an affiliate of the possessions corporation to another member of the affiliated group reduce the cost sharing payment if such royalities or other payments are based, in part, on activity of the possessions corporation?

Answer 2: No. Payments made between affiliated corporations do not reduce the cost sharing payment. Thus, for example, if a possessions corporation sells a component to a foreign affiliate for incorporation by the foreign affiliate into an integrated product sold to unrelated persons, and the foreign affiliate pays a royalty to the U.S. parent of the possessions corporation based on the total value of the integrated product, the cost sharing payment of the possessions corporation is not reduced.

(4) Computation of cost sharing payment.

Question 1: S is a possessions corporation engaged in the manufacture and sale of four products (A, B, C, and D) all of which are classified under the same three-digit SIC code. S sells its production to a U.S. affiliate, P, which resells it to unrelated parties in the United States. P's third party sales of each of these products produced in whole or in part by S (computed as provided under paragraph (a)(2) of §1.936–6) are $1 million or a total of $4 million for A, B, C, and D. P's other sales of products in the same SIC code are $3,000.000; and the defined worldwide product area research of the affiliated group is $350,000. How should S compute the cost sharing amount for products A, B, C, and D?

Answer 1: The cost sharing amount is computed separately for each product on Schedule P of Form 5735. S should use the following formula for each of the products A, B, C, and D:

$$\frac{$1,000,000}{$7,000,000} \times $350,000 = $50,000$$

Question 2: The facts are the same as in question 1 except that S manufactures product D under a license from an unrelated person. S pays the unrelated party an annual license fee of $20,000. Thus, the worldwide product area research expense of the affiliated group is $370,000. How should the cost sharing payment be adjusted?

Answer 2: The cost sharing fee should be reduced by the $20,000 license fee made as a direct annual payment to a third party on account of product D. The cost sharing payment with respect to product D in this example will be adjusted as follows:

$$\frac{\text{Sales to unrelated persons of possession product}}{\text{Total sales of products in SIC code}} \times \text{World-wide product area research} - \text{Amount paid by the possessions corporation to an unrelated party}$$

$$\frac{$1,000,000}{$7,000,000} \times $370,000 - $20,000 = $32,857$$

Question 3: The facts are the same as in question 1 except that S also manufactures and exports product E to a foreign affiliate, which resells it to unrelated persons for $1 million. S makes a separate election for its export sales. How should S compute the cost sharing amount for product E?

Answer 3: The numerator of the cost sharing fraction is the aggregate sales or other dispositions by members of the affiliated group of the units of product E produced in whole or in part in the possession to persons who are not members of the affiliated group. The cost sharing amount for product E would be computed as follows:

$$\frac{$1{,}000{,}000}{($7{,}000{,}000 + $1{,}000{,}000)} \times $350{,}000 = $43{,}750$$

Question 4: The facts are the same as in question 1, except that S also receives $10,000 in royalty income from unrelated persons for the licensing of certain manufacturing intangible property rights. What is the amount of the product area research that must be allocated in determining the cost sharing amount?

Answer 4: If the affiliated group receives royalty income from unrelated persons with respect to manufacturing intangibles in the same product area, then the product area research to be considered shall be first reduced by such royalty income. In this case, the amount of product area research to be used in determining S's cost sharing payment should be reduced by the $10,000 royalty payment received to $340,000.

Question 5: May a possessions corporation redetermine the amount of its required cost sharing payment after filing its tax return?

Answer 5: If after filing its tax return, a possessions corporation files an amended return, or if an adjustment is made on audit, either of which affects the amount of the cost sharing payment required, then a redetermination of the cost sharing payment must be made. See, however, section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(III)(a) with respect to the increase in the cost sharing payment due to interest imposed under section 6601(a).

(5) Effect of election under the cost sharing method.

Question 1: What is the effect of the cost sharing method?

Answer 1: The cost sharing payment reduces the amount of deductions (and the amount of reductions in earnings and profits) otherwise allowable to the U.S. affiliates (other than tax-exempt affiliates) within the affiliated group as determined under section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(I)(b) which have incurred research expenditures (as defined in §1.936-6(a)(1), question and answer 3) in the same product area for which the cost sharing option is elected, during the taxable year in which the cost sharing payment accrues. If there are no such U.S. affiliates, the reductions with respect to deductions and earnings and profits, as the case may be, are made with respect to foreign affiliates within the same affiliated group which have incurred product area research expenditures in such product area attributable to a U.S. trade or business. If there are no affiliates which have incurred research expenditures in such product area, the reductions are then made with respect to any other U.S. affiliate and, if there is no such U.S. affiliate, then to any other foreign affiliate. The allocations of these reductions in each case shall be made in proportion to the gross income of the affiliates. In the case of foreign affiliates, the allocation shall be made in proportion to gross income attributable to the U.S. trade or business or worldwide gross income, as the case may be. With respect to each group above, the reduction of deductions shall be applied first to the deductions under section 174, then to deductions under section 162, and finally to any other deductions on a pro rata basis.

Question 2: For purposes of estimated tax payments, when is the cost sharing amunt deemed to accrue?

Answer 2: The cost sharing amount is deemed to accrue to the appropriate affiliate on the last day of the taxable year of each such affiliate in which or with which the taxable year of the possessions corporation ends.

Question 3: If the cost sharing method is elected and the year of accrual of the cost sharing payment to the appropriate affiliate (described in question and answer 1 of this paragraph (a)(5)) differs from the year of actual payment by the possessions corporation, in what year are the deductions of the recipients reduced?

Answer 3: In the year the cost sharing payment has accrued.

Question 4: What is the treatment of income from intangibles under the cost sharing method?

Answer 4: Under the cost sharing method, a possessions corporation is treated as the owner, for purposes of obtaining a return thereon, of manufacturing intangibles related to a possession product. The term "manufacturing intangible" means any patent, invention, formula, process, design, pattern, or knowhow. The possessions corporation will not be treated as the owner, for purposes of obtaining a return thereon, of any manufacturing intangibles related to a component product produced by an affiliated corporation and transferred to the possessions corporation for incorporation into the possession product, except in the case that the possession product is treated as including such component product for all purposes of section 936(h)(5). Further, the possessions corporation will not be treated as the owner, for purposes of obtaining a return thereon, of any marketing intangibles except "covered intangibles." (See §1.936-6(c).)

Question 5: If the cost sharing option is elected, is it necessary for the possessions corporation to be the legal owner of the manufacturing intangibles related to the possession product in order for the possessions corporation to receive a full return with respect to such intangibles?

Answer 5: No. There is no requirement that manufacturing intangibles be owned by the possessions corporation.

Question 6: How is income attributable to marketing intangibles treated under the cost sharing method?

Answer 6: Except in the case of "covered intangibles" (see §1.936-6(c)), the possessions corporation is not treated as the owner of any marketing intangibles, and income attributable to marketing intangibles of the possessions corporation will be allocated to the possessions corporation's U.S. shareholders with the proration of income based on shareholders. If a shareholder of the possessions corporation is a foreign person or is otherwise tax exempt, the possessions corporation is taxable on that shareholder's pro rata amount of the intangible property income. If the possessions corporation is a corporation any class of the stock of which is regularly traded on an established securities market, then the income attributable to marketing intangibles will be taxable to the possessions corporation rather than the corporation's U.S. shareholders.

Question 7: What is the source of the intangible property income described in question and answer 6?

Answer 7: The intangible property income is U.S. source whether taxed to the U.S. shareholder or taxed to the possessions corporation and section 863(b) does not apply for this purpose. However, such intangible property income, if treated as income of the possessions corporation, does not enter into the calculation of the 80-percent possession source test or the 65-percent active trade or business test.

Question 8: May marketing intangible income, if any, be allocated to the possessions corporation with respect to custom-made products?

Answer 8: No. If the cost sharing option is elected, then income attributable to marketing intangibles (other than "covered intangibles" described in §1.936-6(c)) will be taxed as discussed in questions and answers 6 and 7 of paragraph (a)(5) of this section. It is immaterial whether the product is custom-made.

Question 9: In order to sell a pharmaceutical product in the United States, a New Drug Application ("NDA") for the product must be approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Is an NDA considered a manufacturing or marketing intangible for purposes of the allocation of income under the cost sharing method?

Answer 9: A manufacturing intangible.

Question 10: Can a copyright be, in whole or in part, a manufacturing intangible for purposes of the allocation of income under the cost sharing method?

Answer 10: In general, a copyright is a marketing intangible. See section 936(h)(3)(B)(ii). However, copyrights may be treated either as manufacturing intangibles or nonmanufacturing intangibles (or as partly each) depending upon the function or the use of the copyright. If the copyright is used in manufacturing, it will be treated as a manufacturing intangible; but if it is used in marketing, even if it is also classified as know-how, it will be treated as a marketing intangible.

Question 11: If the cost sharing option is elected and a patent is related to the product produced by the possessions corporation, does the return to the possessions corporation with respect to the manufacturing intangible include the make, use, and sell elements of the patent?

Answer 11: Yes. A patent confers an exclusive right for 17 years to sell a product covered by the patent. During this period, the return to the possessions corporation includes the make, use and sell elements of the patent.

Question 12: For purposes of the cost sharing option, may a safe haven rule be applied to determine the amount of marketing intangible income?

Answer 12: No. The amount of marketing intangible income is determined on the basis of all relevant facts and circumstances. The section 482 regulations will continue to apply except to the extent modified by the election. Rev. Proc. 63-10 and Rev. Proc. 66-22 do not apply for this purpose.

Question 13: If a product covered by the cost sharing election is sold by a possessions corporation to an affiliated corporation for resale to an unrelated party, may the resale price method under section 482 be used to determine the intercompany price of the possessions corporation?

Answer 13: In general, the resale price method may be used if (a) no comparable uncontrolled price for the product exists, and (b) the affiliated corporation does not add a substantial amount of value to the product by manufacturing or by the provision of services which are reflected in the sales price of the product to the customer. The possessions corporation will not be denied use of the resale price method for purposes of such intercompany pricing merely because the reseller adds more than an insubstantial amount to the value of the product by the use of intangible property.

Question 14: If a possessions corporation makes the cost sharing election and uses the cost-plus method under section 482 to determine the arm's-length price of a possession product, will the cost base include cost of materials which are subject to processing or which are components in the possession product?

Answer 14: A taxpayer may include the cost of materials in the cost base if it is appropriate under the regulations under §1.482-2(e)(4).

Question 15: If the possessions corporation computes its income with respect to a product under the cost sharing method, and the price of the product is determined under the cost-plus method under section 482, does the cost base used in computing cost-plus under section 482 include the amount of the cost sharing payment?

Answer 15: The amount of the cost sharing payment is included in the cost base. However, no profit with respect to the cost sharing payment will be allowed.

Question 16: If a member of the affiliated group transfers to a possessions corporation a component which is incorporated into a possession product, how will the transfer price for the component be determined?

Answer 16: The transfer price for the component will be determined under section 482, and as follows. If the possession product is treated as not including such component for purposes of section 936(h)(5), the transfer price paid for the component will include a return on all intangibles related to the component product. If the possession product is treated as including such component for purposes of section 936(h)(5), then the transfer price paid for the component by the possessions corporation will not include a return on any manufacturing intangible related to the component product, and the possessions corporation will obtain the return on the manufacturing intangibles associated with the component.

Question 17: If the possessions corporation computes its income with respect to a product under the cost sharing method, with respect to which units of the product shall the possessions corporation be treated as owning intangible property as a result of having made the cost sharing election?

Answer 17: The possessions corporation shall not be treated as owning intangible property, as a result of having made the cost sharing election, with respect to any units of a possession product which were not taken into account by the possessions corporation in applying the significant business presence test for the current taxable year or for any prior taxable year in which the possessions corporation also had a significant business presence in the possession with respect to such product.

Question 1: In determining combined taxable income from sales of a possession product, how are the allocations and apportionments of expenses, losses, and other deductions to be determined?

Answer 1: (i) Expenses, losses, and other deductions are to be allocated and apportioned on a "fully-loaded" basis under §1.861-8 to the combined gross income of the possessions corporation and other members of the affiliated group (other than foreign affiliates). For purposes of the profit split option, the term "affiliated group" is defined the same as under §1.936-6(a)(1) question and answer 2. The amount of research, development, and experimental expenses allocated and apportioned to combined gross income is to be determined under §1.861-8(e)(3). The amount of research, development and experimental expenses and related deductions (such as royalties paid or accrued with respect to manufacturing intangibles by the possessions corporation or other domestic members of the affiliated group to unrelated persons or to foreign affiliates) allocated and apportioned to combined gross income shall in no event be less than the amount of the cost sharing payment that would have been required under the rules set forth in section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(II) and paragraph (a) of this section if the cost sharing option had been elected. Other expenses which are subject to §1.861–8(e) are to be allocated and apportioned in accordance with that section. For example, interest expense (including payments made with respect to bonds issued by the Puerto Rican Industrial, Medical and Environmental Control Facilities Authority (AFICA)) is to be allocated and apportioned under §1.861–8(e)(2). With the exception of marketing and distribution expenses discussed below, the other remaining expenses which are definitely related to a class of gross income shall be allocated to that class of gross income and shall be apportioned on the basis of any reasonable method, as described in §1.861–8(b)(3) and (c)(1). Examples of such methods may include, but are not limited to, those specified in §1.861–8(c)(1)(i) through (vi).

(ii) The class of gross income to which marketing and distribution expenses relate and shall be allocated is generally to be defined by the same "product area" as is determined for the relevant research, development, and experimental expenses (i.e., the appropriate 3-digit SIC code), but shall include only gross income generated or reasonably expected to be generated from the geographic area or areas to which the expenses relate. It shall be presumed that marketing and distribution expenses relate to all product sales within the same product area. If, however, it can be established that any of these expenses are separately identifiable expenses, such as advertising, and relate, directly or indirectly, solely to a specific product or a specific group of products, such expenses shall be allocated to the class of gross income defined by the specific product or group of products. Thus, advertising and other separately identifiable marketing expenses which relate specifically and exclusively to a particular product must be allocated entirely to the gross income from that product, even though the taxpayer or other members of an affiliated group which includes the taxpayer produce and market other products in the same 3-digit SIC code classification. The mere display of a company logo or mention of a company name solely in the context of identifying the manufacturer shall not prevent an advertisement from relating specifically and exclusively to a particular product or group of products.

(iii) If marketing and distribution expenses are allocated to a class of gross income which consists both of income from sales of possession products (the statutory grouping) and other income such as from sales by U.S. affiliates of products not produced in the possession (the residual grouping), then these marketing and distribution expenses shall be apportioned on a "fully loaded" basis which reflects, to a reasonably close extent, the factual relationship between these deductions and the statutory and residual groupings of gross income. Apportionment methods based upon comparisons of amounts incurred before ultimate sale of a product (including apportionment on a comparison of costs of goods sold, other expenses incurred, or other comparisons set forth in §1.861–8(c)(1)(v), such as time spent) are not on a "fully-loaded" basis and do not reflect this required factual relationship. These deductions shall be apportioned on a basis of comparison of the amount of gross sales or receipts or another method if it is established that such method similarly reflects the required factual relationship. Thus, for example, a comparison of units sold may be used only where the units are of the same or similar value and are, thus, in fact comparable.

(iv) The rules for allocation and apportionment of marketing and distribution expenses may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Assume that possessions corporation A manufactures prescription pharmaceutical product #1 for resale by P, its U.S. parent corporation, in the United States. Additionally, assume that P manufactures prescription pharmaceutical products #2 and #3 in the United States for sale there. Further, assume that all three products are within the same product area, and that marketing and distribution expenses are internally divided by P among the three products on the basis of time spent by sales persons of P on marketing of the three products, as follows:

Product #1— 50X
Product #2— 80X
Total—240X

These expenses of 240X are allocated to gross income generated by all three products and shall be apportioned on the basis of gross sales or receipts of product #1 as compared to products #2 and #3 or another method which similarly reflects the factual relationship between these expenses and gross income derived from product #1 and products #2 and #3. Thus, if a sales method were used and sales of product #1 accounted for one-third of sales receipts from the three products, 80X (240 ÷ 3) of marketing and distribution expenses would be apportioned to the combined gross income from product #1.

Example (2). Corporation B produces and sells Brand W whiskey, in the United States. B's subsidiary, S, which is a possessions corporation, produces soft drink extract in Puerto Rico which it sells to independent bottlers to produce Brand S soft drinks for sale in the United States. Corporation B's advertisements and other promotional materials for Brand W whiskey make no reference to Brand S soft drinks (or any other Corporation B products), and Brand S soft drink advertisements and other promotional materials make no reference to Brand W whiskey (or any other corporation B products). For purposes of section 936(h), the advertising and other promotional expenses for Brand W whiskey must be allocated entirely to the gross income from sales of Brand W whiskey and the advertising and other promotional expenses for Brand S soft drink must be allocated entirely to the gross income from the sales of soft drink extract, notwithstanding the fact that whiskey and soft drink extract are both included in SIC code 208. A similar result would apply, for example, to separately identifiable advertising and other marketing expenses which relate specifically and exclusively to one or the other of the following pairs of products: chewing gum and granulated sugar (SIC code 206); canned tuna fish and freeze-dried coffee (SIC code 209); children's underwear and ladies' brassieres (SIC code 234); aspirin tablets and prescription antibiotic tablets (SIC code 283); floor wax and perfume (SIC code 284); adhesives and inks (SIC code 289); semiconductors and cathode-ray tubes (SIC code 367); batteries and extension cords (SIC code 369); bandages and dental supplies (SIC code 384); stainless steel flatware and jewelry parts (SIC code 391); children's toys and sporting goods (SIC code 394); hair curlers and zippers (SIC code 396); and paint brushes and linoleum tiles (SIC code 399).

Example (3). Assume the same facts as in Example (1) and that possessions corporation A also manufactures aspirin, a non-prescription product, for resale by its U.S. parent corporation, P. Further, assume that the advertising and separately identifiable marketing expenses which relate specifically and exclusively to aspirin sales total $100 and that these expenses are allocable solely to gross income derived from aspirin sales. The sales method continues to be used to apportion the marketing and distribution expenses related, directly or indirectly, to products #1, #2, and #3, and the apportionment of such expenses to product #1 for purposes of determining combined taxable income from product #1 will remain as stated in Example (1). None of the advertising and other separately identifiable marketing expenses which relate specifically and exclusively to aspirin will be taken into account in allocating and apportioning the marketing and distribution expenses relating to the gross income attributable to products #1, #2, and #3. Gross income attributable to aspirin will be considered as a separate class of gross income, and all the advertising and separately identifiable marketing expenses which relate specifically and exculsively to aspirin sales of $100 will be allocated to the class of gross income derived from aspirin sales. Similarly, none of the marketing and distribution expenses, directly or indirectly, related solely to the group of products #1, #2, and #3 will be taken into account in determining the combined taxable income from aspirin sales. The remaining marketing and distribution expenses which do not, directly or indirectly, relate solely to any specific product or group of products (e.g., the salaries of a Vice-President of Marketing who has responsibility for marketing all products and his staff) shall be allocated and apportioned on the basis of the gross receipts from the sales of all of the products (or a similar method) in determining combined taxable income of any product.

Question 2: How may the allocation and apportionment of expenses to combined gross income be verified?

Answer 2: Substantiation of the allocation and apportionment of expenses will be required upon audit of the possessions corporation and affiliates. Detailed substantiation may be necessary, particularly where the entities are engaged in multiple lines of business involving distinct product areas. Sources of substantiation may include certified financial reports. Form 10-K's, annual reports, internal production reports, product line assembly work papers, and other relevant materials. In this regard, see §1.861–8(f)(5).

Question 3: Does section 936(h) override the moratorium provided by section 223 of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 and any subsequent similar moratorium?

Answer 3: Yes. Thus, the allocation and apportionment of product area research described in question and answer 1 must be made without regard to the moratorium.

Question 4: Is the cost of samples treated as a marketing expense?

Answer 4: Yes. The cost of producing samples will be treated as a marketing expense and not as inventoriable costs for purposes of determining combined taxable income (and compliance with the significant business presence test). However, for taxable years beginning prior to January 1, 1986, the cost of producing samples may be treated as either a marketing expense or as inventoriable costs.

Question 5: If a possessions corporation uses the profit split method to determine its taxable income from sales of a product, how does it determine its gross income for purposes of the 80-percent possession source test and the 85-percent active trade or business test of section 936(a)(2)?

Answer 5: One-half of the deductions of the affiliated group (other than foreign affiliates) which are used in determining the combined taxable income from sales of the product are added to the portion of the combined taxable income allocated to the possessions corporation in order to determine the possessions corporation's gross income from sales of such product.

Question 6: How will income from intangibles related to a possession product be treated under the profit split method?

Answer 6: Combined taxable income of the possessions corporation and affiliates from the sale of the possession product will include income attributable to all intangibles, including both manufacturing and marketing intangibles, associated with the product.

Question 7: Can a possessions corporation apply the profit split option to a possession product if no U.S. affiliates derive income from the sale of the possession product?

Answer 7: Yes.

Question 8: With respect to the factual situation discussed in question and answer 7, how is combined taxable income computed?

Answer 8: The profit split option is applied to the taxable income of the possessions corporation from sales of the possession product to foreign affiliates and unrelated persons. Fifty percent of that income is allocated to the possessions corporation, and the remainder is allocated to the appropriate affiliates as described in question and answer 13 of this paragraph (b)(1).

Question 9: May a possessions corporation compute its income under the profit split method with respect to units of a possession product which it sells to a U.S. affiliate if the U.S. affiliate leases such units to unrelated persons or to foreign affiliates or uses such units in its own trade or business?

Answer 9: Yes, provided that an independent sales price for the possession product from comparable uncontrolled transactions can be determined in accordance with §1.482–2(e)(2). If, however, there is a comparable uncontrolled price for an integrated product and the possession product is a component product or end-product from thereof, the possessions corporation may compute its income under the profit split method with respect to such units. In either case, the possessions corporation shall compute combined taxable income with respect to such units under the following question and answer.

Question 10: If a possessions corporation is entitled to use the profit split method in the situation described in Question 9, how should it compute combined taxable income with respect to such units?

Answer 10: Combined taxable income shall be computed as if the U.S. affiliate had sold the units to an unrelated person (or to a foreign affiliate) at the time the units were first leased or otherwise placed in service by the U.S. affiliate. The sales price on such deemed sale shall be equal to the independent sales price from comparable uncontrolled transactions determined in accordance with §1.482–2(e)(2), if any. If the possession product is a component product or an end-product form for which there is no such independent sales price but there is a comparable uncontrolled price for the integrated product which includes the possession product, the deemed sales price of the possession product shall be computed under the rules of §1.936–6(b)(1) question and answer 12. The full amount of income received under the lease shall be treated as income of (and taxed to) the U.S. affiliate and not the possessions corporation.

Question 11: In the situation described in question 9, how does the U.S. affiliate determine its basis in such units for purposes of computing depreciation and similar items?

Answer 11: The U.S. affiliate shall be treated, for purposes of computing its basis in such units, as if it had repurchased such units immediately following the deemed sales described in question 10, at the same independent sales price, or other price computed with respect to a component product or end-product form referred to in that question.

The principles of questions and answers 10 and 11 are illustrated by the following example.

Example: Possessions corporation S manufactures 100 units of possession product X. S sells 50 units of X to an unrelated person in an arm's length transaction for $10 per unit. S sells the remaining 50 units to its U.S. affiliate, A, which leases such units to unrelated persons. The combined taxable income for the 100 units of X is computed below on the basis of the given production, sales, and cost data:

Sales
1. Total sales by S to unrelated persons (50 × $10)	$ 500
2. Total deemed sales by A to unrelated persons (50 × $10)	500
3. Total gross receipts (line 1 plus line 2)	1,000
Total Costs
4. Material Costs	200
5. Production costs	300
6. Research expenses	0
7. Other expenses	100
8. Total (add lines 4 through 7)	600
Combined taxable income attributable to the 100 units of X:
9. Combined taxable income (line 3 minus line 8)	400
10. Share of combined taxable income apportioned to S (50% of line 9)	200
11. Share of combined taxable income apportioned to A (line 9 minus line 10)	200
A's basis in 50 units of X leased by it to unrelated persons:
12. 50 units times $10 deemed repurchase price	500

*Subsequent leasing income is entirely taxed to A.

Question 12: If the possession product is a component product or an end-product form, how is the combined taxable income for such product to be determined?

Answer 12: (i) In computing combined taxable income, the sales price of the component product or end-product form is determined as follows. With respect to a component product, an independent sales price from comparable uncontrolled transactions must be used if such price can be determined in accordance with §1.482-2(e)(2). If an independent sales price of the component product from comparable uncontrolled transactions cannot be determined, then the possessions corporation must treat the sales price for the component product as equal to the same proportion of the third party sales price of the integrated product which the production costs attributable to the component product bear to the total production costs for the integrated product. Production costs will be the sum of direct and indirect production costs as defined in §1.936-5(b)(4).

(ii) With respect to an end-product form, the sales price of the end-product form is equal to the difference between the third party sales price of the integrated product and the independent sales price of the excluded component(s), from comparable uncontrolled transactions, if such price can be determined under §1.482-2(e)(2). If an independent sales price of the excluded component(s) from uncontrolled transactions cannot be determined, then the possessions corporation must use the production cost ratio method described above to determine the sales price of the excluded component(s) (i.e., the same proportion of the third party sales price of the integrated product which the production costs attributable to the excluded component(s) bear to the total production costs for the integrated product). If the production cost ratio is used, the sales price of the end-product form is the difference between the third party sales price of the integrated product and the sales price of the excluded component(s) determined using the production cost ratio. The possessions corporation will determine its costs (other than costs incurred for materials purchased from a U.S. affiliate) attributable to the possession product and its expenses allocable and apportionable to the possession product under §1.861-8, as described in question and answer 1 of this paragraph (b)(1).

Each member of the affiliated group that is a United States person, other than the possessions corporation, shall determine its costs (other than costs incurred for materials purchased from a U.S. affiliate) attributable to the possession product, and its expenses allocable and apportionable to the integrated product under §1.861-8, as described in question and answer 1 of this paragraph (b)(1). Each such United States person (other than the possessions corporation) shall apportion to the possession product, on the basis of the ratio of the production costs for the possession product to the total production costs for the integrated product, the expenses that such affiliate allocated and apportioned to the integrated product. Production costs will be the sum of direct and indirect production costs as defined in question and answer 1 of §1.936-5(b)(4).

Example: A possessions corporation, S, is engaged in the manufacture of microprocessors. S obtains a component from a U.S. affiliate, O. S sells its production to another U.S. affiliate, P, which incorporates the microprocessors into central processing units (CPUs). P transfers the CPUs to a U.S. affiliate, Q, which incorporates them into computers for sale to unrelated customers. S chooses to define the possession product as the CPUs. The combined taxable income for the CPUs is computed below on the basis of the given production, sales, and cost data:

Production costs (excluding costs of materials):
1. O's costs for the component	75
2. S's costs for the microprocessors	400
3. P's costs for the CPUs	125
4. Q's costs for the computers	150
5. Total (add lines 1 through 4)	750
6. Combined production costs for the CPUs (add lines 1 through 3)	600
7. Ratio of production costs for the CPUs (the possession product) to the production costs for the computers (the integrated product)	0.8
Sales:
8. Total sales by O to unrelated customers and foreign affiliates of computers containing microprocessors produced by S	5,000
9. Sales value of the CPUs (determined under the comparable uncontrolled price method of §1.936-6(a)(2) question and answer 2)	4,200
Total costs of S (excluding costs of materials obtained from U.S. affiliates):
10. Production costs of S (enter from line 2)	400
11. Materials costs (excluding materials obtained from U.S. affiliates)	100
12. General and administrative expenses	250
13. Other expenses interest, etc.	250
14. Total (add lines 10 through 13)	1,000
Research expenses of the affiliated group allocable and apportionable to the CPUs:
15. Total sales in the 3-digit SIC code	8,000
16. Possession sales (enter from line 9)	4,200
17. Cost sharing fraction (divided line 16 by line 15)	0.525
18. Research expenses incurred by the affiliated group in the 3-digit SIC code	600
19. Cost sharing amount (multiply line 17 by line 18)	315
20. Research of the affiliated group (other than foreign affilates) allocable and apportionable under §1.861-8(e)(3) to the computers (the integrated product)	350
21. Research apportionable to the CPUs (multiply line 20 by line 7)	280
22. Enter the greater of line 19 or line 21	315
Other expenses of the affiliated group (other than S and foreign affilates) allocable or apportionable to the CPUs:
23. Marketing general and administrative, interest and other expenses of the affiliated group (other than S and foreign affiliates) which are allocable and apportionable to the computers or to any components thereof	500
24. Expenses apportionable to the CPUs (multiply line 23 by line 7)	400
Combined taxable income attributable to the CPUs:
25. Combined taxable income (line 9 minus lines 1, 3, 14, 22 and 24)	2,285
26. Share of combined taxable income apportioned to S (50% of line 25)	1,142.5
27. Adjustment to research expense (Enter the greater of zero or line 19 minus line 21)	35
28. Adjusted combined taxable income (line 27 plus line 25)	2,320
29. Share of combined taxable income apportioned to U.S. affiliates of S (line 28 less line 26)	1,177.5

Question 13: If the profit split option is elected, how is the portion of combined taxable income not allocated to the possessions corporation to be treated?

Answer 13: The income shall be allocated (i) to U.S. affiliates (other tax exempt affiliates) within the group (as determined under section 482) which derive income with respect to the product produced in whole or in part in the possession; or (ii) if there are no such U.S. affiliates, to U.S. affiliates (other than tax-exempt affiliates) which derive income from the active conduct of a trade or business in the same product area as the possession product; or (iii) if there are no such affiliates as described in (i) or (ii) above, then to other U.S. affiliates (other than tax-exempt affiliates); or (iv) if there are no U.S. affiliates (other than tax-exempt affiliates), to foreign affiliates which derive from the active conduct of a U.S. trade or business in the same product area as the possesion product (or, if the foreign members are resident in a country with which the U.S. has an income tax convention, then to those foreign members which have a permanent establishment in the United States which derives income in the same area as the possession product); or (v) if there are no affiliates described in (i) through (iv) above, then to all other affiliates. The allocations made under (i) shall be made on the basis of the relative gross income derived by each such affiliate with respect to the product produced in whole or in part in the possession, the allocations made under (ii) and (iv) above shall be made on the basis of the relative gross income derived by each such affiliate from the active conduct of the trade or business in the same product area, and allocations made under (iii) and (v) above shall be made on the basis of the relative total gross income of each such affiliate before allocating income under this section. Income allocated to affiliates shall be treated as U.S. source and section 863 (b) does not apply for this purpose. For purposes of determining an affiliate's estimated tax liability with respect to income thus allocated, the income shall be deemed to be received on the last day of the taxable year of each such affiliate in which or with which the taxable year of the possessions corporation ends.

Question 14: What is the source of the portion of combined taxable income allocated to the possessions corporations?

Answer 14: Income allocated to the possessions corporation shall be treated as possession source income and as derived from the active conduct of a trade or business within the possession.

Question 15: How is the profit split option to be applied to properly account for costs incurred in a year with respect to products which are sold by the possessions corporation to a U.S. affiliate during such year, but are not resold by the U.S. affiliate to persons who are not members of the affiliated group or to foreign affiliates until a later year?

Answer 15: The rules under §1.994–1(c)(5) are to be applied. Incomplete transactions will not be taken into consideration in computing combined taxable income. Thus, for example, if in 1983, A, a possessions corporation, sells units of a product with a cost to A of $5000 to B corporation, its U.S. affiliate, which uses the dollar-value LIFO method of costing inventory, and B sells units with a cost of $4000 (representing A's cost) to C corporation, a foreign affiliate, only $4000 of such costs shall be taken into consideration in computing the combined taxable income of the possessions corporation and U.S. affiliates for 1983. If a specific goods LIFO inventory method is used by B, the determination of whether A's goods remain in B's inventory shall be based on whether B's specific goods LIFO grouping has experienced an increment or decrement for the year on the specific LIFO cost of such units, rather than on an average unit cost of such units. If the FIFO method of costing inventory is used by B, transfers may be based on the cost of the specific units transferred or on the average unit production cost of the units transferred, but in each case a FIFO flow assumption shall be used to identify the units transferred. For a determination of which goods are sold by taxpayers using the LIFO method, see question and answer 19.

Question 16: If a possessions corporation purchases materials from an affiliate and computes combined taxable income for a possession product which includes such materials, how are those materials to be treated in the possessions corporation's inventory?

Answer 16: The cost of those materials is considered to be equal to the affiliate's cost using the affiliate's method of costing inventory.

Question 17: If the possessions corporation uses the FIFO method of costing inventory and the U.S. affiliate uses the LIFO method of costing inventory, or vice versa, what method of costing inventory should be used in computing combined taxable income?

Answer 17: The transferor corporation's method of costing inventory determines the cost of inventory for purposes of combined taxable income while the transferee corporation's method of costing inventory determines the flow. Assume, for example, that X corporation, a possessions corporation, using the FIFO method of costing inventory purchases materials from Y corporation, a U.S. affiliated, also using the FIFO method. X corporation produces a product which it transfers to Z corporation, another U.S. affiliate using the LIFO method. Assume also that the final product satisfies the significant business presence test. Under these facts, the cost of the materials purchased by X from Y is Y's FIFO cost. The costs of the inventory transferred by X to Z are determined under X's FIFO method of accounting as is the flow of the inventory from X to Z. The costs added by Z are determined under Z's LIFO method of inventory, as is the flow of the inventory from Z to unrelated persons or foreign affiliates.

Question 18: How are the costs of a possession product and the revenues derived from the sale of a possession product determined if the U.S. affiliate includes purchases of the possession product in a dollar-value LIFO inventory pool (as provided under §1.472–8)?

Answer 18: The following method will be accepted in determining the revenues derived from the sale of a possession product and the costs of a possession product if the U.S. affiliate includes purchases of the possession product in a dollar-value LIFO inventory pool. The rules apply solely for the cost sharing and profit split options under section 936(h).

(i) Revenue Identification: The identification of revenues derived from sales of a possession product must generally be made on a specific identification basis. The particular method employed by a taxpayer for valuing its inventory will have no impact on the determination of what units are sold or how much revenue is derived from such sales. Thus, if a U.S. affiliate sells both item A (a possession product) and item B (a non-possession product), the actual sales revenues received by the U.S. affiliate from item A sales would constitute possession product revenue for purposes of the profit split option and possession sales for purposes of the cost sharing option regardless of whether the U.S. affiliate values its inventories on the FIFO or the LIFO method. In instances where sales of item A (i.e., the possession product) cannot be determined by use of specific identification (for example, in cases where items A and B are identical except that one is produced in the possession (item A) and the other (item B) is produced outside of the possession and it is not possible to segregate these items in the hands of the U.S. affiliate), it will be necessary to identify the portion of the combined sales of items A and B (which together can be identified on a specific identification basis) which is attributed to item A sales and the portion which is attributed to item B sales. The determination of the portion of aggregated sales attributable to item A and item B is independent of the LIFO method used to determine the cost of such sales and may be made under the following approach. A taxpayer may, for purposes of this section of the regulations, use the relative purchases (in units) of items A and B by the U.S. affiliate purchases (in units) of items A and B by the U.S. affiliate during the taxable year (or other appropriate measuring period such as the period during the taxable year used to determine current-year costs, i.e., earliest acquisitions period, latest acqusitions period, etc.) in determining the ratio to apply against the combined items A and B sales revenue. If the sales exceed current purchases, the taxpayer can use a FIFO unit approach which identifies actual unit sales on a first-in, first-out basis. Revenue determination where specific identification is not possible is illustrated by the following example:

Example. At the end of year 1, there are 600 units of combined items A and B which are to be allocated between A and B on the basis of annual purchases of A and B units during year 1. During year 1, 1,000 units of item A, a possession product, and 2,000 units of item B, a non-possession product, were purchased. Thus, the 600 units in year 1 ending inventory are allocated 200 (i.e. 1/3) to item A units and 400 (i.e. 2/3) to item B units based on the relative purchases of A (1,000) and B (2,000) in year 1. These units appear as beginning inventory in year 2.

In year 2, 1,500 units of item A are purchased and 1,500 units of item B are purchased. However, 3,300 units of items A and B in the aggregate are sold for $600,000. The relative proportion of the $600,000 attributable to item A and to item B sales would be determined as follows:

Year 2 sales	Item A	Item B
Unit sales from Opening inventory	200	400
Unit sales from Current-year purchases	1,350	1,350
Total unit sales	1,550	1,750 = 3,300
Percentage	47%	53%

Revenues from item A sales $281,818 $($600{,}000 \times \frac{1550}{3300})$

Revenues from item B sales $318,182 $($600{,}000 \times \frac{1750}{3300})$

Year 2 Closing Inventory	Units
Item A	150
Item B	150

Thus, revenues from Item A sales for purposes of computing possession sales for the cost sharing option and revenues for the profit split option are $281,818.

(ii) Cost Identification: The determination of the cost of possession product sales by the U.S. affiliate must be based on the LIFO inventory method of the U.S. affiliate. The LIFO cost of possession product sales will, for purposes of this section of the regulations, be determined by maintaining a separate LIFO cost for possession products in a taxpayer's opening and closing LIFO inventory and using this cost to calculate an independent cost of possession product sales. This separate LIFO cost for possession products in the LIFO pool of a taxpayer is to be determined as follows:

(A) Determine the base-year cost of possession products in ending inventory in a LIFO pool.

(B) Determine the percentage of the base-year cost of possession products in the pool as compared to the total base-year cost of all items in the pool.

(C) Multiply the percentage determined in step (B) above by the ending LIFO inventory value of the pool to determine the deemed LIFO cost attributable to possession products in the pool.

Example: Assume that item A is a possession product and item B is a non-possession product and also assume the inventory and purchases with respect to the LIFO pool as provided below:

The year 2 LIFO cost of possession product A sales will be calculated as follows:

Year 1 Ending Inventory

	Number of Units	Base-Year Cost/Unit	Base-Year Cost	***%
Item A	100	$2.00	$200	20%
Item B	200	4.00	800	80%

Year 1—LIFO Value

	Base-Year Cost	Index	LIFO Cost
Increment Layer 2	$ 300	3.0	$ 900
Increment Layer 1	400	2.0	800
Base layer	300	1.0	300
Pool total	$1,000		$2,000

Year 1—LIFO Value Per Item

	Base-Year Cost	LIFO Value
Total Pool	$1,000	$2,000
Item A	200	400
Item B	800	1,600

Year 2—Purchases

	Total Purchases
Item A	$6,000
Item B	4,000

Year 2—Ending Inventory

	Number of Units	Base-Year Cost/Unit	Base-Year Cost	***%
Item A	200	$2.00	$400	50%
Item B	100	4.00	400	50%

Year 2—LIFO Value

	Base-Year Cost	Index	LIFO Cost
Increment layer 2	$100	3.0	$ 300
Increment layer 1	400	2.0	800
Base layer	300	1.0	300
Pool total	$800		$1,400

(1) Base-year cost of item in year 2 ending inventory = $400

(2) Percentage of item A base-year cost to total base-year cost ($400 + $800) = 50%

(3) LIFO value of item A ($1,400 × 50%) = $700

(4) LIFO cost of item A sales is determined by adding to the beginning inventory in year 2 the purchases of item A in year 2 and subtracting from this amount the ending inventory in year 2 ($400 + $6000 − $700 = $5700). The beginning inventory in year 2 is determined by multiplying the LIFO cost of the year 1 ending inventory by a percentage of item A base-year cost to the total base-year cost in year 1. The ending inventory in year 2 is determined under (3) above.

Question 19: If a possession product is purchased from a possessions corporation by a U.S. affiliate using the dollar-value LIFO method of costing its inventory and is included in a LIFO pool of the U.S. affiliate which includes products purchased from the possessions corporation in pre-TEFRA years, how should the LIFO index computation of the U.S. affiliate be made in the first year in which section 936(h) applies and in subsequent taxable years?

Answer 19: The U.S. affiliate should treat the first taxable year for which section 936(h) applies as a new base year in accordance with procedures provided by regulations under section 472. Thus, the opening inventory for the first year for which section 936(h) applies (valuing possession products purchased from the possessions corporation on the basis of the cost of such possession products), would equal the new base year cost of the inventory of such pool of the U.S. affiliate. Increments and decrements at new base year cost would be valued for LIFO purposes pursuant to the procedures provided by regulations under section 472.

Question 20: If the possessions corporation computes its income with respect to a product under the profit split method, with respect to which units of the product shall the profit split method apply?

Answer 20: The profit split method shall apply to units of the possession product produced in whole or in part by the possessions corporation in the possession and sold during the taxable year by members of the affiliated group (other than foreign affiliates) to unrelated parties or to foreign affiliates. In no event shall the profit split method apply to units of the product which were not taken into account by the possessions corporation in applying the significant business presence test for the current taxable year or for any prior taxable year in which the possessions corporation also had a significant business presence in the possession with respect to such product.

(2) Pre-TEFRA inventory.

Question 1: How is pre-TEFRA inventory to be determined if the profit split option is elected and the FIFO method of costing inventory is used by the U.S. affiliate?

Answer 1: Pre-TEFRA inventory is inventory which was produced by the possessions corporation and transferred to a U.S. affiliate prior to the possessions corporation's first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1982. Pre-TEFRA inventory will not be included for purposes of the profit split option. If the U.S. affiliate uses the FIFO method of costing inventory, the pre-TEFRA inventory will be treated as the first inventory sold by the U.S. affiliate during the first year in which section 936(h) applies and will not be included in the computation of combined taxable income for purposes of the profit split option. The treatment of pre-TEFRA inventory when FIFO costing is used by both the U.S. affiliate and the possessions corporation is illustrated by the following example in which FIFO unit costing is used:

Example. Assume the following:

	X		Y
	Possessions corporation		U.S. affiliate
	Number of units	Cost per unit	Number of units	Cost per unit
Beginning inventory	500	$150	200	$225
Units produced during 1983	1,000	200	....	....
Ending inventory	400	200	300	....

In 1983, the beginning inventory of X, a possessions corporation, is 500 units with a unit cost of $150 and the beginning inventory of Y, the U.S. affiliate, is 200 units with a unit cost of $225, which represents the section 482 price paid by Y. Y's beginning inventory in 1983 represents purchases made in 1982 of products produced by X in that year. Y sells all the units it purchases from X to Z, a foreign affiliate. In 1983, X produces 1000 units at a unit cost of $200 and sells 1100 units to Y (the difference between 1500 units, representing X's 1983 beginning inventory (500) and the units produced by X in 1983 (1000), and X's ending inventory of 400 units). Of the 1100 units sold by X to Y in 1983, only 800 units (and not 1000 units) which were sold by Y to Z are taken into consideration in computing combined taxable income for 1983. Since FIFO costing by the possessions corporation is used, the cost is $150 per unit for the first 500 units and $200 per unit for the remaining 300 units. The 200 units sold by X to Y in 1982 are pre-TEFRA inventory and are not included in the computation of combined taxable income for 1983. They are also treated as the first units sold by Y to Z in 1983. This inventory has a unit cost of $225, which reflects the section 482 transfer price from X to Y in 1982. Y's 1983 ending inventory of 300 units will not be taken into consideration in computing the combined taxable income of X and Y for 1983 because the units have not been sold to a foreign affiliate or to persons who are not members of the affiliated group. In a subsequent year when the units are sold to Z, the cost to X and selling price to Z of these units will enter into the computation of combined taxable income for that year.

(c) Covered Intangibles.

Question 1: What are "covered intangibles" under section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(II)?

Answer 1: The term "covered intangibles" means (1) intangible property developed in a possession solely by the possessions corporation and owned by it, (2) manufacturing intangible property (described in section 936(h)(3)(B)(i) which is acquired by the possessions corporation from unrelated persons, and (3) any other intangible property (described in section 936(h)(3)(B)(ii) through (v), to the extent not described in section 936(h)(3)(B)(i)) which relates to sales of products or services to unrelated persons for ultimate consumption or use in the possession in which the possessions corporation conducts its business. The possessions corporation is treated as the owner of covered intangibles for purposes of obtaining a return thereon.

Question 2: Do covered intangibles include manufacturing intangible property which is acquired by an affiliate and subsequently transferred to the possessions corporation?

Answer 2: No. In order for a manufacturing intangible to be treated as a covered intangible, the intangible property must be acquired directly by an unrelated person, unless the manufacturing intangible was acquired by an affiliate from an unrelated person and was transferred to the possessions corporation by the affiliate prior to September 3, 1982.

Question 3: If a possessions corporation licenses a manufacturing intangible from an unrelated party, will the licensed intangible be treated as a covered intangible?

Answer 3: No.

Question 4: How is ultimate consumption or use determined for purposes of the definition of covered intangibles?

Answer 4: A product will be treated as having its ultimate use or consumption in a possession if it is sold by the possessions corporation to a related or unrelated person in a possession and is not resold or used or consumed outside of the possession within one year after the date of the sale.

Question 5: Are sales of products that relate to covered intangibles excluded from the cost sharing fraction?

Answer 5: If no manufacturing intangibles other than covered intangibles are associated with the possession product, then sales of such product will be excluded from the cost sharing fraction. If both covered and non-covered manufacturing intangibles are associated with the possession product, then sales of such product will be included in the cost sharing fraction.

Question 6: If the cost sharing option is elected, is it necessary for the possessions corporation to be the legal owner of covered intangibles described in section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(II)(c) related to the product in order for the possessions corporation to receive a full return with respect to such intangibles?

Answer 6: No. For purposes of section 936(h), it is immaterial whether such covered intangibles are owned by the possessions corporation or by another member of the affiliated group. Moreover, if the legal owner of such covered intangibles which are subject to section 936(h)(5) is an affiliate of the possessions corporation, such person will not be required to charge an arm's length royalty under section 482 to the possessions corporation.

§1.936-7 Manner of making election under section 936(h)(5); special election for export sales; revocation of election under section 936(a).

The rules in this section apply for purposes of section 936(h) and also for purposes of section 934(e), where applicable.

Question 1: How does a possessions corporation make an election to use the cost sharing method or profit split method?

Answer 1: A possessions corporation makes an election to use the cost sharing or profit split method by filing Form 5712-A and attaching it to its tax return. Form 5712-A must be filed on or before the due date (including extensions) of the tax return of the possessions corporation for its first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1982. The electing corporation must set forth on the form the name and the taxpayer identification number or address of all members of the affiliated group (including foreign affiliates not required to file a U.S. tax return). All members of the affiliated group must consent to the election. An authorized officer of the electing corporation must sign the statement of election and must declare that he has received a signed statement of consent from an authorized officer, director, or other appropriate official of each member of the affiliated group. The election is not valid unless all affiliates consent. However, a failure to obtain an affiliate's written consent will not invalidate the election out if the possessions corporation made a good faith effort to obtain all the necessary consents or the failure to obtain the missing consent was inadvertent. Subsequently created or acquired affiliates are bound by the election. If an election out is revoked under section 936(h)(5)(F)(iii), a new election out with respect to that product area cannot be made without the consent of the Commissioner. The possessions corporation shall file an amended Form 5712-A with its timely filed income tax return to reflect any changes in the names or number of the members of the affiliated group for any taxable year after the first taxable year to which the election out applies. By consenting to the election out, all affiliates agree to provide information necessary to compute the cost sharing payment under the cost sharing method or combined taxable income under the profit split method, and failure to provide such information shall be treated as a request to revoke the election out under section 936(h)(5)(F)(iii).

Question 2: May the "election out" under section 936(h)(5) be made on a product-by-product basis, or must it be made on a wider basis?

Answer 2: An electing corporation is required to treat products in the same product area in the same manner. Similarly, all possessions corporations in the same affiliated group that produce any products or render any services in the same product area must make the same election for all products that fall within the same product area. However, §1.936-7(b) provides that the electing corporation may make a different election for export sales than for domestic sales. The electing corporation or corporations may also make different elections for products that fall within different product areas.

Question 3: May the possessions corporation elect to define product area more narrowly than the 3-digit SIC code?

Answer 3: No. Certain alternatives, such as the 4-digit SIC code, would not be permitted under the statute. However, other methods for defining product area may be considered by the Commissioner in the future.

Question 4: May a possessions corporation make an election out under the cost sharing method with respect to a product area if the affiliated group incurs no research, development or experimental costs in that product area?

Answer 4: Yes. In that case the cost sharing payment will be zero.

Question 5: If the significant business presence test is not satisfied for a product or type of service within the product area covered by the election out under section 936(h)(5) what rules will apply with respect to that product?

Answer 5: With respect to the product which does not satisfy the significant business presence test, the provisions of section 936(h)(1) through (h)(4) will apply to the allocation of income. However, if a cost sharing or a profit split election has been made with respect to the product area, the cost sharing payment or the research and development floor under section 936(h)(5)(C)(ii)(II) will not be reduced.

Question 6: Is a taxpayer permitted to make a change of election with respect to the cost sharing and profit split methods?

Answer 6: In general, once the election is properly made, it is binding for the first year in which it applies and all subsequent years (including upon any later created or acquired affiliates), and revocation is only permitted with the consent of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. However, a taxpayer will be permitted to change its election once from the cost sharing method to the profit split method or vice versa, or from the method permitted under section 936(h)(1) through (h)(4) to cost sharing or profit split or vice versa, without the consent of the Commissioner if the change is made on the taxpayer's return for its first taxable year ending after June 13, 1986. Such change will apply to such taxable year and all subsequent taxable years, and, at the taxpayer's option, may also apply to all prior taxable years for which section 936(h) was in effect. A change of election will be treated as an election subject to the procedures set forth above and to section 481 of the Internal Revenue Code.

Question 7: If the Commissioner determines that a possessions corporation does not meet the 80-percent possession source test or the 65-percent active trade or business test (the "qualification tests") for any taxable year beginning after 1982, under what circumstances is the possessions corporation permitted to make a distribution of property after the close of its taxable year to meet the qualification tests?

Answer 7: A possessions corporation may make a pro rata distribution of property to its shareholders after the close of the taxable year if the Commissioner determines that the possessions corporation does not satisfy the qualification tests (a) by reason of the exclusion from gross income of intangible income under section 936(h)(1)(B) or section 936(h)(5)(C)(i)(II) or (b) by reason of the allocation to the shareholders of the possessions corporation of income under section 936(h)(5)(C)(ii)(III); provided, however, that the determination of the Commissioner does not contain a finding that the failure of such corporation to satisfy the qualification tests was due, in whole or in part, to fraud with intent to evade tax or willful neglect on the part of the possessions corporation. The possessions corporation must designate the distribution at the time the distribution is made as a distribution to meet qualification requirements, and it will be subject to the provisions of section 936(h)(4). Such distributions will not qualify for the dividends received deduction.

Question 8: If a possessions corporation owns stock in a subsidiary possessions corporation, any intangible property income allocated to the parent possessions corporation under section 936(h) will be treated as U.S. source income and taxable to the parent possessions corporation. Is the intangible property income taken into consideration in determining whether the parent possessions corporation meets the income tests of section 936(a)(2)?

Answer 8: While taxable to the parent possessions corporation, the intangible property income does not enter into the calculation of the 80-percent possession source test or the 65-percent active trade or business test of section 936(a)(2)(A) and (B). This would also be the case if the subsidiary possessions corporation made a qualifying distribution under section 936(h)(4).

(b) Separate election for export sales.

Question 1: What methods of computing income can a possessions corporation use under the separate election for export sales?

Answer 1: The only two methods which are available under the separate election for export sales are the cost sharing method and the profit split method.

Question 2: What is the definition of export sales for purposes of the separate election for export sales?

Answer 2: The determination of export sales is based upon the destination of the product, i.e., where it is to be used or consumed. If the product is sold to a U.S. affiliate, it will be treated as an export sale only if resold or otherwise transferred abroad to a foreign person (including a foreign affiliate or foreign branch of a U.S. affiliate) within one year from the date of sale to theU.S. affiliate for ultimate use or consumption outside the United States as provided under §1.954–3(a)(3)(ii).

Question 3: Assume that a possessions corporation sells a product to both foreign affiliates and foreign branches of U.S. affiliates. In addition, it sells the product to its U.S. parent for resale in the U.S. The possessions corporation makes a profit split election for domestic sales and a cost sharing election for export sales. Will the sales to foreign branches of U.S. affiliates be treated as exports subject to the cost sharing method or as domestic sales subject to the profit split method?

Answer 3: The sales to a foreign branch of a U.S. corporation are exports if for ultimate use or consumption outside of the United States as provided under §1.954–3(a)(3)(ii).

Question 4: Under what circumstances may a possessions corporation make the separate election under section 936(h)(5)(F)(iv)(II) for computing its income from products exported to a foreign person when the income derived by such foreign person on the resale of such products is included in foreign base company income under section 954(a)?

Answer 4: If the income derived by a foreign person on the resale of products manufactured, in whole or in part, by a possessions corporation is included in foreign base company income under section 954(a), then the possessions corporation may make the separate export election under section 936(h)(5)(F)(iv)(II) for computing its income from such products only if such foreign person has been formed or is availed of for substantial business reasons that are unrelated to an affiliated corporation's U.S. tax liability. For purposes of the preceding sentence, a foreign person will be considered to be formed or availed of for such substantial business reasons if the foreign person in the normal course of business purchases substantial quantities of products from both the possessions corporation and its affiliates for resale, and, in addition, provides support services for affiliated companies such as centralized testing, marketing of products, management of local currency exposures, or other similar services. However, a foreign person that purchases and resells products only from a possessions corporation is presumed to be formed or availed of for other than such substantial business reasons, even if the foreign person provides additional services.

Question 5: When will the "manufacturing" test set forth in subsection (d)(1)(A) of section 954 be applicable to the export sales of a product of a possessions corporation which makes a separate election for export sales?

Answer 5: An electing corporation will be required to meet the"manufacturing" test set forth in subsection (d)(1)(A) of section 954 with respect to export sales of its product in each taxable year in which the separate election for export sales is in effect.

(c) Revocation of election under section 936(a).

Question 1: When may an election under section 936(a) be revoked?

Answer 1: An election under section 936(a) may be revoked during the first ten years of section 936 status only with the consent of the Commissioner, and without the Commissioner's consent after that time. The Commissioner hereby consents to all requests for revocation that are made with respect to the taxpayer's first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1982 provided that the section 936(a) election was in effect for the corporation's last taxable year beginning before January 1, 1983, if the taxpayer agrees not to re-elect section 936(a) prior to its first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1988. A taxpayer that wishes to revoke a section 936(a) election under the terms of the blanket revocation must attach a "Statement of Revocation—Section 936" to the taxpayer's timely filed return (including extensions) and must state that inrevoking the election the taxpayer agrees not to re-elect section 936(a) prior to its first taxable year beginning after December 31, 1988. Other requests to revoke not covered by the Commissioner's blanket consent should be addressed to the District Director having jurisdiction over the taxpayer's tax return.

If an organization listed above submits information that warrants the renewal of its classification as a public charity or as a private operating foundation, the Internal Revenue Service will issue a ruling or determination letter with the revised classification as to foundation status. Grantors and contributors may thereafter rely upon such ruling or determination letter as provided in section 1.509(a)–7 of the Income Tax Regulations. It is not the practice of the Service to announce such revised classification of foundation status in the Internal Revenue Bulletin.

Termination of Section 7428(c) Validation of Certain Contributions Made During Pendency of Declaratory Judgment Proceedings

This announcement serves notice to potential donors that a court has determined that the organization listed below is no longer described in section 170(c)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code, as more particularly set forth in section 7428(c)(1). Protection under section 7428(c) has terminated effective on the date indicated.

Announcement of the Disbarment, Suspension, or Consent to Voluntary Suspension of Attorneys, Certified Public Accountants, Enrolled Agents and Enrolled Actuaries from Practice Before the Internal Revenue Service

Under 31 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 10, an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, in order to avoid the institution or conclusion of a proceeding for his disbarment or suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, may offer his consent to suspension from such practice. The Director of Practice, in his discretion, may suspend an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary in accordance with the consent offered.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents, and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify practitioners under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and addresses of practitioners who have been suspended from such practice, their designation as attorneys, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date or period of suspension. This announcement will appear in the weekly Bulletin at the earliest practicable date after such action and will continue to appear in the weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks or for as many weeks as is practicable for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

The following individuals have been placed under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Henry L. Creel	Cleveland, OH	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from May 15, 1986
J. Thomas Jones	Augusta, GA	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from June 1, 1986
Michael D. Sherman	Pound Ridge, NY	Enrolled Agent	Indefinite from May 27, 1986

Under Section 330, Title 31 of the United States Code (1970 ed.), the Secretary of the Treasury, after due notice and opportunity for hearing, is authorized to suspend or disbar from practice before the Internal Revenue Service any attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent, or enrolled actuary who has violated the rules and regulations governing such practice.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify such disbarred or suspended practitioners, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and address of practitioners who have been disbarred or suspended from such practice, their designation as attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date of disbarment or period of suspension. This announcement will continue to appear in the Weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended or disbarred and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

After due notice and opportunity for hearing, the following individual has been disbarred from further practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Effective Date
Earl M. Walker	Port Neches, TX	Certified Public Accountant	May 19, 1986

Announcement Relating to Proposed Regulations Published With Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Changes in regulations as announced below have been published in the Federal Register in tentative or proposed form to provide interested parties with an opportunity to file their objections or suggestions for consideration prior to final adoption of such regulations. These announcements will appear in the Bulletin during the period which has been prescribed for the submission and consideration of any views, arguments, or suggestions pertaining to the proposed regulations so published. Statement of such views, arguments or suggestions should be submitted in writing, preferably six copies, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: CC:LR:T, Washington, D.C. 20224.

INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

The Introduction on page 3 describes the purpose and content of this publication. The weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin is sold on a yearly subscription basis by the Superintendent of Documents. Current subscribers are notified by the Superintendent of Documents when their subscriptions must be renewed.

CUMULATIVE BULLETINS

The contents of the weekly Bulletin are consolidated semiannually into a permanent, indexed, Cumulative Bulletin. These are sold on a single copy basis and are not included as part of the subscription to the Internal Revenue Bulletin. Subscribers to the weekly Bulletin are notified when copies of the Cumulative Bulletin are available. Certain issues of Cumulative Bulletins are out of print and are not available. Persons desiring available Cumulative Bulletins, which are listed on the reverse, may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents.

BULLETIN INDEX-DIGEST SYSTEM

The Bulletin Index-Digest System provides a fast and easy way to research Revenue Rulings, Revenue Procedures, Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and other matters of a permanent nature published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin, or Cumulative Bulletin from 1953 on. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date research tool that requires no filing or other clerical maintenance. The current revision consists of four Services, available on a subscription basis, each including a basic volume that covers the period 1953-1983/1984 and a cumulative supplement covering material published in subsequent Bulletins for the following two-year period. Cumulative supplements are issued quarterly for the Income Tax Service and semiannually for the Estate and Gift, Employment, and Excise Tax Service.

HOW TO ORDER

Check the publications and/or subscription(s) desired on the reverse, complete the order blank, enclose the proper remittance, detach entire page, and mail to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Please allow two to six weeks, plus mailing time, for delivery.

1986-28

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing our Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

T22.23:

Introduction

The Internal Revenue Bulletin is the authoritative instrument of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for announcing official rulings and procedures of the Internal Revenue Service and for publishing Treasury Decisions, Executive Orders, Tax Conventions, legislation, court decisions, and other items of general interest. It is published weekly and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. Bulletin contents of a permanent nature are consolidated semiannually into Cumulative Bulletins, which are sold on a single-copy basis.

It is the policy of the Service to publish in the Bulletin all substantive rulings necessary to promote a uniform application of the tax laws, including all rulings that supersede, revoke, modify, or amend any of those previously published in the Bulletin. All published rulings apply retroactively unless otherwise indicated. Procedures relating solely to matters of internal management are not published; however, statements of internal practices and procedures that affect the rights and duties of taxpayers are published.

Revenue rulings represent the conclusions of the Service on the application of the law to the pivotal facts stated in the revenue ruling. In those based on positions taken in rulings to taxpayers or technical advice to Service field offices, identifying details and information of a confidential nature are deleted to prevent unwarranted invasions of privacy and to comply with statutory requirements.

Rulings and procedures reported in the Bulletin do not have the force and effect of Treasury Department Regulations, but they may be used as precedents. Unpublished rulings will not be relied on, used, or cited as precedents by Service personnel in the disposition of other cases. In applying published rulings and procedures, the effect of subsequent legislation, regulations, court decisions, rulings, and procedures must be considered, and Service personnel and others concerned are cautioned against reaching the same conclusions in other cases unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same.

The Bulletin is divided into four parts as follows:

Part I.—1954 Code.

This part includes rulings and decisions based on provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Part II.—Treaties and Tax Legislation.

This part is divided into two subparts as follows: Subpart A, Tax Conventions, and Subpart B, Legislation and Related Committee Reports.

Part III.—Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous.

To the extent practicable, pertinent cross references to these subjects are contained in the other Parts and Subparts.

Part IV.—Items of General Interest.

With the exception of the disbarment and suspension list included in this part, none of these announcements is consolidated in the Cumulative Bulletins.

The first Bulletin for each month includes an index for the matters published during the preceding month. These monthly indexes are cumulated on a quarterly and semiannual basis, and are published in the first Bulletin of the succeeding quarterly and semi-annual period, respectively.

The Bulletin Index-Digest System, a research and reference service supplementing the Bulletin, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. It consists of four Services: Service No. 1, Income Tax; Service No. 2, Estate and Gift Taxes; Service No. 3, Employment Taxes; Service No. 4, Excise Taxes. Each Service consists of a basic volume and a cumulative supplement that provide (1) finding lists of items published in the Bulletin, (2) digests of revenue rulings, revenue procedures, and other published items, and (3) indexes of Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and Tax Conventions.

The contents of this publication are not copyrighted and may be reprinted freely. A citation of the Internal Revenue Bulletin as the source would be appropriate.

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Prices: Domestic—$1.75 a single copy, $82.00 a year subscription. Foreign—$2.19 a single copy, $102.50 a year for subscription.

Part I. Rulings and Decisions Under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954

Section 38.—General Business Credit

Whether the basis of new section 38 property acquired to replace property destroyed in a casualty must be reduced for purposes of computing the investment tax credit by the amount of gain deferred under section 1033(a)(2) of the Code. See Rev. Rul. 86-89, below.

Section 46.—Amount Of Credit

26 CFR 1.46-3: Qualified investment.
(Also Sections 38, 1033; 1.1033(b)-1.)

Involuntary conversion; replacement property; basis. The basis of new section 38 property acquired to replace property destroyed in a casualty must be reduced for purposes of computing the investment tax credit by the amount of gain deferred under section 1033(a)(2) of the Code. Rev. Rul. 68-356 modified.

Rev. Rul. 86-89

ISSUE

Should the basis of new section 38 property acquired to replace property destroyed in a casualty be reduced, for purposes of computing the investment tax credit, by the amount of gain deferred under section 1033(a)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code?

FACTS

In 1983 the taxpayer's factory was destroyed by fire. The adjusted basis of section 38 property destroyed was 1,000x dollars. The amount of insurance proceeds attributable to the destroyed section 38 property was 12,000x dollars. Therefore, the gain attributable to the destroyed section 38 property due to the casualty was 11,000x dollars.

In 1983 the factory was rebuilt, and the taxpayer elected to defer the gain under section 1033(a)(2)(A) of the Code. The cost of the replacement section 38 property, which was new section 38 property, was 20,000x dollars. The taxpayer claimed investment tax credit on the replacement section 38 property for 1983, the year the replacement property was placed in service.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

Section 38 of the Code provides for a credit against federal income tax for qualified investment in section 38 property.

Section 46(a)(2)(B) of the Code provides that the regular amount of the credit is 10 percent of the qualified investment.

Section 46(c)(1)(A) of the Code provides that the qualified investment in new section 38 property is the basis of the property multiplied by a percentage to be determined under section 46(c)(2).

Section 1.46-3(c) of the Income Tax Regulations provides that the "basis of any section 38 property shall be determined in accordance with the general rules for determining the basis of property. Thus, the basis of property would generally be its cost (see section 1012). . . ." (Emphasis added.)

Use of the word "generally" in the regulation indicates that the basis of new section 38 property for investment tax credit purposes will not always be the cost of the property. The first sentence of the regulation, in providing that the basis of any new section 38 property is to be determined "in accordance with the general rules for determining the basis of property," refers a taxpayer to specific statutory rules. Section 1033 of the Code is one of the general rules for determining basis.

Section 1033(b) of the Code provides that in the case of property purchased by the taxpayer in a transaction described in section 1033(a)(2) that resulted in the nonrecognition of any part of the gain realized as the result of a compulsory or involuntary conversion, the basis shall be the cost of the property decreased in the amount of gain not so recognized.

HOLDING

The basis of new section 38 property acquired to replace property destroyed in a casualty must be reduced for purposes of computing the investment tax credit by the amount of gain deferred under section 1033(a)(2) of the Code.

EFFECT ON OTHER REVENUE RULINGS

Rev. Rul. 68-356, 1968-2 C.B. 17, concerns the determination of the basis of section 38 property acquired to replace destroyed property in factual circumstances similar to the present situation. The revenue ruling concludes that the basis of the replacement section 38 property is its cost decreased by the amount of the gain realized but not recognized under section 1033.

Rev. Rul 68-356 also concerns a section of the Code that was repealed by the Revenue Act of 1971, 1972-1 C.B. 443 (former section 46(c)(4)). The portion of Rev. Rul. 68-356 dealing with that section is obsolete. However, there have not been any substantive legislative changes affecting the portion of the revenue ruling dealing with section 1033 of the Code, although certain subsections of section 1033 cited in Rev. Rul. 68-356 have been redesignated. Thus, the holding of Rev. Rul. 68-356 with respect to section 1033 remains correct.

Rev. Rul. 68-356 is modified to reflect the redesignated subsections of section 1033 of the Code and to reflect that a portion of that ruling is obsolete.

Limitation on investment credit in the case of certain regulated companies; synchronization of interest

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Final regulations.

SUMMARY: This document contains final regulations relating to the limitation on the investment credit in the case of certain regulated companies. Questions have arisen concerning the permissibility of "synchronization of interest" and the "zero-cost capital" method under the ratable flow-through method of accounting for the investment credit with respect to public utility property. The regulations provide guidance on these issues and affect regulated companies that use the ratable flow-through method of accounting for the investment credit with respect to public utility property.

DATES: The regulations are generally effective with respect to public utility property constructed or acquired by the taxpayer after August 15, 1971.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

On June 26, 1985, proposed amendments to the Income Tax Regulations (26 CFR Part 1) under section 46(f) of the Internal Revenue Code were published in * * * [LR 227-84, 1985-2 C.B. 837]. The amendments were proposed to clarify the manner in which the limitation imposed by section 46 (f) applies in the case of regulated companies that use the ratable flow-through method of accounting for the investment credit with respect to public utility property.

Many written comments were received with respect to the proposed amendments, and a public hearing on the amendments was held on August 28, 1985. After consideration of all comments and testimony received on the proposed amendments, the amendments are adopoted as revised by this Treasury decision.

INTEREST SYNCHRONIZATION

Section 46(f)(2) permits the use of a ratable flow-through method of accounting for the investment credit with respect to public utility property. Under this method of accounting, the taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes may be reduced by a ratable portion of the investment credit. The credit is disallowed, however, if the taxpayer's cost of service is reduced by more than a ratable portion of the credit or if the base to which the taxpayer's rate of return for ratemaking purposes is applied ("rate base") is reduced by any portion of the credit.

In determining whether a credit has been used to reduce rate base, §1.46-6(b)(3) of the regulations requires reference to "any accounting treatment that affects the permitted return on investment by treating the credit in any way other than as though it were capital supplied by common shareholders to which a 'cost of capital' rate is assigned that is not less than the taxpayer's overall cost of capital rate." This requirement appears only in the definition of rate base and it is unclear whether the credit also must be treated as capital provided by common shareholders in determining cost of service. As a result, the Service has received a number of ruling requests asking whether a portion of the return on the rate base attributable to the credit may be characterized as interest expense and taken into account in computing Federal income tax expense for ratemaking purposes ("interest synchronization" or "synchronization of interest").

This issue is addressed, either directly or indirectly, in several cases reviewing rate orders. Although the permissibility of synchronization of interest was an issue in these reviews, the Internal Revenue Service was not a party to the cases and the decisions did not determine the actual tax liability of the regulated companies. Two Federal Courts of Appeal have determined that interest synchronization does not violate section 46(f)(2) or the existing regulations. Union Electric v. FERC, 668 F.2d 389 (8th Cir. 1981); Nepco Municipal Rate Commission v. FERC, 668 F.2d 1327 (D.C. Cir. 1981); Public Service of New Mexico v. FERC, 653 F.2d 681 (D.C. Cir. 1981). In addition, several state courts have approved the use of interest synchronization in ratemaking proceedings. See, e.g., Narragansett Electric Company v. Burke, 475 A.2d 1379 (R.I. 1984); New England Telephone & Telegraph Company v. Public Utilities Commission, 448 A.2d 272 (Me. 1982). Other courts, however, have concluded that synchronization of interest is not permitted under section 46(f)(2) and the existing regulations. See, e.g., Utilities Commission v. Carolina Telephone & Telegraph, 300 S.E. 2d 395 (Ct. App. N.C. 1983).

The proposed regulations provided that interest synchronization would not constitute a reduction in cost of service for purposes of section 46(f)(2), thus generally permitting interest synchronization for purposes of the ratable flow-through method of accounting for the investment credit. The preamble of the notice of proposed rulemaking set forth two reasons for this provision. The first was the Service's conclusion that synchronization of interest does not result in a reduction of cost of service that is attributable to the credit. This conclusion is consistent with financial market realities since, in the absence of the credit, the additional capital needed to finance the investment property generally would be obtained from a similar proportion of debt and equity as in the existing capital structure of the utility. Synchronization of interest properly takes account of the additional interest expense that would have been incurred in those circumstances.

In addition, the Service believed that synchronization of interest under section 46(f)(2) would result in an appropriate accounting for the credit in establishing rates. The basis for this conclusion may be illustrated by a comparison of the rates that would be established without synchronization of interest with the rates that would be established if the credit were unavailable. Under certain factual circumstances (e.g., long-lived assets with respect to which the credit was allowed), the rates that would be established without synchronization of interest may actually exceed in one or more service years the rates that would be established if the credit were unavailable. In contrast, the rates that would be established with synchronization of interest cannot exceed in any year the rates that would be established if the credit were unavailable.

The Service received a number of comments from public service commissions and other regulatory authorities generally supporting the position in the proposed regulations. On the other hand, the Service also received many comments from regulated public utilities and their representatives, which, with some exceptions, opposed interest synchronization on the ground that it constitutes an impermissible reduction in cost of service under section 46(f)(2). After careful consideration of all comments received, the Service has concluded that interest synchronization should be permitted for the reasons stated in the preamble of the notice of proposed rulemaking. Accordingly, the final regulations clarify that interest synchronization is permitted under a ratable flow-through method of accounting.

ZERO-COST CAPITAL

Another issue addressed by the public comments concerned the effect of "zero-cost capital" on the rate of return assigned to the credit. The issue arises if, for example, the reserve for deferred taxes established under sections 167 and 168 is included in rate base as no-cost capital, as permitted under section 1.167-(l) of the regulations. The issue may similarly arise, for example, if non-interest-bearing liabilities such as customer deposits are included in a taxpayer's rate base. In such situations, a ratemaking commission may reduce the overall rate of return on account of the zero-cost capital (e.g., deferred taxes or non-interest-bearing liabilities) included in rate base. The issue raised by the public comments is whether the rate of return assigned to the credit under section 46(f)(2)(B) may also be reduced on account of such zero-cost capital.

The proposed regulations provided that the cost of capital assigned to the credit must be at least equal to the overall cost of the capital, determined on the basis of a weighted average, that would have been provided by common and preferred shareholders and long-term creditors if the credit were unavailable. Under the proposed regulations, the composition of such capital depended, generally on all the relevant facts and circumstances; however, a safe-harbor provision permitted determinations that additional capital would have been provided in the same proportions and at the same rates of return as the capital actually provided by shareholders and long-term creditors. Neither the general rule nor the safe-harbor provision of the proposed regulations would have permitted any reduction in the rate of return assigned to the investment credit on account of zero-cost capital. This position was based on the assumption that items of zero-cost capital would not increase if the credit were unavailable.

After consideration of the comments the Service has concluded that, although this assumption regarding zero-cost capital is generally true, it is not strictly correct in certain situations. For example, if the basis of a utility's property has been reduced under section 48(q), the additional capital provided if the credit were unavailable would include not only equity and long-term debt, but also deferred taxes. This occurs because the utility's basis in the property would increase if the credit were unavailable, eventually resulting in a greater amount of deferred taxes. Accordingly, the final regulations permit zero-cost capital to be taken into account for purposes of determining the cost of capital assigned to the credit, but only to the extent that additional amounts of such capital would be provided if the credit were unavailable. In the case of a utility that has a basis reduction under section 48(q), for example, the amount of capital provided in the form of deferred taxes will, as explained above, generally be less in each period than the amount of deferred taxes that would be provided if the credit were unavailable. For any period, the difference between these two amounts is the amount of additional deferred taxes that would be provided if the credit were unavailable. The regulations provide that only the amount of additional deferred taxes for a period may be taken into account in determining the rate of return assigned to the credit for that period. Thus, the deferred taxes actually included in the utility's rate base may not be taken into account for this purpose. Under the regulations, any amount of additional zero-cost capital must also be taken into account for purposes of determining the amount of additional interest that the taxpayer would pay or accrue if the credit were unavailable, thus reducing the amount subject to interest synchronization.

The Service continues to believe that additional capital typically would be provided primarily in the form of equity and long-term debt if the credit were unavailable. Accordingly, the safe-harbor provision of the proposed regulations is generally unchanged, except to clarify that the safe harbor applies only if it is used to determine both the cost of capital assigned to the credit and the amount subject to interest synchronization.

HYPOTHETICAL CAPITAL STRUCTURE

An additional issue raised by the public comments concerned the effect of using a hypothetical capital structure to determine a utility's overall rate of return. A hypothetical capital structure may be used if, for example, a regulatory commission determines that the actual capital structure of a utility does not include sufficient debt and imputes debt of a parent holding company to the utility. The issue in such cases is whether the composition of the capital that would be provided if the credit were unavailable is determined by reference to the change that would occur in the actual capital structure of the utility or, instead, by reference to the change in the hypothetical capital structure used by the ratemaking commission. The final regulations clarify that it is the change in the hypothetical capital structure that is taken into account for this purpose.

TRANSITIONAL RULE

The Service received a number of inquiries requesting clarification of the transitional rule in §1.46-6(b)(iii) of the proposed regulations. In general, this rule (as revised by this Treasury decision) provides that rate orders put into effect before June 23, 1986, do not violate section 46(f) if they satisfy the requirements of either the amended regulations or the regulations in effect before the amendment. This is significant because the regulations in effect before the amendment provided that the overall cost of capital rate depends on the practice of the regulatory body. The Internal Revenue Service is aware that certain ratemaking commissions, relying on this language, have required utilities to use zero-cost capital in determining the earnings rate to be assigned to the credit in a manner inconsistent with the amended regulations. The use of zero-cost capital in such cases will not be treated as a violation of section 46(f)(2) under the regulations in effect before the amendments.

AMENDMENTS NOT COVERED BY THESE PROPOSED REGULATIONS

The amendments do not reflect amendments made to section 46 after the enactment of the Revenue Act of 1971, other than the redesignation of section 46(e) as section 46(f) by the Tax Reduction Act of 1975. In addition, the regulations do not reflect the amendment made to section 167(l)(2)(C) by section 209(d)(3) of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 (Pub. L. 97-34; 95 Stat. 227). That amendment has the effect of eliminating the special rule for immediate flow-through under section 46(f)(3) for property placed in service after December 31, 1980.

REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT; EXECUTIVE ORDER 12291

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that this final rule is not a major rule as defined in Executive Order 12291 and that a Regulatory Impact Analysis therefore is not required. Although a notice of proposed rulemaking that solicited public comment was issued, the Internal Revenue Service concluded when the notice was issued that the regulations are interpretative and that the notice and public procedure requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 do not apply. Accordingly, the final regulations are not subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. Chapter 6).

Amendments to the Regulations

Accordingly, 26 CFR Part 1 is amended as follows:

INCOME TAX REGULATIONS
(26 CFR Part 1)

Paragraph 1. The authority for Part I is amended by adding the following citation:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805.  Section 1.46-6 also issued under 26 U.S.C. 46(f)(7).

Par. 2. Section 1.46-6 is amended by revising paragraph (b)(2)(i), (3) and (4)(ii) to read as follows:

§1.46-6 Limitation in case of certain regulated companies.

* * * * *

(b) Definitions. ***

(2) Cost of service. (i) (A) For purposes of this section, "cost of service" is the amount required by a taxpayer to provide regulated goods or services. Cost of service includes operating expenses (including salaries, cost of materials, etc.) maintenance expenses, depreciation expenses, tax expenses, and interest expenses. For purposes of this section, any effect on a taxpayer's permitted return on investment that results from a reduction in the taxpayer's rate base does not constitute a reduction in cost of service, even though, as a technical ratemaking term, "cost of service" ordinarily includes a permitted return on investment. In addition, taking into account a deduction for the additional interest that the taxpayer would pay or accrue if the credit were unavailable in determining Federal income tax expense ("synchronization of interest") does not constitute a reduction in cost of service for purposes of section 46(f)(2). This adjustment to Federal income tax expense may be taken into account in determining cost of service for the regulated accounting period or periods that include the taxable year to which the adjustment relates or for any subsequent regulated accounting period.

(B) See paragraph (b)(3)(ii)(B) of this section for rules relating to the amount of additional interest that the taxpayer would pay or accrue if the credit were unavailable.

* * * * *

(3) Rate base. (i) For purposes of this section, "rate base" is the monetary amount that is multiplied by a rate of return to determine the permitted return on investment.

(ii) (A) In determining whether, or to what extent, a credit has been used to reduce rate base, reference shall be made to any accounting treatment that affects rate base. In addition, in those cases in which the rate of return is based on the taxpayer's cost of capital, reference shall be made to any accounting treatment that reduces the permitted return on investment by treating the credit less favorably than the capital that would have been provided if the credit were unavailable. Thus, the credit may not be assigned a "cost of capital" rate that is less then the overall cost of capital rate, determined on the basis of a weighted average, for the capital that would have been provided if the credit were unavailable.

(B) For purpose of determining the cost of capital rate assigned to the credit and the amount of additional interest that the taxpayer would pay or accrue, the composition of the capital that would have been provided if the credit were unavailable may be determined—

(1) On the basis of all the relevant facts and circumstances; or

(2) By assuming for both such purposes that such capital would be provided solely by common shareholders, preferred shareholders, and long-term creditors in the same proportions and at the same rates of return as the capital actually provided to the taxpayer by such shareholders and creditors.

For purposes of this section, capital provided by long-term creditors does not include deferred taxes as described in section 167(l)(3)(G) or 168(e)(3)(B)(ii).

(C) If a taxpayer's overall rate of return is based on a deemed or hypothetical capital structure, paragraph (b)(3)(ii)(B) of this section shall be applied by treating the deemed or hypothetical capital as if it were the capital actually provided to the taxpayer and determining the composition of the capital that would have been provided if the credit were unavailable in a manner consistent with such treatment.

(iii) Whether, or to what extent, a credit has been used to reduce rate base for any period to which pre-June 23, 1986 rates apply will be determined under 26 CFR 1.46-6(b)(3) and (4) (revised as of April 1, 1985) if such a determination avoids disallowance of a credit that would be disallowed under paragraph (b)(3)(ii) or (4)(ii) of this section. For this purpose, a period to which pre-June 23, 1986 rates apply is any period for which the effect of the credit on rate base for ratemaking purposes is established under a determination put into effect (within the meaning of paragraph (f) of this section) before June 23, 1986.

(4) Indirect reductions to cost of service or rate base.

(ii) One type of such indirect reduction is any ratemaking decision in which the credit is treated as operating income (subject to ratemaking regulation) or is treated less favorably than the capital that would have been provided if the credit were unavailable. For example, if the credit is accounted for as nonoperating income on a company's regulated books of account but a ratemaking decision has the effect of treating the credit as operating income in determining rate of return to common shareholders, then cost of service has been indirectly reduced by reason of the credit.

Section 280F.—Limitation of Investment Tax Credit and Depreciation for Luxury Automobiles; Limitation Where Certain Property Used for Personal Purposes

26 CFR 1.280F-5T: Leased property.

Investment credit; leased automobiles. Rules are provided for a lessee of a passenger automobile who, for purposes of claiming an investment tax credit, is treated as having acquired the automobile.

Rev. Rul. 86–87

This revenue ruling provides rules under section 280F of the Internal Revenue Code for a lessee of a passenger automobile who, for purposes of claiming an investment tax credit, is treated as having acquired the automobile. Taxpayers may rely on these rules until the Temporary Income Tax Regulations under section 280F, published in the Federal Register on October 24, 1984, and amended on November 6, 1985, are further amended to incorporate the provisions of this revenue ruling.

BACKGROUND

As added by section 179 of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 ("the 1984 Act"), 1984–3 (Vol.1) C.B. 221, and amended by section 4 of the Repeal of the Contemporaneous Recordkeeping Requirements (the "1985 Act"), 1985–2 C.B. 350, section 280F of the Code limits the amount of investment tax credit and annual depreciation deductions allowed for a passenger automobile placed in service or leased after June 18, 1984. Section 280F also provides for the Internal Revenue Service to prescribe tables that impose on lessees of passenger automobiles limitations "substantially equivalent" to the limitations imposed on similarly situated owners of passenger automobiles.

On October 19, 1984, pursuant to this requirement, the Service issued section 1.280F–5T of the temporary regulations. Section 1.280F–5T(d)(1) of the temporary regulations requires a lessee of a passenger automobile to include in gross income an amount based on the fair market value of the automobile and the lessee's amount of business use. By offsetting the lessee's deduction for lease payments, this inclusion approximates the present value of the limitations imposed on the investment tax credit and annual depreciation deductions of a similarly situated owner.

The 1985 Act further limited the amount of investment tax credit and annual depreciation deductions allowable for passenger automobiles placed in service after April 2, 1985. The limitations on lessees, therefore, were correspondingly made more stringent by amendments to the temporary regulations under section 280F published in the Federal Register on November 6, 1985. The new limitations, which are contained in section 1.280F–5T(e), are applicable to passenger automobiles leased after April 2, 1985.

Neither the limitations issued in October 1984 nor the limitations issued on November 1985 account for situations in which a lessor elects under section 48(d) to treat the lessee as having acquired the automoble, thus allowing the lessee to claim the investment credit. The limitations applicable under section 280F to lessees of passenger automoblies to whom lessors pass through the investment credit are set forth in this revenue ruling.

For purposes of this revenue ruling, the terms "lease term" and "fair market value" shall have the meanings provided by section 1.280F–5T(h) of the temporary regulations.

HOLDINGS

Section 1.

This section applies to any taxpayer—

(a) Who leased a passenger automobile after June 18, 1984, but before April 3, 1985, unless (1) a binding contract to lease the passenger automobile was in effect on June 18, 1984, and at all times thereafter, and (2) the lessee first used the automobile before January 1, 1985, and

(b) Who claims the investment tax credit with respect to that automobile.

Instead of the amount determined under section 1.280F–5T(d)(1)(i), the inclusion amount for each of the first three taxable years during which the automobile is leased is 3.5 percent of the excess of the automobile's fair market value over $16,500, multiplied by the percentage of business use for the taxable year and prorated for the number of days of the lease term included in the taxable year. The inclusion amounts for the years subsequent to the third taxable year during which such automobile is leased are determined under subdivisions (ii), (iii), and (iv), and the flush provisions of section 1.280F–5T(d)(1).

Section 2.

(a) This section applies to any taxpayer—

(1) Who leases a passenger automobile after April 2, 1985, unless (i) a binding contract to lease the passenger automobile was entered into no later than April 2, 1985, and was in effect at all times thereafter, and (ii) the lessee first used the automobile before August 1, 1985, and

(2) Who claims the investment tax credit with respect to that automobile.

(b) The inclusion amount for each of the first three taxable years during which the automobile is leased is based on the fair market value of the automobile, the lessee's amount of business use, the quarter of the taxable year during which the automobile is first used under the lease. For any passenger automobile that has a fair market value not greater than $50,000, this inclusion amount is determined by using the table below instead of the table provided in section 1.280F–5T(e)(2) of the temporary regulations. The inclusion amount is computed as follows:

(1) For the appropriate range of fair market values, select the dollar amount from the column for the quarter of the taxable year in which the automobile is first used under the lease,

(2) Prorate the dollar amount for the number of days of the lease term included in the taxable year, and

(3) Multiply the prorated dollar amount by the percentage of business use for the taxable year.

(c) For any passenger automobile which has a fair market value greater than $18,000, but not greater than $50,000, and for which the lessee claims the investment credit, the inclusion amounts for the fourth, fifth, and sixth taxable years during which the automobile is leased are determined under section 1.280F–5T(e)(3) of the temporary regulations.

(d) For any passenger automobile which has a fair market value greater than $50,000 and for which the lessee claims the investment credit, the inclusion amount for the first three taxable years during which the automobile is leased is determined according to the formulas below instead of those provided in section 1.280F–5T(e)(4)(ii)(A) through (D) of the temporary regulations.

(1) The inclusion amount is computed as follows:

(i) Determine the dollar amount by using the appropriate formula below,

(ii) Prorate the dollar amount for the number of days of the lease term included in the taxable year.

(iii) Multiply this dollar amount by the percentage of business use for the taxable year.

(2) The dollar amount is computed as follows:

(i) If the automobile is first used under the lease in the fourth quarter of a taxable year, the dollar amount for each of the first three taxable years during which the automobile is leased is 5 percent of the excess of the automobile's fair market value over $13,200.

(ii) If the automobile is first used under the lease in the third quarter of a taxcble year, the dollar amount for each of the first three taxable years during which the automobile is leased is 4.5 percent of the excess of the automobile's fair market value over $13,200.

(iii) If the automobile is first used under the lease in the second quarter of a taxable year, the dollar amount for each of the first three taxable years during which the automobile is leased is 4 percent of the excess of the automobile's fair market value over $13,200.

(iv) If the automobile is first used under the lease in the first quarter of a taxable year, the dollar amount for each of the first three taxable years during which the automobile is leased is 3.5 percent of the excess of the automobile's fair market value over $13,200.

(e) For any passenger automobile which has a fair market value greater than $50,000 and for which the lessee claims the investment credit, the inclusion amounts for the fourth, fifth, and sixth taxable years during which the automobile is leased are determined under section 1.280F–5T(e)(4)(ii)(E), (F), and (G), respectively, of the temporary regulations.

(f) (1) For any passenger automobile which has a fair market value less than or equal to $32,400 and for which the lessee claims the investment credit, the inclusion amount for the seventh and subsequent taxable years during which the automobile is leased is zero.

(2) For any passenger automobile which has a fair market value greater than $32,400 and for which the lessee claims the investment credit, the inclusion amount for the seventh and subsequent taxable years during which the automobile is leased is determined under section 1.280F–5T(e)(5)(ii) of the temporary regulations.

Section 3121.—Definitions

(Also Sections 3101, 3111; 31.3101–2, 31.3111–2.)

FICA; hospital insurance; extension to state and political subdivision employees.

Guidelines, in question and answer form, relate to the amendment of section 3121(u) of the Code that extends the hospital insurance (medicare) tax portion of the Federal Insurance Contribution Act (FICA) to wages of newly hired employees of states and political subdivisions.

Rev. Rul. 86–88

Section 13205 of the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (the Act), amended section 3121(u) of the Internal Revenue Code. In general, the amendment applies sections 3101(b) and 3111(b), the hospital insurance (medicare) tax portion of the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA), to wages for services rendered after March 31, 1986, by newly hired employees of states and political subdivisions. Previously most employees of states and political subdivisions were not covered under the FICA, as their services were excepted from the term "employment" by section 3121(b)(7).

This revenue ruling provides guidelines concerning the applicability of the medicare tax to employees of states and political subdivisions.

For purposes of this revenue ruling, the term "state" includes the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the District of Columbia.

For purposes of this revenue ruling, the term "political subdivision" has the same meaning that it has under section 218(b)(2) of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. section 418(b)(2). Thus, "political subdivision" ordinarily includes a county, city, town, village, or school district. In many states, depending upon the manner in which such entities are created under state law, "political subdivision" includes a sanitation, utility, reclamation, improvement, drainage, irrigation, flood control, or similar district.

For purposes of this revenue ruling, the term "state employer" of a state includes the state and any agency or instrumentality of that state that is a separate employer for purposes of withholding, paying, and reporting the federal income taxes of employees. The term "political subdivision employer" of a political subdivision includes the political subdivision and any agency or instumentality of that political subdivision that is a separate employer for purposes of withholding, reporting, and paying the federal income taxes of employees.

Services Subject to the Medicare Tax

Q1. What services are subject to the medicare tax under the Act?

A1. As a general rule, services performed for a state employer or political subdivision employer by an employee hired by the state employer or political subdivision employer after March 31, 1986, are subject to the medicare tax. The following services, however, are not subject to the medicare tax even though the services are performed by an employee hired after March 31, 1986:

(1) services covered by an agreement between the state and the Secretary of Health and Human Services entered into pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. section 418 (218 agreement) providing for social security coverage including medicare,

(2) services excluded from the definition of employment under any provision of section 3121(b) of the Code other than section 3121(b)(7),

(3) services performed by an individual who is employed by a state employer (except for a District of Columbia employer) or a political subdivision employer to relieve the individual of unemployment,

(4) services performed in a hospital, home, or other institution by a patient or inmate thereof as an employee of a state employer or a political subdivision employer,

(5) services performed by an individual as an employee of a state employer or a political subdivision employer serving on a temporary basis in case of fire, storm, snow, earthquake, flood, or other similar emergency, or

(6) services performed by any individual as an employee included under section 5351(2) of title 5, United States Code (relating to certain interns, student nurses, and other student employees of the District of Columbia government), other than as a medical or dental intern or a medical or dental resident in training.

The Continuing Employment Exception

Q2. If an employee was hired before April, 1986, by a state employer or political subdivision employer and services are performed for the state employer or political subdivision employer by that employee after March 31, 1986, are those services subject to the medicare tax?

A2. Services are not subject to the tax if they are performed after March 31, 1986, for a state employer or political subdivision employer by an employee who was hired by the state employer or the political subdivision employer before April 1, 1986, and if the employee meets the following requirements:

(i) the employee was performing regular and substantial services for remuneration for the state employer or political subdivision employer before April 1, 1986,

(ii) the employee was a bona fide employee of that employer on March 31, 1986,

(iii) the employment relationship with that employer was not entered into for purposes of avoiding the medicare tax, and

(iv) the employment relationship of the employee with that employer has not been terminated after March 31, 1986 (other than as provided in the rules described in Q&A7 below, which concern employees who transfer from one state employer, or one political subdivision employer, to another).

Section 3121(u)(2)(C) of the Code.

For purposes of this revenue ruling, this exception to the medicare tax is called the "continuing employment exception."

Q3. An employee signed an employment contract before April 1, 1986, but did not begin to perform services until after March 31, 1986. Does the employee qualify for the continuing employment exception?

A3. No. The employee does not qualify for the continuing employment exception because the employee was not performing regular and substantial services for remuneration before April 1, 1986. Section 3121(u)(2)(C)(ii)(I) of the Code.

Q4. Before April 1, 1986, an individual was performing services for remuneration as a substitute teacher on an "as needed" basis for a state employer or a political subdivision employer, as the individual continued performing those services on that basis after March 31, 1986. Does the individual qualify for the continuing employment exception?

A4. No. The individual does not qualify for the continuing employment exception. Even though the services performed may have been substantial, the services were not regular because they were performed on an "as needed" basis. Section 3121(u)(2)(C)(ii)(I) of the Code.

Q5. A was a state employee performing regular and substantial services for remuneration prior to April 1, 1986. A's employment relationship with the state employer was terminated after March 31, 1986, but A was later rehired by the state employer. Does the continuing employment exception apply to A?

A5. No. Section 3121(u)(2)(C)(iii) of the Code.

Q6. How is termination of employment defined for purposes of determining whether the medicare tax is applicable?

A6. The question of whether an employment relationship has terminated is a question of fact that must be determined on the basis of all the relevant facts and circumstances. Great weight, however, will be given to the personnel rules of the state employer or political subdivision employer to determine if an employment relationship has been terminated.

Q7. An employee who was hired before April 1, 1986, by a state employer transferred after March 31, 1986, to another state employer of that state. The transfer was made without a termination of the employee's overall employment relationship with that state. Does the employee qualify for the continuing employment exception?

A7. Yes. An employee hired before April 1, 1986, by a state employer who transfers after March 31, 1986, to another state employer of that state may qualify for the continuing employment exception, provided the transfer was made without a termination of the employee's overall employment relationship with that state. The same rule applies to an employee hired before April 1, 1986, by a political subdivision employer, who transfers after March 31, 1986, to another political subdivision employer of that political subdivision.

On the other hand, an employee hired before April 1, 1986, does not qualify for the continuing employment exception if after March 31, 1986, the employee transfers from a state employer to a political subdivision employer or from a political subdivision employer to a state employer. Likewise, an employee does not qualify for the exception if the employee transfers from a political subdivision employer in one political subdivision to a political subdivision employer in a different political subdivision, or from a state employer in one state to a state employer in a different state. Section 3121(u)(2)(D) of the Code.

Different rules, however, control whether a transfer affects an employee's status for purposes of the medicare tax wage base. In the case of an employee who is subject to the medicare tax, even if the employee transfers from one state employer to another state employer of that state or from one political subdivision employer to another political subdivision employer of that political subdivision, a new medicare tax wage base applies to wages received from the second employer. Thus, the rules that determine whether there is a new medicare tax wage base are the same as those applicable to employees of private employers.

Services Excluded from Employment

Q8. What services are excluded from the definition of employment?

A8. See sections 3121(b)(1)–(6), (8)–(20) of the Code for a list of services that are excluded from the definition of employment for purposes of the social security taxes, including the medicare portion of the taxes.

Q9. A 218 agreement may contain terms optionally excluding from social security coverage certain types of employment. 42 U.S.C. section 418(c)(3). If employment is optionally excluded from coverage under the terms of a 218 agreement, is that employment subject to the medicare tax if services are performed by an individual otherwise subject to the medicare tax under the rules of Q&A1 and Q&A2?

A9. Yes. The optionally excluded services are subject to the medicare tax if they are performed by an individual otherwise subject to the tax under the rules of Q&A1 and Q&A2 above.

Q10. A student is hired by school, college, or university after March 31, 1986, to perform services of the school, college, or university. The student is in a group optionally excluded from coverage under the terms of an applicable 218 agreement. Are the services performed by the student subject to the medicare tax?

A10. Services performed by a student employed by a school, college, or university are not subject to the medicare tax if the student is enrolled and regularly attending classes at the school, college, or university. Section 3121(b)(10) of the Code. Services of a student that are subject to contributions under a 218 agreement continue to be subject to such contributions.

Definition of Wages

Q11. Is the definition of wages for medicare tax purposes the same as the definition of wages for making social security contributions under 218 agreements?

A11. No, not in all cases. The term "wages" for purposes of paying medicare tax is defined by section 3121(a) of the Code. The term "wages" for purposes of making contributions under a 218 agreement is defined by section 209 of the Social Security Act. 42 U.S.C. section 409. Questions concerning the definition of wages (and employment) for purposes of paying medicare tax should be directed to the Service. Questions concerning the definition of wages (and employment) for purposes of making 218 contributions should be directed to the Social Security Administration (SSA).

Rules for Reporting and Payment of Medicare Tax

Q12. Is the medicare tax reported and paid to the Internal Revenue Service or to the SSA?

A12. The medicare tax is reported and paid to the Service (1) by a state employer of a state if on April 7, 1986, no employee of any state employer of that state was covered under a 218 agreement, and (2) by a political subdivision employer of a political subdivision if on April 7, 1986, no employee of any political subdivision employer of a political subdivision employer of that political subdivision was covered under a 218 agreement.

The medicare tax is reported and paid to the state Social Security Administrator (1) by a state employer of a state if on April 7, 1986, any employee of any state employer of that state was covered under a 218 agreement, and (2) by a political subdivision employer of a political subdivision if on April 7, 1986, any employee of any political subdivision employer of that political subdivision was covered under a 218 agreement.

Q13. A 218 agreement was in effect with state X on or before April 7, 1986. The agreement provided for coverage of employees of a political subdivision employer of political subdivision A but not for coverage of any employee of any political subdivision employer of political subdivision B. After April 7, 1986, a modification of the 218 agreement was executed providing for coverage of some, but not all, employees of a political subdivision employer of political subdivision B. The effective date of the new coverage was April 1, 1986. When that political subdivision employer of political subdivision B reports and pays the medicare tax on wages for services performed by those of its employees who are not subject to the modification, is the tax reported and paid to the state Social Security Administrator or to the Internal Revenue Service?
A13. The tax is reported and paid to the Internal Revenue Service. Modifying a 218 agreement after April 7, 1986, to extend coverage on a retroactive basis does not change the agency to which the employer must report and pay the medicare tax for services performed by employees who are subject to the medicare tax.

Q14. How is the medicare tax reported and paid to the Internal Revenue Service?
A14. Taxable wages must be reported on line 6 of Form 941E, Quarterly Return of Withheld Federal Income Tax and Hospital Insurance (Medicare) Tax. The reporting, depositing, and paying of the medicare tax are subject to the same rules applicable to private employers. These rules are similar to those applicable to income tax withholding.

Q15. How is the medicare tax reported and paid to the SSA?
A15. The medicare tax is reported and paid to the SSA just as contributions under a 218 agreement are reported and paid to the SSA.

Q16. Will all penalties for failure to pay the medicare tax and failure to make timely deposits of the tax be assessed against state and political subdivision employers?
A16. The Service will waive penalties for failure to pay and for failure to make timely deposits of the medicare tax with respect to services performed through the fourth quarter of 1986, so long as all payments due for April through December of 1986 are paid by February 2, 1987. If all payments due for April through December 1986 are not paid by February 2, 1987, this automatic waiver of penalties is not applicable, even with respect to amounts paid by February 2, 1987. Penalties may be waived, however, if the employer shows reasonable cause for failure to pay and failure to make timely deposits of the tax. See sections 6651 and 6656 of the Code. A state employer or political subdivision employer should not report any medicare tax wages on line 6 of Form 941E for the second or third quarter unless appropriate deposits and/or payments are made for that quarter.

Q17. If a state employer or a political subdivision employer has federal employees on the state or political subdivision payroll, how should that employer report the full social security tax or the medicare portion of the social security tax, whichever is applicable?
A17. The state employer or political subdivision employer should use Form 941E to report the full social security taxes and/or the medicare portion of the taxes. For those federal employees subject to the full social security taxes, the tax must be included with the withheld federal income tax on line 3 of Form 941E, with an attached supporting statement showing the amount of wages subject to the social security taxes, the amount of the taxes withheld, and the employer's share of the taxes. For those federal employees subject only to the medicare portion of the social security taxes, the medicare tax must be reported on line 6 of Form 941E.

Q18. If a state employer or a political subdivision employer must report and pay the medicare tax to the Service as explained in Q&A12, how should the employer transmit Copy A of Forms W-2 for newly hired employees who are subject to the medicare tax?
A18. For newly hired employees subject to the medicare tax, the employer should transmit Copy A of Forms W-2 with a Form W-3, Transmittal of Income and Tax Statements, and should check the "Medicare Fed. emp." checkbox in Box 2 on the Form W-3. This checkbox will be changed to "Medicare government employee" on the 1987 Form W-3 to reflect the extension of the medicare tax to state and political subdivision employees. For employees not subject to the medicare tax, the employers should follow the current practice of transmitting Copy A of Forms W-2 with a Form W-3, checking the "941/941E" checkbox in Box 2 on the Form W-3.

Q19. If a state employer or a political subdivision employer must report and pay the medicare tax to the state Social Security Administrator as explained in Q&A12, how should the employer transmit Copy A of Forms W-2 for newly hired employees subject to the medicare tax?
A19. For newly hired employees subject to the medicare tax, the employer should transmit Copy A of Forms W-2 with a Form W-3 S&L, Transmittal of Income and Tax Statements for State and Local Governmental Employers, and should check the "Medicare Government Employee" checkbox on the Form W-3 S&L in addition to the "Section 218" checkbox. For those employees covered under a 218 agreement, the state employer or the political subdivision employer should follow the current practice of transmitting the Forms W-2 with a Form W-3 S&L, checking the "Section 218" checkbox in Box 2 on the Form W-3 S&L. If the employer also has employees who are not covered under the 218 agreement and who were hired before April 1, 1986, then for those employees, the employer should transmit Forms W-2 with a Form W-3 and should check the "941/941E" box on the Form W-3.

Section 4945.—Taxes on Taxable Expenditures

26 CFR 53.4945-4: Grants to individuals.
(Also Section 117; 1.117-1.)

Private foundations; taxable expenditures; scholarship grants. Grants awarded by a private foundation under an employer-related program are scholarships under section 117(a) of the Code even though the grants will be awarded without regard to the percentage guidelines of section 4.08 of Rev. Proc. 76-47. Therefore, grants awarded under the program will be described in section 4945(g)(1) and will not be taxable expenditures under section 4945(d)(3).

Rev. Rul. 86-90

ISSUE

Are grants awarded under the program described below scholarships under section 117(a) of the Internal Revenue Code and, therefore, not taxable expenditures under section 4945(d)(3), even though the grants are awarded without regard to the percentage guidelines of section 4.08 of Rev. Proc. 76–47, 1976–2 C.B. 670?

FACTS

Foundation X is exempt from federal income tax under section 501(c)(3) of the Code and is a private foundation within the meaning of section 509(a). X has applied under section 4945(g) for approval of its proposed college scholarship program. X proposes to award one grant per year to a student to attend an educational organization described in section 170(b)(1)(A)(ii). The grant is a small, fixed amount and may be used to pursue any course of study leading to a degree. The student will be selected from the children of employees of company M on an objective basis using the criteria of financial need or academic ability. M has 3,000 employees of diverse ages and occupations. No fact about M or the plan, such as seasonal employment, extensive use of independent contractors, or an unusually large number of employees without children of qualifying age, disqualifies a significant number of persons who serve the company.

X's program will be conducted in accordance with the guidelines of sections 4.01 through 4.07 of Rev. Proc. 76–47. However, X will award its one grant per year without regard to the percentage limitation guidelines of section 4.08 of Rev. Proc. 76–47. X cannot guarantee that the program will meet these guidelines each year. X reasonably believes that the program will satisfy the ten percent test of section 4.08 each year, but has not determined whether the program will in fact meet that test, because although it knows the number of employees' children who graduate from high school, it does not know how many of those enter a degree program. Further, X reasonably believes that the expense involved in making the determination of the number of children of employees entering a degree program is not justified in light of the small amount awarded in the grant program. Although X will undertake reasonable efforts to secure sufficient applications to satisfy the 25 percent test of section 4.08, X also anticipates that in some years the number of eligible applicants will be insufficient to satisfy that test because its program provides only one grant annually of a small, fixed amount. X has demonstrated that its applicants and grantees will not be drawn from a specific group of employees.

LAW

Section 4945 of the Code imposes a tax on each taxable expenditure made by a private foundation.

Section 4945(d)(3) of the Code provides that the term "taxable expenditure" includes any amount paid or incurred by a private foundation as a grant to an individual for study or other similar purpose, except as provided in section 4945(g).

Section 4945(g)(1) of the Code provides that a grant to an individual for study that is made on an objective and nondiscriminatory basis pursuant to a procedure approved in advance by the Secretary is not a taxable expenditure under section 4945(d)(3) if it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the grant constitutes a scholarship or fellowship grant which is subject to the provisions of section 117(a) and is to be used for study at an educational organization described in section 170(b)(1)(A)(ii).

Section 117(a) of the Code provides, with certain limitations, that an individual's gross income does not include any amount received and expended as a scholarship at an educational organization described in section 170(b)(1)(A)(ii) or as a fellowship grant.

Rev. Proc. 76–47, 1976–2 C.B. 670, provides guidelines for determining whether a grant made by a private foundation under an employer-related grant program to a child of an employee of the particular employer to which the program relates is a scholarship or fellowship grant subject to the provisions of section 117(a) of the Code.

Section 4.08 of Rev. Proc. 76–47 provides a percentage test guidelines. It states that in the case of a program that awards grants to children of employees of a particular employer, the program meets the percentage test if the number of grants awarded under that program in any year to such children does not exceed 25 percent of the number of employees' children who (i) were eligible, (ii) were applicants for such grants, and (iii) were considered by the selection committee in selecting the recipients of grants in that year; or ten percent of the number of employees' children who can be shown to be eligible for grants (whether or not they submitted an application) in that year.

As stated in section 4 of Rev. Proc. 76–47, if a private foundation's program satisfies the seven conditions set forth in sections 4.01 through 4.07, but does not meet the percentage test of section 4.08 applicable to grants to employees' children, the question whether the grants are scholarships or fellowship grants subject to the provisions of section 117(a) of the Code will be resolved on the basis of all the facts and circumstances. In making this determination, the Service will consider as a substitute for the percentage test of section 4.08 all the relevant facts and circumstances to determine whether the primary purpose is to educate recipients in their individual capacities. These facts and circumstances will be considered in the context of the probability that a grant will be available to any eligible applicant.

Such relevant facts and circumstances may include: the likelihood that the program may be used for employee recruitment or to retain employees, the independence of the selection committee, standards for scholarship eligibility and selection, limitations on the recipient's choice of course of study, the number of grants available, the number of children of employees who would be eligible for them, the percentage of eligible children of employees applying for grants who normally (i.e., on an average basis) receive grants under the program, and whether and how many grants are awarded to individuals who are not children of employees.

ANALYSIS

In applying Rev. Proc. 76–47, it is assumed that the program is conducted on an objective and nondiscriminatory basis (within the meaning of section 4945(g) of the Code section 53.4945–4(b) of the Foundation and Similar Excise Tax Regulations) except insofar as that conclusion may be affected by the failure of the education grants to be scholarships or fellowships subject to the provisions of section 117(a) and the reason for such failure. The grant program described above satisfies the conditions of sections 4.01 through 4.07 of Rev. Proc. 76–47, but does not meet the percentage test of section 4.08. As a substitute for the percentage test, all the relevant facts and circumstances must be considered to determine whether the primary purpose of the grant is to educate recipients in their individual capacities or to compensate employees.

In this instance, the relevant facts and circumstances indicate that the primary purpose of X's grant program is to educate recipients in their individual capacities rather than to compensate employees. As required by Rev. Proc. 76–47, the selection committee is independent of X and M and awards the grants using the objective criteria of academic performance and financial need. X has demonstrated that the company's employees and the plan have no unusual characteristics that would bear on the likelihood that a grant will be available to any specific subgroup of eligible applicants or that a significant number of children of persons who serve the company will be disqualified. The grant is a small fixed amount. It does not limit the grantee significantly in choosing a course of study or school. Only one grant per year will be awarded among the children of 3,000 employees. X's inability to show whether it will meet the ten percent test is reasonable, because the expense of determining whether the test is met is greatly out of proportion to the small grant program. These facts indicate that overall there is no significant degree of probability that a grant will be available to the child of any particular employee or to a child selected from any particular group of employees. (The fact that this situation involves only one grant per year among the children of employees does not preclude the possibility that if several grants were awarded, there still would be no significant degree of probability that a grant would be available to any particular employee's child.)

HOLDING

Under the facts set forth above, grants awarded under this program satisfy the requirements of Rev. Proc. 76–47 and constitute scholarships under section 117(a) of the Code. Therefore, grants awarded under the program will be described in section 4945(g)(1) and will not be taxable expenditures under section 4945(d)(3).

TITLE 26—INTERNAL REVENUE.—CHAPTER 1, SUBCHAPTER F; PART 301—PROCEDURE AND ADMINISTRATION

Administrative Summonses

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Final regulations.

SUMMARY: This document contains final regulations relating to administrative summonses. Changes to the applicable tax law were made by the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 [1982–2 C.B. 462]. The regulations provide the public with the guidance needed to comply with that Act and affect persons who receive summonses, third party recordkeepers who receive summonses, and persons with respect to whose tax liability a summons is issued.

DATES: The regulations pertaining to section 7602 of the Code are effective after September 3, 1982. The regulations pertaining to section 7609 of the Code apply to summonses served after December 31, 1982.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

On June 12, 1985, the FEDERAL REGISTER published proposed amendments (50 FR 24655) to the Procedure and Administration Regulations (26 CFR Part 301) under sections 7602 and 7609 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 [LR–10–83, 1985–2, C.B. 797]. These amendments were proposed to conform the regulations to sections 331, 332, and 333 of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (TEFRA) (96 Stat. 620).

Two written comments responding to the notice of proposed rulemaking were received. No requests for a public hearing were received and accordingly none was held. After consideration of all written comments regarding the proposed amendments, those amendments are adopted as revised by this Treasury decision.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Under section 7602, no summons may be issued or enforced with respect to any person if a Justice Department referral is in effect with respect to that person. Section 301.7602–1(c)(2)(ii) of the proposed regulations provides that a referral is in effect with respect to any person when the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, or an Assistant Attorney General under the authority of section 6103(h)(3)(B) requests that the Service disclose taxpayer information relating to the person. The request must state that the need for disclosure is for tax administration purposes. One commentator suggested that the rule be clarified so as to state that a referral is in effect only if the request for disclosure is made with respect to a criminal investigation or prosecution. This suggestion is adopted in the final regulations.

The proposed regulations contain a number of examples illustrating that for purposes of the rule prohibiting the issuance or enforcement of a summons if a Justice Department referral is in effect, each taxable period and taxes imposed by different chapters of the Code are treated seperately. One comment suggested the addition of an example dealing with tax shelter promoter penalties when a referral relating to income tax is in effect. Accordingly, the final regulations include an example clarifying that the Service may issue an administrative summons with respect to a person's liability under section 6700 (tax shelter promoter penalty) even though a referral is in effect for the taxable year with respect to that person's income tax liability.

One commentator suggested that the time period under section 7609 during which the Service is proscribed from issuing or enforcing summonses be changed from 20 days to 20 business days. In addition, the commentator suggested that the Secretary be required to issue the certificates described in section 7609(i)(2) rather than being allowed to issue such certificates as a matter of discretion. Because these comments are inconsistent with the language of section 7609, they are not adopted in the final regulations.

REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT AND EXECUTIVE ORDER 12291

Although a notice of proposed rulemaking soliciting public comments was issued, the Internal Revenue Service has concluded that the regulations are interpretative and that the notice and public procedure requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 do not apply. Accordingly, these regulations are not subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. Chapter 6).

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that these final regulations are not major rules under Executive Order 12291 or the Treasury and OMB implementation of the order dated April 29, 1983. Accordingly, a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required.

DRAFTING INFORMATION

The principal author of these proposed regulations is Bruce H. Jurist of the Legislation and Regulations Division of the Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service. However, personnel from other offices of the Internal Revenue Service and Treasury Department participated in developing the regulations, both on matters of substance and style.

Accordingly, 26 CFR Part 301 is amended as follows:

PROCEDURE AND ADMINSTRATION REGULATIONS

(26 CFR Part 301)

Paragraph 1. The authority for Part 301 continues to read in part:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805. * * *

Par. 2. Section 301.7602–1 is amended by revising paragraphs (a) and (b) and adding new paragraphs (c) and (d). The amended section reads as follows:

§301.7602–1 Examination of books and witnesses.

(a) In general. For the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of any return, making a return where none has been made, determining the liability of any person for any internal revenue tax (including any interest, additional amount, addition to the tax, or civil penalty) or the liability at law or in equity of any transferee or fiduciary of any person in respect of any internal revenue tax, collecting any such liability, or inquiring into any offense connected with the administration or enforcement of the internal revenue laws, any authorized officer or employee of the Internal Revenue Service may examine any books, papers, records or other data which may be relevant or material to such inquiry; and take such testimony of the person concerned, under oath, as may be relevant to such inquiry.

(b) Summons. For the purposes described in paragraph (a) of this section the Commissioner is authorized to summon the person liable for tax or required to perform the act, or any officer or employee of such person or any persons having possession, custody, or care of books of accounts containing entries relating to the business of the person liable for tax or required to perform the act, or any other person deemed proper, to appear before a designated officer or employee of the Internal Revenue Service at a time and place named in the summons and to produce such books, papers, records, or other data, and to give such testimony, under oath, as may be relevant or material to such inquiry; and take such testimony of the person concerned, under oath, as may be relevant or material to such inquiry. This summons power may be used in an investigation of either civil or criminal tax-related liability. The Commissioner may designate any employee of the Internal Revenue Service as the individual before whom a person summoned pursuant to section 6420(e)(2), 6421(f)(2), 6424(d)(2), 6427(e)(2), or 7602 shall appear. Any such employee, when so designated in a summons, is authorized to take testimony under oath of the person summoned and to receive and examine books, papers, records, or other data produced in compliance with the summons.

(c) Proscription on issuing of administrative summons when a Justice Department referral is in effect.

(1) In general. The Commissioner may neither issue a summons under this title nor initiate a proceeding to enforce a previously issued summons by way of section 7604 with respect to any person whose tax liability is in issue, if a Justice Department referral is in effect with respect to that person for that liability.

(2) Justice Department referral in effect. A Justice Department referral is in effect with respect to any person when:

(i) The Secretary recommends, within the meaning of this paragraph, that the Attorney General either commence a grand jury investigation of or criminal prosecution of such person for any alleged offense connected with the administration or enforcement of the internal revenue laws, or

(ii) The Attorney General (or Deputy Attorney General or Assistant Attorney General) under section 6103(h)(3)(B) requests in writing that the Secretary disclose a return of, or return information relating to, such person. The request must set forth that the need for disclosure is for the purpose of a grand jury investigation of or potential or pending criminal prosecution of such person for any alleged offense connected with the administration or enforcement of the internal revenue laws.

The referral is effective at the time the document recommending criminal prosecution or grand jury investigation is signed by the Secretary or upon the Secretary's receipt of the section 6103(h)(3)(B) request.

(3) Cessation of Justice Department referral. A Justice Department referral ceases to be in effect with respect to a person:

(i) When the Secretary receives written notification from the Attorney General that the Justice Department:

(A) Will not prosecute that person for any offense connected with the administration or enforcement of the internal revenue laws that gave rise to the referral under paragraph (2)(i) of this section, or

(B) Will not authorize a grand jury investigation of that person with respect to such offense, or

(C) Will discontinue any grand jury investigation of that person with respect to such offense;

(ii) When a final disposition with respect to a criminal proceeding brought against that person has been made; or

(iii) When the Secretary receives written notification from the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, or an Assistant Attorney General, that the Justice Department will not prosecute such person for any offense connected with the administration or enforcement of the internal revenue laws, based upon a previous request for disclosure under section 6103(h)(3)(B).

(4) Taxable years and taxes imposed by separate chapters of the Code treated separately—(i) In general. For purposes of this section, each taxable period (or, if there is no taxable period, each taxable event) and each tax imposed by a separate chapter of the Code is treated separately.

(ii) Examples. The following examples illustrate the application of this paragraph (c)(4):

Example (1). A Justice Department referral is in effect for D's criminal evasion of income tax for the taxable year 1979. The Commissioner may issue a summons respecting D's 1980 criminal and/or civil tax liability. The Commissioner may not issue a summons respecting D's 1979 income tax liability.

Example (2). A referral has been made out to the Department of Justice for the criminal prosecution of F with regard to F's income tax liability for the taxable year 1978. The Commissioner may issue a summons respecting F's gift tax liability for the taxable year 1978.

Example (3). A referral has been made to the Department of Justice for a grand jury investigation respecting G's 1980 income tax liability. The Commissioner may issue a summons related to an investigation of G's liability for Federal Insurance Contribution Act (FICA) taxes for the taxable year 1980.

Example (4). A referral has been made to the Department of Justice respecting J's criminal evasion of windfall profit tax for all quarters of the calendar year 1982. The Commissioner may issue a summons respecting J's liability for highway motor vehicle use tax covering the same periods.

Example (5). A referral has been made to the Department of Justice for a grand jury investigation respecting L's 1983 income tax liability. The Commissioner may issue a summons related to the investigation of L's liability under sections 6700 (abusive tax shelter promoter penalty) and 7408 of the Code for his conduct during 1983.

(d) Effective date. This section is effective after September 3, 1982. For rules effective on or before September 3, 1982, see 26 CFR 301.7602–1 (revised as of April 1, 1984).

Par. 3. Section 301.7609–1 is amended by designating the original text as paragraph (a), revising redesignated paragraph (a), and adding a new paragraph (b). The amended section reads as follows:

§301.7609–1 Special procedures for third-party summonses.

(a) In general. Section 7609 requires the Internal Revenue Service to follow special procedures when summoning the records of persons defined by section 7609(a)(3) as "third-party recordkeepers." Under these special procedures, the person about whom information is being gathered must be notified in advance in many cases. If the person about whom information is being gather has been given notice, that person has the right to institute, until and including the 20tn day following the day such notice was served on or mailed to such notified person, a proceeding to quash the summons. During the time the validity of the summons is being litigated, the statutes of limitations are suspended under section 7609(e). Section 7609 does not restrict the authority under section 7602 (or under any other provision of law) to examine records and witnesses without serving a summons and without giving notice of an examination. Sections 301.7609–1 through 301.7609–5 relate to section 7609; §301.7609–2, discusses matters under sections 7609(a)(3) and 7609(i) relating to third-party recordkeepers; §301.7609–3 discusses matters under section 7609(b), relating to intervention rights; §301.7609–4 and the institution of a proceeding to quash; §301.7609–4 discusses matters under section 7609(c), relating to summonses excepted from the section 7609 procedures; and §301.7609–5 discusses matters under section 7609(e), relating to the suspension of the statute of limitations.

(b) Effective dates. This section applies to summonses served after December 31, 1982. For the rules applicable to summonses issued on or after March 1, 1977 and served before January 1, 1983, see 26 CFR 301.7609–1 (revised as of April 1, 1984).

Par. 4. Section 301.7609–2 is amended by adding new paragraphs (c) and (d). The amended section reads as follows:

§301.7609–2 Third-party recordkeepers.

(c) Duty of third-party recordkeeper—(1) In general. Upon receipt of a summons, the third-party recordkeeper ("recordkeeper") must begin to assemble the summoned records. The recordkeeper must be prepared to produce the summoned records on the date which the summons states the records are to be examined regardless of the institution or anticipated institution of a proceeding to quash or the recordkeeper's intervention (as allowed under section 7609(b)(2)(C)) into a proceeding to quash.

(2) Disclosing recordkeepers not liable—(i) In general. A recordkeeper, or an agent or employee thereof, who makes a disclosure of records as required by this section, in good faith reliance on the certificate of the Secretary (as defined in paragraph (c)(2)(ii) of this section) or an order of a court requiring production of records, will not be liable for such disclosure to any customer, or to any party with respect to whose tax liablility the summons was issued, or to any other person.

(ii) Certificate of the Secretary. The Secretary may issue to the recordkeeper a certificate stating both:

(A) That the 20-day period, within which a notified person may institute a proceeding to quash the summons, has expired; and

(B) That no proceeding has been properly instituted within that period. The Secretary may also issue a certificate to the recordkeeper if the taxpayer, with respect to whose tax liability the summons was issued, expressly consents to the examination of the records summoned.

(3) Reimbursement of costs. Recordkeepers may be entitled to reimbursement of their costs of assembling and preparing to produce summoned records, to the extent allowed by section 7610, even if the summons ultimately is not enforced.

(d) Effective dates. This section, with the exception of paragraph (c), applies generally to all summonses issued on or after March 1, 1977. Paragraph (c) applies only to summonses served after December 31, 1982.

Par. 5. Section 301.7609–3 is amended by revising paragraphs (a), (b), (c), and by adding new pararaph (d). The amended section reads as follows:

§301.7609–3 Right to intervene; right to institute a proceeding to quash.

(a) Notified person. Under section 7609(a), the Internal Revenue Service must give a notice of summons to any person, other than the person summoned, who is identified in the description of the books and records contained in the summons in order that such person may contest the right of the Service to examine the summoned records by instituting a proceeding to quash the summons. Thus, if the Service issues a summons to a bank requesting checking account records of more than one person all of whom are identified in the description of the records contained in the summons, then all such persons are notified persons entitled to notice under section 7609(a). Therefore, if the Service requests the records of a joint bank account of A and B both of whom are named in the summons, then both A and B are notified persons entitled to notice under section 7609(a).

(b) Right to institute a proceeding to quash—

(1) In general. Section 7609(b) grants a notified person the right to institute a proceeding to quash the summons in the United States district court for the district within which the person summoned resides or is found. Jurisdiction of the court is based on section 7609(h). The act of filing a petition in district court does not in and of itself institute a proceeding to quash under section 7609(b)(2). Rather, the filing of the petition must be coupled with notice as required by section 7609(b)(2)(B).

(2) Elements of institution of a proceeding to quash. In order to institute a proceeding to quash a summons the notified person (or the notified person's agent, nominee, or other person acting under the direction or control of the notified person) must, not later than the 20th day following the day the notice of the summons was served on or mailed to such notified person:

(i) File a petition to quash in the name of the notified person in a district court having jurisdiction,

(ii) Notify the Service by sending a copy of that petition by registered or certified mail to the Service employee and office designated to receive the copy in the notice of summons that was given to the notified person, and

(iii) Notify the recordkeeper by sending to that recordkeeper by registered or certified mail a copy of the petition.

Failure to give timely notice to either the summoned party of the Service in the manner described in this paragraph means that the notified person has failed to institute a proceeding to quash and the district court has no jurisdiction to hear the proceeding. Thus, for example, if the notified person mails a copy of the petition to the summoned person but not to the designated Service employee and office, the notified person has failed to institute a proceeding to quash. Similarly, if the notified person mails a copy of such petition to the summoned person but, instead of sending a copy of the petition by registered or certified mail to the designated employee and office, the notified person gives the designated employee and office the petition by some other means, the notified person has failed to institute a proceeding to quash.

(3) Failure to institute a proceeding to quash. If the notified person fails to institute a proceeding to quash within 20 days following the day the notice of the summons was served on or mailed to such notified person, the Service may examine the summoned records following the 23rd day after notice of the summons was served on or mailed to the notified person (see section 7609(d)(1)).

(c) Presumption no notice has been mailed. Section 7609(b)(2)(B) permits a notified person to institute a proceeding to quash by filing a petition in district court and notifying both the Service and the summoned person. Unless the notified person has notified both the Service and the summoned person in the appropriate manner, the notified person has failed to institute a proceeding to quash. If the copy of the petition has not been delivered to the summoned person or the person and office designated to receive the notice on behalf of the Service within 3 days from the close of the 20-day period allowed to institute a proceeding to quash, it is presumed that the notification has not been timely mailed.

(d) Effective date. This section applies to summonses served after December 31, 1982. For the rules applicable to summonses issued on or after March 1, 1977 and served before January 1, 1983, see 26 CFR 301.7609-3 (revised as of April 1, 1984).

Par. 6. Section 301.7609-4 is amended by adding new paragraph (c). The amended section reads as follows:

§301.7609-4 Summons excepted from section 7609 procedures.

* * * * *

(c) Effective date. This section applies to all summonses issued after February 28, 1977.

Par. 7. Section 301.7609-5 is amended by revising paragraphs (b) and (c) and by adding new paragraph (d). The amended section reads as follows:

§301.7609-5 Suspension of statutes of limitation.

(b) Period during which a proceeding, etc., is pending. Under section 7609(e), the statute of limitations may be suspended for the period during which a proceeding, and appeals therein, with respect to the enforcement of such summons is pending. This period begins on the date the petition to quash the summons is filed in district court. The period continues until all appeals are disposed of, or until the expiration of the period in which an appeal may be taken or a request for a rehearing may be made. Full compliance, partial compliance, and noncompliance have no effect on the suspension provisions. Of course, if the notified person takes no action provided in subsection (b) of section 7609, no suspension of the statutes of limitations takes place. The periods of limitations which are suspended under section 7609(e) are those which apply to the taxable periods to which the summons relates.

(c) Taking of action as provided in section 7609(b). Section 7609(b) allows intervention by a notified person as a matter of right upon compliance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The phrase "takes any action as provided in subsection (b)", found in section 7609(e), includes any intervention, whether or not section 7609(b) is specifically mentioned in the order of the court allowing intervention. The phrase also includes the fulfilling of only part of the requirements of section 7609(b)(2), relating to the right of a person to institute a proceeding to quash. Thus, for instance, if a notified person notifies a person who has been summoned by sending a copy of the petition by registered or certified mail but does not mail a copy of that notice to the appropriate person and office under section 7609(b)(2)(B), the notified person has taken an action under section 7609(e).

(d) Effective dates. This section applies to summonses served after December 31, 1982. For the rules applicable to summonses issued on or after March 1, 1977, and before January 1, 1983, see 26 CFR 301.7609-5 (revised as of April 1, 1984).

James I. Owens,
Acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Approved May 28, 1986.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Announcement of the Disbarment, Suspension, or Consent to Voluntary Suspension of Attorneys, Certified Public Accountants, Enrolled Agents and Enrolled Actuaries from Practice Before the Internal Revenue Service

Under 31 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 10, an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, in order to avoid the institution or conclusion of a proceeding for his disbarment or suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, may offer his consent to suspension from such practice. The Director of Practice, in his discretion, may suspend an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary in accordance with the consent offered.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents, and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify practitioners under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and addresses of practitioners who have been suspended from such practice, their designation as attorneys, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date or period of suspension. This announcement will appear in the weekly Bulletin at the earliest practicable date after such action and will continue to appear in the weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks or for as many weeks as is practicable for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

The following individuals have been placed under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Henry L. Creel	Cleveland, OH	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from May 15, 1986
J. Thomas Jones	Augusta, GA	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from June 1, 1986
Michael D. Sherman	Pound Ridge, NY	Enrolled Agent	Indefinite from May 27, 1986

Under Section 330, Title 31 of the United States Code (1970 ed.), the Secretary of the Treasury, after due notice and opportunity for hearing, is authorized to suspend or disbar from practice before the Internal Revenue Service any attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent, or enrolled actuary who has violated the rules and regulations governing such practice.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify such disbarred or suspended practitioners, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and address of practitioners who have been disbarred or suspended from such practice, their designation as attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date of disbarment or period of suspension. This announcement will continue to appear in the Weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended or disbarred and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

After due notice and opportunity for hearing, the following individual has been disbarred from further practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Effective Date
Earl M. Walker	Port Neches, TX	Certified Public Accountant	May 19, 1986

Announcement Relating to Proposed Regulations Published With Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Changes in regulations as announced below have been published in the Federal Register in tentative or proposed form to provide interested parties with an opportunity to file their objections or suggestions for consideration prior to final adoption of such regulations. These announcements will appear in the Bulletin during the period which has been prescribed for the submission and consideration of any views, arguments, or suggestions pertaining to the proposed regulations so published. Statement of such views, arguments or suggestions should be submitted in writing, preferably six copies, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: CC:LR:T, Washington, D.C. 20224.

Definition of Terms

Revenue rulings and revenue procedures (hereinafter referred to as "rulings") that have an effect on previous rulings use the following defined terms to describe the effect:

Amplified describes a situation where no change is being made in a prior published position, but the prior position is being extended to apply to a variation of the fact situation set forth therein. Thus, if an earlier ruling held that a principle applied to A, and the new ruling holds that the same principle also applies to B, the earlier ruling is amplified. (Compare with modified, below).

Clarified is used in those instances where the language in a prior ruling is being made clear because the language has caused, or may cause, some confusion. It is not used where a position in a prior ruling is being changed.

Distinguished describes a situation where a ruling mentions a previously published ruling and points out an essential difference between them.

Modified is used where the substance of a previously published position is being changed. Thus, if a prior ruling held that a principle applied to A but not to B, and the new ruling holds that it applies to both A and B, the prior ruling is modified because it corrects a published position. (Compare with amplified and clarified, above).

Obsoleted describes a previously published ruling that is not considered determinative with respect to future transactions. This term is most commonly used in a ruling that lists previously published rulings that are obsoleted because of changes in law or regulations. A ruling may also be obsoleted because the substance has been included in regulations subsequently adopted.

Revoked describes situations where the position in the previously published ruling is not correct and the correct position is being stated in the new ruling.

Superseded describes a situation where the new ruling does nothing more than restate the substance and situation of a previously published ruling (or rulings). Thus, the term is used to republish under the 1954 Code and regulations the same position published under the 1939 Code and regulations. The term is also used when it is desired to republish in a single ruling a series of situations, names, etc., that were previously published over a period of time in separate rulings. If the new ruling does more than restate the substance of a prior ruling, a combination of terms is used. For example, modified and superseded describes a situation where the substance of a previously published ruling is being changed in part and is continued without change in part and it is desired to restate the valid portion of the previously published ruling in a new ruling that is self contained. In this case the previously published ruling is first modified and then, as modified, is superseded.

Supplemented is used in situations in which a list, such as a list of the names of countries, is published in a ruling and that list is expanded by adding further names in subsequent rulings. After the original ruling has been supplemented several times, a new ruling may be published that includes the list in the original ruling and the additions, and supersedes all prior rulings in the series.

Suspended is used in rare situations to show that the previous published rulings will not be applied pending some future action such as the issuance of new or amended regulations, the outcome of cases in litigation, or the outcome of a Service study.

INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

The Introduction on page 3 describes the purpose and content of this publication. The weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin is sold on a yearly subscription basis by the Superintendent of Documents. Current subscribers are notified by the Superintendent of Documents when their subscriptions must be renewed.

CUMULATIVE BULLETINS

The contents of the weekly Bulletin are consolidated semiannually into a permanent, indexed, Cumulative Bulletin. These are sold on a single copy basis and are not included as part of the subscription to the Internal Revenue Bulletin. Subscribers to the weekly Bulletin are notified when copies of the Cumulative Bulletin are available. Certain issues of Cumulative Bulletins are out of print and are not available. Persons desiring available Cumulative Bulletins, which are listed on the reverse, may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents.

BULLETIN INDEX-DIGEST SYSTEM

The Bulletin Index-Digest System provides a fast and easy way to research Revenue Rulings, Revenue Procedures, Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and other matters of a permanent nature published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin, or Cumulative Bulletin from 1953 on. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date research tool that requires no filing or other clerical maintenance. The current revision consists of four Services, available on a subscription basis, each including a basic volume that covers the period 1953-1983/1984 and a cumulative supplement covering material published in subsequent Bulletins for the following two-year period. Cumulative supplements are issued quarterly for the Income Tax Service and semiannually for the Estate and Gift, Employment, and Excise Tax Service.

HOW TO ORDER

Check the publications and/or subscription(s) desired on the reverse, complete the order blank, enclose the proper remittance, detach entire page, and mail to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Please allow two to six weeks, plus mailing time, for delivery.

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing our Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

Introduction

The Internal Revenue Bulletin is the authoritative instrument of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for announcing official rulings and procedures of the Internal Revenue Service and for publishing Treasury Decisions, Executive Orders, Tax Conventions, legislation, court decisions, and other items of general interest. It is published weekly and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. Bulletin contents of a permanent nature are consolidated semiannually into Cumulative Bulletins, which are sold on a single-copy basis.

It is the policy of the Service to publish in the Bulletin all substantive rulings necessary to promote a uniform application of the tax laws, including all rulings that supersede, revoke, modify, or amend any of those previously published in the Bulletin. All published rulings apply retroactively unless otherwise indicated. Procedures relating solely to matters of internal management are not published; however, statements of internal practices and procedures that affect the rights and duties of taxpayers are published.

Revenue rulings represent the conclusions of the Service on the application of the law to the pivotal facts stated in the revenue ruling. In those based on positions taken in rulings to taxpayers or technical advice to Service field offices, identifying details and information of a confidential nature are deleted to prevent unwarranted invasions of privacy and to comply with statutory requirements.

Rulings and procedures reported in the Bulletin do not have the force and effect of Treasury Department Regulations, but they may be used as precedents. Unpublished rulings will not be relied on, used, or cited as precedents by Service personnel in the disposition of other cases. In applying published rulings and procedures, the effect of subsequent legislation, regulations, court decisions, rulings, and procedures must be considered, and Service personnel and others concerned are cautioned against reaching the same conclusions in other cases unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same.

The Bulletin is divided into four parts as follows:

Part I.—1954 Code.

This part includes rulings and decisions based on provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Part II.—Treaties and Tax Legislation.

This part is divided into two subparts as follows: Subpart A, Tax Conventions, and Subpart B, Legislation and Related Committee Reports.

Part III.—Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous.

To the extent practicable, pertinent cross references to these subjects are contained in the other Parts and Subparts.

Part IV.—Items of General Interest.

With the exception of the disbarment and suspension list included in this part, none of these announcements is consolidated in the Cumulative Bulletins.

The first Bulletin for each month includes an index for the matters published during the preceding month. These monthly indexes are cumulated on a quarterly and semiannual basis, and are published in the first Bulletin of the succeeding quarterly and semi-annual period, respectively.

The Bulletin Index-Digest System, a research and reference service supplementing the Bulletin, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. It consists of four Services: Service No. 1, Income Tax; Service No. 2, Estate and Gift Taxes; Service No. 3, Employment Taxes; Service No. 4, Excise Taxes. Each Service consists of a basic volume and a cumulative supplement that provide (1) finding lists of items published in the Bulletin, (2) digests of revenue rulings, revenue procedures, and other published items, and (3) indexes of Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and Tax Conventions.

The contents of this publication are not copyrighted and may be reprinted freely. A citation of the Internal Revenue Bulletin as the source would be appropriate.

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Prices: Domestic—$1.75 a single copy, $82.00 a year subscription. Foreign—$2.19 a single copy, $102.50 a year for subscription.

TITLE X—PRIVATE HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE

Section 10001.—Employers Required to Provide Certain Employees and Family Members with Continued Health Insurance Coverage at Group Rates (Internal Revenue Code Amendments)

(a) Denial of Deduction for Employer Contribution to Plan.—Subsection (i) of section 162 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to deduction for trade or business expenses with respect to group health plans) is amended by redesignating paragraph (2) as paragraph (3) and by inserting after paragraph (1) the following new paragraph:

"(2) Plans must provide continuation coverage to certain individuals.—

"(A) In general.—No deduction shall be allowed under this section for expenses paid or incurred by an employer for any group health plan maintained by such employer unless all such plans maintained by such employer meet the continuing coverage requirements of subsection (k).

"(B) Exception for certain small employers, etc.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to any plan described in section 106(b)(2).".

(b) Denial of Exclusion for Highly Compensated Individuals.—Section 106 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to contributions by employer to accident and health plans) is amended by inserting "(a) In General.—" before "Gross" and by inserting at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(b) Exception for Highly Compensated Individuals Where Plan Fails To Provide Certain Continuation Coverage.—

"(1) In general.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to any amount contributed by an employer on behalf of a highly compensated individual (within the meaning of section 105(h)(5)) to a group health plan maintained by such employer unless all such plans maintained by such employer meet the continuing coverage requirements of section 162(k).

"(2) Exception for certain plans.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any—

"(A) group health plan for any calendar year if all employers maintaining such plan normally employed fewer than 20 employees on a typical business day during the preceding calendar year,

"(B) governmental plan (within the meaning of section 414(d)), or

"(C) church plan (within the meaning of section 414(e)). Under regulations, rules similar to the rules of subsections (a) and (b) of section 52 (relating to employers under common control) shall apply for purposes of subparagraph (A).

"(3) Group health plan.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'group health plan' has the meaning given such term by section 162(i)(3).".

(c) Continuation Coverage Requirements.—Section 162 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended by redesignating subsection (k) as subsection (l) and by inserting after subsection (j) the following new subsection:

"(k) Continuation Coverage Requirements of Group Health Plans.—

"(1) In general.—For purposes of subsection (i)(2) and section 106(b)(1), a group health plan meets the requirements of this subsection only if each qualified beneficiary who would lose coverage under the plan as a result of a qualifying event is entitled to elect, within the election period, continuation coverage under the plan.

"(2) Continuation coverage.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the term 'continuation coverage' means coverage under the plan which meets the following requirements:

"(A) Type of benefit coverage.—The coverage must consist of coverage which, as of the time the coverage is being provided, is identical to the coverage provided under the plan to similarly situated beneficiaries under the plan with respect to whom a qualifying event has not occurred.

"(B) Period of coverage.—The coverage must extend for at least the period beginning on the date of the qualifying event and ending not earlier than the earliest of the following.

"(i) Maximum period.—In the case of—

"(I) a qualifying event described in paragraph (3)(B) (relating to terminations and reduced hours), the date which is 18 months after the date of the qualifying event, and

"(II) any qualifying event not described in subclause (I), the date which is 36 months after the date of the qualifying event.

"(ii) End of plan.—The date on which the employer ceases to provide any group health plan to any employee.

"(iii) Failure to pay premium.—The date on which coverage ceases under the plan by reason of a failure to make timely payment of any premium required under the plan with respect to the qualified beneficiary.

"(iv) Reemployment of medicare eligibility.—The date on which the qualified beneficiary first becomes, after the date of the election—

"(I) a covered employee under any other group health plan, or

"(II) entitled to benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

"(v) Remarriage of spouse.—In the case of an individual who is a qualified beneficiary by reason of being the spouse of a covered employee, the date on which the beneficiary remarries and becomes covered under a group health plan.

"(C) Premium requirements.—The plan may require payment of a premium for any period of continuation coverage, except that such premium—

"(i) shall not exceed 102 percent of the applicable premium for such period, and

"(ii) may, at the election of the payor, be made in monthly installments.

If an election is made after the qualifying event, the plan shall permit payment for continuation coverage during the period preceding the election to be made within 45 days of the date of the election.

"(D) No requirement or insurability.—

[1] This publication of the law, Senate Report No. 99–146, page 38, and Conference Report No. 99–453, page 53, is restricted to excerpts involving tax matters. House Report No. 99–241 is not published.

The coverage may not be conditioned upon, or discriminate on the basis of lack of, evidence of insurability.

"(E) Conversion option.—In the case of a qualified beneficiary whose period of continuation coverage expires under subparagraph (B)(i), the plan must, during the 180-day period ending on such expiration date, provide to the qualified beneficiary the option of enrollment under a conversion health plan otherwise generally available under the plan.

"(3) Qualifying event.—For purpose of this subsection, the term 'qualifying event' means, with respect to any covered employee, any of the following events which, but for the continuation coverage required under this subsection, would result in the loss of coverage of a qualified beneficiary:

"(A) The death of the covered employee.

"(B) The termination (other than by reason of such employee's gross misconduct), or reduction of hours, of the covered employee's employment.

"(C) The divorce or legal separation of the covered employee from the employee's spouse.

"(D) The covered employee becoming entitled to benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

"(E) A dependent child ceasing to be a dependent child under the generally applicable requirements of the plan.

"(4) Applicable premium.—For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) In general.—The term 'applicable premium' means, with respect to any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries, the cost to the plan for such period of the coverage for similarly situated beneficiaries with respect to whom a qualifying event has not occurred (without regard to whether such cost is paid by the employer or employee).

"(B) Special rule for self-insured plans.—To the extent that a plan is a self-insured plan—

"(i) In general.—Except as provided in clause (ii), the applicable premium for any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries shall be equal to a reasonable estimate of the cost of providing coverage for such period for similarly situated beneficiaries which—

"(I) is determined on an actuarial basis, and

"(II) takes into account such factors as the Secretary may prescribe in regulations.

"(ii) Determination on basis of past cost.—If a plan administrator elects to have this clause apply, the applicable premium for any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries shall be equal to—

"(I) the cost to the plan for similarly situated beneficiaries for the same period occurring during the preceding determination period under subparagraph (C), adjusted by

"(II) the percentage increase or decrease in the implicit price deflator of the gross national product (calculated by the Department of Commerce and published in the Survey of Current Business) for the 12-month period ending on the last day of the sixth month of such preceding determination period.

"(iii) Clause (ii) not to apply where significant change.—A plan administrator may not elect to have clause (ii) apply in any case in which there is any significant difference, between the determination period and the preceding determination period, in coverage under, or in employees covered by, the plan. The determination under the preceding sentence for any determination period shall be made at the same time as the determination under subparagraph (C).

"(C) Determination period.—The determination of any applicable premium shall be made for a period of 12 months and shall be made before the beginning of such period.

"(5) Election.—For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) Election period.—The term 'election period' means the period which—

"(i) begins not later than the date on which coverage terminates under the plan by reason of a qualifying event.

"(ii) is of at least 60 days' duration, and

"(iii) ends not earlier than 60 days after the later of—

"(I) the date described in clause (i), or

"(II) in the case of any qualified beneficiary who receives notice under paragraph (6)(D), the date of such notice.

"(B) Effect of election on other beneficiaries.—Except as otherwise specified in an election, any election by a qualified beneficiary described in clause (i)(I) or (ii) of paragraph (7)(B) shall be deemed to include an election of continuation coverage on behalf of any other qualified beneficiary who would lose coverage under the plan by reason of the qualifying event.

"(6) Notice requirements.—In accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary—

"(A) the group health plan shall provide, at the time of commencement of coverage under the plan, written notice to each covered employee and spouse of the employee (if any) of the rights provided under this subsection.

"(B) the employer of an employee under a plan must notify the plan administrator of a qualifying event described in subparagraph (A), (B), or (D) of paragraph (3) with respect to such employee within 30 days of the date of the qualifying event.

"(C) each covered employee or qualified beneficiary is responsible for notifying the plan administrator of the occurrence of any qualifying event described in subparagraph (C) or (E) of paragraph (3), and

"(D) the plan administrator shall notify—

"(i) in the case of a qualifying event described in subparagraph (A), (B) or (D) of paragraph (3), any qualified beneficiary with respect to such event, and

"(ii) in the case of a qualifying event described in subparagraph (C) or (E) of paragraph (3) where the covered employee notifies the plan administrator under subparagraph (c), any qualified beneficiary with respect to such event, of such beneficiary's rights under this subsection.

For purposes of subparagraph (D), any notification shall be made within 14 days of the date on which the plan administrator is notified under subparagraph (B) or (C), whichever is applicable, and any such notification to an individual who is a qualified beneficiary as the spouse of the covered employee shall be treated as notification to all other qualified beneficiaries residing with such spouse at the time such notification is made.

"(7) Definitions.—For purposes of this subsection—

"(A) Covered employee.—The term 'covered employee' means an individual who is (or was) provided coverage under a group health plan by virtue of the individual's employment or previous employment with an employer

"(B) Qualified beneficiary.—

"(i) In general.—The term 'qualified beneficiary' means, with respect to a covered employee under a group health plan, any other individual who, on the day before the qualifying event for that employee, is a beneficiary under the plan—

"(I) as the spouse of the covered employee, or

"(II) as the dependent child of the employee.

"(ii) Special rule for terminations and reduced employment.—In the case of the qualifying event described in paragraph (3)(B), the term 'qualified beneficiary' includes the covered employee.

"(C) Plan administrator.—The term 'plan administrator' has the meaning given the term 'administrator' by section 3(16)(A) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.".

(d) Conforming amendment.—Paragraph (1) of section 162(i) is amended by striking out "General rule" in the heading thereof and inserting in lieu thereof "Coverage relating to end stage renal disease".

(e) Effective dates.—

(1) General rule.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to plan years beginning on or after July 1, 1986.

(2) Special rule for collective bargaining agreements.—In the case of a group health plan maintained pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements between employee representatives and one or more employers ratified before the date of the enactment of this Act, the amendments made by this section shall not apply to plan years beginning before the later of—

(A) the date on which the last of the collective bargaining agreements relating to the plan terminates (determined without regard to any extension thereof agreed to after the date of the enactment of this Act), or

(B) January 1, 1987.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), any plan amendment made pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement relating to the plan which amends the plan solely to conform to any requirement added by this section shall not be treated as a termination of such collective bargaining agreement.

Section 10002.—Temporary Extension of Coverage at Group Rates for Certain Employees and Family Members (ERISA Amendments)

(a) In general.—Subtitle B of title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new part:

"Part 6—Continuation Coverage Under Group Health Plans

Section 601.—Plans Must Provide Continuation Coverage to Certain Individuals

"(a) In General.—The plan sponsor of each group health plan shall provide, in accordance with this part, that each qualified beneficiary who would lose coverage under the plan as a result of a qualifying event is entitled, under the plan, to elect, within the election period, continuation coverage under the plan.

"(b) Exception for Certain Plans.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to any group health plan for any calendar year if all employers maintaining such plan normally employed fewer than 20 employees on a typical business day during the preceding calendar year. Under regulations, rules similar to the rules of subsections (a) and (b) of section 52 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to employers under common control) shall apply for purposes of this subsection.

Section 602.—Continuation Coverage

"For purposes of section 601, the term 'continuation coverage' means coverage under the plan which meets the following requirements:

"(1) Type of benefit coverage.—The coverage must consist of coverage which, as of the time the coverage is being provided, is identical to the coverage provided under the plan to similarly situated beneficiaries under the plan with respect to whom a qualifying event has not occurred.

"(2) Period of coverage.—The coverage must extend for at least the period beginning on the date of the qualifying event and ending not earlier than the earliest of the following:

"(A) Maximum period.—In the case of—

"(i) a qualifying event described in section 603(2) (relating to terminations and reduced hours), the date which is 18 months after the date of the qualifying event, and

"(ii) any qualifying event not described in clause (i), the date which is 36 months after the date of the qualifying event.

"(B) End of plan.—The date on which the employer ceases to provide any group health plan to any employee.

"(C) Failure to pay premium.—The date on which coverage ceases under the plan by reason of a failure to make timely payment of any premium required under the plan with respect to the qualified beneficiary.

"(D) Reemployment or medicare eligibility.—The date on which the qualified beneficiary first becomes, after the date of the election—

"(i) a covered employee under any other group health plan, or

"(ii) entitled to benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

"(E) Remarriage of spouse.—In the case of an individual who is a qualified beneficiary by reason of being the spouse of a covered employee, the date on which the beneficiary remarries and becomes covered under a group health plan.

"(3) Premium requirements.—The plan may require payment of a premium for any period of continuation coverage, except that such premium—

"(A) shall not exceed 102 percent of the applicable premium for such period, and

"(B) may, at the election of the payor, be made in monthly installments.

If an election is made after the qualifying event, the plan shall permit payment for continuation coverage during the period preceding the election to be made within 45 days of the date of the election.

"(4) No requirement of insurability.—The coverage may not be conditioned, upon, or discriminate on the basis of lack of, evidence of insurability.

"(5) Conversion option.—In the case of a qualified beneficiary whose period of continuation coverage expires under paragraph (2)(A), the plan must, during the 180-day period ending on such expiration date, provide to the qualified beneficiary the option of enrollment under a conversion health plan otherwise generally available under the plan.

Section 603.—Qualifying Event

"For purposes of this part, the term 'qualifying event' means, with respect to any covered employee, any of the following events which, but for the continuation coverage required under this part, would result in the loss of coverage of a qualified beneficiary:

"(1) The death of the covered employee.

"(2) The termination (other than by reason of such employee's gross misconduct), or reduction of hours, of the covered employee's employment.

"(3) The divorce or legal separation of the covered employee from the employee's spouse.

"(4) The covered employee becoming entitled to benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

"(5) A dependent child ceasing to be a dependent child under the generally applicable requirements of the plan.

Section 604.—Applicable Premium

"For purposes of this part—

"(1) In general.—The term 'applicable premium' means, with respect to any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries, the cost to the plan for such period of the coverage for similarly situated beneficiaries with respect to whom a qualifying event has not occurred (without regard to whether such cost is paid by the employer or employee).

"(2) Special rule for self-insured plans.—To the extent that a plan is a self-insured plan—

"(A) In general.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the applicable premium for any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries shall be equal to a reasonable estimate of the cost of providing coverage for such period for similarly situated beneficiaries which—

"(i) is determined on an actuarial basis, and

"(ii) takes into account such factors as the Secretary may prescribe in regulations.

"(B) Determination on basis of past cost.—If an administrator elects to have this subparagraph apply, the applicable premium for any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries shall be equal to—

"(i) the cost to the plan for similarly situated beneficiaries for the same period occurring during the preceding determination period under paragraph (3), adjusted by

"(ii) the percentage increase or decrease in the implicit price deflator of the gross national product (calculated by the Department of Commerce and published in the Survey of Current Business) for the 12-month period ending on the last day of the sixth month of such preceding determination period.

"(C) Subparagraph (B) not to apply where significant change.—An administrator may not elect to have subparagraph (B) apply in any case in which there is any significant difference, between the determination period and the preceding determination period, in coverage under, or in employees covered by, the plan. The determination under the preceding sentence for any determination period shall be made at the same time as the determination under paragraph (3).

"(3) Determination period.—The determination of any applicable premium shall be made for a period of 12 months and shall be made before the beginning of such period.

Section 605.—Election

"For purposes of this part—

"(1) Election period.—The term 'election period' means the period which—

"(A) begins not later than the date on which coverage terminates under the plan by reason of a qualifying event,

"(B) is of at least 60 days' duration, and

"(C) ends not earlier than 60 days after the later of—

"(i) the date described in subparagraph (A), or

"(ii) in the case of any qualified beneficiary who receives notice under section 606(4), the date of such notice.

"(2) Effect of election on other beneficiaries.—Except as otherwise specified in an election, any election by a qualified beneficiary described in subparagraph (A)(i) or (B) of section 607(3) shall be deemed to include an election of continuation coverage on behalf of any other qualified beneficiary who would lose coverage under the plan by reason of the qualifying event.

Section 606.—Notice Requirements

"In accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary—

"(1) the group health plan shall provide, at the time of commencement of coverage under the plan, written notice to each covered employee and spouse of the employee (if any) of the rights provided under this subsection,

"(2) the employer of an employee under a plan must notify the administrator of a qualifying event described in paragraph (1), (2), or (4) of section 603 within 30 days of the date of the qualifying event,

"(3) each covered employee or qualified beneficiary is responsible for notifying the administrator of the occurrence of any qualifying event described in paragraph (3) or (5) of section 603, and

"(4) the administrator shall notify—

"(A) in the case of a qualifying event described in paragraph (1), (2), or (4) of section 603, any qualified beneficiary with respect to such event, and

"(B) in the case of a qualifying event described in paragraph (3) or (5) of section 603 where the covered employee notifies the administrator under paragraph (3), any qualified beneficiary with respect to such event, of such beneficiary's rights under this subsection.

For purposes of paragraph (4), any notification shall be made within 14 days of the date on which the administrator is notified under paragraph (2) or (3), whichever is applicable, and any such notification to an individual who is a qualified beneficiary as the spouse of the covered employee shall be treated as notification to all other qualified beneficiaries residing with such spouse at the time such notification is made.

Section 607.—Definitions

"For purposes of this part—

"(1) Group health plan.—The term 'group health plan' means an employee welfare benefit plan that is a group health plan (within the meaning of section 162(i)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954).

"(2) Covered employee.—The term 'covered employee' means an individual who is (or was) provided coverage under a group health plan by virtue of the individual's employment or previous employment with an employer.

"(3) Qualified beneficiary.—

"(A) In general.—The term 'qualified beneficiary' means, with respect to a covered employee under a group health plan, any other individual who, on the day before the qualifying event for that employee, is a beneficiary under the plan—

"(i) as the spouse of the covered employee, or

"(ii) as the dependent child of the employee.

"(B) Special rule for terminations and reduced employment.—In the case of a qualifying event described in section 603(2), the term "qualified beneficiary' includes the covered employee.

Section 608.—Regulations

"The Secretary may prescribe regulations to carry out the provisions of this part.".

(b) Penalty for Failure to Provide Notice.—Section 502(c) of such Act (29 U.S.C. 1132(c)) is amended by inserting after "Any administrator" the following: "(1) who fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (1) or (4) of section 606 with respect to a participant or beneficiary, or (2)".

(c) Clerical amendments.—The table of contents in section 1 of such Act is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 514 the following new items:

Part 6—Continuation Coverage Under Group Health Plans

"Sec. 601. Plans must provide continuation coverage to certain individuals.
"Sec. 602. Continuation coverage.
"Sec. 603. Qualifying event.
"Sec. 604. Applicable premium.
"Sec. 605. Election.
"Sec. 606. Notice requirements.
"Sec. 607. Definitions.
"Sec. 608. Regulations.".

(d) Effective Dates.—

(1) General rule.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to plan years beginning on or after July 1, 1986.

(2) Special rule for collective bargaining agreements.—In the case of a group health plan maintained pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements between employee representatives and one or more employers ratified before the date of the enactment of this Act, the amendments made by this section shall not apply to plan years beginning before the later of—

(A) the date on which the last of the collective bargaining agreements relating to the plan terminates (determined without regard to any extension thereof agreed to after the date of the enactment of this Act), or

(B) January 1, 1987.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), any plan amendment made pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement relating to the plan which amends the plan solely to conform to any requirement added by this section shall not be treated as a termination of such collective bargaining agreement.

(e) Notification to Covered Employees.—At the time that the amendments made by this section apply to a group health plan (within the meaning of section 607(1) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974), the plan shall notify each covered employee, and spouse of the employee (if any), who is covered under the plan at that time of the continuation coverage required under part 6 of subtitle B of title I of such Act. The notice furnished under this subsection is in lieu of notice that may otherwise be required under section 606(1) of such Act with respect to such individuals.

Section 10003.—Continuation of Health Insurance for State and Local Employees who Lost Employment-Related Coverage (Public Health Service Act Amendments)

(a) In General.—The Public Health Service Act is amended by adding at the end the following new title:

TITLE XXII—REQUIREMENTS FOR CERTAIN GROUP HEALTH PLANS FOR CERTAIN STATE AND LOCAL EMPLOYEES

Section 2201.—State and Local Governmental Group Health Plans Must Provide Continuation Coverage to Certain Individuals

"(a) In General.—In accordance with regulations which the Secretary shall prescribe, each group health plan that is maintained by any State that receives funds under this Act, by any political subdivision of such a State, or by any agency or instrumentality of such a State or political subdivision, shall provide, in accordance with this title, that each qualified beneficiary who would lose coverage under the plan as a result of a qualifying event is entitled, under the plan, to elect, within the election period, continuation coverage under the plan.

"(b) Exception for Certain Plans.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to—

"(1) any group health plan for any calendar year if all employers maintaining such plan normally employed fewer than 20 employees on a typical business day during the preceding calendar year, or

"(2) any group health plan maintained for employees by the government of the District of Columbia or any territory or possession of the United States or any agency or instrumentality.

Under regulations, rules similar to the rules of subsections (a) and (b) of section 52 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to employers under common control) shall apply for purposes of paragraph (1).

Section 2202.—Continuation Coverage

"For purposes of section 2201, the term 'continuation coverage' means coverage under the plan which meets the following requirements:

"(1) Type of benefit coverage.—The coverage must consist of coverage which, as of the time the coverage is being provided, is identical to the coverage provided under the plan to similarly situated beneficiaries under the plan with respect to whom a qualifying event has not occurred.

"(2) Period of coverage.—The coverage must extend for at least the period beginning on the date of the qualifying event and ending not earlier than the earliest of the following:

"(A) Maximum period.—In the case of—

"(i) a qualifying event described in section 2203(2) (relating to terminations and reduced hours), the date which is 18 months after the date of the qualifying event, and

"(ii) any qualifying event not described in clause (i), the date which is 36 months after the date of the qualifying event.

"(B) End of plan.—The date on which the employer ceases to provide any group health plan to any employee.

"(C) Failure to pay premium.—The date on which coverage ceases under the plan by reason of a failure to make timely payment of any premium required under the plan with respect to the qualified beneficiary.

"(D) Reemployment or medicare eligibility.—The date on which the qualified beneficiary first becomes, after the date of the election—

"(i) a covered employee under any other group health plan, or

"(ii) entitled to benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

"(E) Remarriage of spouse. In the case of an individual who is a qualified beneficiary by reason of being the spouse of a covered employee, the date on which the beneficiary remarries and becomes covered under a group health plan.

"(3) Premium requirements.—The plan may require payment of a premium for any period of continuation coverage, except that such premium—

"(A) shall not exceed 102 percent of the applicable premium for such period, and

"(B) may, at the election of the payor, be made in monthly installments.

If an election is made after the qualifying event, the plan shall permit payment for continuation coverage during the period preceding the election to be made within 45 days of the date of the election.

"(4) No requirement of insurability.—The coverage may not be conditioned upon, or discriminate on the basis of lack of, evidence of insurability.

"(5) Conversion option.—In the case of a qualified beneficiary whose period of continuation coverage expires under paragraph (2)(A), the plan must, during the 180-day period ending on such expiration date, provide to the qualified beneficiary the option of enrollment under a conversion health plan otherwise generally available under the plan.

Section 2203.—Qualifying Event

"For purposes of this title; the term 'qualifying event' means, with respect to any covered employee, any of the following events which, but for the continuation coverage required under this title, would result in the loss of coverage of a qualified beneficiary:

"(1) The death of the covered employee.

"(2) The termination (other than by reason of such employee's gross misconduct), or reduction of hours, of the covered employee's employment.

"(3) The divorce or legal separation of the covered employee from the employee's spouse.

"(4) The covered employee becoming entitled to benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

"(5) A dependent child ceasing to be a dependent child under the generally applicable requirements of the plan.

Section 2204.—Applicable Premium

"For purposes of this title—

"(1) In general.—The term 'applicable premium' means, with respect to any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries, the cost to the plan for such period of the coverage for similarly situated beneficiaries with respect to whom a qualifying event has not occurred (without regard to whether such cost is paid by the employer or employee).

"(2) Special rule for self-insured plans.—To the extent that a plan is a self-insured plan—

"(A) In general.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the applicable premium for any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries shall be equal to a reasonable estimate of the cost of providing coverage for such period for similarly situated beneficiaries which—

"(i) is determined on an actuarial basis, and

"(ii) takes into account such factors as the Secretary may prescribe in regulations.

"(B) Determination on basis of past cost.—If a plan administrator elects to have this subparagraph apply, the applicable premium for any period of continuation coverage of qualified beneficiaries shall be equal to—

"(i) the cost to the plan for similarly situated beneficiaries for the same period occurring during the preceding determination period under paragraph (3), adjusted by

"(ii) the percentage increase or decrease in the implicit price deflator of the gross national product (calculated by the Department of Commerce and published in the Survey of Current Business) for the 12-month period ending on the last day of the sixth month of such preceding determination period.

"(C) Subparagraph (B) not to apply where significant change.—A plan administrator may not elect to have subparagraph (B) apply in any case in which there is any significant difference, between the determination period and the preceding determination period, in coverage under, or in employees covered by, the plan. The determination under the preceding sentence for any determination period shall be made at the same time as the determination under paragraph (3).

"(3) Determination period.—The determination of any applicable premium shall be made for a period of 12 months and shall be made before the beginning of such period.

Section 2205.—Election

"For purposes of this title—

"(1) Election period.—The term 'election period' means the period which—

"(A) begins not later than the date on which coverage terminates under the plan by reason of a qualifying event,

"(B) is of at least 60 days' duration, and

"(C) ends not earlier than 60 days after the later of—

"(i) the date described in subparagraph (A), or

"(ii) in the case of any qualified beneficiary, who receives notice under section 2206(4), the date of such notice.

"(2) Effect of election on other beneficiaries.—Except as otherwise specified in an election, any election by a qualified beneficiary described in subparagraph (A)(i) or (B) of section 2208(3) shall be deemed to include an election of continuation coverage on behalf of any other qualified beneficiary, who would lose coverage under the plan by reason of the qualifying event.

Section 2206.—Notice Requirements

"In accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary—

"(1) the group health plan shall provide, at the time of commencement of coverage under the plan, written notice to each covered employee and spouse of the employee (if any) of the rights provided under this subsection.

"(2) the employer of an employee under a plan must notify the plan administrator of a qualifying event described in paragraph (1), (2), or (4) of section 2203 within 30 days of the date of the qualifying event,

"(3) each covered employee or qualified beneficiary is responsible for notifying the plan administrator of the occurrence of any qualifying event described in paragraph (3) or (5) of section 2203, and

"(4) the plan administrator shall notify—

"(A) in the case of a qualifying event described in paragraph (1), (2), or (4) of section 2203, any qualified beneficiary with respect to such event, and

"(B) in the case of a qualifying event described in paragraph (3) or (5) of section 2203 where the covered employee notifies the plan administrator under paragraph (3), any qualified beneficiary with respect to such event, of such beneficiary's rights under this subsection.

For purposes of paragraph (4), any notification shall be made within 14 days of the date on which the plan administrator is notified under paragraph (2) or (3), whichever is applicable, and any such notification to an individual who is a qualified beneficiary as the spouse of the covered employee shall be treated as notification to all other qualified beneficiaries residing with such spouse at the time such notification is made.

Section 2207.—Enforcement

"Any individual who is aggrieved by the failure of a State, political subdivision, or agency or instrumentality thereof, to comply with the requirements of this title may bring an action for appropriate equitable relief.

Section 2208.—Definitions

"For purposes of this title—

"(1) Group health plan.—The term 'group health plan' has the meaning given such term in section 162(i)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

"(2) Covered employee.—The term 'covered employee' means an individual who is (or was) provided coverage under a group health plan by virtue of the individual's employment or previous employment with an employer.

"(3) Qualified beneficiary.—

"(A) In general.—The term 'qualified beneficiary' means, with respect to a covered employee under a group health plan, any other individual who, on the day before the qualifying event for that employee, is a beneficiary under the plan—

"(i) as the spouse of the covered employee, or

"(ii) as the dependent child of the employee.

"(B) Special rule for terminations and reduced employment.—In the case of a qualifying event described in section 2203(2), the term 'qualified beneficiary' includes the covered employee.

"(4) Plan administrator.—The term 'plan administrator' has the meaning given the term 'administrator' by section 3(16)(A) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974."

(b) Effective Dates.—

(1) General rule.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to plan years beginning on or after July 1, 1986.

(2) Special rule for collective bargaining agreements.—In the case of a group health plan maintained pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements between employee representatives and one or more employers ratified before the date of the enactment of this Act, the amendments made by this section shall not apply to plan years beginning before the later of—

(A) the date on which the last of the collective bargaining agreements relating to the plan terminates (determined without regard to any extension thereof agreed to after the date of the enactment of this Act), or

(B) January 1, 1987.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), any plan amendment made pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement relating to the plan which amends the plan solely to conform to any requirement added by this section shall not be treated as a termination of such collective bargaining agreement.

(c) Notification to Covered Employees.—At the time that the amendments made by this section apply to a group health plan (covered under section 2201 of the Public Health Service Act), the plan shall notify each covered employee, and spouse of the employee (if any), who is covered under the plan at that time of the continuation coverage required under title XXII of such Act. The notice furnished under this subsection is in lieu of notice that may otherwise be required under section 2206(1) of such Act with respect to such individuals.

Section 11002.—Findings and Declaration of Policy

(a) Findings.—The Congress finds that—

(1) single-employer defined benefit pension plans have a substantial impact on interstate commerce and are affected with a national interest;

(2) the continued well-being and retirement income security of millions of workers, retirees, and their dependents are directly affected by such plans;

(3) the existence of a sound termination insurance system is fundamental to the retirement income security of participants and beneficiaries of such plans; and

(4) the current termination insurance system in some instances encourages employers to terminate pension plans, evade their obligations to pay benefits, and shift unfunded pension liabilities onto the termination insurance system and the other premium-payers.

(b) Additional Findings.—The Congress further finds that modification of the current termination insurance system and an increase in the insurance premium for single-employer defined benefit pension plans—

(1) is desirable to increase the likelihood that full benefits will be paid to participants and beneficiaries of such plans;

(2) is desirable to provide for the transfer of liabilities to the termination insurance system only in cases of severe hardship;

(3) is necessary to maintain the premium costs of such system at a reasonable level; and

(4) is necessary to finance properly current funding definciencies and future obligations of the single-employer pension plan termination insurance system.

(c) Declaration of Policy.—It is hereby declared to be the policy of this title—

(1) to foster and facilitate interstate commerce;

(2) to encourage the maintenance and growth of single-employer defined benefit pension plans;

(3) to increase the likelihood that participants and beneficiaries under single-employer defined benefit pension plans will receive their full benefits;

(4) to provide for the transfer of unfunded pension liabilities onto the single-employer pension plan termination insurance system only in cases of severe hardship;

(5) to maintain the premium costs of such system at a reasonable level; and

(6) to assure the prudent financing of current funding deficiencies and future obligations of the single-employer pension plan termination insurance system by increasing termination insurance premiums.

Section 11003.—Amendment of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974

Whenever in this title an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision, the reference is to a section of other provision of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, unless otherwise specified.

Section 11004.—Definitions

(a) In General.—Section 4001(a) (29 U.S.C. 1301(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking out paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) 'substantial employer', for any plan year of a single-employer plan, means one or more persons—

"(A) who are contributing sponsors of the plan in such plan year,

"(B) who, at any time during such plan year, are members of the same controlled group, and

"(C) whose required contributions to the plan for each plan year constituting one of—

"(i) the two immediately preceding plan years, or

"(ii) the first two of the three immediately preceding plan years, total an amount greater than or equal to 10 percent of all contributions required to be paid to or under the plan for such plan year;";

(2) in paragraph (11), by striking out "and";

(3) in paragraph (12), by striking out "corporation." and inserting in lieu thereof "corporation;"; and

(4) by adding after paragraph (12) the following new paragraphs:

"(13) 'contributing sponsor', of a single-employer plan, means a person—

"(A) who is responsible, in connection with such plan, for meeting the funding requirements under section 302 of this Act or section 412 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or

"(B) who is a member of the controlled group of a person described in subparagraph (A), has been responsible for meeting such funding requirements, and has employed a significant number (as may be defined in regulations of the corporation) of participants under such plan while such person was so responsible;

"(14) in the case of a single-employer plan—

"(A) 'controlled group' means, in connection with any person, a group consisting of such peson and all other persons under common control with such person; and

"(B) the determination of whether two or more persons are under 'common control' shall be made under regulations of the corporation which are consistent and coextensive with regulations prescribed for similar purposes by the Secretary of the Treasury under subsections (b) and (c) of section 414 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954;

"(15) 'single-employer plan' means any defined benefit plan (as defined in section 3(35)) which is not a multiemployer plan;

"(16) 'benefit commitments', to a participant or beneficiary as of any date under a single-employer plan, means all benefits provided by the plan with respect to the participant or beneficiary which—

"(A) are guaranteed under section 4022,

"(B) would be guaranteed under section 4022, but for the operation of subsection 4022(b), or

"(C) constitute—

"(i) early retirement supplements or subsidies, or

"(ii) plant closing benefits, irrespective of whether any such supplements, subsidies, or benefits are benefits guaranteed under section 4022, if the participant or beneficiary has satisfied, as of such date, all of the conditions required of him or her under the provisions of the plan to establish entitlement to the benefits, except for the submission of a formal application, retirement, completion of a required waiting period subsequent to application for benefits, or designation of a beneficiary;

"(17) 'amount of unfunded guaranteed benefits', of a participant or beneficiary as of any date under a single-employer plan, means an amount equal to the excess of—

"(A) the actuarial present value (determined as of such date on the basis of assumptions prescribed by the corporation for purposes of section 4044) of the benefits of the participant or beneficiary under the plan which are guaranteed under section 4022, over

"(B) the current value (as of such date) of the assets of the plan which are required to be allocated to those benefits under section 4044;

"(18) 'amount of unfunded benefit commitments', of a participant or beneficiary as of any date under a single-employer plan, means an amount equal to the excess of—

"(A) the actuarial present value (determined as of such date on the basis of assumptions prescribed by the corporation for purposes of section 4044) of the benefit commitments to the participant or beneficiary under the plan, over

"(B) the current value (as of such date) of the assets of the plan which are required to be allocated to those benefit commitments under section 4044;

"(19) 'outstanding amount of benefit commitments', of a participant or beneficiary under a terminated single-employer plan, means the excess of—

"(A) the actuarial present value (determined as of the termination date on the basis of assumptions prescribed by the corporation for purposes of section 4044) of the benefit commitments to such participant or beneficiary under the plan, over

"(B) the actuarial present value (determined as of such date on the basis of assumptions prescribed by the corporation for purposes of section 4044) of the benefits of such participant or beneficiary which are guaranteed under section 4022 or to which assets of the plan are required to be allocated under section 4044;

"(20) 'person' has the meaning set forth in section 3(9);

"(21) 'affected party' means, with respect to a plan—

"(A) each participant in the plan,

"(B) each beneficiary under the plan who is a beneficiary of a deceased participant or who is an alternate payee (within the meaning of section 206(d)(3)(K)) under an applicable qualified domestic relations order (within the meaning of section 206(d)(3)(B)(i)),

"(C) each employee organization representing participants in the plan, and except that, in connection with any notice required to be provided to the affected party, if an affected party has designated, in writing, a person to receive such notice on behalf of the affected party, any reference to the affected party shall be construed to refer to such person.".

"(D) the corporation,

(b) Technical Correction of Error in Multiemployer Pension Plan Amendments Act of 1980.—Section 4001 is further amended by striking out the amendments made by section 402(a)(1)(F) of the Multiemployer Pension Plan Amendments Act of 1980 (94 Stat. 1297) (adding new paragraphs after a subsection (c)(1)), and, in lieu thereof, in subsection (b), by inserting "(1)" after "(b)" and by adding at the end of such subsection the following new paragraph:

"(2) For purposes of subtitle E—

"(A) except as otherwise provided in subtitle E, contributions or other payments shall be considered made under a plan for a plan year if they are made within the period prescribed under section 412(c)(10) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (determined, in the case of a terminated plan, as if the plan had continued beyond the termination date), and

"(B) the term 'Secretary of the Treasury' means the Secretary of the Treasury or such Secretary's delegate.".

Section 11005.—Single-Employer Plan Termination Insurance Premiums.

(a) Premium Increase—

(1) General rule.—Section 4006 (a)(3)(A)(i) (29 U.S.C. 1306(a)(3)(A)(i)) is amended by striking out "for plan years beginning after December 31, 1977, an amount equal to $2.60" and inserting in lieu thereof "for plan years beginning after December 31, 1985, an amount equal to $8.50".

(2) Conforming amendment with respect to plan years after 1977.—Section 4006(c)(1) (29 U.S.C. 1306(c)(1)) is amended by striking out subparagraph (A) and inserting in lieu thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(A) in the case of each plan which was not a multiemployer plan in a plan year—

"(i) with respect to each plan year beginning before January 1, 1978, an amount equal to $1 for each individual who was a participant in such plan during the plan year, and

"(ii) with respect to each plan year beginning after December 31, 1977, an amount equal to $2.60 for each individual who was a participant in such plan during the plan year, and".

(b) Incorporation of Certain Former Provisions in Lieu of Cross Reference Thereto.—Section 4006(a) (29 U.S.C. 1306(a)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by striking out the last sentence; and

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6)(A) In carrying out its authority under paragraph (1) to establish premium rates and bases for basic benefits guaranteed under section 4022 with respect to single-employer plans, the corporation shall establish such rates and bases in coverage schedules in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph.

"(B) The corporation may establish annual premiums for single-employer plans composed of the sum of—

"(i) a charge based on a rate applicable to the excess, if any, of the present value of the basic benefits of the plan which are guaranteed over the value of the assets of the plan, not in excess of 0.1 percent, and

"(ii) an additional charge based on a rate applicable to the present value of the basic benefits of the plan which are guaranteed.

The rate for the additional charge referred to in clause (ii) shall be set by the corporation for every year at a level which the corporation estimates will yield total revenue approximately equal to the total revenue to be derived by the corporation from the charges referred to in clause (i) of this subparagraph.

"(C) The corporation may establish annual premiums for single-employer plans based on—

"(i) the number of participants in a plan, but such premium rates shall not exceed the rates described in paragraph (3),

"(ii) unfunded basic benefits guaranteed under this title, but such premium rates shall not exceed the limitations applicable to charges referred to in subparagraph(B)(i), or

"(iii) total guaranteed basic benefits, but such premium rates shall not exceed the rates for additional charges referred to in subparagraph (B)(ii).

If the corporation uses two or more of the rate bases described in this subparagraph, the premium rates shall be designed to produce approximately equal amounts of aggregate premium revenue from each of the rate bases used.

"(D) For purposes of this paragraph, the corporation shall by regulation define the terms 'value of assets' and 'present value of the benefits of the plan which are guaranteed' in a manner consistent with the purposes of this title and the provisions of this section.".

(c) Approval by Joint Resolution of Recommendations of the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation.—Title IV is amended as follows:

(1) The last sentence of subsection (a)(2) of section 4006 (29 U.S.C. 1306(a)(2)) is amended by striking out "the Congress approves such revised schedule by a concurrent resolution" and inserting in lieu thereof "a joint resolution approving such revised schedule is enacted".

(2) Subsection (a)(4) of section 4006 (29 U.S.C. 1306(a)(4)) is amended by striking out "approval by the Congress" and inserting in lieu thereof "the enactment of a joint resolution".

(3) Subsection (b)(3) of section 4006 (29 U.S.C. 1306(b)(3)) is amended by striking out "concurrent" and inserting in lieu thereof "joint", by striking out "That the Congress favors the" and inserting in lieu thereof "The", and by inserting "is hereby approved" before the period preceding the quotation marks.

(4) Subsection (f)(2)(B) of section 4022A (29 U.S.C. 1322(a)(f)(2)(B)) is amended by striking out "Congress by concurrent resolution" and inserting in lieu thereof "the enactment of a joint resolution".

(5) Subsection (f)(2)(C) of section 4022A (29 U.S.C. 1322a(f)(2)(C)) is amended by striking out "approved" and inserting in lieu thereof "so enacted".

(6) Subsection (f)(3)(B) of section 4022A (29 U.S.C. 1322a(f)(3)(A)) is amended by striking out "Congress by a concurrent resolution" and inserting in lieu thereof "enactment of a joint resolution".

(7) Subsection (f)(4)(A) of section 4022A (29 U.S.C. 1322a(f)(4)(A)) is amended by striking out "concurrent" and inserting in lieu thereof "joint".

(8) Subsection (f)(4)(B) of section 4022A (29 U.S.C. 1322a(f)(4)(B)) is amended by striking out "concurrent" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "joint", by striking out "That the Congress favors the" and inserting in lieu thereof "The", and by inserting "is hereby approved" immediately before the period preceding the quotation marks.

(9) Subsection (f)(4)(C) of section 4022A (29 U.S.C. 1322a(f)(4)(C)) is amended by striking out "concurrent" and inserting in lieu thereof "joint".

(10) Subsection (g)(4)(A)(ii) of section 4022A (29 U.S.C. 1322a(g)(4)(A)(ii)) is amended by striking out "concurrent" and inserting in lieu thereof "joint", and by striking out "adopted" and inserting in lieu thereof "enacted".

(11) Subsection (g)(4)(B) of section 4022A (29 U.S.C. 1322a(g)(4)(B)) is amended by striking out "concurrent" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "joint", by striking out "That the Congress disapproves the" and inserting in lieu thereof "The", and by inserting "is hereby disapproved" immediately before the period preceding the quotation marks.

(d) Effective Dates.—

(1) General rule.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall be effective for plan years commencing after December 31, 1985.

(2) Special rule.—The amendments made by subsection (b) shall be effective as of the date of the enactment of the Multi-employer Pension Plan Amendments Act of 1980.

(c) Transitional rule.—

(1) Notice of premium increase.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation shall send a notice to the plan administrator of each single-employer plan affected by the premium increase established by the amendment made by subsection (a)(1). Such notice shall describe such increase and the requirements of this subsection.

(2) Due date for unpaid Premiums.—With respect to any plan year beginning during the period beginning on January 1, 1986, and ending 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, any unpaid amount of such premium increase shall be due and payable no later than the earlier of 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act or 30 days after the date on which the notice required by paragraph (1) is sent, except that in no event shall the amount of the premium increase established under the amendment made by subsection (a)(1) be due and payable for a plan year earlier than the date on which premiums for the plan would have been due for such plan year had this Act not been enacted.

(3) Enforcement.—For purposes of enforcement, the requirements of paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be considered to be requirements of sections 4006 and 4007 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1306 and 1307).

Section 11006.—Notice of Significant Reduction in Benefit Accruals

(a) In General.—Section 204 (29 U.S.C. 1054) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (h) as subsection (i); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (g) the following new subsection:

"(h) A single-employer plan may not be amended so as to provide for a significant reduction in the rate of future benefit accrual, unless, after adoption of the plan amendment and not less than 15 days before the effective date of the plan amendment, the plan administrator provides a written notice, setting forth the plan amendment and its effective date, to—

"(1) each participant in the plan,

"(2) each beneficiary who is an alternate payee (within the meaning of section 206(d)(3)(K)) under an applicable qualified domestic relations order (within the meaning of section 206(d)(3)(B(i)), and

"(3) each employee organization representing participants in the plan, except that such notice shall instead be provided to a person designated, in writing, to receive such notice on behalf of any person referred to in paragraph (1), (2), or (3).".

(b) Effective Date.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to plan amendments adopted on or after January 1, 1986, except that, in the case of plan amendments adopted on or after January 1, 1986, and on or before the date of the enactment of this Act, the requirements of section 204(h) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as added by this section) shall be treated as met if the written notice required under such section 204(h) is provided before 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Section 11007.—General Requirements Relating to Termination of Single-Employer Plans by Plan Administrators

(a) In General.—Section 4041 (29 U.S.C. 1341) is amended by striking out subsections (a) through (c) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"Sec. 4041. (a) General Rules Governing Single-Employer Plan Terminations.—

"(1) Exclusive means of plan termination.—Except in the case of a termination for which proceedings are otherwise instituted by the corporation as provided in section 4042, a single-employer plan may be terminated only in a standard termination under subsection (b) or a distress termination under subsection (c).

"(2) 60-day notice of intent to terminate.—Not less than 60 days before the proposed termination date of a standard termination under subsection (b) or a distress termination under subsection (c), the plan administrator shall provide to each affected party (other than the corporation in the case of a standard termination) a written notice of intent to terminate stating that such termination is intended and the proposed termination date. The written notice shall include any related additional information required in regulations of the corporation.

"(3) Adherence to collective bargaining agreements.—The corporation shall not proceed with a termination of a plan under this section if the termination would violate the terms and conditions of an existing collective bargaining agreement. Nothing in the preceding sentence shall be construed as limiting the authority of the corporation to institute proceedings to involuntarily terminate a plan under section 4042.".

(b) Definitions Relating to Sufficiency.—Section 4041(d) (29 U.S.C. 1341(d)) is amended to read as follows:

"(d) Sufficiency.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) Sufficiency for benefit commitments.—A single-employer plan is sufficient for benefit commitments if there is no amount of unfunded benefit commitments under the plan.

"(2) Sufficiency for Guaranteed Benefits.—A single-employer plan is sufficient for guaranteed benefits if there is no amount of unfunded guaranteed benefits under the plan.".

Section 11008.—Standard Termination of Single-Employer Plans

(a) In General.—Section 4041 (as amended by section 11007 of this Act) is further amended by inserting after subsection (a) the following new subsection:

"(b) Standard Termination of Single-Employer Plans.—

"(1) General requirements.—A single-employer plan may terminate under a standard termination only if—

"(A) the plan administrator provides the 60-day advance notice of intent to terminate to affected parties required under subsection (a)(2),

"(B) the requirements of subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (2) are met,

"(C) the corporation does not issue a notice of noncompliance under subparagraph (C) of paragraph (2), and

"(D) when the final distribution of assets occurs, the plan is sufficient for benefit commitments (determined as of the termination date).

"(2) Termination procedure.—

"(A) Notice to the Corporation.—As soon as practicable after the date on which the notice of intent to terminate is provided pursuant to subsection (a)(2), the plan administrator shall send a notice to the enrolled actuary—

"(i) certification by an enrolled actuary—

"(I) of the projected amount of the assets of the plan (as of a proposed date of final distribution of assets),

"(II) of the actuarial present value (as of such date) of the benefit commitments (detemined as of the proposed termination date) under the plan, and

"(III) that the plan is projected to be sufficient (as of such proposed date of final distribution) for such benefit commitments,

"(ii) such information as the corporation may prescribe in regulations as necessary to enable the corporation to make determination under subparagraph (C), and

"(iii) certification by the plan administrator that the information on which the enrolled actuary based the certification under clause (i) and the information provided to the corporation under clause (ii) are accurate and complete.

"(B) Notice to Participants and Beneficiaries of Benefit Commitments.—No later than the date on which a notice is sent by the plan administrator under subparagraph (A), the plan administrator shall send a notice to each person who is a participant or beneficiary under the plan—

"(i) specifying the amount of such person's benefit commitments (if any) as of the proposed termination date and the benefit form on the basis of which such amount is determined, and

"(ii) including the following information used in determining such benefit commitments:

"(I) the length of service,

"(II) the age of the participant or beneficiary,

"(III) wages,

"(IV) the assumptions, including the interest rate, and

"(V) such other information as the corporation may require.

Such notice shall be written in such manner as is likely to be understood by the participant or beneficiary and as may be prescribed in regulations of the corporation.

"(C) Notice from the corporation of noncompliance.—

"(i) In general.—Within 60 days after receipt of the notice under subparagraph (A), the corporation shall issue a notice of noncompliance to the plan administrator if—

"(I) it has reason to believe that any requirement of subsection (a)(2) or subparagraph (A) or (B) has not been met, or

"(II) it otherwise determines, on the basis of information provided by affected parties or otherwise obtained by the corporation, that there is reason to believe that the plan is not sufficient for benefit commitments.

"(ii) Extension.—The corporation and the plan administrator may agree to extend the 60-day period referred to in clause (i) by a written agreement signed by the corporation and the plan administrator before the expiration of the 60-day period. The 60-day period shall be extended as provided in the agreement and may be further extended by subsequent written agreements signed by the corporation and the plan administrator made before the expiration of a previously agreed upon extension of the 60-day period. Any extension may be made upon such terms and conditions (including the payment of benefits) as are agreed upon by the corporation and the plan administrator.

"(D) Final distribution of assets in absence of notice of noncompliance.—The plan administrator shall commence the final distribution of assets pursuant to the standard termination of the plan as soon as practicable after the expiration of the 60-day (or extended) period referred to in subparagraph (C), but such final distribution may occur only if—

"(i) the plan administrator has not received during such period a notice of noncompliance from the corporation under subparagraph (C), and

"(ii) when such final distribution occurs, the plan is sufficient for benefit commitments (determined as of the termination date).

"(3) Methods of final distribution of assets.—

"(A) In general.—In connection with any final distribution of assets pursuant to the standard termination of the plan under this subsection, the plan administrator shall distribute the assets in accordance with section 4044. In distributing such assets, the plan administrator shall—

"(i) purchase irrevocable commitments from an insurer to provide the benefit commitments under the plan and all other benefits (if any) under the plan to which assets are required to be allocated under section 4044, or

"(ii) in accordance with the provisions of the plan and any applicable regulations of the corporation, otherwise fully provide the benefit commitments under the plan and all other benefits (if any) under the plan to which assets are required to be allocated under section 4044.

"(B) Certification to the corporation of final distribution of assets.—Within 30 days after the final distribution of assets is completed pursuant to the standard termination of the plan under this subsection, the plan administrator shall send a notice to the corporation certifying that the assets of the plan have been distributed in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph (A) so as to pay the benefit commitments under the plan and all other benefits under the plan to which assets are required to be allocated under section 4044.

"(4) Continuing authority.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to preclude the continued exercise by the corporation, after the termination date of a plan terminated in a standard termination under this subsection, of its authority under section 4003 with respect to matters relating to the termination. A certification under paragraph (3)(B) shall not affect the corporation's obligations under section 4022.".

(b) Conforming Amendment.—Section 4041(f) (29 U.S.C. 1341(f)) is amended to read as follows:

"(f) Limitation on the Conversion of a Defined Benefit Plan to a Defined Contribution Plan.—The adoption of an amendment to a plan which causes the plan to become a plan described in section 4021(b)(1) constitutes a termination of the plan. Such an amendment may take effect only after the plan satisfies the requirements for standard termination under subsection (b) or distress termination under subsection (c).".

(c) Authority for 60-day Extension.—In the case of a standard termination of a plan under section 4041(b) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as amended by this section) with respect to which a notice of intent to terminate is filed before 120 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation may, without the consent of the plan administrator, extend the 60-day period under section 4041(b)(2)(C)(i) of such Act (as so amended) for a period not to exceed 60 days.

(d) Special Temporary Rule.—

(1) Requirements to be met before final distribution of assets.—In the case of the termination of a single-employer plan described in paragraph (2) with respect to which the amount payable to the employer pursuant to section 4044(d) exceeds $1,000,000 (determined as of the proposed date of final distribution of assets), the final distribution of assets pursuant to such termination may not occur unless the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation—

(A) determines that the assets of the plan are sufficient for benefit commitments (within the meaning of section 4041(d)(1) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as amended by section 11007) under the plan, and

(B) issues to the plan administrator a written notice setting forth the determination described in subparagraph (A).

(2) Plans to which subsection applies.—A single-employer plan is described in this paragraph if—

(A) the plan administrator has filed a notice of intent to terminate with the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, and—

(i) the filing was made before January 1, 1986, and the Corporation has not issued a notice of sufficiency for such plan before the date of the enactment of this Act, or

(ii) the filing is made on or after January 1, 1986, and before 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act and the Corporation has not issued a notice of sufficiency for such plan before the date of the enactment of this Act, and

(B) of the persons who are (as of the termination date) participants in the plan, the lesser of 10 percent or 200 have filed complaints with the Corporation regarding such termination—

(i) in the case of plans described in subparagraph (A)(i), before 15 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, or

(ii) in any other case, before the later of 15 days after the date of the enactment of this Act or 45 days after the date of the filing of such notice.

(3) Consideration of complaints.—The Corporation shall consider and respond to such complaints not later than 90 days after the date on which the Corporation makes the determination described in paragraph (1)(A). The Corporation may hold informal hearings to expedite consideration of such complaints. Any such hearing shall be exempt from the requirements of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code.

(4) Delay on issuance of notice.—

(A) General rule.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the Corporation shall not issue any notice described in paragraph (1)(B) until 90 days after the date on which the Corporation makes the determination described in paragraph (1)(A).

(B) Exception in cases of substantial business hardship.—Except in the case of an acquisition, takeover, or leveraged buyout, the preceding provisions of this subsection shall not apply if the contributing sponsor demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Corporation that the contributing sponsor is experiencing substantial business hardship. For purposes of this subparagraph, a contributing sponsor shall be considered as experiencing substantial business hardship if the contributing sponsor has been operating, and can demonstrate that the contributing sponsor will continue to operate, at an economic loss.

Section 11009.—Distress Termination of Single-Employer Plans

(a) In General.—Section 4041 (as amended by sections 11007 and 11008 of this Act) is further amended by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

"(c) Distress Termination of Single-Employer Plans.—

"(1) In general.—A single-employer plan may terminate under a distress termination only if—

"(A) the plan administrator provides the 60-day advance notice of intent to terminate to affected parties required under subsection (a)(2),

"(B) the requirements of subparagraph (A) of paragraph (2) are met, and

"(C) the corporation determines that the requirements of subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2) are met.

"(2) Termination requirements.—

"(A) Information submitted to the corporation.—As soon as practicable after the date on which the notice of intent to terminate is provided pursuant to subsection (a)(2), the plan administrator shall provide the corporation, in such form as may be prescribed by the corporation in regulations, the following information:

"(i) such information as the corporation may prescribe by regulation as necessary to make determinations under subparagraph (B) and paragraph (3);

"(ii) certification by an enrolled actuary of—

"(I) the amount (as of the proposed termination date) of the current value of the assets of the plan,

"(II) the actuarial present value (as of such date) of the benefit commitments under the plan,

"(III) whether the plan is sufficient for benefit commitments as of such date,

"(IV) the actuarial present value (as of such date) of benefits under the plan guaranteed under section 4022, and

"(V) whether the plan is sufficient for guaranteed benefits as of such date;

"(iii) in any case in which the plan is not sufficient for benefit commitments as of such date—

"(I) the name and address of each participant and beneficiary under the plan as of such date, and

"(II) such other information as shall be prescribed by the corporation by regulation as necessary to enable the corporation (or its designee under section 4049(b)) to be able to make payments to participants and beneficiaries as required under section 4049; and

"(iv) certification by the plan administrator that the information on which the enrolled actuary based the certifications under clause (ii) and the information provided to the corporation under clauses (i) and (iii) are accurate and complete.

"(B) Determination by the corporation of necessary distress criteria.—Upon receipt of the notice of intent to terminate required under subsection (a)(2) and the information required under subparagraph (A), the corporation shall determine whether the requirements of this subparagraph are met as provided in clause (i), (ii), or (iii). The requirements of this subparagraph are met if each person who is (as of the termination date) a contributing sponsor of such plan or a substantial member of such sponsor's controlled group meets the requirements of any of the following clauses:

"(i) Liquidiation in bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings.—The requirements of this clause are met by a person if—

"(I) such person has filed or has had filed against such person, as of the termination date, a petition seeking liquidation in a case under title 11, United States Code, or under any similar law of a State or political subdivision of a State, and

"(II) such case has not, as of the termination date, been dismissed.

"(ii) Reorganization in bankruptcy or insolvency proceedings.—The requirements of this clause are met by a person if—

"(I) such person has filed, or has had filed against such person, as of the termination date, a petition seeking reorganization in a case under title 11, United States Code, or under any similar law of a State or political subdivision of a State (or a case described in clause (i) filed by or against such person has been converted, as of such date, to such a case in which reorganization is sought),

"(II) such case has not, as of the termination date, been dismissed, and

"(III) the bankruptcy court (or other appropriate court in a case under such similar law of a State or political subdivision) approves the termination.

"(iii) Termination required to enable payment of debts while staying in business or to avoid unreasonably burdensome pension costs caused by declining workforce.—The requirements of this clause are met by a person if such person demonstrates to the satisfaction of the corporation that—

"(I) unless a distress termination occurs, such person will be unable to pay such person's debts when due and will be unable to continue in business, or

"(II) the costs of providing pension coverage have become unreasonably burdensome to such person, solely as a result of a decline of such person's workforce covered as participants under all single-employer plans of which such person is a contributing sponsor.

"(C) Substantial member.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), the term 'substantial member' of a controlled group means a person whose assets comprise 5 percent or more of the total assets of the controlled group as a whole.

"(D) Notification of determinations by the corporation.—The corporation shall notify the plan administrator as soon as practicable of its determinations made pursuant to subparagraph (B).

"(3) Termination procedure.—

"(A) Determinations by the corporation relating to plan sufficiency for guaranteed benefits and for benefit commitments.—If the corporation determines that the requirements for a distress termination set forth in paragraphs (1) and (2) are met, the corporation shall—

"(i) determine that the plan is sufficient for guaranteed benefits (as of the termination date) or that the corporation is unable to make such determination on the basis of information made available to the corporation,

"(ii) determine that the plan is sufficient for benefit commitments (as of the termination date) or that the corporation is unable to make such determination on the basis of information made available to the corporation, and

"(iii) notify the plan administrator of the determinations made pursuant to this subparagraph as soon as practicable.

"(B) Implementation of termination.—After the corporation notifies the plan administrator of its determinations under subparagraph (A), the termination of the plan shall be carried out as soon as practicable, as provided in clause (i), (ii), or (iii).

"(i) Cases of sufficiency for benefit commitments.—In any case in which the corporation determines that the plan is sufficient for benefit commitments, the plan administrator shall proceed to distribute the plan's assets, and make certification to the corporation with respect to such distribution, in the manner described in subsection (b)(3), and shall take such other actions as may be appropriate to carry out the termination of the plan.

"(ii) Cases of sufficiency for guaranteed benefits without a finding of sufficiency for benefit commitments.—In any case in which the corporation determines that the plan is sufficient for guaranteed benefits, but further determines that it is unable to determine that the plan is sufficient for benefit commitments on the basis of the information made available to it—

"(I) the plan administrator shall proceed to distribute the plan's assets in the manner described in subsection (b)(3), make certification to the corporation that the distribution has occurred, and take such actions as may be appropriate to carry out the termination of the plan, and

"(II) the corporation shall establish a separate trust in connection with the plan for purposes of section 4049.

"(iii) Cases without any finding of sufficiency.—In any case in which the corporation determines that it is unable to determine that the plan is sufficient for guaranteed benefits on the basis of the information made available to it—

"(I) the corporation shall commence proceedings in accordance with section 4042, and

"(II) the corporation shall establish a separate trust in connection with the plan for purposes of section 4049 unless the corporation determines that all benefit commitments under the plan are benefits guaranteed by the corporation under section 4022.

"(C) Finding after authorized commencement of termination that plan is unable to pay benefits.—

"(i) Finding with respect to benefit commitments which are not guaranteed benefits.—If, after the plan administrator has begun to terminate the plan as authorized under subparagraph (B)(i), the plan administrator finds that the plan is unable, or will be unable, to pay benefit commitments which are not benefits guaranteed by the corporation under section 4022, the plan administrator shall notify the corporation of such finding as soon as practicable thereafter. If the corporation concurs in the finding of the plan administrator (or the corporation itself makes such a finding) the corporation shall take the actions set forth in subparagraph (B)(ii)(II) relating to the trust established for purposes of section 4049.

"(ii) Finding with respect to guaranteed benefits.—If, after the plan administrator has begun to terminate the plan as authorized by subparagraph (B)(i) or (ii), the plan administrator finds that the plan is unable, or will be unable, to pay all benefits under the plan which are guaranteed by the corporation under section 4022, the plan administrator shall notify the corporation of such finding as soon as practicable thereafter. If the corporation concurs in the finding of the plan administrator (or the corporation itself makes such a finding), the corporation shall institute appropriate proceedings under section 4042.

"(D) Administration of the plan during interim period.—

"(i) In general.—The plan administrator shall—

"(I) meet the requirements of clause (ii) for the period commencing on the date on which the plan administrator provides a notice of distress termination to the corporation under subsection (a)(2) and ending on the date on which the plan administrator receives notification from the corporation of its determinations under subparagraph (A), and

"(II) meet the requirements of clause (ii) commencing on the date on which the plan administrator or the corporation makes a finding under subparagraph (C)(ii).

"(ii) Requirements.—The requirements of this clause are met by the plan administrator if the plan administrator—

"(I) refrains from distributing assets or taking any other actions to carry out the proposed termination of this subsection,

"(II) pays benefits attributable to employer contributions, other than death benefits, only in the form of an annuity,

"(III) does not use plan assets to purchase irrevocable commitments to provide benefits from an insurer, and

"(IV) continues to pay all benefit commitments under the plan, but, commencing on the proposed termination date, limits the payment of benefits under the plan to those benefits which are guaranteed by the corporation under section 4022 or to which assets are required to be allocated under section 4044.

In the event the plan administrator is later determined not to have met the requirements for distress termination, any benefits which are not paid solely by reason of compliance with subclause (IV) shall be due and payable immediately (together with interest, at a reasonable rate, in accordance with regulations of the corporation).".

(b) Conforming Amendments.—Section 4041 (as amended by the preceding provisions of this title) is further amended—

(1) by striking out subsection (e); and

(2) by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (e).

Section 11010.—Termination Proceedings; Duties of the Corporation

(a) Mandatory Commencement of Proceedings Upon Inability of Single-Employer Plan To Pay Benefits That Are Currently Due.—

(1) In general.—Section 4042(a) (29 U.S.C. 1342(a)) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (2), by striking out "is" and inserting in lieu thereof "will be"; and

(B) by inserting at the beginning of the matter following paragraph (4) the following new sentence: "The corporation shall as soon as practicable institute proceedings under this section to terminate a single-employer plan whenever the corporation determines that the plan does not have assets available to pay benefits which are currently due under the terms of the plan".

(2) Conforming amendments.—

(A) Section 4042(b)(1) (29 U.S.C. 1342(b)(1)) is amended, in the first sentence, by inserting "or is required under subsection (a) to institute proceedings under this section," after "to a plan".

(B) Section 4042(c) (29 U.S.C. 1342(c)) is amended in the first sentence by striking out "If the corporation" and all that follows down through "has determined" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "If the corporation is required under subsection (a) of this section to commence proceedings under this section with respect to a plan or, after issuing a notice under this section to a plan administrator, has determined".

(b) Establishment of Section 4049 Trust.—Section 4042 is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(i) In any case in which a plan is terminated under this section in a termination proceeding initiated by the corporation pursuant to subsection (a), the corporation shall establish a separate trust in connection with the plan for purposes of section 4049, unless the corporation determines that all benefit commitments under the plan are benefits guaranteed by the corporation under section 4022 or that there is no amount of unfunded benefit commitments under the plan.".

(c) Conforming Amendment.—The heading for section 4042 is amended to read as follows:

"Institution of Termination Proceedings by the Corporation".

Section 11011.—Amendments to liability provisions; liabilities relating to benefit commitments in excess of benefits guaranteed by the corporation

(a) Liability for Distress Terminations and Terminations by the Corporation.—Section 4062 (29 U.S.C. 1362) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (e) as subsection (f); and

(2) by striking out so much as precedes subsection (f) (as redesignated) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"Liability for Termination of Single-Employer Plans Under A Distress Termination or a Termination by the Corporation

"Sec. 4062. (a) In General.—In any case in which a single-employer plan is terminated in a distress termination under section 4041(c) or a termination otherwise instituted by the corporation under section 4042, any person who is, on the termination date, a contributing sponsor of the plan or a member of such a contributing sponsor's controlled group shall incur liability under this section. The liability under this section of all such persons shall be joint and several. The liability under this section consists of—

"(1) liability to the corporation, to the extent provided in subsection (b),

"(2) liability to the trust established pursuant to section 4041(c)(3)(B) (ii) or (iii) or section 4042(i), to the extent provided in subsection (c), and

"(3) liability to the trustee appointed under subsection (b) or (c) of section 4042, to the extent provided in subsection (d).

"(b) Liability to the Corporation.—

"(1) Amount of liability.—

"(A) In general.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the liability to the corporation of a person described in subsection (a) shall consist of the sum of—

"(i) the lesser of—

"(I) the total amount of unfunded guaranteed benefits (as of the termination date) of all participants and beneficiaries under the plan, or

"(II) 30 percent of the collective net worth of all persons described in subsection (a),

and

"(ii) the excess (if any) of—

"(I) 75 percent of the amount described in clause (i)(I), over

"(II) the amount described in clause (i)(II), together with interest (at a reasonable rate) calculated from the termination date in accordance with regulations prescribed by the corporation.

"(B) Special rule in case of subsequent insufficiency.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), in any case described in section 4041(c)(3)(C)(ii), actuarial present values shall be determined as of the date of the notice to the corporation (or the finding by the corporation) described in such section.

"(2) Payment of liability.—

"(A) In general.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the liability to the corporation under this subsection shall be due and payable to the corporation as of the termination date, in cash or securities acceptable to the corporation.

"(B) Special rule.—Payment of the liability under paragraph (1)(A)(ii) shall be made under commercially reasonable terms prescribed by the corporation. The parties involved shall make a reasonable effort to reach agreement on such commercially reasonable terms. Any such terms prescribed by the corporation shall provide for deferral of 50 percent of any amount of liability otherwise payable for any year under this subparagraph if a person subject to such liability demonstrates to the satisfaction of the corporation that no person subject to such liability has any individual pre-tax profits for such person's fiscal year ending during such year.

"(3) Alternative arrangements.—The corporation and any person liable under this section may agree to alternative arrangements for the satisfaction of liability to the corporation under this subsection.

"(c) Liability to Section 4049 Trust.—

"(1) Amount of liability.—

"(A) In general.—In any case in which there is an outstanding amount of benefit commitments under a plan terminated under section 4041(c) or 4042, a person described in subsection (a) shall be subject to liability under this subsection to the trust established under section 4041(c)(3)(B) (ii) or (iii) or section 4042(i) in connection with the terminated plan. Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the liability of such person under this subsection shall consist of the lesser of—

"(i) 75 percent of the total outstanding amount of benefit commitments under the plan, or

"(ii) 15 percent of the actuarial present value (determined as of the termination date on the basis of assumptions prescribed by the corporation for purposes of section 4044) of all benefit commitments under the plan.

"(B) Special rule in case of subsequent insufficiency.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)—

"(i) Plans insufficient for guaranteed benefits.—In any case described in section 4041(c)(3)(C)(ii), actuarial present values shall be determined as of the date of the notice to the corporation (or the finding by the corporation) described in such section.

"(ii) Plans sufficient for guaranteed benefits but insufficient for benefit entitlements.—In any case described in section 4041(c)(3)(C)(i) but not described in section 4041(c)(3)(C)(ii), actuarial present values shall be determined as of the date on which the final distribution of assets is completed.

"(2) Payment of Liability.—

"(A) General rule.—Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, payment of a person's liability under this subsection shall be made for liability payment years under commercially reasonable terms prescribed by the fiduciary designated by the corporation pursuant to section 4049(b)(1)(A). Such fiduciary and the liable persons assessed liability under this subsection shall make a reasonable effort to reach agreement on such commercially reasonable terms.

"(B) Special rule for plans with low amounts of liability.—In any case in which the amount described in paragraph (1)(A) is less than $100,000, the requirements of subparagraph (A) may be satisfied by payment of such liability over 10 liability payment years in equal annual installments (with interest at the rate determined under section 6621(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954). The corporation may, by regulation, increase the dollar amount referred to in this subparagraph as it determines appropriate, taking into account reasonable administrative costs of trusts established under section 4041(c)(3)(B) (ii) or (iii) or section 4042(i).

"(C) Deferral of payments.—The terms for payment provided for under subparagraph (A) or (B) shall also provide for deferral of 75 percent of any amount of liability otherwise payable for any liability payment year if a person subject to such liability demonstrates to the satisfaction of the corporation that no person subject to such liability has any individual pre-tax profits for such person's fiscal year ending during such year. The amount of liability so deferred is payable only after payment in full of any amount of liability under subsection (b) in connection with the termination of the same plan which has been deferred pursuant to terms provided for under subsection (b)(2)(B).

"(d) Liability to Section 4042 Trustee.—A person described in subsection (a) shall be subject to liability under this subsection to the trustee appointed under subsection (b) or (c) of section 4042. The liability of such person under the subsection shall consist of—

"(1) the outstanding balance of the accumulated funding deficiencies (within the meaning of section 302(a)(2) of this Act and section 412(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954) of the plan (if any) (which, for purposes of this subparagraph, shall include the amount of any increase in such accumulated funding deficiencies of the plan which would result if all pending applications for waivers of the minimum funding standard under section 303 of this Act or section 412(d) of such Code and for extensions of the amortization period under section 304 of this Act or section 412(e) of such Code with respect to such plan were denied and if no additional contributions (other than those already made by the termination date) were made for the plan year in which the termination date occurs or for any previous plan year),

"(2) the outstanding balance of the amount of waived funding deficiencies of the plan waived before such date under section 303 of this Act or section 412(d) of such Code (if any), and

"(3) the outstanding balance of the amount of decreases in the minimum funding standard allowed before such date under section 304 of this Act or section 412(e) of such Code (if any), together with interest (at a reasonable rate) calculated from the termination date in accordance with regulations prescribed by the corporation. The liability under this subsection shall be due and payable to such trustee as of the termination date, in cash or securities acceptable to such trustee.

"(e) Definitions.—

"(1) Collective net worth of persons subject to liability.—

"(A) In general.—The collective net worth of persons subject to liability in connection with a plan termination consists of the sum of the individual net worths of all persons who—

"(i) have individual net worths which are greater than zero, and

"(ii) are (as of the termination date) contributing sponsors of the terminated plan or members of their controlled groups.

"(B) Determination of net worth.—For purposes of this paragraph, the net worth of a person is—

"(i) determined on whatever basis best reflects, in the determination of the corporation, the current status of the person's operations and prospects at the time chosen for determining the net worth of the person, and

"(ii) increased by the amount of any transfers of assets made by the person which are determined by the corporation to be improper under the circumstances, including any such transfers which would be inappropriate under title 11, United States Code, if the person were a debtor in a case under chapter 7 of such title.

"(C) Timing of determination.—For purposes of this paragraph, determinations of net worth shall be made as of a day chosen by the corporation (during the 120-day period ending with the termination date) and shall be computed without regard to any liability under this section.

"(2) Pre-tax profits.—The term 'pre-tax profits' means—"(A) except as provided in subparagraph (B), for any fiscal year of any person, such person's consolidated net income (excluding any extraordinary charges to income and including any extraordinary credits to income) for such fiscal year, as shown on audited financial statements prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, or

"(B) for any fiscal year of an organization described in section 501(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the excess of income over expenses (as such terms are defined for such organizations under generally accepted accounting principles), before provision for or deduction of Federal or other income tax, any contribution to any single-employer plan of which such person is a contributing sponsor at any time during the period beginning on the termination date and ending with the end of such fiscal year, and any amounts required to be paid for such fiscal year under this section. The corporation may be regulation require such information to be filed on such forms as may be necessary to determine the existence and amount of such pre-tax profits.

"(3) Liability payment years.—The liability payment years in connection with a terminated plan consist of the consecutive one-year periods following the last plan year preceding the termination date, excluding the first such year in any case in which the first such year ends less than 180 days after the termination date.".

(b) Clerical Amendment.—Subsection (f) of section 4062 (as redesignated by subsection (a)(1)) is amended by inserting "Treatment of Substantial Cessation of Operations.—" after "(f)".

(c) Amendments to the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.—

(1) Time for deduction of certain employer liability payments.—Paragraph (3) of section 404(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to certain employer liability payments considered as contributions) is amended to read as follows:

"(3) Timing of deduction of contributions.—

"(A) In general.—Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, any payment described in paragraph (1) shall (subject to the last sentence of subsection (a)(1)(A)) be deductible under this section when paid.

"(B) Contributions under standard terminations.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply (and subsection (a)(1)(A) shall apply) to any payments described in paragraph (1) which are paid to terminate a plan under section 4041(b) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to the extent such payments result in the assets of the plan being in excess of the total amount of benefits under such plan which are guaranteed by the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation under section 4022 of such Act.

"(C) Contributions to certain trusts.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to any payment described in paragraph (1) which is made under section 4062(c) of such Act and such payment shall be deductible at such time as may be prescribed in regulations which are based on principles similar to the principles of subsection (a)(1)(A).".

(2) References to ERISA.—Subsection (g) of section 404 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(4) References to employee retirement income security act of 1974.—For purposes of this subsection, any reference to a section of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 shall be treated as a reference to such section as in effect on the date of the enactment of the Single-Employer Pension Plan Amendments Act of 1986.".

(3) Effective date.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to payments made after January 1, 1986, in taxable years ending after such date.

Section 11012.—Distribution to Participants and Beneficiaries of Liability Payments to Section 4049 Trust

(a) In General.—Subtitle C of title IV is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Distribution to Participants and Beneficiaries of Liability Payments to Section 4049 Trust

"Section 4049. (a) Trust Requirements.—The requirements of this section apply to a trust established by the corporation in connection with a terminated plan pursuant to section 4041(c)(3)(B) (ii) or (iii). The trust shall be used exclusively for—

"(1) receiving liability payments under section 4062(c) from the persons who were (as of the termination date) contributing sponsors of the terminated plan and members of their controlled groups,

"(2) making distributions as provided in this section to the persons who were (as of the termination date) participants and beneficiaries under the terminated plan, and

"(3) defraying the reasonable administrative expenses incurred in carrying out responsibilities under this section.

The trust shall be maintained for such period of time as is necessary to receive all liability payments required to be made to the trust under section 4062(c) with respect to the terminated plan and to make all distributions required to be made to participants and beneficiaries under this section with respect to the terminated plan.

"(b) Designation of Fiduciary by the Corporation.—

"(1) Purposes for Designation of Fiduciary.—

"(A) Collection of Liability.—The corporation shall designate a fiduciary (within the meaning of section 3(21)) to serve as trustee of the trust for purposes of conducting negotiations and assessing and collecting liability pursuant to section 4062(c).

"(B) Administration of Trust.—

"(i) Corporation's Functions.—Except as provided in clause (ii), the corporation shall serve as trustee of the trust for purposes of administering the trust, including making distributions from the trust to participants and beneficiaries.

"(ii) Designation of Fiduciary if Cost-Effective.—If the corporation determines that it would be cost-effective to do so, it may designate a fiduciary (within the meaning of section 3(21)), including the fiduciary designated under subparagraph (A), to perform the functions described in clause (i).

"(2) Fiduciary Requirements.—A fiduciary designated under paragraph (1) shall be—

"(A) independent of each contributing sponsor of the plan and the members of such sponsor's controlled group, and

"(B) subject of the requirements of part 4 of subtitle B of title I (other than section 406(a)) as if such trust were a plan subject to such part.

"(c) Distributions From Trust.—

"(1) In General.—Not later than 30 days after the end of each liability payment year (described in section 4062(e)(3)) with respect to a terminated single-employer plan, the corporation, or its designee under subsection (b), shall distribute from the trust maintained termination date) a participant or beneficiary under the plan—

"(A) in any case not described in subparagraph (B), and amount equal to the outstanding amount of benefit commitments to such person under the plan (including interest calculated from the termination date), to the extent not previously paid under this paragraph, or

"(B) in any case in which the balance in the trust at the end of such year which is in cash or may be prudently converted to cash (after taking into account liability payments received under subsection (a)(1) and administrative expenses paid under subsection (a)(3)) is less than the total of all amounts described in subparagraph (A) in connection with all persons who were (as of the termination date) participants and beneficiaries under the terminated plan, the product derived by multiplying—

"(i) the amount described in subparagraph (A) in connection with each such person, by

"(ii) a fraction—

"(I) the numerator of which is such balance in the trust, and

"(II) the denominator of which is equal of the total of all amounts described in subparagraph (A) in connection with all persons who were (as of the termination date) participants and beneficiaries under the terminated plan.

"(2) Carry-Over or Minimal Payment Amounts.—The corporation, or its designee under subsection (b), may withhold a payment to any person under this subsection in connection with any liability payment year (other than the last liability payment year with respect to which payments under paragraph (1) are payable) if such payment does not exceed $100. In any case in which sdch a payment is so withheld, the payment to such person in connection with the next following liability payment year shall be increased by the amount of such withheld payment.

"(d) Regulations.—The corporation may issue such regulations as it considers necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.".

(b) Tax-Exempt Status for Trusts Described in Section 4049 of ERISA.—Subsection (c) of section 501 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to list of tax-exempt organizations) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(24) A trust described in section 4049 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as in effect on the date of the enactment of the Single-Employer Pension Plan Amendments Act of 1986).".

(c) Rollovers of Payments from Trust Allowed.—Paragraph (6) of section 402(a) of such Code (relating to special rollover rules) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(G) Payments from Certain Pension Plan Termination Trusts.—If—

"(i) any amount is paid or distributed to a recipient from a trust described in section 501(c)(24),

"(ii) the recipient transfers any portion of the property received in such distribution to an eligibile retirement plan described in subclause (I) or (II) of paragraph (5)(E)(iv), and

"(iii) in the case of a distribution of property other than money, the amount so transferred consists of the property distributed, then the portion of the distribution so transferred shall be treated as a distribution described in paragraph (5)(A).".

(d) Special Delayed Payment Rule.—In the case of a distress termination under section 4041(c) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as amended by section 11009) pursuant to a notice of intent to terminate filed before January 1, 1987, no payment of liability otherwise payable as provided in section 4062(c)(2)(B) of such Act (as amended by this section) shall be required to be made before January 1, 1989.

Section 11013.—Treatment of Transactions to Evade Liability; Effect of Corporate Reorganization

(a) In General.—Subtitle D of title IV is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Treatment of Transactions to Evade Liability; Effect of Corporate Reorganization

"Section 4069. (a) Treatment of Transactions to Evade Liability.—If a principal purpose of any person in entering into any transaction is to evade liability to which such person would be subject under this subtitle and the transaction becomes effective within five years before the termination date of the termination on which such liability would be based, then such person and the members of such person's controlled group (determined as of the termination date) shall be subject to liability under this subtitle in connection with such termination as if such person were a contributing sponsor of the terminated plan as of the termination date. This subsection shall not cause any person to be liable unde this subtitle in connection with such plan termination for any increases or improvements in the benefits provided under the plan which are adopted after the date on which the transaction referred to in the preceding sentence becomes effective.

"(b) Effect of Corporate Reorganization.—For purposes of this subtitle, the following rules apply in the case of certain corporate reorganizations:

"(1) Change of Identity, Form, Etc.—If a person ceases to exist by reason of a reorganization which involves a mere change in identify, form, or place of organization, however effected, a successor corporation resulting from such reorganization shall be treated as the person to whom this subtitle applies.

"(2) Liquidation into Parent Corporation.—If a person ceases to exist by reason of liquidation into a parent corporation, the parent corporation shall be treated as the person to whom this subtitle applies.

"(3) Merger, Consolidation, or Division.—If a person ceases to exist by reason of a merger, consolidation, or division, the successor corporation or corporations shall be treated as the person to whom this subtitle applies.".

(b) Effective Date.—Section 4069(a) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as added by subsection (a)) shall apply with respect to transactions becoming effective on or after January 1, 1986.

Section 11014.—Enforcement Authority Relating to Terminations of Single-Employer Plans

(a) Private Rights of Action.—Subtitle D of title IV (as amended by section 11013) is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"Enforcement Authority Relating to Termination of Single Employer Plans

"Section 4070. (a) In General.— Any person who is with respect to a single-employer plan a fiduciary, contributing sponsor, member of a contributing sponsor's controlled group, participant, or beneficiary, and is adversely affected by an act or practice of any party (other than the corporation) in violation of any provision of section 4041, 4042, 4049, 4063, 4064, or 4069, or who is an employee organization representing such a participant or beneficiary so adversely affected for purposes of collective bargaining with respect to such plan, may bring an action—

"(1) to enjoin such act or practice, or

"(2) to obtain other appropriate equitable relief (A) to redress such violation or (B) to enforce such provision.

"(b) Status of Plan as Party to Action and With Respect to Legal Process.—A single-employer plan may be sued under this section as an entity. Service of summons, subpoena, or other legal process of a court upon a trustee or an administrator of a single-employer plan in such trustee's or administrator's capacity as such shall constitute service upon the plan. If a plan has not designated in the summary plan description of the plan an individual as agent for the service of legal process, service upon any contributing sponsor of the plan shall constitute such service. Any money judgment under this section against a single-employer plan shall be enforceable only against the plan as an entity and shall not be enforceable against any other person unless liability against such person is established in such person's individual capacity.

"(c) Jurisdiction and Venue.— The district courts of the United States shall have exclusive jurisdiction of civil actions under this section. Such actions may be brought in the district where the plan is administered, where the violation took place, or where a defendant resides or may be found, and process may be served in any other district where a defendant resides or may be found. The district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction, without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties, to grant the relief provided for in subsection (a) in any action.

"(d) Right of Corporation to Intervene.—A copy of the complaint or notice of appeal in any action under this section shall be served upon the corporation by certified mail. The corporation shall have the right in its discretion to intervene in any action.

"(e) Awards of Costs and Expenses.—

"(1) General Rule.—In any action brought under this section, the court in its discretion may award all or a portion of the costs and expenses incurred in connection with such action, including reasonable attorney's fees, to any party who prevails or substantially prevails in such action.

"(2) Exemption for Plans.—Notwithstanding the preceding provision of this subsection, no plan shall be required in any action to pay any costs and expenses (including attorney's fees).

"(f) Limitation on Actions.—

"(1) In General.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), an action under this section may not be brought after the later of—

"(A) 6 years after the date on which the cause of action arose, or

"(B) 3 years after the applicable date specified in paragraph (2).

"(2) Applicable Date.—

"(A) General Rule.— Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the applicable date specified in this paragraph is the earliest date on which the plaintiff acquired or should have acquired actual knowledge of the existence of such cause of action.

"(B) Special Rule for Plaintiffs Who are Fiduciaries.—In the case of a plaintiff who is a fiduciary bringing the action in the exercise of fiduciary duties, the applicable date specified in this paragraph is the date on which the plaintiff became a fiduciary with respect to the plan if such date is later than the date described in subparagraph (A).

"(3) Cases of Fraud or Concealment.— In the case of fraud or concealment, the period described in paragraph (1)(B) shall be extended to 6 years after the applicable date specified in paragraph (2).".

(b) Civil Actions Involving the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation.—

(1) Actions Against the Corporation.— Section 4003(f) (29 U.S.C. 1303(f)) is amended to read as follows:

"(f)(1) Except with respect to withdrawal liability disputes under part 1 of subtitle E, any person who is a fiduciary, employer, contributing sponsor, member of a contributing sponsor's controlled group, participant, or beneficiary, and is adversely affected by any action of the corporation with respect to a plan in which such person has an interest, or who is an employee organization representing such a participant or beneficiary so adversely affected for purposes of collective bargaining with respect to such plan, may bring an action against the corporation for appropriate equitable relief in the appropriate court.

"(2) For purpose of this subsection, the term 'appropriate court' means—

"(A) the United States district court before which proceedings under section 4041 or 4042 are being conducted,

"(B) if no such proceedings are being conducted, the United States district court for the judicial district in which the plan has its principal office, or

"(C) the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

"(3) In any action brought under this subsection, the court may award all or a portion of the costs and expenses incurred in connection with such action to any party who prevails or substantially prevails in such action.

"(4) This subsection shall be the exclusive means for bringing actions against the corporation under this title, including actions against the corporation in its capacity as a trustee under section 4042 or 4049.

"(5)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (C), an action under this subsection may not be brought after the later of—

"(i) 6 years after the date on which the cause of action arose, or

"(ii) 3 years after the applicable date specified in subparagraph (B).

"(B)(i) Except as provided in clause (ii), the applicable date specified in this subparagraph is the earliest date on which the plaintiff acquired or should have acquired actual knowledge of the existence of such cause of action.

"(ii) In the case of a plaintiff who is a fiduciary bringing the action in the exercise of fiduciary duties, the applicable date specified in this subparagraph is the date on which the plaintiff became a fiduciary with respect to the plan if such date is later than the date specified in clause (i).

"(C) In the case of fraud or concealment, the period described in subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be extended to 6 years after the applicable date specified in subparagraph (B).

"(6) The district courts of the United States have jurisdiction of actions brought under this subsection without regard to the amount in controversy.

"(7) In any suit, action, or proceeding in which the corporation is a party, or intervenes under section 4301, in any State court, the corporation may without bond or security, remove such suit, action, or proceeding from the State court to the United States district court for the district or division in which such suit, action, or proceeding is pending by following any procedure for removal now or hereafter in effect.".

"(d) For purposes of subsection (a), a qualified preretirement survivor annuity (as defined in section 205(e)(1)) with respect to a participant under a terminated single-employer plan shall not be treated as forfeitable solely because the participant has not died as of the termination date.".

(10) Clarification of power to collect amounts due the corporation.—Section 4042(d)(1)(B)(ii) (29 U.S.C. 1342(d)(1)(B)(ii)) is amended by inserting after "amounts due the plan" the following: ", including but not limited to the power to collect from the persons obligated to meet the requirements of section 302 or the terms of the plan".

(11) Conforming amendment.—Section 4042(d)(3) (29 U.S.C. 1342(d)(3)) is amended by striking out "same duties as a trustee appointed under section 47 of the Bankruptcy Act" and inserting in lieu thereof "same duties as those of a trustee under section 704 of title 11, United States Code".

(12) Conforming amendment.—Section 4044(a) (29 U.S.C. 1344(a)) is amended by striking out "defined benefit".

(13) Clerical corrections.—Section 4044(a)(4) (29 U.S.C. 1344(a)(4)(A)) is amended—

(A) in subparagraph (A), by striking out "section 4022(b)(5)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 4022B(a)"; and

(B) in subparagraph (B), by striking out "section 4022(b)(6)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 4022(b)(5)".

(14) Release of lien.—Section 4068(e) (29 U.S.C. 1368(e)) is amended by striking out ", with the consent of the board of directors,".

(d) Studies by Comptroller General.—

(1) In general.—The Comptroller General of the United States may, pursuant to the request of any Member of Congress, study employee benefit plans, including the effects of such plans on employees, participants, and their beneficiaries.

(2) Access to books, documents, etc.—For the purpose of conducting studies under this subsection, the Comptroller General, or any of his duly authorized representatives, shall have access to and the right to examine and copy any books, documents, papers, records, or other recorded information—

(A) within the possession or control of the administrator, sponsor, or employer of and persons providing services to any employee benefit plan, and

(B) which the Comptroller General or his representative finds, in his own judgment, pertinent to such study.

The Comptroller General shall not disclose the identity of any individual or employer in making any information obtained under this subsection available to the public.

(3) Definitions.—For purposes of this subsection, the terms "employee benefit plan", "participant", "administrator", "beneficiary", "plan sponsor", "employee", and "employer" are defined in section 3 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

(4) Effective date.—The preceding provisions of this subsection shall be effective on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(e) Amendments to the Table of Contents of ERISA.—The table of contents in section 1 is amended—

(1) by striking out the item relating to section 4004;

(2) by striking out the item relating to section 4042 and inserting in lieu thereof the following new item:

"Sec. 4042. Institution of termination proceedings by the corporation.";

(3) by inserting after the item relating to section 4048 the following new item:

"Sec. 4049. Distribution to participants and beneficiaries of liability payments to section 4049 trust.";

and

(4) by striking out the items relating to subtitle D of title IV and inserting in lieu thereof the following new items:

"Subtitle D—Liability

"Sec. 4061. Amounts payable by the corporation.
"Sec. 4062. Liability for termination of single-employer plans under a distress termination or a termination by the corporation.
"Sec. 4063. Liability of substantial employer for withdrawal from single-employer plans under multiple controlled groups.

"Sec. 4066. Annual notification of substantial employers.
"Sec. 4067. Recovery of liability for plan termination.
"Sec. 4068. Lien for liability.
"Sec. 4069. Treatment of transactions to evade liability; effect of corporate reorganization.
"Sec. 4070. Enforcement authority relating to terminations of single-employer plans.".

Section 11017.—Studies

(a) Single-Employer Pension Plan Termination Insurance Premium Study.—

(1) In general.—As soon as practicable after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation shall conduct a study of the premiums established under the single-employer pension plan termination insurance program under title IV of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

(2) Matters to be studied.—The Corporation shall specifically consider in its study the following matters:

(A) the effect of the amendments made by this title on the long-term stability of the single-employer pension plan termination insurance program under title IV of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974,

(B) alternatives to the current statutory mechanism with respect to proposals for changes in the premium levels under such program,

(C) the methods currently used by the Corporation in projecting future program costs of the single-employer pension plan termination insurance program,

(D) alternative methods of projecting such future program costs and an evaluation of each such alternative method,

(E) the methods currently used by the Corporation in determining premiums needed to allocate and adequately fund such future program costs,

(F) alternative methods of making such premium determinations and an evaluation of each such alternative method, and

(G) alternative premium bases upon which some or all of such projected future program costs would be allocated on an exposure-related or risk-related computation, which may take into account the different exposures or risks imposed on the Corporation by plan sponsors with different histories and under different circumstances.

(3) Submission of corporation's report.—Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Corporation shall report the results of its study, together with any recommendations for statutory changes, to an advisory council, to be appointed by the chairmen of the Committee on Education and Labor and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Labor and Human Resources and the Committee on Finance of the Senate. The advisory council shall be composed of representatives of single-employer plan sponsors, employee organizations representing single-employer plan participants, and members of the general public who are experts in the matters to be considered in the study. The members of the advisory council shall serve without compensation.

(4) Submission of council's report to congress.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the submission of the Corporation's report to the advisory council under paragraph (3), the advisory council shall submit the results of the Corporation's study and the Corporation's recommendations, together with the recommendations of the council, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate.

(5) Cooperation by the pension benefit guaranty corporation and other federal agencies.—The Corporation shall cooperate with the advisory council in reviewing the results of the Corporation's study and recommendations. In order to avoid unnecessary expense and duplication, to the extent not otherwise prohibited by law, the Corporation and any other Federal agency shall provide to the advisory council any data, analyses, or other relevant information related to the matters under review.

(b) Overfunded Pension Plan Study.—

(1) In general.—As soon as practicable after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Labor shall conduct a study of terminations resulting in residual assets under section 4044(d) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

(2) Report.—No later than May 1, 1986, the Secretary of Labor shall submit a report on the study conducted under paragraph (1), together with any recommendations for statutory changes, to the chairmen of the Committee on Education and Labor and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Labor and Human Resources and the Committee on Finance of the Senate.

Section 11018.—Limitation on Regulations

(a) Regulatory Treatment of Assets of Real Estate Entities.—

(1) In general.—Except as a defense, no rule or regulation adopted pursuant to the Secretary's proposed regulation defining "plan assets" for purposes of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (50 Fed. Reg. 961, January 8, 1985, as modified by 50 Fed. Reg. 6361, February 15, 1985), or any reproposal thereof prior to the adoption of the regulations required to be issued in accordance with subsection (d), shall apply to an asset of a real estate entity in which a plan, account, or arrangement subject to such Act invests if—

(A) any interest in the entity is first offered to a plan, account, or arrangement subject to such Act investing in the entity (hereinafter in this section referred to as a "plan investor") on or before the date which is 120 days after the date of publication of such rule or regulation as a final rule or regulation;

(B) no plan investor acquires an interest in the entity from an issuer or underwriter at any time on or after the date which is 270 days after the date of publication of such rule or regulation as a final rule or regulation (except pursuant to a contract or subscription binding on the plan investor and entered into, or tendered, before the expiration of such 270-day period, or pursuant to the exercise, on or before December 31, 1990, of a warrant which was the subject of an effective registration under the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77q et seq.) prior to the date of the enactment of this section); and

(C) every interest in the entity acquired by a plan investor (or contracted for or subscribed to by a plan investor) before the expiration of such 270-day period is a security—

(i) which is part of an issue or class of securities which upon such acquisition or at any time during the offering period is held by 100 or more persons;

(ii) the economic rights of ownership in respect of which are freely transferable;

(iii) which is registered under the Securities Act of 1933; and

(iv) which is part of an issue or class of securities which is registered under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.) (or is so registered within three years of the effective date of the registration statement of such securities for purposes of the Securities Act of 1933: Provided, That the issuer provides plan investors with such reports with respect to such period by the Securities and Exchange Commission under such Acts and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder).

In the case of partnerships organized prior to enactment of this section, the requirements of subparagraphs (iii) and (iv) shall not apply to initial limited partnership interests in an entity otherwise described above: Provided, That such entity was the subject of an effective registration under the Securities Act of 1933 prior to the date of the enactment of this section, such interests were issued solely for partnership organizational purposes in compliance with State limited partnership laws, and such interest has a value as of the date of issue of less than $20,000 and represents less than one percent of the total interests outstanding as of the completion of the offering period.

(2) Maintenance of current regulatory treatment.—No asset of any real estate entity described in paragraph (1) shall be treated as an asset of any plan investor for any purpose of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 if the assets of such entity would not have been assets of such plan investor under the provisions of—

(A) Interpretive Bulletin 75-2 (29 CFR 2509 750-2); or

(B) the regulations proposed by the Secretary of Labor and published—

(i) on August 28,1979, at 44 Fed. Reg. 50363;

(ii) on June 6, 1980, at 45 Fed. Reg. 38084;

(iii) on January 8, 1985, at 50 Fed. Reg. 961; or

(iv) on February 15, 1985, at 50 Fed. Reg. 6361, without regard to any limitation of any effective date proposed therein.

(b) Definitions and Special Rules.—For purposes of this section—

(1) The term "real estate entity" means an entity which, at any time within two years after the closing of its offering period has invested or has contracted to invest at least 75 percent of the value of its net assets available for investment in direct or indirect ownership of "real estate assets" or "interests in real property".

(2) The term "real estate asset" means real property (including an interest in real property) and any share of stock or beneficial interest, partnership interest, depository receipt, or any other interest in any other real estate entity.

(3) The term "interest in real property" includes, directly or indirectly, the following:

(A) the ownership or co-ownership of land or improvements thereon;

(B) any mortgage (including an interest in or co-ownership of any mortgage, leasehold mortgage, pool of mortgages, deed of trust, or similar instrument) on land or improvements thereon,

(C) any leasehold of land or improvements thereon; and

(D) any option to acquire any of the foregoing, but does not include any mineral, oil, or gas royalty interest.

(4) Whether the economic rights of ownership with respect to a security are "freely transferable" shall be determined based upon all the facts and circumstances, but ordinarily none of the following, alone or in any combination, shall cause the economic rights of ownership to be considered not freely transferable—

(A) any requirement that not less than a minimum number of shares or units of such security be transferred or assigned by any investor: Provided, That such requirement does not prevent transfer of all of the then remaining shares or units held by an investor;

(B) any prohibition against transfer or assignment of such security or rights in respect thereof to an ineligible or unsuitable investor;

(C) any restriction on or prohibition against any transfer or assignment which would either result in a termination or reclassification of the entity for Federal or State tax purposes or which would violate any State or Federal statute, regulation, court order, judicial decree, or rule of law;

(D) any requirement that reasonable transfer or administrative fees be paid in connection with a transfer or assignment;

(E) any requirement that advance notice of a transfer or assignment be given to the entity and any requirement regarding execution of documentation evidencing such transfer or assignment (including documentation setting forth representations from either or both of the transferor or transferee as to compliance with any restriction or requirement described in this section or requiring compliance with the entity's governing instruments);

(F) any restriction on substitution of an assignee as a limited partner of a partnership, incuding a general partner consent requirement: Provided, That the economic benefits of ownership of the assignor may be transferred or assigned without regard to such restriction or consent (other than compliance with any other restriction described in this section);

(G) any administrative procedure which establishes an effective date, or an event such as the completion of the offering, prior to which a transfer or assignment will not be effective; and

(H) any limitation or restriction on transfer or assignment which is not created or imposed by the issuer or any person acting for or on behalf of such issuer.

(c) No Effect on Secretary's Authority Other Than As Provided.—Except as provided in subsection (a), nothing in this section shall limit the authority of the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations or otherwise interpret section 3(21) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

(d) Time Limit for Final Regulations.—The Secretary of Labor shall adopt final regulations defining "plan assets" by December 31, 1986.

Section 11019.—Effective Date of Title; Temporary Procedures

(a) In General.—Except as otherwise provided in this title, the amendments made by this title shall be effective as of January 1, 1986, except that such amendments shall not apply with respect to terminations for which—

(1) notices of intent to terminate were filed with the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation under section 4041 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 before such date, or

(2) proceedings were commenced under section 4042 of such Act before such date.

(b) Transitional Rules.—

(1) In general.—In the case of a single-employer plan termination for which a notice of intent to terminate was filed with the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation under section 4041 of the Employee Retirement Security Act of 1974 (as in effect before the amendments made by this title) on or after January 1, 1986, but before the date of the enactment of this Act, the amendments made by this title shall apply with respect to such termination, as modified by paragraphs (2) and (3).

(2) Deemed compliance with notice requirements.—The requirements of subsections (a)(2), (b)(1)(A), and (c)(1)(A) of section 4041 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as amended by this title) shall be considered to have been met with respect to a termination described in paragraph (1) if—

(A) the plan administrator provided notice to the participants in the plan regarding the termination in compliance with applicable regulations of the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation as in effect on the date of the notice, and

(B) the notice of intent to terminate provided to the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation in connection with the termination was filed with the Corporation not less than 10 days before the proposed date of termination specified in the notice.

For purposes of section 4041 of such Act (as amended by this title), the proposed date of termination specified in the notice of intent to terminate referred to in subparagraph (B) shall be considered the proposed termination date.

(3) Special termination procedures.—

(A) In general.—This paragraph shall apply with respect to any termination described in paragraph (1) if, within 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the plan administrator notifies the Corporation in writing—

(i) that the plan administrator wishes the termination to proceed as a standard termination under section 4041(b) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as amended by this title) in accordance with subparagraph (B),

(ii) that the plan administrator wishes the termination to proceed as a distress termination under section 4041(c) of such Act (as amended by this title) in accordance with subparagraph (C), or

(iii) that the plan administrator wishes to stop the termination proceedings in accordance with subparagraph (D).

(B) Terminations proceeding as standard termination.—

(i) Terminations for which sufficiency notices have not been issued.—

(I) In general.—In the case of a plan termination described in paragraph (1) with respect to which the Corporation has been provided the notification described in subparagraph (A)(i) and with respect to which a notice of sufficiency has not been issued by the Corporation before the date of the enactment of this Act, if during the 90-day period commencing on the date of the notice required in subclause (II), all benefit commitments under the plan have been satisfied, the termination shall be treated as a standard termination under section 4041(b) of such Act (as amended by this title).

(II) Special notice regarding sufficiency for terminations for which notices of sufficiency have not been issued as of date of enactment.—

In the case of a plan termination described in paragraph (1) with respect to which the Corporation has been provided the notification described in subparagraph (A)(i) and with respect to which a notice of sufficiency has not been issued by the Corporation before the date of the enactment of this Act, the Corporation shall make the determinations described in section 4041(c)(3)(A) (i) and (ii) (as amended by this title) and notify the plan administrator of such determinations as provided in section 4041(c)(3)(A)(iii) (as amended by this title).

(ii) Terminations for which notices of sufficiency have been issued.—In the case of a plan termination described in paragraph (1) with respect to which the Corporation has been provided the notification described in subparagraph (A)(i) and with respect to which a notice of sufficiency has been issued by the Corporation before the date of the enactment of this Act, clause (i)(I) shall apply, except that the 90-day period referred to in clause (i)(I) shall begin on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(C) Terminations proceeding as distress termination.—In the case of a plan termination described in paragraph (1) with respect to which the Corporation has been provided the notification described in subparagraph (A)(ii), if the requirements of section 4041(c)(2)(B) of such Act (as amended by this title) are met, the termination shall be treated as a distress termination under section 4041(c) of such Act (as amended by this title).

(D) Termination of proceedings by plan administrator.—

(i) In general.— Except as provided in clause (ii), in the case of a plan termination described in paragraph (1) with respect to which the Corporation has been provided the notification described in subparagraph (A)(iii), the termination shall not take effect.

(ii) Terminations with respect to which final distribution of assets has commenced.— Clause (i) shall not apply with respect to a termination with respect to which the final distribution of assets has commenced before the date of the enactment of this Act unless, within 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the plan has been restored in accordance with procedures issued by the Corporation pursuant to subsection (c).

(E) Authority of corporation to extend 90-day periods to permit standard termination.—The Corporation may, on a case-by-case basis in accordance with subsection (c), provide for extensions of the applicable 90-day period referred to in clause (i) or (ii) of subparagraph (B) if it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Corporation that—

(i) the plan could not otherwise, pursuant to the preceding provisions of this paragraph, terminate in a termination treated as a standard termination under section 4041(b) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (as amended by this title), and

(ii) the extension would result in a greater likelihood that benefit commitments under the plan would be paid in full, except that any such period may not be so extended beyond one year after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) Authority to Prescribe Temporary Procedures.—The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation may prescribe temporary procedures for purposes of carrying out the amendments made by this title during the 180-day period beginning on the date described in subsection (a).

Section 12111—Effect of Early Delivery of Benefit Checks

(a) For OASDI Purposes.—Section 708 of the Social Security Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(c) For purposes of computing the 'OASDI trust fund ratio' under section 201(l), the 'OASDI' fund ratio' under section 215(i), and the 'balance ratio' under section 709(b), benefit checks delivered before the end of the month for which they are issued by reason of subsection (a) of this section shall be deemed to have been delivered on the regularly designated delivery date."

(b) For Income Tax Purposes.—Section 86(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to taxation of social security and tier 1 railroad retirement benefits) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(5) Effect of Early Delivery of Benefit Checks.—For purposes of subsection (a), in any case where section 708 of the Social Security Act causes social security benefit checks to be delivered before the end of the calendar month for which they are issued, the benefits involved shall be deemed to have been received in the succeeding calendar month.".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to benefit checks issued for months ending after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Section 12112. Exempt from Social Security Coverage for Retired Federal Judges on Active Duty

(a) Amendment to Social Security Act.—Section 209 of the Social Security Act is amended in the third to the last paragraph thereof (added by section 101(c)(1) of the Social Security Amendments of 1983) by striking out "shall, subject to the provisions of subsection (a) of this section, include" and inserting in lieu thereof "shall not include".

(b) Amendment to Internal Revenue Code.—Section 3121(i)(5) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended by striking out "shall, subject to the provisions of subsection (a)(1) of this section, include" and inserting in lieu thereof "shall not include".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to service performed after December 31, 1983.

Section 12113. Recovery of Overpayments

(a) OASDI Payments.—Section 204(a) of the Social Security Act is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" after "204(a)";

(2) by redesignating paragraph (1) and (2) as subparagraphs (A) and (B); and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, when any payment of more than the correct amount is made to or on behalf of an individual who has died, and such payment—

"(A) is made by direct deposit to a financial institution;

"(B) is credited by the financial institution to a joint account of the deceased individual and another person; and

"(C) such other person was entitled to a monthly benefit on the basis of the same wages and self-employment income as the deceased individual for the month preceding the month in which the deceased individual died, the amount of such payment in excess of the correct amount shall be treated as a payment of more than the correct amount to such other person.".

(b) SSI Payments.—Section 1631(b) of the Social Security Act is amended by redesignating paragraphs (2) through (4) as paragraphs (3) through (5), and by inserting after paragraph (1) the following new paragraph:

"(2) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, when any payment of more than the correct amount is made to or on behalf of an individual who has died, and such payment—

"(A) is made by direct deposit to a financial institution;

"(B) is credited by the financial institution to a joint account of the deceased individual and another person; and

"(C) such other person is the surviving spouse of the deceased individual, and was eligible for a payment under this title (including any State supplementation payment paid by the Secretary) as an eligible spouse (or as either member of an eligible couple) for the month in which the deceased individual died, the amount of such payment in excess of the correct amount shall be treated as a payment of more than the correct amount to such other person.".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply only in the case of deaths of which the Secretary is first notified on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Section 12114. Coverage of Connecticut State Police

Notwithstanding any provision of section 218 of the Social Security Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall, upon the request of the Governor of Connecticut, modify the agreement under such section between the Secretary and the State of Connecticut to provide that service performed after the date of the enactment of this Act by members of the Division of the State Police within the Connecticut Department of Public Safety, who are hired on or after May 8, 1984, and who are members of the tier II plan of the Connecticut State Employees Retirement System, shall be covered under such agreement.

Subtitle D—Provisions Relating to Unemployment Compensation

Section 12401. Recovery of Unemployment Benefit Overpayments

(a) In General.—(1) Section 303(a)(5) of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting before "; and" at the end thereof the following: "; Provided further, That amounts may be deducted from unemployment benefits and used to repay overpayments as provided in subsection (g)".

(2) Section 303 of such Act is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g)(1) A State may deduct from unemployment benefits otherwise payable to an individual an amount equal to any overpayment made to such individual under an unemployment benefit program of the United States or of any other State, and not previously recovered. The amount so deducted shall be paid to the jurisdiction under whose program such overpayment was made. Any such deduction shall be made only in accordance with the same procedures relating to notice and opportunity for a hearing as apply to the recovery of overpayments of regular unemployment compensation paid by such State.

"(2) Any State may enter into an agreement with the Secretary of Labor under which—

"(A) the State agrees to recover from unemployment benefits otherwise payable to an individual by such State any overpayments made under an unemployment benefit program of the United States to such individual and not previously recovered, in accordance with paragraph (1), and to pay such amounts recovered to the United States for credit to the appropriate account, and

"(B) the United States agrees to allow the State to recover from unemployment benefits otherwise payable to an individual under an unemployment benefit program of the United States any overpayments made by such State to such individual under a State unemployment benefit program and not previously recovered, in accordance with the same procedures as apply under paragraph (1).

"(3) For purposes of this subsection, 'unemployment benefits' means unemployment compensation, trade adjustment allowances, and other unemployment assistance.".

(b) Conforming Amendments.—(1) Section 3304(a)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 is amended—

(A) by striking out "and" at the end of subparagraph (B);

(B) by adding "and" at the end of subparagraph (C); and

(C) by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(D) amounts may be deducted from unemployment benefits and used to repay overpayments as provided in section 303(g) of the Social Security Act;".

(2) Section 3306(f) of such Code is amended—

(A) by striking out "and" at the end of paragraph (1);

(B) by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting in lieu thereof ",and"; and

(C) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(3) amounts may be deducted from unemployment benefits and used to repay overpayments as provided in section 303(g) of the Social Security Act.".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendements made by this section shall apply to recoveries made on or after the date of the enactment of this Act and shall apply with respect to overpayments made before, on, or after such date.

Section 12402. Supplement Unemployment Compensation for Certain Individuals

(a) In General.—If—

(1) an individual was receiving Federal supplemental compensation for the week which includes March 31, 1985, or a series of consecutive weeks which began with such week, and

(2) such individual did not meet the consecutive-week eligibility requirements of the Federal Supplemental Compensation Act of 1982 during any period of 1 or more subsequent weeks by reason of performing temporary disaster services described in subsection (e), weeks in such period, shall be disregarded for purpose of the consective-week requirement of section 602(f)(2)(B) of such Act, and, notwithstanding the requirements of State law relating to the availability for work, the active search for work, or the refusal to accept work, such individual shall be entitled to payment of Federal supplement compensation for each week of unemployment which is described in subsection (b) and for which a certification of unemployment is made by such individual in accordance with subsection (c).

(b) Weeks for Which Payment Shall Be Made.—A week of unemployment for which payment shall be made under subsection (a) is a week which occurred during the period which commences with the first week beginning after the close of the period described in subsection (a)(2) and ends with the beginning of the first week in which the individual was employed after the close of such period.

(c) Certification.—The certification of unemployment referred to in subsection (a) shall be a certification—

(1) that is made on a form provided by the State agency concerned and signed by the individual; and

(2) that identifies the weeks of unemployment for which the individual is making the certification.

(d) Limitation on Amount of Payment.—In no case may the total amount paid to an individual under subsection (a) exceed the amount remaining in the account established for such individual undersection 602(e) of the Federal Supplemental Compensation Act of 1982 after payments were made from such account for weeks of unemployment beginning before the period described in subsection (a)(2).

(e) Definition.—For purposes of subsection (a), the term "temporary disaster services" means services performed as a member of the National Guard after being called up by the Governor of a State to perform services related to a major disaster that was declared on June 3, 1985, by the President of the United States under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974.

(f) Modification of Agreement.—(1) The Secretary of Labor shall, at the earliest possible date after the date of the enactment of this Act, propose to any state concerned a modification of the agreement that the Secretary has with such State under section 602 of the Federal Supplemental Compensation Act of 1982 in order to carry out this section.

(2) Pending modification of the agreement, the State may make payment in accordance with the provisions of this section and shall be reimbursed in accordance with the provisions of section 604(a) of the Federal Supplemental Compensation Act of 1982. For purposes of carrying out this paragraph, the term "this subtitle" in such section 604(a) shall include this section.

(g) Effective Date.—The provisions of this section shall apply to weeks beginning after March 31, 1985.

(a) Subsection (c) of section 283 of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (relating to increase in tax on cigarettes) is amended by striking out all that follows "December 31, 1982" and inserting in lieu thereof a period.

(b) For purposes of all Federal and State laws, the amendment made by subsection (a) shall be treated as having taken effect on March 14, 1986.

Section 13202.—Tax on Smokeless Tobacco

(a) In General.—Section 5701 (relating to rate of tax) is amended by redesignating subsection (e) as subsection (f) and by inserting after subsection (d) the following new subsection:

"(e) Smokeless Tobacco.—On smokeless tobacco, manufactured in or imported into the United States, there shall be imposed the following taxes:

"(1) Snuff.—On snuff, 24 cents per pound and a proportionate tax at the like rate on all fractional parts of a pound.

"(2) Chewing tobacco.—On chewing tobacco, 8 cents per pound and a proportionate tax at the like rate on all fractional parts of a pound.".

(b) Conforming Amendments.—

(1) The heading of chapter 52 is amended by inserting "SMOKELESS TOBACCO," after "CIGARETTES,".

(2) Section 5702(c) (defining tobacco products) is amended by striking out "and cigarettes" and inserting in lieu thereof ", cigarettes, and smokeless tobacco".

(3) Section 5702(d) (defining manufacturers of tobacco products) is amended by striking out "cigars or cigarettes" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof

"cigars, cigarettes, or smokeless tobacco".

(4) Section 5702 is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(r) Definitions Relating to Smokeless Tobacco.—

"(1) Smokeless tobacco.—The term 'smokeless tobacco' means any snuff or chewing tobacco.

"(2) Snuff.—The term 'snuff' means any means any finely cut, ground, or powdered tobacco that is not intended to be smoked.

"(3) Chewing tobacco.—The term 'chewing tobacco' means any leaf tobacco that is not intended to be smoked.".

(c) Effective Date.—

(1) In general.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to smokeless tobacco removed after June 30,1986.

(2) Transitional rule.—Any person who—

(A) on the date of the enactment of this Act, is engaged in business as a manufacturer of smokeless tobacco, and

(B) before July 1, 1986, submits an application under subchapter B of chapter 52 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to engage in such business, may, notwithstanding such subchapter B, continue to engage in such business pending final action on such application. Pending such final action, all provisions of chapter 52 of such Code shall apply to such applicant in the same manner and to the same extent as if such applicant were a holder of a permit to manufacture smokeless tobacco under such chapter 52.

Section 13203.—Increase in Excise Tax on Coal

(a) Increase in Tax.—Subsections (a) and (b) of section 4121 (relating to imposition of tax on coal) are amended to read as follows:

"(a) Tax Imposed.—

"(1) In general.—There is hereby imposed on coal from mines located in the United States sold by the producer, a tax equal to the rate per ton determined under subsection (b).

"(2) Limitation on tax.—The amount of the tax imposed by paragraph (1) with respect to a ton of coal shall not exceed the applicable percentage (determined under subsection (b)) of the price at which such ton of coal is sold by the producer.

"(b) Determination of Rates and Limitation on Tax.—For purposes of subsection (a), in the case of sales during any calendar year beginning after December 31, 1985—

"(1) the rate of tax on coal from underground mines shall be $1.10,

"(2) the rate of tax on coal from surface mines shall be $.55, and

"(3) the applicable percentage shall be 4.4 percent.".

(b) 5-year Moratorium on Interest Accruals With Respect to the Indebtedness of the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund.—No interest shall accrue for the period beginning on October 1, 1985, and ending on September 30, 1990, with respect to any repayable advance to the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund.

(c) Existing Reduction in Rates for Period After Temporary Increase Retained.—So much of subsection (e) of section 4121 (relating to temporary increase in amount of tax) as precedes paragraph (2) is amended to read as follows:

"(e) Reduction in Amount of Tax.—

"(1) In general.—Effective with respect to sales after the temporary increase termination date, subsection (b) shall be applied—

"(A) by substituting '$.50' for '$1.10,'

"(B) by substituting '$.25' for '$.55,' and

"(C) by substituting '2 percent' for '4.4 percent'.".

(d) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to sales after March 31, 1986.

(a) In General.—Paragraph (4) of section 86(d) (defining Social security benefits) is amended to read as follows:

"(4) Tier 1 railroad retirement benefit.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the term 'tier 1 railroad retirement benefit' means—

"(A) the amount of the annuity under the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 equal to the amount of the benefit to which the taxpayer would have been entitled under the Social Security Act if all of the service after December 31, 1936, of the employee (on whose employment record the annuity is being paid) had been included in the term 'employment' as defined in the Social Security Act, and

"(B) a monthly annuity amount under section 3(f)(3) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974.".

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to any monthly benefit for which the generally applicable payment date is after December 31, 1985.

Section 13205.—Medicare Coverage of, and Application of Hospital Insurance Tax to, Newly Hired State and Local Government Employees

(a) Application of Hospital Insurance Tax to Newly Hired Employees of State and Local Governments.—

(1) In general.—Subsection (u) of section 3121 (relating to application of hospital insurance tax to Federal employment) is amended to read as follows:

"(u) Application of Hospital Insurance Tax to Federal, State, and Local Employment.—

"(1) Federal employment.—For purposes of the taxes imposed by sections 3101(b) and 3111(b), subsection (b) shall be applied without regard to paragraph (5) thereof.

"(2) State and local employment.—For purposes of the taxes imposed by sections 3101(b) and 3111(b)—

"(A) In general.—Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), subsection (b) shall be applied without regard to paragraph (7) thereof.

"(B) Exception for certain services.—Service shall not be treated as employment by reason of subparagraph (A) if—

"(i) the service is included under an agreement under section 218 of the Social Security Act, or

"(ii) the service is performed—

"(I) by an individual who is employed by a State or political subdivision thereof to relieve him from unemployment,

"(II) in a hospital, home, or other institution by a patient or inmate thereof as an employee of a State or political subdivision thereof or of the District of Columbia,

"(III) by an individual, as an employee of a State or political subdivision thereof or of the District of Columbia, serving on a temporary basis in case of fire, storm, snow, earthquake, flood or other similar emergency, or

"(IV) by any individual as an employee included under section 5351(2) of title 5, United States Code (relating to certain interns, student nurses, and other student employees of hospitals of the District of Columbia Government), other than as a medical or dental intern or a medical or dental resident in training.

As used in this subparagraph, the terms 'State' and 'political subdivision' have the meanings given those terms in section 218(b) of the Social Security Act.

"(C) Exception for current employment which continues.—Service performed for an employer shall not be treated as employment by reason of subparagraph (A) if—

"(i) such service would be excluded from the term 'employment' for purposes of this chapter if subparagraph (A) did not apply;

"(ii) such service is performed by an individual—

"(I) who was performing substantial and regular service for remuneration for that employer before April 1, 1986,

"(II) who is a bona fide employee of that employer on March 31, 1986, and

"(III) whose employment relationship with that employer was not entered into for purposes of meeting the requirements of this subparagraph; and

"(iii) the employment relationship with that employer has not been terminated after March 31, 1986.

"(D) Treatment of agencies and instrumentalities.—

For purposes of subparagraph (C), under regulations—

"(i) All agencies and instrumentalities of a State (as defined in section 218(b) of the Social Security Act) or of the District of Columbia shall be treated as a single employer.

"(ii) All agencies and instrumentalities of a political subdivision of a State (as so defined) shall be treated as a single employer and shall not be treated as described in clause (i).

"(3) Medicare qualified government employment.—For purposes of this chapter, the term 'medicare qualified government employment' means service which—

"(A) is employment (as defined in subsection (b)) with the application of paragraphs (1) and (2), but

"(B) would not be employment (as so defined) without the application of such paragraphs."

(2) Conforming amendments.—

(A)(i) Section 3125 (relating to returns in the case of governmental employees in Guam, American Samoa, and the District of Columbia) is amended by redesignated subsections (a), (b), and (c) as subsections (b), (c), and (d), respectively, and by inserting before subsection (b) (as so redesignated) the following new subsection:

"(a) States.—Except as otherwise provided in this section, in the case of the taxes imposed by sections 3101(b) and 3111(b) with respect to service performed in the employ of a State or any political subdivision thereof (or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing which is wholly owned thereby), the return and payment of such taxes may be made by the head of the agency or instrumentality having the control of such service, or by such agents as such head may designate. The person making such return may, for convenience of administration, make payments of the tax imposed under section 3111 with respect to the service of such individuals without regard to the contribution and benefit base limitation in section 3121(a)(1)."

(ii) The section heading for such section 3125 is amended by inserting "STATES," before "GUAM".

(iii) The item relating to section 3125 in the table of sections for subchapter C of chapter 21 is amended by inserting "States," before "Guam".

(B) Subsection (b) of section 1402 is amended by striking out "medicare qualified Federal employment (as defined in section 3121(u)(2))" and inserting in lieu thereof "medicare qualified government employment (as defined in section 3121 (u)(3))".

(C) Section 3122 (relating to Federal service) is amended by striking out "including service which is medicare qualified Federal employment (as defined in section 3121(u)(2))" and inserting in lieu thereof "including such service which is medicare qualified government employment (as defined in section 3121(u)(3))".

(D) Subsection (a) of section 6205 (relating to special rules applicable to certain employment taxes) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(5) States and political subdivisions as employer.—For purposes of this subsection, in the case of remuneration received from a State or any political subdivision thereof (or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing which is wholly owned thereby) during any calendar year, each head of an agency or instrumentality, and each agent designated by either, who makes a return pursuant to section 3125 shall be deemed a separate employer."

(E)(i) Section 6413(a) (relating to adjustment of certain employment taxes) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(5) States and political subdivisions as employer.—For purposes of this subsection, in the case of remuneration received from a State or any political subdivision thereof (or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing which is wholly owned thereby) during any calendar year, each head of an agency or instrumentality, and each agent designated by either, who makes a return pursuant to section 3125 shall be deemed a separate employer."

(ii) Section 6413(c)(2) (relating to special refunds of certain employment taxes) is amended—

(I) by striking out "3125(a)", "3125(b)", and "3125(c)" in subparagraphs (D), (E), and (F), respectively, and inserting in lieu thereof "3125(b)", "3125(c)", and "3125(d)", respectively, and

(II) by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(G) Employees of states and political subdivisions.—In the case of remuneration received from a State or any political subdivision thereof (or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing which is wholly owned thereby) during any calendar year, each head of an agency or instrumentality, and each agent designated by either, who makes a return pursuant to section 3125(a) shall, for purposes of this subsection, be deemed a separate employer."

(b) Entitlement to Hospital Insurance Benefits.—

(1) Revision of definition of medicare qualified government employment.—Section 210(p)) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 410(p)) is amended to read as follows:

"Medicare Qualified Government Employment

"(p)(1) For purposes of sections 226 and 226A, the term 'medicare qualified government employment' means any service which would constitute 'employment' as defined in subsection (a) of this section but for the application of the provisions of—

"(A) subsection (a)(5), or

"(B) subsection (a)(7), except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3).

"(2) Service shall not be treated as employment by reason of paragraph (1)(B) if the service is performed—

"(A) by an individual who is employed by a State or political subdivision thereof to relieve him from unemployment,

"(B) in a hospital, home, or other institution by a patient or inmate thereof as an employee of a State or political subdivision thereof or of the District of Columbia,

"(C) by an individual, as an employee of a State or political subdivision thereof or of the District of Columbia, serving on a temporary basis in case of fire, storm, snow, earthquake, flood or other similar emergency, or

"(D) by any individual as an employee included under section 5351(2) of title 5, United States Code (relating to certain interns, student nurses, and other student employees of hospitals of the District of Columbia Government), other than as a medical or dental intern or a medical or dental resident in training.

As used in this paragraph, the terms 'State' and 'political subdivision' have the meanings given those terms in section 218(b).

"(3) Service performed for an employer shall not be treated as employment by reason of paragraph (1)(B) if—

"(A) such service would be excluded from the term 'employment' for purposes of this section if paragraph (1)(B) did not apply;

"(B) such service is performed by an individual—

"(i) who was performing substantial and regular service for remuneration for that employer before April 1, 1986,

"(ii) who is a bona fide employee of that employer on March 31, 1986, and

"(iii) whose employment relationship with that employer was not entered into for purposes of meeting the requirements of this subparagraph; and

"(C) the employment relationship with that employer has not been terminated after March 31, 1986.

"(4) For purposes of paragraph (3), under regulations (consistent with regulations established under section 3121(u)(2)(D) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954)—

"(A) all agencies and instrumentalities of a State (as defined in section 218(b)) or of the District of Columbia shall be treated as a single employer, and

"(B) all agencies and instrumentalities of a political subdivision of a State (as so defined) shall be treated as a single employer and shall not be treated as described in subparagraph "(A)."

(2) Entitlement to hospital insurance benefits.—

(A) For individuals age 65 or older and for disabled individuals.—Section 226 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 426) is amended by striking out "medicare qualified Federal employment' in subsections (a)(2)(C)(i) and (b)(2)(C)(ii)(I) and inserting in lieu thereof "medicare qualified government employment".

(B) For individuals with end-stage renal disease.—Section 226A(a) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 426-1(a)) is amended by striking out "medicare qualified Federal employment" in paragraphs (1)(A)(ii) and (1)(B)(iii) and inserting in lieu thereof "medicare qualified government employment".

(C) Conforming amendments.—

(i) Section 1811 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395c) is amended by striking out "Federal employment" in clauses (1) and (2) and inserting in lieu thereof "government employment".

(ii) Section 226(g) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 426(g)) is amended by striking out "medicare qualified Federal employment" and inserting in lieu thereof "medicare qualified government employment by virtue of service described in section 210(a)(5)".

(c) Optional Medicare Coverage of Current Employees.—Section 218 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 418) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(v)(1) The Secretary shall, at the request of any State, enter into or modify an agreement with such State under this section for the purpose of extending the provisions of title XVIII, and sections 226 and 226A, to services performed by employees of such State or any political subdivision thereof who are described in paragraph (2).

"(2) This subsection shall apply only with respect to employees—

"(A) whose services are not treated as employment as that term applies under section 210(p) by reason of paragraph (3) of such section; and

"(B) who are not otherwise covered under the State's agreement under this section.

"(3) Payments by the State required under subsection (e) with respect to employees covered under this subsection shall be limited to amounts equivalent to the sum of the taxes which would be imposed by sections 3101(b) and 3111(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 if such services for which wages were paid to such employees constituted 'employment' as defined in section 3121 of such Code.

"(4) For purposes of sections 226 and 226A of this Act, services covered under an agreement pursuant to this subsection shall be treated as 'medicare qualified government employment'.

"(5) Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the provisions of this section shall apply with respect to services covered under the agreement pursuant to this subsection.

"(w) Notwithstanding sections 3125(a), 6205(a)(5), 6413(a)(5), and 6413(c)(2)(G) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, any State shall make payments of the taxes imposed with respect to services of employees of such State and of a political subdivision thereof under sections 3101(b) and 3111(b) of such Code, and reports of such services, under the same procedures as apply to payments and reports under subsection (e) of this section, but only if any employees of such State or of such political subdivision thereof respectively are covered under an agreement pursuant to this section.".

(d) Effective Dates.—

(1) Hospital insurance taxes.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to services performed after March 31, 1986.

(2) Medicare coverage.—

(A) In general.—The amendments made by subsection (b) shall be effective after March 31, 1986, and the amendments made by paragraph (3) of that subsection shall apply to services performed (for medicare qualified government employment) after that date.

(B) Treatment of certain disabilities.—For purposes of establishing entitlement to hospital insurance benefits under part A of title XVIII of the Social Security Act pursuant to the amendments made by subsection (b), no individual may be considered to be under a disability for any period beginning before April 1, 1986.

(3) Optional coverage of current employees.—The amendment made by subsection (c) shall apply to services performed after March 31, 1986.

Section 13206.—Full-time Students Not Eligible for Income Averaging

(a) In General.—Subsection (d) of section 1303 (defining eligible individuals for income averaging) is amended to read as follows:

"(d) Eligible Individuals Not To Include Full-Time Students.—

"(1) In general.—For purposes of this part, an individual shall not be an eligible individual for the computation year if, at any time during any base period year, such individual was a student.

"(2) Exception for married students providing 25 percent or less of joint income.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any individual for any computation year if—

"(A) the individual makes a joint return for the computation year, and

"(B) not more than 25 percent of the aggregate adjusted gross income of such individual and the spouse of such individual for such computation year is attributable to such individual. In applying subparagraph (B), amounts which constitute earned income (within the meaning of section 911(d)(2)) and are community income under community property laws applicable to such income shall be taken into account as if such amounts did not constitute community income.

"(3) Student defined.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'student' means, with respect to a taxable year, an individual who during each of 5 calendar months during such taxable year—

"(A) was a full-time student at an educational organization described in section 170(b)(1)(A)(ii); or

"(B) was pursuing a full-time course of institutional on-farm training under the supervision of an accredited agent of an educational organization described in section 170(b)(1)(A)(ii) or of a State or political subdivision of a State.".

(b) Repeal of Non-Full-Time Student Support Exception.—Paragraph (2) of section 1303(c) (relating to individuals receiving support from others) is amended—

(1) by striking out subparagraph (A),

(2) by redesignating subparagraphs (B) and (C) as subparagraphs (A) and (B), and

(3) by striking out "subparagraph (C)" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof "subparagraph (B)".

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985.

Section 13207.—Application of Fringe Benefits Rules to Airlines and Their Affiliates

(a) Parents of Airline Employees Treated as Employees in Applying Fringe Benefit Rules.—

(1) In general.—Section 132(f) (relating to certain individuals treated as employees with respect to certain fringe benefits) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(3) Special rule for parents in the case of air transportation.—Any use of air transportation by a parent of an employee (determined without regard to paragraph (1)(B)) shall be treated as use by the employee.".

(2) Effective date.—The amendment made by this subsection shall take effect on January 1, 1985.

(b) Line of Business Test for Affiliates Providing Airline-Related Services.—

(1) In general.—Section 132(h) (relating to special rules) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) Special Rule for Affiliates of Airlines.—

"(A) In General.—If—

"(i) a qualified affiliate is a member of an affiliated group another member of which operates an airline, and

"(ii) employees of the qualified affiliate who are directly engaged in providing airline-related services are entitled to no-additional-cost service with respect to air transportation provided by such other member, then, for purposes of applying paragraph (1) of subsection (a) to such no-additional-cost service provided to such employees, such qualified affiliate shall be treated as engaged in the same line of business as such other member.

"(B) Qualified Affiliate.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'qualified affiliate' means any corporation which is predominantly engaged in airline-related services.

"(C) Airline-related services.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'airline-related services' means any of the following services provided in connection with air transportation:

"(i) Catering.

"(ii) Baggage handling.

"(iii) Ticketing and reservations.

"(iv) Flight planning and weather analysis.

"(v) Restaurants and gift shops located at an airport.

"(vi) Such other similar services provided to the airline as the Secretary may prescribe.

"(D) Affiliated Group.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'affiliated group' has the meaning given such term by section 1504(a)."

(2) Effective date.—The amendment made by this subsection shall take effect on January 1, 1985.

(c) Transitional Rule for Determination of Line of Business in Case of Affiliated Group Operating Airline.—If, as of September 12, 1984—

(1) an individual—

(A) was an employee (within the meaning of section 132 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, including subsection (f) thereof) of one member of an affiliated group (as defined in section 1504 of such Code), hereinafter referred to as the "first corporation" and

(B) was eligible for no-additional-cost service in the form of air transportation provided by another member of such affiliated group, hereinafter referred to as the "second corporation",

(2) at least 50 percent of the individuals performing service for the first corporation were or had been employees of, or had previously performed services for, the second corporation, and

(3) the primary business of the affiliated group was air transportation of passengers, then, for purposes of applying paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 132(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, with respect to no-additional-cost services and qualified employee discounts provided after December 31, 1984, for such individual by the second corporation, the first corporation shall be treated as engaged in the same air transportation line of business as the second corporation. For purposes of the preceding sentence, an employee of the second corporation who is performing services for the first corporation shall also be treated as an employee of the first corporation.

(d) Special Rule for Services Related to Providing Air Transportation.—Section 531 of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 is amended by redesignating subsections (g) and (h) as subsections (h) and (i), respectively, and by inserting after subsection (f) the following new subsection:

"(g) Special Rule for Certain Services Related to Air Trasportation.—

"(1) General.—If—

"(A) an individual performs services for a qualified air transportation organizatioin, and

"(B) such services are performed primarily for persons engaged in providing air transportation and are of the kind which (if performed on September 12, 1984) would qualify such individual for no-additional-cost services in the form of air transportation then, with respect to such individual, such qualified air transportation organization shall be treated as engaged in the line of business of providng air transportation.

"(2) Qualified air transportation orga- nization.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the term 'qualified air transportation organization' means any organization—

"(A) if such organization (or a predecessor) was in existence on September 12, 1984,

"(B) if—

"(i) such organization is described in section 501(c)(6) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 and the membership of such organization is limited to entities engaged in the transportation by air of individuals or property for compensation or hire, or

"(ii) such organization is a corporation all the stock of which is owned entirely by entities referred to in clause (i), and

"(C) if such organization is operated in furtherance of the activities of its members or owners.".

Section 13208.—Certain Insolvent Taxpayers Allowed to Reduce Capital Gains Preference Item for Purposes of the Individual Minimum Tax

(a) In General.—Paragraph (9) of section 57(a) (relating to capital gains as items of tax preference) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subparagraph:

"(E) Special rule for certain insolvent taxpayers.—

"(i) In general.—The amount of the tax preference under subparagraph (A) shall be reduced (but not below zero) by the excess (if any) of—

"(I) the applicable percentage of gain from any farm insolvency transaction, over

"(II) the applicable percentage of any loss from any farm insolvency transaction which offsets such gain.

"(ii) Reduction limited to amount of insolvency.—

The amount of the reduction determined under clause (i) shall not exceed the amount by which the taxpayer is insolvent immediately before the transaction (reduced by any portion of such amount previously taken into account under this clause).

"(iii) Farm insolvency transaction.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'farm insolvency transaction' means—

"(I) the transfer by a farmer of farmland to a creditor in cancellation of indebtedness or

"(II) the sale or exchange by the farmer of property described in subclause (I) under the threat of foreclosure, but only if the farmer is insolvent immediately before such transaction.

"(iv) Insolvent.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'insolvent' means the excess of liabilities over the fair market value of assets.

"(v) Applicable percentage.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'applicable percentage' means that percentage of net capital gain with respect to which a deduction is allowed under section 1202(a).

"(vi) Farmland.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'farmland' means any land used or held for use in the trade or business of farming (within the meaning of section 2032A(e)(5)).

"(vii) Farmer.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'farmer' means any taxpayer if 50 percent or more of the average annual gross income of the taxpayer for the 3 preceding taxtable years is attributable to the trade or business of farming (within the meaning of section 2032A(e)(5))."

(b) Effective Date.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to transfers or sales or exchanges made after December 31, 1981, in taxable years ending after such date.

Section 13209.—Treatment of Certain Pollution Control Bonds

(a) General Rule.—For purposes of subparagraph (F) of section 103(b)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to pollution control facilities), any obligation issued after December 31, 1985, shall be treated as described in such subparagraph if it is part of an issue substantially all of the proceeds of which are used by a qualified regional pollution control authority to acquire existing air or water pollution control facilities which the authority itself will operate in order to maintain or improve control of pollutants. The provisios of section 103(b)(17) of such Code (relating to prohibition on acquisition of existing property not permitted) shall not apply to any obligation described in the preceding sentence.

(b) $200,000,000 Limitations.—The aggregate amount of obligations to which subsection (a) applies shall not exceed $200,000,000, except that the amount of such obligations issued during calendar year 1986 to which subsection (a) applies shall not exceed $100,000,000.

(c) Restrictions.— Subsection (a) shall apply only if—

(1) the amount paid (directly and indirectly) for the facilities does not exceed their fair market value,

(2) the fees or charges imposed (directly or indirectly) on any seller for the use of any facilities after the sale are not less than the amounts charged for the use of such facilities to persons other than the seller,

(3) the original use of the facilities acquired with the proceeds of such obligations commenced before September 3, 1982, and

(4) no person other than the qualified regional pollution control authority is considered after the sale as the owner of the facilities for purposes of Federal income taxes.

(d) Qualified Regional Pollution Control Authority Defined.—For purposes of this section, the term "qualified regional pollution control authority" means an authority which—

(1) is a political subdivision created by State law to control air or water pollution.

(2) has within its jurisdictional boundaries all or part of at least 2 counties (or equivalent political subdivision),

(3) operates air or water pollution control facilities, and

(4) was created on September 1, 1969.

(e) Repeal on Section 103(b)(11).—Paragraph (11) of section 103(b) is hereby repealed.

Section. 13210.—Treatment of the Netting of Gains and Losses by Cooperatives

(a) In General.—Section 1388 (relating to definitions and special rules applicable to cooperatives) is amended by redesignating subsection (j) as subsection (k) and by inserting after subsection (i) the following new subsection:

"(j) Special Rules for the Netting of Gains and Losses by Cooperatives.—For purposes of this subchapter, in the case of any organization to which part I of this subchapter applies—.

"(1) Optional netting of patronage gains and losses permitted.— The net earnings of such organization may, at its option, be determined by offsetting patronage losses (including any patronage loss carried to such year) which are attributable to 1 or more allocation units (whether such units are functional, divisional, departmental, geographic, or otherwise) against patronage earnings of 1 or more other such allocation units.

"(2) Certain netting permitted after section 381 transactions.—If such an organization acquires the assets of another such organization in a transaction described in section 381(a), the acquiring organization may, in computing its net earnings for taxable years ending after the date of acquisition, offset losses of 1 or more allocation units of the acquiring or acquired organization against earnings of the acquired or acquiring organization, respectively, but only to the extent—

"(A) such earnings are properly allocable to periods after the date of acquisition, and

"(B) such earnings could have been offset by such losses if such earnings and losses had been derived from allocation units of the same organization.

"(3) Notice requirements.—

"(A) In general.—In the case of any organization which exercises its option under paragraph (1) for any taxable year, such organization shall, on or before the 15th day of the 9th month following the close of such taxable year, provide to its patrons a written notice which —

"(i) states that the organization has offset earnings and losses from 1 or more of its allocation units and that such offset may have affected the amount which is being distributed to its patrons,

"(ii) states generally the identity of the offsetting allocation units, and

"(iii) states briefly what rights, if any, its patrons may have to additional financial information of such organization under terms of its charter, articles of incorporation, or bylaws, or under any provision of law.

"(B) Certain information need not be provided.—An organization may exclude from the information required to be provided under clause (ii) of subparagraph (A) any detailed or specific data regarding earnings or losses of such units such organization determines would disclose commercially sensitive information which—

"(i) could result in a competitive disadvantage to such organization, or

"(ii) could create a competitive advantage to the benefit of a competitor of such organization.

"(C) Failure to provide sufficient notice.—If the Secretary determines that an organization failed to provide sufficient notice under this paragraph—

"(i) the Secretary shall notify such organization, and

"(ii) such organization shall, upon receipt of such notification, provide to its patrons a revised notice meeting the requirements of this paragraph.

Any such failure shall not affect the treatment of the organization under any provision of this subchapter or sectio 521.

"(4) Patronage earnings or losses defined.—For purposes of this subsection, the terms 'patronage earnings' and 'patronage losses' means earnings and losses, respectively, which are derived from business done with or for patrons of the organization."

(b) Tax-Exempt Status Not Affected By Netting.—Section 521(b) (relating to applicable rules) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(6) Netting of losses.—Exemption shall not be denied any such association because such association computes its net earnings for purposes of determining any amount available for distribution to patrons in the manner described in paragraph (1) of section 1388(j)."

(c) Effective Date.—

(1) In General.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1962.

(2) Notification requirement.—The provisions of section 1388(j)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (as added by subsection (a)) shall apply to taxable years beginning on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(3) No inference.—Nothing in the amendments made by this section shall be construed to infer that a change in law is intended as to whether any patronage earnings may or not be offset by nonpatronage losses, and any determination of such issue shall be made as if such amendments had not been enacted.

Section 13211.—Allocation Under Section 861 of Research and Experimental Expenditures

Subsection (c) of section 126 of the Deficit Reducation Act of 1984 is amended—

(1) by striking out "1985" and inserting in lieu thereof "1986"; and

(2) by striking out "3rd" each place it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "4th".

Section 13212.—Limitation on Issuance of United States Bonds

Subsection (a) of section 3102 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by striking out "$200,000,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$250,000,000,000".

Section 13213.—Authorization of Additional Funds to Internal Revenue Service for Revenue Enforcement and Related Purposes, etc

(a) Authorization.—There is authorized to be appropriated $46,500,000 for each of the fiscal years 1986, 1987, and 1988 for the use of the Internal Revenue Service to employ 1,550 additional agents and examination employees.

(b) Restoration of Proposed Cuts.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the restoration of the cuts in the budget for the Internal Revenue Service for fiscal year 1986, and

(2) the further increase in such budget total, recommended by the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives are necessary for the efficient operation of the Government and to carry out the purposes of this Act.

Subtitle C—Provisions Relating to Unemployment Taxes

Section 13301. Railroad Unemployment Repayment Tax

(a) Rate of Tax.—Subsection (c) of section 3321 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (relating to rate of railroad unemployment repayment tax) is amended to read as follows:

"(c) Rate of Tax.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) In General.—The application percentage for any taxable period shall be the sum of—

"(A) the basic rate for such period, and

"(B) the surtax rate (if any) for such period.

"(2) Basic rate.—For purposes of paragraph (1)—

"(A) For periods before 1989.—The basic rate shall be—

"(i) 4.3 percent for the taxable period beginning on July 1, 1986, and ending on December 31, 1986.

"(ii) 4.7 percent for the 1987 taxable period, and

"(iii) 6 percent for the 1988 taxable period.

"(B) For periods after 1988.—For any taxable period beginning after December 31, 1988, the basic rate shall be the sum of—

"(i) 2.9 percent, plus

"(ii) 0.3 percent for each preceding taxable period after 1988.

In no event shall the basic rate under this subparagraph exceed 5 percent.

"(3) Surtax Rate.—For purpose of paragraph (1), the surtax rate shall be—

"(A) 3.5 percent for any taxable period if, as of September 30 of the preceding calendar year, there was a balance of transfers (or unpaid interest thereon) made after September 30, 1985, to the railroad unemployment insurance account under section 10(d) of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, and

"(B) zero for any other taxable period.

"(4) Basic rate not to apply to rail wages paid after September 30, 1990.—The basic rate under paragraph (1)(A) shall not apply to rail wages paid after Septebmer 30, 1990"

(b) Base of Tax To Be Compensation Used for Railroad Retirement Tax Purposes.—Subsection (b) of section 3323 of such Code (defining rail wages) is amended to read as follows:

"(b) Rail Wages.—

"(1) In general.—For purposes of this chapter, the term 'rail wages' means compensation (as defined in section 3231(e) for purposes of the tax imposed by section 3201(a)) with the modifications specified in paragraph (2).

"(2) Modifications.—In applying subsection (e) of section 3231 for purposes of paragraph (1)—

"(A) Only employment covered by railroad unemployment insurance act taken into account.—Such subsection (e) shall be applied—

"(i) by substituting 'rail employment' for 'services' each place it appears,

"(ii) by substituting 'rail employer' for 'employer' each place it appears, and

"(iii) by substituting 'rail employee' for 'employee' each place it appears.

"(B) $7,000 wage base.—Such subsection (e) shall be applied by substituting for 'the applicable base' in paragraph (2)(A)(i) thereof—

"(i) except as provided in clauses (ii) and (iii), '$7,000',

"(ii) '$3,500' for the taxable period beginning on July 1, 1986, and ending on December 31, 1986,and

"(iii) for purposes of applying the basic rate under section 3321(c)(1)(A), '$5,250' for the taxable period beginning on January 1, 1990.

"(C) Successor employers.—for purposes of this subsection, rules similar to the rules applicable under section 3231(e)(2)(C) shall apply."

(c) Use of Taxes.—

(1) In general.—Paragraph (2) of section 232(a) of the Railroad Retirement Revenue Act of 1983 (relating to tax used to repay loans made to railroad unemployment insurance account) is amended to read as follows:

"(2) Taxes credited against loans to railroad unemployment insurance account.—

"(A) Taxes attributable to basic rate to reduce railroad unemployment loans made before October 1, 1985.—So much of the amount transferred under paragraph (1) as is attributable to the basic rate under section 3321(c)(1)(A) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 shall be credited against, and operate to reduce, the outstanding balance of railroad unemployment loans made before October 1, 1985.

"(B) Taxes attributable to surtax rate to reduce railroad unemployment loans made after September 30, 1985.—So much of the amount transferred under paragraph (1) as is attributable to the surtax rate under section 3321(c)(1)(B) of such Code shall be credited against, and operate to reduce, the outstanding balance of railroad unemployment loans made after September 30, 1985."

(2) Transfers to railroad unemployment fund after loan repaid.—Subsection (c) of section 232 of such Act is amended—

(A) by striking out "the amount" in paragraph (1) and inserting in lieu thereof "the amount described in subparagraph (A) or (B) of subsection (a)(2)", and

(B) by inserting before the comma at the end of paragraph (2) "against which the amount described in such subparagraph may be credited under such subparagraph".

(d) Technical Amendments.—

(1) Subsection (a) of section 3322 of such Code (relating to taxable period) is amended—

(A) by adding "and" at the end of paragraph (1), and

(B) by striking out paragraphs (2) and (3) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(2) each calendar year after 1986."

(2) Subsection (b) of section 3322 of such Code (relating to earlier termination if loans to rail unemployment fund repaid) is amended—

(A) by striking out "The tax imposed by this chapter shall not apply" and inserting in lieu thereof "The basic rate under section 3321(c)(1)(A) of the tax imposed by section 3321 shall not apply", and

(B) by inserting "made before October 1, 1985," after "no balance of transfers" in paragraph (1) thereof.

Section 13302.—Extension of Borrowing Authority Under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act

Section 10(d) of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act is amended by striking out the last sentence thereof.

Section 13303.—Certain Exemptions from the Federal Unemployment Tax Act

(a) Certain Agricultural Labor.—Paragraph (1)(B) of section 3306(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (defining employment) is amended by striking out "January 1, 1986," and inserting in lieu thereof "January 1, 1988".

(b) Full-Time Students Employed by Summer Camps.—Notwithstanding paragraph (3) of section 276(b) of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982, the amendments made by paragraphs (1) and (2) of such section 276(b) shall also apply to remuneration paid after September 19, 1985.

(c) Services Performed on Certain Fishing Boats.—

(1) In general.—Section 822(b) of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 is amended to read as follows:

"(b) Effective Date.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to remuneration paid after December 31, 1980.".

(2) Technical amendment.—Paragraph (20) of section 312(b) of such Code (defining employment for purposes of Federal Insurance Contributions Act) is amended by inserting "(other than service described in paragraph (3)(A))" after "service".

CONSOLIDATED OMNIBUS BUDGET RECONCILIATION ACT OF 1985

October 2 (legislative day, September 30), 1985

Mr. Domenici, from the Committee on the Budget, submitted the following report to accompany S. 730[1]

The Committee on the Budget, to which were submitted recommendations pursuant to section 2 of the First Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 1986 (S. Con. Res. 32, Ninety-ninth Congress), having considered the same, reports favorably thereon and recommends that the bill embodying those recommendations do pass.

[327] D. SOCIAL SECURITY

1. Coverage of Senior Status Federal Judges Current law.—

Federal judges are appointed for life. Once a judge qualifies for retirement, he continues to receive his annual pay, regardless of whether he chooses to continue on active duty in the judiciary. Prior to enactment of P.L. 98–21, Federal judges, like all Federal employees, were excluded from Social Security coverage so the question of Social Security taxes did not arise. Additionally, the amounts received by judges who had achieved senior (retired) status had been determined not to be wages for purposes of the earnings test.

[1] Public Law 99-272, page 4

The 1983 Social Security Amendments (Public Law 98–21) provided that the wages of all active Federal judges would be subject to Social Security taxes beginning January 1, 1984. This provision applied to both current and future judges. P.L. 98–21 also specifically provided that amounts received by judges who achieve senior (retired) status but who continue on active duty would be subjet to Social Security taxes on so much of their pay as was attributable to periods when they were performing judicial services. Those earnings would also cause reductions in the judges' benefits under the Social Security retirement test. (Subsequently, P.L. 98–118 delayed the effective date of this provision until January 1, 1986.)

Explanation of provision.—For purposes of the Social Security Act, the provision would exclude the amounts received by Federal judges who meet the criteria for retirement on salary (e.g. age 65 with 15 years of service or age 70 with 10 years of service), retire, and perform active duty, from the definition of wages. The effect of this exclusion would be to exempt their pay from Social Security taxes and to preclude it from being counted for Social Security earnings test purposes.

Effective date.—Effective for services performed after December 31, 1983.

[357] K. PENSION BENEFIT GUARANTY CORPORATION

1. Increase Pensin Benefit Guaranty Corporation Premiums

Current law.—The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) established a program of insurance for employee benefits under most tax-qualified, private, domestic, defined benefit pension plans.[1] The insurance program is administered by the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC), a Federal corporation within the Department of Labor. The Board of Directors of the PBGC consists of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Labor, and the Secretary of Commerce. The Secretary of Labor is the Chairman of the Board. Receipts and disbursements of the PBGC are included in the budget of the United States.

Under present law, a defined benefit plan that is subject to the insurance program is required to pay annual premiums to the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC). The PBGC is required by ERISA to maintain four separate premium rate and base schedules under the program. Under the Act, the PBGC maintains separate schedules for basic and nonbasic benefits under single-employer plans and corresponding schedules for multiemployer plans.[2] Insurance of basic benefits under a plan is mandatory.

Basic benefits under a single-employer plan (generally consisting of nonforfeitable retirement benefits) are insured by the PBGC up to the lessor of $750 per month, adjusted for inflation since 1974 ($1,687.50 for 1985) or a participant's average monthly compensation for the period of five years for which that compensation is the highest. The insurance of benefits is generally phased in over a five-year period.

ERISA provides that the annual per-participant premium for insurance of basic benefits under a single-employer plan is $2.60.[3] The annual per-participant premium for insurance of basic benefits under a multiemployer plan is $1.80 for plan years beginning in 1985 or 1986, $2.20 for plan years beginning in 1987 or 1988, and $2.60 [358] for plan years beginning thereafter. Special rules are provided for cases in which an employee participates in more than one single-employer plan maintained by the same employer. Similar rules apply to employees with multiple coverage under multiemployer plans. Generally, the level of benefits guaranteed by the PBGC is lower under a multiemployer plan than under a single-employer plan.

The PBGC is authorized by ERISA to revise the premium rate and base schedules for basic benefits under single-employer plans and multiemployer plans whenever it determines that revision is necessary. Approval by the Congress is required, however, for per-participant annual premiums in excess of $2.60. A proposed change in a schedule is to be submitted to the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Education and Labor of the House of Representatives and to the Committee on Finance and the Committee on Labor and Human Resources of the Senate. ERISA requires that premium rates prescribed by the PBGC must be uniform for all single-employer plans with respect to basic benefits. The PBGC is authorized by ERISA to provide a risk-related premium (within limits) for single-employer and multiemployer plans but this authority has not been exercised.

The PGBC maintains a trust fund and a revolving fund for insurance of benefits under terminated plans. Separate funds are maintained for single-employer plans and multiemployer plans. The funds maintained by the PBGC to provide benefits under terminated single-employer plans are the sole Federal source of guaranteed benefits for single-employer plans. The funds maintained by the PGBC to provide guaranteed benefits under multiemployer plans are the sole Federal source of guaranteed benefits for those plans. The PBGC is authorized to borrow up to $100 million from the Treasury of the United States.

Reasons for change.—The Budget Messge of the President for 1986 indicated that under current law, the deficit of the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation is expected to increase. According to the Message, the budget reflects the Administration's request that the Congress approve an increase in the single-employer premium to a level sufficient to cover projected claims, and amortize the current deficit over a reasonable period of time. The Message indicates that the Administration also supports "legislation to revise the insurance program for single-employer plans in order to close loopholes in the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 that allow unwarranted assignment to the Corporation of liabilities for unfunded benefits".

[1] A defined benefit pension plan specifies a participant's benefits independently of an account for contributions, etc. (e.g., an annual benefit of two percent of average pay for each year of employee service.) A church pension plan is generally exempt from the insurance program unless the plan has elected to be subject to ERISA standards. Exclusions are also provided for plans of small professional service employers and certain other employers.

[2] Under ERISA, a plan is a multiemployer plan if (1) more than one employer is required to make plan contributions, (2) the plan is maintained pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements between one or more employee organizations and more than one employer, and (3) the plan meets such other requirements as the Secretary of Labor may prescribe by regulations. In determining whether a plan is a multiemployer plan, employers under common control are treated as one employer. Special rules are provided for terminated plans and for transition cases (Code sec. 414(f) and ERISA sec. 4001(a)(3)). A single-employer plan is a pension plan that is not a multiemployer plan.

[3] The annual, per-participant premium for single-employer plans was initially set by ERISA at $1.00. That premium was increased by Public Law 95–214 to $2.60, effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1977. Public Law 96–364 increased premiums for multiemployer plans from $.50 to the levels presently provided.

The PBGC presently estimates that its deficit will be $679 million at the end of the 1986 fiscal year.[4] The PBGC estimates that the deficit in its single-employer program will be $721 million at that time.

The Board of Directors of the PBGC has requested that the annual, per-participant premium for single-employer plans be increased to $7.50 from $2.60, effective for plan years beginning on or after [359] January 1, 1985. In a letter of April 9, 1985, the Acting Executive Director of the PBGC stated on behalf of the Board of Directors that:

> Our current request for a $7.50 premium reflects the need to fund properly existing liabilities of approximately $1.6 billion for future losses, expected to average $185 million per year, over the next 15 years. The immediate need for the increase is now even more apparent that it was in the last session of the Congress. Sometime early in FY 1985, PBGC's cash flow, as reflected in the Federal Budget accounts, turned negative, and PBGC for the first time began adding to the size of the Federal deficit. Such a trend would accelerate alarmingly in succedding years should an increase not be adopted.

The PBGC has indicated that an annual per-participant premium of $8.10, effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1985, is equivalent to a premium of $7.50 effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1984.

After considering the request of the Administration, the committee determined that the premium for single-employer plans should be increased to $8.10 for plan years beginning after December 31, 1985. The premium increase was made prospective because of the administrative burdens that would be imposed on plans if a retroactive increase were adopted and because the PBGC has indicated that this brief deferral will not jeopardize benefits under the program.

Because of concerns over premium levels under the guarantee program for single-employer plans, the committee has directed the Secretary of Labor to make recommendations to the Committee on Finance and to the House Committee on Ways and Means with respect to appropriate premiums for single-employer plans by July 1, 1987. The recommendations of the Secretary are to be provided to the American Academy of Actuaries so that the Academy may attach its comments to the recommendations before they are submitted to the Committee on Finance and to the House Committee on Ways and Means.

The committee expects that the report of the Secretary will include (1) an explanation of the methods used by the PBGC in determining liability under the single-employer termination insurance program; (2) an evaluation of alternative methods of determining that liability; (3) an explanation of the methods used by the PBGC to determine the premium needed to adequately fund its liability under the single-employer termination insurance program, together with an estimae of the required premium under each of the alternative methods; (4) the recommended premium needed to adequately fund the liabilities of the PBGC; and (5) an evaluation of the feasibility of establishing a risk-related premium.

Explanation of provision.—Under the bill, the annual per-participant premium for single-employer plans is increased to $8.10 effective for plan years beginning after December 31, 1985. The bill does not modify the premiums for multiemployer plans.

[361] L. REVENUES

1. Full-time Students Not Eligible for Income Averaging

Present law.—An individual whose income fluctuates sharply from year to year, or whose income increases rapidly over a short period, may have a greater aggregate income tax liability over a period of years than another individual earning the same total amount, who has relatively constant earnings on an annual basis. This result derives from two aspects of the income tax—the annual accounting period and the progressive rate schedule.

The rules for income averaging address this disparity by permitting individuals with fluctuating annual incomes partially to avoid the effects of rate progressivity in high-income years. Under these rules, eligible individuals may reduce their tax liabilities during a year for which their income is at least 40 percent greater than the average income for the immediately preceding three years (the "base years"). In such a case, the income averaging provision reduces tax liability by applying a lower marginal rate than would be used under the regular tax system to a portion of a current year's income.

In order to be eligible to use income averaging, an individual (1) must meet one of several alternative standards generally intended to restrict the availability of income averaging to individuals who were self-supporting during the base years, and (2) must have been a United States citizen or resident during the taxable year and the three base years. Under these rules, an individual may be eligible for income averaging, even if he or she has not been self-supporting during one or more of the base years, if he or she has attained the age of 25 and was not a full-time student during at least four years after attaining the age of 21.

In effect, the liability of an individual eligible to use income averaging for a year is calculated in three steps:

First, the taxpayer determines tax liability as if the current year's taxable income equaled a lower amount, i.e., 140 percent of the average income during the base years; this portion of income for the current year is taxed at the rates that would have applied if it had constituted all of the taxpayer's income for the year.

Second, the individual computes the increase in tax liability over the amount determined according to the first step which would result if 25 percent of the remaining income (i.e., total income less 140 percent of average base period income) were added to the portion of income described in the first step.

[362] Third, this increase is multiplied by four and added to the tax liability calculated in the first step in order to determine the individual's tax liability for the current year.[1]

Each of these tax liability computations is performed using the current year's rate schedules.

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that income averaging is intended primarily to benefit taxpayers with widely fluctuating incomes. Under current law, however, taxpayers with sharp but sustained increases in income, typically young persons entering the job market for the first time, may qualify for income averaging and benefit substantially from it.

[4] The Budget Message of the President estimated that the deficit of the PBGC would be $853 million at the end of the 1986 fiscal year. This projection has been revised in light of more complete information with respect to the 1984 fiscal year.

The committee also believes that the availability of income averaging to individuals who were full-time students during the base period is a source of complexity. Determining whether a taxpayer was self-supporting when he or she was a full-time student is difficult and has been a frequent source of contention between taxpayers and the Internal Revenue Service. The case-by-case determinations that are required represent an administrative burden and impede fair and consistent application of the eligibility rules for income averaging.

Explanation of the provision.—Under the bill, a taxpayer who was a full-time student in any base year is not eligible for income averaging. This rule, however, does not apply if an individual files a joint return and 25 percent or less of the adjusted gross income reportable on the joint return is attributable to that individual. Thus, the benefits of income averaging would be available in situations where one spouse was a full-time student during one or more of the base years but had a relatively insubstantial amount of income during the current year.

Consistent with these changes, the exception to the requirement that an eligible individual must be self-supporting during each of the base years, applying to individuals who are 25 years of age or older and were not full-time students during at least four years after they reached 21 years of age, is repealed.

Effective date.—The provision relating to income averaging is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985.

2. Employers Required to Provide Certain Employees and Family Members With Continued Health Insurance Coverage at Group Rates

Present law.—Present tax law includes several incentives designed to encourage employers to provide health benefits to their employees. Employer contributions to a plan providing accident or health coverage, and certain benefits actually paid under such plans, are not subject to income tax, social security tax, or unemployment tax. At the same time, employer contributions to fund such excludable medical benefits are deductible, within limits.

A deduction is allowed to an employer for compensation paid to employees in the form of contributions to or benefits paid under a [363] health plan, provided such costs constitute ordinary and necessary business expenses (sec. 162).

Effective for taxable years beginning after 1981, no deduction is permitted for expenses paid or incurred by an employer for a group health plan if the plan differentiates in the benefits it provides between individuals having end stage renal (kidney) disease and other individuals (sec. 162(i)(1)). Thus, no deductions are permitted for contributions to a group health plan that differentiates directly or indirectly on the basis of the existence of end stage renal disease or the need for renal dialysis.

There are no Federal requirements that employer-based group health insurance plans provide continuation options for any individuals who lose coverage in the health plan under any circumstances.

Under present law, an employer's contributions to a plan providing accident or health benefits, whether insured or self-insured, are excludable from the employee's income (sec. 106). Reimbursements to employees under an employer's health plan for costs incurred for medical expenses (within the meaning of sec. 213), and payments unrelated to absence from work, are excluded from the employee's gross income (sec. 105(b)). Similar exclusions apply for employment tax purposes.

Other benefits actually paid under accident and health plans, such as certain disability benefits, generally are includible in the employee's gross income to the extent attributable to employer contributions (sec. 105(a)). In the case of a self-insured medical reimbursement plan (sec. 105(h)), no exclusion is provided for benefits paid to any employee who is among the five highest-paid officers, a 10-percent shareholder, or among the 25-percent highest-paid employees if the program discriminates in favor of this group as to either eligibility to participate or the medical benefits actually provided under the plan.

Reasons for change.—The committee was concerned that certain spouses and dependent children may be deprived of health benefits due to an unexpected change in family status. To provide an opportunity for these individuals to secure health benefits, the committee believes it is appropriate to require that employer group health plans offer qualified beneficiaries an election to continue coverage for a limited period of time.

Explanation of provision.—Under the bill, generally effective for plan years beginning after June 30, 1986, no deduction is permitted for employer contributions to any group health plan if that plan or any other plan of the employer fails to provide qualified beneficiaries a continuation coverage election. The election must be provided for previously covered family members of deceased, divorced, or Medicare eligible workers, employees who have separated from service (and their dependents), and certain children who would otherwise lose coverage under the terms of the plan upon attainment of majority.

In addition, no income exclusion is permitted under the bill for any highly compensated individual if the plan in which the individual participates or any other group health plan maintained by the employer fails to provide continuation coverage.

[364] As under present law, a group health plan is any employer-provided plan to provide medical care to employees, former employees, or the families of such employees or former employees directly or through insurance reimbursement or otherwise.

Under the bill, no employer will be permitted to deduct contributions to any insured or self insured group health plan (sec. 106) if that plan or any other group health plan maintained by the employer fails to provide qualified beneficiaries a continuation coverage election.

The bill generally requires that continuation coverage be provided under any employer-provided group health plan. However, no continuation coverage would be required in a plan established and maintained by (1) an employer that normally employed 25 or fewer employees during the preceding calendar year, (2) the Government of the United States, the government of any State or political subdivision thereof, or any agency or instrumentality of any of the foregoing entities, or (3) a church or convention or association of churches, or a tax-exempt organization that is operated, supervised, or controlled by any of the foregoing.

Under the bill, any highly compensated individual covered by any insured or self-insured group health plan would be denied the income exclusion for employer contributions to the plan (sec. 106) if that plan, or any other group health plan maintained by the employer, fails to provide qualified beneficiaries a continuation coverage election.

The bill defines a highly compensated individual as any employee who is among the five highest-paid officers, a 10-percent shareholder, or among the 25-percent highest-paid employees.

Under the bill, all qualified beneficiaries who would otherwise lose coverage as a result of a qualifying event must have the right to elect, within the 60-day period beginning on the date of the qualifying event, to continue coverage. Qualifying events include (1) the death of the covered employee; (2) the separation from service of the covered employee (whether voluntary or involuntary); (3) the divorce or legal separation of the covered employee from the employee's spouse; (4) the covered employee's commencement of Medicare coverage; or (5) the cessation of dependent child coverage under the terms of the plan (e.g., upon attainment of majority).

Under the bill, an employer is required to provide notice of the election to continue coverage at such time and in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe. The committee intends that the employer should be required to provide notice of the election to all covered employees no later than the date on which the employee becomes entitled to coverage under the plan.

In addition, a qualified beneficiary must, under the bill, elect continuation coverage no later than 60 days after the date of the qualifying event. Provided the qualified beneficiary elects to continue coverage within the 60-day period, the continuation coverage must be effective as of the date of the qualifying event.

In general, the continuation coverage for which a qualified beneficiary must be offered an election is coverage identical to the coverage provided immediately before the qualifying event. For example, if, under the plan, the covered employee had the right to select among several levels of coverage, the qualified beneficiary [365] generally would be entitled to continue whatever level of coverage the employee had selected for the beneficiary prior to the qualifying event.

That coverage could be modified by the employer if such coverage is modified for all similarly situated beneficiaries for whom a qualifying event has not occurred. In addition, if the plan otherwise permits employees and beneficiaries to modify coverage, the qualified beneficiary must be entitled to modify coverage at the same time and in the same manner as other similarly situated beneficiaries.

The applicable level of continuation coverage generally must be provided for a period not less than (1) 18 months immediately following the qualifying event, or (2) such shorter period elected by the qualified beneficiary. However, if the qualified beneficiary initially elects to continue coverage for less than 18 months, the beneficiary need not be granted a subsequent election to extend the coverage for the remainder of the 18-month period. This 18-month period includes, and is not in addition to, any continuation period presently permitted by the plan or required under local law. Thus, for example, if the plan presently provides that dependent coverage ceases one month after the date of an employee's death, the bill would require that beneficiaries be entitled to elect continuation coverage for up to 18 months following the date of death, not the 18-month period beginning with the actual cessation of coverage one month after the employee's death.

Similarly, if there are multiple "qualifying events," the 18-month period begins on the date of the earliest event. For example, if a covered employee terminates employment and is subsequently divorced one month later, the 18-month continuation period applicable to the divorced spouse commences on the date of termination rather than the divorce.

However, coverage need not be provided beyond the date on which the employer ceases to provide any group health plan to employees. If the employer maintains more than one plan, continuation must be provided so long as any plan is offered by the employer.

The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to prescribe rules defining the appropriate continuation coverage for qualified beneficiaries under a plan terminated in connection with a plant closing. The committee intends that continuation coverage be required notwithstanding the plant closing if the employer continues to maintain any other health plan. The required continuation coverage generally would be that coverage in effect immediately prior to the closing. However, the regulations are to include rules precluding an employer from reducing or eliminating coverage in anticipation of the plant closing.

Under the bill, some or all of the cost of continuation coverage (including reasonable administrative costs of processing the election) could be charged to the qualified beneficiary. The entire premium could be charged to the qualified beneficiary whether or not the employer otherwise subsidizes some or all of the premiums for covered employees. However, in no event may the cost charged to the qualified beneficiary exceed 102 percent of the applicable premium. The applicable premium is defined as the cost to the plan [366] for the period of coverage for a similarly situated beneficiary with respect to whom a qualifying event has not occurred (without regard to whether such cost is paid by the employer or employee).

In the case of a self-insured plan, the bill defines the applicable premium for any year as the cost for a similarly situated beneficiary for the preceding calendar year, adjusted to reflect cost-of-living increases as measured by the GNP deflator. If there has been a significant change affecting a self-insured plan (e.g., a modification of covered benefits, a significant change in the number or composition of the covered workforce, etc.), the employer must determine the cost under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, on the basis of a reasonable actuarial estimate.

If the qualified beneficiary elects to continue coverage within 60 days of the qualifying event, the coverage is effective as of the date of the qualifying event. A qualifying beneficiary who elects coverage may be charged for the cost of coverage during the 60-day period.

In addition, the employer may require the qualified beneficiary to pay the applicable premium either directly to the insurer, if any, or to the employer. However, at the election of the qualified beneficiary, premiums may be payable in monthly installments. Of course, a qualified beneficiary who fails to make required premium payments could be denied continuation coverage.

The bill also provides that continuation coverage may not be conditioned directly or indirectly upon insurability of the designated beneficiary.

The bill generally defines qualified beneficiaries to include the spouse and dependent children of an employee entitled to coverage under the terms of the group health plan. In addition, the covered employee is a qualified beneficiary entitled to elect continuation coverage upon termination of employment.

However, the provision intends to extend prior coverage rather than create new classes of covered employees. Thus, no employee, spouse, or child will be considered a qualified beneficiary unless, on the date before the qualifying event, that individual was a beneficiary under the plan. Thus, for example, no employee who had opted not to be covered by a contributory group health plan could elect continuation coverage upon termination of employment. Similarly, if a covered employee had elected not to receive dependent coverage, no spouse or child subsequently is entitled to elect continuation coverage upon the occurrence of a qualifying event.

If there are multiple "qualifying events," the status of an individual as a qualified beneficiary is determined on the day before the occurrence of the earliest qualifying event. For example, if a covered participant terminates employment without electing continuation coverage, no beneficiary could subsequently elect continatuion coverage, e.g., upon the participant's death.

If there are multiple "qualified beneficiaries," only one election generally is required. Where the covered employee terminates employment, for example, no spouse or child would receive continuation coverage unless the employee elects to continue coverage. Similarly, upon the employee's death, divorce, or becoming eligible for Medicare, continuation coverage is to be provided only if the [367] spouse so elects. In that instance, the spouse effectively decides whether coverage will be continued for the children.

The only exceptions to this rule occur where the child is the only qualified beneficiary (e.g., where the spouse is not entitled to coverage under the plan, or with respect to children attaining majority).

Effective date.—The bill generally applies for plan years beginning after June 30, 1986. In the case of a group health plan maintained pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements, the bill does not apply to plan years beginning before the earlier of (1) the date the last of the collective bargaining agreements terminate, or (2) January 1, 1987.

3. Application of Fringe Benefit Rules to Airlines and Their Affiliates

Present law.—The Code defines gross income for purposes of the income tax and the tax on self-employment income as including "all income from whatever source derived" and specifies that it includes "compensation for services" (sec. 61). Similarly, the social security and unemployment insurance payroll taxes (FICA and FUTA) and income tax withholding generally apply to all remuneration for employment, including noncash remuneration. Any fringe benefit that does not qualify for exclusion under a specific statutory provision is includible in gross income, and subject to employment taxes, at the excess of its fair market value over any amount paid by the employee for the benefit.

Under the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 (P.L. 98-369), certain miscellaneous fringe benefits provided by an employer on a nondiscriminatory basis are excluded from the recipient employee's gross income for Federal income tax purposes and from the wage and benefit bases for purposes of social security and other employment taxes, effective January 1, 1985. The fringe benefits excluded under Code section 132 include "no-additional-cost" services and qualified employee discounts provided by an employer to an employee for the use of the employee[2] or for the use of the employee's spouse or dependent children (as defined in sec. 132(f)(2)(B)).

To be excluded as a no-additional-cost benefit, a service must be the same type of service which is sold to the public in the ordinary course of the line of business of the employer in which the employee is performing services. For this purpose, all employees of all corporations in a controlled group of corporations, or all employees of certain commonly controlled businesses, are treated as employed by a single employer.

Under this limitation, for example, an employer which provides both airline services and hotel services to the general public is considered to consist of two separate lines of business. As a consequence, [368] the employees of the airline business of the employer may not exclude, as no-additional-cost services, the fair market value of free or discounted hotel rooms provided to them by their employer (or by any other employer under a reciprocal agreement with their employer); likewise, the employees of the hotel business of the employer may not exclude the fair market value of free or discounted airline tickets provided to them by their employer (or by any other employer under a reciprocal agreement with their employer).

A similar line-of-business limitation applies under the statutory exclusion for qualified employee discounts.

Under an elective grandfather rule, the line-of-business limitation generally does not apply to no-additional-cost services or qualified employee discounts which were provided by an employer to all its employees in all its lines of businesses on and after January 1, 1984. Accordingly, in the example above, free standby flights to the hotel employees would be tax-free if the company provided such services to all its employees since January 1, 1984.

An employer electing this grandfather coverage is subject to a 30-percent excise tax on the excess for the year of (1) the aggregate fair market value of all excludable no-additional-cost service benefits and qualified employee discount benefits provided to all its employees over (2) one percent of the total taxable compensation paid to all its employees (sec. 4977).

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that the parents of an employee who performs services in the business of providing commercial air transporation should receive the same tax treatment, for purposes of the section 132 exclusions, as the spouse and dependent children of that employee. Also, the committee concluded that statutory rules for applying the line-of-business limitation under section 132 should be provided in the case of (1) certain employees of Pan American World Services who were employed by that company on September 12, 1984 and (2) employees of certain airline affiliates who are directly engaged in providing airline-related services.

Explanation of provisions.—The bill amends section 132(f) to provide that any use of commercial air transportation by a parent of an employee is treated as used by the employee, effective January 1, 1985. For purposes of this rule, the term employee does not include an individual who is an employee solely by reason of section 132(f)(1)(B).

[2] Sec. 132(f)(1) provides that, for purposes of the exclusions for no-additional-cost services and qualified employee discounts, with respect to a line of business of an employer, the term employee means, in addition to an individual who is currently employed by the employer in that line of business, (1) an individual who was formerly employed by the employer in that line of business and who separated from service with the employer in that line of business by reason of retirement or disability; (2) a widow or widower of an individual who died while employed by the employer in that line of business; and (3) a widow or widower of a former employee of that line of business who had separated from service with the employer in that line of business by reason of retirement or disability.

The bill provides a special rule applicable if (1) a corporation that is predominantly engaged in airline-related services is a member of an affiliated group (with in the meaning of sec. 1504(a)) another member of which operates an airline and (2) employees of the first corporation who are directly engaged in providing airline-related services are entitled to no-additional-cost services with respect to air transportation provided by such other members. If this rule applies, the first corporation is treated as engaged in the air transportation line of business of the affiliate which operates the airline, for purposes of determining whether the employees who are directly engaged in providing airline-related services are eligible for the no-additional-cost service exclusion in section 132(a)(1). This provision is effective January 1, 1985.

[369] The term "airline-related services" means any of the following services provided in connection with commercial air transportation:[2] (i) catering; (ii) baggage handling; (iii) ticketing and reservations; (iv) flight planning and weather analysis; (v) restaurants located at an airport and gift shops located at an airport; and (vi) such other similar services provided to airlines as may be prescribed by Treasury regulations. (Flight planning and weather analysis generally means activities such as the provision of computerized and specialized flight plans, the provision of weather information to airlines and notams (notices to airmen), and the provision of computer packages related to those services.) The Treasury may include in category (vi) as similar services only services that directly benefit airlines, and cannot include in category (vi) services (whether or not furished at airports) that are for the convenience of airline passengers, such as hotels, car rentals, and magazine publishing.

The bill also provides a transitional rule for persons employed, as of September 12, 1984, by an airline affiliate under certain circumstances. The transitional rule applies to an individual if, as of September 12, 1984, all of the following conditions are met:

(1) The individual was an employee (within the meaning of sec. 132, including sec. 132(f)) of one member of an affiliated group (as defined in sec. 1504), referred to as the "first corporation," and was eligible for no-additional-cost services in the form of air transportation provided by another member of the affiliated group, referred to as the "second corporation";

(2) at least 50 percent of the individuals performing service for the first corporation were or had been employees of, or had previously performed services for, the second corporation; and

(3) the primary business of the affiliated group was commercial air transportation of passengers.

If all three conditions are met, the first corporation is treated as engaged in the same air transportation line of business as the second corporation for purposes of applying paragraphs (1) and (2) of Code section 132(a), with respect to no-additional-cost services and qualified employee discounts provided for such individuals by the second corporation, and an individual of the second corporation who is performing services for the first corporation is also treated as an employee of the first corporation.

This provision applies to certain benefits provided after December 31, 1984. The intended beneficiaries of the provision are employees of Plan American World Services, Inc. who meet the requirements of the provision.

4. Tax Treatment of Qualified Campus Lodging

Present law.—Section 119 excludes from an employee's gross income the value of lodging provided by the employer if (1) the lodging is furnished for the convenience of the employer, (2) the lodging is on the business premises of the employer, and (3) the employee is required to accept the lodging as a condition of employment.

Several court decisions have held that on-campus housing furnished to faculty or other employees by an educational institution does not qualify for the section 119 exclusion. Therefore, the fair [370] rental value of the housing (less any amounts paid for the housing by the employee) was includable in the employee's gross income and constituted wages for income tax withholding and employment tax purposes in those cases.[3]

Deficit Reduction Act of 1984.—Section 531(g) of the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 (P.L. 98-369) prohibits the Treasury Department from issuing, prior to January 1, 1986, any income tax regulations that would provide for inclusion in gross income of the excess of the fair market value of qualified campus lodging over the greater of (1) the operating costs paid in furnishing the lodging or (2) the rent received. This moratorium on regulations applies only with respect to qualified campus lodging furnished after December 31, 1983 and before January 1, 1986.

Qualified campus lodging means lodging furnished by a school, college, or university to any of its employees, including nonfaculty employees, or to the employee's spouse or dependents. The moratorium applies only with respect to employer-furnished lodging, that is located on a campus of, or in close proximity to a campus of, the educational institution. Under the Act, the moratorium does not apply with respect to any amount of the value of lodging if such amount was treated as wages or included in income when furnished.

The purpose of providing for the moratorium in the 1984 Act was to allow further time for consideration of arguments by schools and universities that special tax rules governing treatment of housing furnished to their employees should be provided by statute.

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that valuation rules should be provided to resolve continuing disagreements between education institutions and the Internal Revenue Service as to the treatment of qualified campus lodging.

Explanation of provision.—The bill provides that for Federal tax purposes, the fair market value of use (on an annualized basis) of qualified campus lodging furnished by, or on behalf of, an educational institution (within the meaning of sec. 170(b)(1)(A)(ii))[4] shall not be treated as greater than five percent of the appraised value for the year of the lodging provided that an independent appraisal is obtained by a qualified appraiser. (Thus, the appraiser must be qualified to make appraisals of housing, and the appraisal cannot be made by the employer institution or any officer, trustee, or employee thereof.) The committee does not intend that a new appraisal must be obtained each year. However, the committee intends that the appraisal be reviewed annually, in a manner prescribed by [371] Treasury regulations, but that such review should not impose undue cost on the educational institution. Accordingly, under this safe-harbor valuation rule, if the rent paid for qualified campus lodging is equal to or exceeds on an annualized basis five percent of the value determined by each on an appraisal, no amount is included, on account of such housing, in the employee's gross income for income tax purposes or in the wage or benefit base for social security and other employment tax purposes.

The provision applies to lodging furnished to any employee of the educational institution (or to the employee's spouse or dependents), including nonfaculty employees, for use as a residence, if the employer-furnished lodging is located on a campus of, or in the proximity of, the educational institution.

If no appraisal is obtained that meets the requirements of the provision, then the fair rental value for tax purposes is to be determined in the manner as would be done absent a special rule, taking into account all the relevent facts and circumstances. This does not preclude a taxpayer whose appraisal is found defective from subsequently obtaining a qualified appraisal and using the safe-harbor rule. For purposes of applying the first sentence of this paragraph to determine the fair rental value of campus lodging, the average of the rentals paid by individuals (other than employees or students of the educational institution) during such year for lodging provided by the educational institution that is comparable to the campus lodging provided to the employee is to be considered the fair rental value.

The new provision relating to qualified campus lodging does not affect the applicability of section 119(a) to lodging that qualifies for the exclusion in section 119(a).

Effective date.—The provisions of the bill apply for taxable years or periods beginning after December 31, 1985.

For prior taxable years, it is intended (1) that the IRS is to follow the safe-harbor valuation rule of the bill as if in effect for those years (except with respect to any amount of value of campus lodging that was treated by the taxpayer as wages or included in income when furnished), and (2) that the value of the property as assessed by State or local tax authorities for State or local property tax purposes is to be treated as if it were the value determined by a qualified appraisal.

5. Certain Insolvent Taxpayers Allowed to Reduce Capital Gains Preference Item for Individual Minimum Tax Purposes

Present law.—Individuals are subject to a minimum tax, applying at a 20 percent rate to a base determined by adding certain preferences to the taxpayer's regular taxable income (in addition to certain other adjustments). Minimum tax liability is payable only to the extent that it exceeds the taxpayer's regular tax liability. Among the minimum tax preference items is the portion of net capital gain excluded for regular tax purposes under section 1202.

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that under the present-law minimum tax rules, significant hardships have arisen in certain circumstances where an insolvent individual sells appreciated business realty in satisfaction of indebtedness. Such an [372] individual may be subject to the minimum tax with respect to the portion of capital gain excluded for regular tax purposes, particularly if he or she uses other tax preferences. For example, this problem has arisen in the case of certain farmers who have been compelled to transfer appreciated farm land in satisfaction of indebtedness arising as a consequence of farming losses, and who are subject to minimum tax in part because of the use of investment tax credits.

Explanation of provision.—Under the bill, an insolvent taxpayer who transferred real property used in the active conduct of a trade or business of the taxpayer to a creditor in cancellation of indebtedness, or to any third party under threat of foreclosure, would not be required to treat certain capital gain, excluded from income for regular tax purposes under section 1202, as a minimum tax preference. For this purpose, real property would be determined under State law.

The bill would apply only to transfers by individuals. The bill would not apply to a transfer of property being held for investment purposes, or to a transfer of property not used by the individual in the active conduct of a business, as when the individual did not materially participate in management or provide substantial personal services with regard to the trade or business being conducted on the property. Thus, for example, a transfer of farm property by a farming syndicate (as defined in sec. 464(c)) is not within the scope of the bill. For a transfer to which the bill applied, the amount of the reduction in the taxpayer's minimum tax preference for capital gains could not exceed the amount of the taxpayer's insolvency immediately prior to the transfer.

The question of whether, and in what amount, a taxpayer was insolvent would be determined under a standard similar to that set forth in section 108(d)(3), which provides that "the term 'insolvent' means the excess of liabilities over the fair market value of assets." However, the Treasury would have the authority, through regulations or rulings, to determine whether, and to what extent, nonrecourse debt would be treated under the bill in the same manner as under section 108(d)(3).

In the case of a taxpayer who made one or more transfers to which the bill applied, the calculation of the taxpayer's tax preference under section 57(a)(9)(A) (defining the minimum tax capital gain preference for individuals) would be made in several stages. First, the taxpayer would determine the amount of his or her section 1202 net capital gain deduction (as determined for regular tax purposes without making any adjustment for transfers made while insolvent). Second, the taxpayer would determine the amount of his or her net capital gain, if any, with respect to each transfer to which the bill applied. For each such transfer, this amount would be multiplied by the percentage applied in determining the section 1202 deduction (60 percent under present law). The amount derived from this calculation, to the extent not in excess of the amount of the taxpayer's insolvency immediately before the transfer, would then be subtracted from the amount of the taxpayer's regular tax deduction under section 1202. However, "double-counting" would not be allowed with respect to the amount of insolvency. Thus, for example, if a taxpayer made two transfers qualifying under the bill during the same taxable year, the amount of the taxpayer's [373] insolvency for purposes of the second transfer would be reduced by the amount subtracted (for purposes of section 57(a)(9))

The term includes institutions such as primary, secondary, preparatory, or high schools, and colleges and universities," and includes both public and private schools (Treas. Reg. sec. 1.170A-9(b)(1)).

from the taxpayer's regular tax deduction under section 1202 as a result of the first transfer.

In the case of a taxpayer who, during the same taxable year, realized gain on some transfers to which the provision applied, and loss on other such transfers, the bill would apply only to the extent that such gain exceeded such losses. (In any event, the adjustment made under the bill to the amount of a taxpayer's capital gain preference would still be limited to the relevant amounts of insolvency). It is expected that Treasury regulations would set forth the mechanics of the bill's application in this and all other respects.

The bill would have no effect on the application of other rules of tax law, including the rules for measurement of debt discharge income and for the reduction of tax attributes (such as credit carryovers and net operating losses) pursuant to section 108.

Effective date.—The provision is effective for dispositions made after December 31, 1981.

6. Treatment of Certain Pollution Control Bonds

Present law.—Interest on State and local government obligations generally is exempt from Federal income tax. However, since 1968, tax exemption has not been permitted for interest on industrial development bonds (IDBs). A State or local government bond is an IDB if (1) all or a major portion of the proceeds of the issue are to be used in any trade or business of a person other than a State or local government or tax-exempt organization (described in sec. 501(c)(3)), and if (2) payment of principal or interest is secured by an interest in, or derived from payments with respect to, property or borrowed money used in a trade or business. Exceptions to this general rule in IDBs are provided for certain activities, including the financing of air or water pollution control facilities.

The use of tax-exempt IDBs to acquire facilities generally is prohibited if a substantial user of the facilities before the acquisition will be a substantial user after the acquisition. Additionally, use of IDBs to finance the acquisition of existing property is prohibited unless an amount equal to at least 15 percent of the bond proceeds is spent for rehabilitation of the property.

The aggregate volume of most IDBs and all student loan bonds issued by a State (and local issuer therein) may not exceed the greater of $150 per resident of the State or $200 million.

In 1982, the Congress enacted a limited provision permitting the Gulf Coast Waste Disposal Authority to acquire certain existing air or water pollution control facilities to be owned and operated by the Authority in order to maintain or improve the control of pollutants.

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that modifications to certain of the restrictions contained in the 1982 legislation permitting the Gulf Coast Authority to issue bonds for acquisition of existing pollution control facilities are needed to permit implementation of that 1982 provision. The committee determined, however, that bonds issued pursuant to that provision should be subject to the State volume limitations applicable to most IDBs as well as [374] most other present Code restrictions on such bonds. Additionally, the intent of this provision makes it appropriate to limit its application to facilities the acquisition of which was contemplated at the time of the 1982 legislation.

Explanation of provision.—The bill permits tax-exempt IDBs to be issued, under certain conditions, for use by the Gulf Coast Waste Disposal Authority to acquire existing air or water pollution control facilities which the authority itself will operate. These conditions are (1) that the bonds will be subject to the applicable State volume limitation for private activity bonds and all other restrictions currently applicable to similar IDBs (other than the restriction on acquisition of existing property); (2) that the purchase price of the facilities will not exceed their fair market value; (3) that the fees imposed on any seller for use of any facilities after the sale will not be less than the amounts charged for comparable use of such facilities to persons other than the seller; (4) that no person other than the Authority be considered the owner of the facilities for Federal income tax purposes; and (5) that the total volume of bonds issued for this purpose not exceed $200 million (no part of which will be issued before 1986, and no more than $100 million of which will be issued before 1987).

In addition, the committee determined that only those facilities the acquisition of which was contemplated at the time of the 1982 legislation should qualify for tax-exempt financing. Therefore, bonds issued under this provision may be used only for acquisition of facilities the original use of which commenced before September 3, 1982. The committee understands that the only qualifying facilities are the following:

7. Netting for Cooperatives

Present law.—In general, present law permits any corporation operating on a cooperative basis, including a so-called tax-exempt farmers' cooperative, to exclude from taxable income amounts paid as patronage dividends or certain other amounts paid or allocated to members, to the extent of net income generated from transactions with members (sec. 1382). In addition, tax-exempt farmers' cooperatives generally may exclude such amounts to the extent of all net income, and also may exclude to a limited extent dividends paid on common stock (sec. 521).

Patronage dividends are amounts paid or allocated by the cooperative to a patron (a) based on the quantity or value of business done with or for such patron, (b) under a pre-existing obligation of the cooperative to distribute such amounts, and (c) which are determined by reference to the net earnings of the organization from business done with or for its patrons (sec. 1388(a)).

In general, a tax-exempt farmers' cooperative is specifically defined in section 521(b) as a farmers', fruit growers', or like association organized and operated on a cooperative basis either for the purpose of marketing the products of its members or others, or for the purpose of purchasing supplies and equipment for members or other persons. In the case of a tax-exempt farmers' cooperative that markets products, the proceeds of sale by the cooperative less necessary expenses of sale are turned over to the members or other [376] producers on the basis of the quantity or value of the products furnished; in the case of a tax-exempt farmers' cooperative that purchases supplies and equipment, the purchased goods are to be made available at the cooperative's cost, plus necessary expenses.

The Internal Revenue Service has asserted that netting gains and losses from purchasing and marketing operations or from operations in different products or geographic areas may be inconsistent with the statutory definition of a tax-exempt farmers' cooperative, particularly if management has broad discretion over decisions regarding such netting, and members of the cooperative are not informed of the practice. The IRS also has asserted that such netting may be improper for purposes of computing a cooperative's net income, and also may be inconsistent with the statutory requirement that the payment of patronage dividends must be pursuant to a pre-existing obligation.

The Tax Court has addressed some of these issues in three different factual settings. In Associated Milk Producers, 68 T.C. 729 (1977), the IRS asserted that a cooperative was not entitled to carry over a net operating loss deduction where doing so would offset patronage income in a taxaxble year with losses from a prior year. However, the court held that the carry over was allowed in circumstances that the court considered reasonable for management to offset the income and loss. In Ford-Iroquois FS, Inc., 74 T.C. 1213 (1980), the IRS asserted that a non-exempt cooperative was not entitled to carry over a net operating loss deduction to the extent that losses from prior years' marketing and storage operations would offset patronage income from farm supply operations. However, the court allowed the carryover, noting that there was substantial overlap of the patrons of the two operations and the allocations otherwise were fair. In Lamesa Cooperative Gin, 78 T.C. 894 (1982), the IRS asserted that an exempt cooperative was required to account separately for its purchasing and marketing operations, and included in the cooperative's income certain patronage dividends to the extent income from the cooperative's purchasing operation offset losses from its marketing operation. The court nevertheless held that the cooperative could net the income and loss where the purchasing operation was so small that it would have been unreasonable to account for it separately.

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that netting of earnings and losses is an appropriate practice for both tax-exempt farmers' cooperatives and other cooperatives. In addition, the committee believes that, in the future, cooperatives that net earnings and losses should be required to notify their members of the practice.

Explanation of provision.—The bill provides that a cooperative is not ineligible for treatment as a tax-exempt farmers' cooperative if it offsets certain earnings and losses in determining any amount available for distribution to patrons. For this purpose, the losses that are attributable to one or more allocation units (including a loss that is carried over from another year), may be offset against earnings of one or more other allocation units, but only to the extent such earnings and losses are derived from business done with or for patrons. Such earnings and losses, also called patronage earnings and losses, may be offset without regard to whether the [377] allocation units whose earnings or losses are offset are functional, divisional, departmental, geographic, or otherwise.

The bill also provides that the offsetting of earnings and losses, as described above, may at the option of the cooperative be used for determining the net earnings of the cooperative for the purpose of paying patronage dividends. Moreover, the option of a cooperative to offset earnings and losses is not taken into account for the purpose of determining whether amounts distributed to a patron are distributed pursuant to a pre-existing obligation.

The committee intends that these provisions do not affect a cooperative's ability to use net operating loss deductions available under present law. Moreover, the committee intends no inference regarding the treatment under present law of the offsetting of patronage earnings and losses other than patronage losses. Nevertheless, the committee approves of the result in Farm Service Cooperative v. Comm'r, 619 F.2d 718 (8th Cir. 1980), which held that a non-exempt cooperative could not offset patronage losses against nonpatronage earnings.

The bill provides that a cooperative that offsets earnings and losses must notify members who may have been affected by such offsetting. The committee intends that the notice must be sent to all such patrons regardless of whether any patronage dividends were in fact distributed, so long as the offsetting may have affected any amount which the patron may otherwise have received in the current or future year, whether in the form of patronage dividend, per-unit retain allocation, notice of allocation, or any other amount distributed or allocated to the member. The notice must be sent to such members by no later than the 15th day of the 9th month following the close of the cooperative's taxable year.

The notice must state that the cooperative has offset earnings and losses of one or more of its allocation units and that such offset has affected the amount that is being distributed to the patron. The notice must state generally the identity of the offsetting allocation units. The notice also must state briefly what rights, if any, that such patron may have to additional financial information of such organization under the terms of its charter, articles of incorporation, bylaws, and any provision of law. Although the notice must specify the identity of the offsetting allocation units (but not which unit's earnings were offset with which unit's losses), the cooperative is not required to disclose in the notice any detailed or specific data that it considers to be commercially sensitive. The committee intends that the cooperative's determination of what information must be considered commercially sensitive for this purpose must be reasonable. The committee also intends that the notice requirement should not place a great burden on a cooperative, and that ordinarily an adequate notice need not exceed one page in length.

Failure to comply with this notice requirement, upon notification of such failure by the Secretary, will require a cooperative to provide a notice that meets the statutory requirements to all patrons who previously received the inadequate notice, but will have no other tax consequences for the cooperative. A cooperative that does not offset gains and losses of any allocation units will not be sub ject to the notice requirement. The committee intends that a [378] cooperative that merely "pools" withing a single allocation unit will not be subject to the notice requirement.

Effective date.—The provisions of the bill relating to cooperatives generally are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1962. However, the provision relating to the notification of cooperative members is effective for taxable years beginning after the date of enactment.

8. Allocation Under Section 861

Present law.—All income has either a U.S. source or a foreign source. The foreign tax credit can offset tax on foreign-source taxable income but not U.S.-source taxable income. (This is known as the foreign tax credit limitation.) A shift in the source of income from foreign to U.S. may increase U.S. tax by reducing the amount of foreign tax that a taxpayer may credit.

In determining foreign-source taxable income for purposes of computing the foreign tax credit limitation, and for other tax porposes, Code sections 861–863 require taxpayers to allocate or apportion expenses between foreign-source income and U.S.-source income. A shift in the allocation of expenses from U.S.- to foreign-source gross income decreases foreign-source taxable income. This decrease may increase U.S. tax by reducing the amount of foreign tax that a taxpayer may credit.

Treasury regulation sec. 1.861–8 (published in 1977) sets forth detailed rules for allocating and apportioning several categories of expenses, including deductible research and experimental expenditures ("research expenses"). The regulation provides that research expenses are ordinarily considered definitely related to all gross income reasonably connected with one or more of 32 product categories based on two-digit classifications of the Standard Industrial Classification ("SIC") system. Research expenses are not traced solely to the income generated by the particular product which benefited from the research activity. Instead these expenses are associated with all the income within the SIC product group in which the product is classified.

Research expenses identified with an SIC product group are generally apportioned to foreign-source income based on the ratio of total foreign-source sales receipts (or, at the taxpayer's option and subject to certain conditions, total foreign-source gross income) within the SIC product group to the taxpayer's total worldwide sales receipts (or gross income) within the SIC product group. However, research expenses incurred to meet legal requirements imposed with respect to improvement or marketing of specific products or processes are allocable entirely to one geographic source if the research and development cannot reasonably be expected to generate income (beyond de minimis amounts) outside that geographic source.

In addition, the regulation provides that 30 percent of research expense is apportioned to income from the geographic source where over half of the taxpayer's research and development is performed. A taxpayer can choose to apportion to the geographic source where research and development is performed a percentage of research expense significantly greater than 30 percent if he establishes tha the higher percenage is warranted because the [379] research and development is reasonably expected to have a very limited or long-delayed application outside that geographic source. Treas. Reg. sec 1.861–8 generally requires a smaller allocation of research expenses to foreign-source income than a predecessor regulation proposed in 1973 would have required.[5]

The Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 (ERTA) provided that, for a taxpayer's first two taxable years beginning after the date of its enactment (August 13, 1981), all research and experimental expenditures (within the meaning of Code sec. 174) which were paid or incurred in those taxable years for research activities conducted in the United States were to be allocated or apportioned to income from sources within the United States (sec. 223 of ERTA). This two-year moratorium on the application of the research and experimental expense allocation rules of Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861–8 was effectively extended for two additional years by the Tax Reform Act of 1984. Under the 1984 Act (sec. 126), for taxable years beginning generally after August 13, 1983, and before August 1, 1985, all of a taxpayer's research and experimental expenditures (within the meaning of Code sec. 174) attributable to research activities conducted in the United States are to be allocated to sources within the United States for purposes of computing taxable income from U.S. sources and from sources partly within and partly without the United States.

One reason Congress cited for enacting the original two-year moratorium was that some foreign countries do not allow deductions under their tax laws for expenses of research activities conducted in the United States. Taxpayers argued that this disallowance resulted in unduly high foreign taxes and that, absent changes in the foreign tax credit limitation, U.S. taxpayers would lose foreign tax credits. Because those taxpayers could take their deductions if the research occurred in the foreign country, taxpayers argued that there was incentive to shift their research expenditures to those foreign countries whose laws disallow tax deductions for researcch activities conducted in the United States but allow tax deductions for research expenditures incurred locally.

Accordingly, Congress concluded that the Treasury Department should study the impact of the allocation of research expenses under Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861–8 on U.S.-based research activities and on the availability of the foreign tax credit. While that study was being conducted by the Treasury and considered by Congress, Congress concluded that expenses should be charged to the cost of generating U.S.-source income, whether or not such research was a direct or indirect cost of producing foreign-source income.

In June 1983 the Department of the Treasury submitted its report on the mandated study to the Senate Committee on Finance and the House Committee on Ways and Means.[6] In summary, the Treasury report concluded that:

> Had Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861–8 fully been in effect in 1982, the Treasury Department estimated that the $37 billion in privately financed domestic research and development spending in [380] 1982 would have been reduced by approximately $40 million to $260 million as a result of the increased U.S. tax costs just described. Most of the reduction would have represented a net reduction in overall research and development undertaken by U.S. corporations and their foreign affiliates, rather than a transfer of research and development abroad.
>
> The moratorium reduced U.S. tax liabilities. If the research and development rules of Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861–8 had been in effect in 1982, the Treasury Department estimated that U.S. tax liabilities of U.S. firms would have been $100 million to $240 million higher.
>
> The moratorium reduced the tax liabilities only of firms with excess foreign tax credits. Whether or not a firm had excess foreign tax credits did not seem to be closely related to the level of its research and development efforts.
> The moratorium had its most significant effect on large, mature multinationals as opposed to small, relatively young high-technology companies. Of the $100 million to $240 million estimated increase in U.S. tax liabilities for calendar 1982 that would have occurred had Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861–8 been fully in effect, about 85 percent was estimated to be accounted for by 24 U.S. firms on the list of the 100 largest U.S. industrial corporations compiled by Fortune Magazine.
> An allocation of research and development expense to foreign income could increase a taxpayer's worldwide tax liability if the foreign government did not allow the apportioned expense as a deduction. Some allocation to foreign income, however, was appropriate on tax policy grounds when domestic research and development was exploited in a foreign market and generated foreign income. If an allocation were not made, foreign-source taxable income would be too high and the higher limitation could allow the credit for foreign tax to reduce U.S. tax on domestic-source income.
> The research and development rules of Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861–8 reflected significant modifications of the 1973 proposed version of the regulation in response to taxpayer comments. Compared to the 1973 version of the regulations, these modifications allowed less research and development expense to be allocated to foreign income and recognized that research and development conducted in the United States might be most valuable in the domestic market.

On the ground that a reduction in research and development might adversely affect the competitive position of the United States, the 1983 Treasury report recommended the two-year extension of the moratorium that was ultimately enacted by Congress last year. The extension was intended to allow Congress to consider further the results of the Treasury study on the Treasury research expense allocation rules.

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that a further extension of the present temporary moratorium is warranted to allow Congress to examine further the issues involved.

Explanation of provision.—The bill extends for one year the moratorium on the application of the research and experimental expense allocation rules of Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861–8. Under the bill, for taxable years beginning on or before August 1, 1986, all of a taxpayer's research and experimental expenditures (within the meaning of Code sec. 174) attributable to research activities conducted in the United States will be allocated to sources within the United States for purposes of computing [381] taxable income from U.S. sources and from sources partly within and partly without the United States.

This special allocation rule applies only to the allocation of research and experimental expenditures for the purposes of geographic sourcing of income. It does not apply for other purposes, such as the computation of combined taxable income of a DISC (or FSC) and its related supplier.

The extension of the moratorium does not apply to any expenditure for the acquisition or improvement of land, or for the acquisition or improvement of depreciable or depletable property to be used in connection with research or experimentation.

The committee requests the Treasury to consider this allocation issue in connection with its ongoing review of the tax laws and proposals for reform.

Effective date.—The extension of the moratorium on the application of the Treasury's research and experimental expense allocation regulation will apply to a taxpayer's taxable years beginning on or before August 1, 1986 only.

[389] 12. Medicare Coverage of State and Local Governmental Employment

Present law.—Under the Old Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance program (commonly referred to as social security) and the Hospital Insurance program (commonly referred to as Medicare), coverage for State and local government employes is optional. An election for coverage under the Social Security Act includes both programs. A State controls the option for itself and its subdivisions; however, most often State governments allow their political subdivisions to make their own choices.

---

[5] See 38 Fed. Reg. 15,840 (1973).

[6] See Department of the Treasury, The Impact of the Section 861–8 Regulation on U.S. Research and Development (June 1983).

[390] When elected, coverage is provided on a group basis through agreements between the State and the Secretary of Health and Human Services. Coverage can be provided even when the State or local government already has a retirement system in place. When there is no retirement system in place, the State or local government entity, not the employees, has the option to choose social security. However, if there is a system already in place, then the Governor or a designee must conduct a referendum of the employees involved.

Until April 1983, the law permitted the termination of coverage for employees covered under an agreement, if the State or local entity (through the State) had given two-years' advance notice. This provision, however, was repealed in the Social Security Amendments of 1983.

Reasons for change.—Individuals who have worked in State and local government employment that is excluded from social security coverage often acquire insured status and thus still may qualify for social security and Medicare benefits. They qualify as a result of work performed in other employment covered under the program or through the entitlement of a spouse. By and large, individuals who qualify after having worked in excluded State and local government employment have contributed significantly less in social security FICA taxes than others and who become entitled to benefits who have had comparable lifetime earnings. They therefore represent a financial drain on the system, and especially on the Medicare hospital insurance program.

Unlike monthly social security benefits, where minimal covered earnings and tax contributions result in minimal benefit amounts, entitlement to Medicare is entitlement for the full range of benefits. The benefits are the same regardless of whether the insured worker has made significant tax contributions over his or her working lifetime or whether the individual has qualified with the minimum number of quarters of coverage. The committee believes that this anomaly should be corrected.

Explanation of provision.—The provision extends Hospital Insurnace (Medicare) coverage to current and new employees of State and local governments. The employers and their employees will become liable for the hospital insurance portion of the FICA tax, which is to be collected as in the case of a private employer, and the employees will earn credit toward Medicare eligibility based on their covered earnings. Mandatory coverage is extended only for Medicare and only for employment not otherwise covered under voluntary State coverage agreements.

Under the provision, State and local government employees who perform service during and before October 1986, would be given credit toward Medicare eligibility for past State and local government employment.

The provision also permits individuals who have worked for State and local governments to obtain Medicare benefits if they file and meet the insured status and other disability eligibility requirements of the social security disability cash benefits program, even though no such cash benefits would otherwise be payable. The Medicare application would be treated as an application for disability benefits (for purposes of determining eligibility to Medicare).

[391] Effective date.—The provision is effective with respect to service performed after September 30, 1986, by employees of a State or local government who would not otherwise be covered under social security and Medicare on the basis of voluntary agreements.

13. Railroad Unemployment Repayment Tax

Present law.—Present law provides a railroad unemployment compensation program that is separate from and different than the regular Federal-State unemployment compensation system. Most workers in other industries are covered under the Federal-State unemployment compensation system.

The Railroad Unemployment Insurance (RRUI) program is administered by the Railroad Retirement Board (RRB), which collects the unemployment taxes directly from rail employers. Legislation enacted in 1959 provided the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Account with the authority to borrow from the Railroad Retirement Account when funds in the RRUI Account are not sufficient to meet benefit payments. This borrowing authority expires September 30, 1985. On that date, the outstanding debt to the retirement account is estimated to be $783 million, of which $526 million is principal and $257 million is accumulated interest.

There is no automatic mechanism in the law to repay loans from the retirement account as they occur. Loans are repaid out of basic contributions to the unemployment account when the Railroad Retirement Board determines that there are sufficient funds in the unemployment account to make a repayment.

The Railroad Retirement Solvency Act of 1983 established a repayment tax scheduled to begin on July 1, 1986 and to expire on September 30, 1990. The tax rate will begin at 2.0 percent and increase by 0.3 percentage points a year up to a maximum of 3.2 percent in 1990. The tax is scheduled to expire on September 30, 1990. The tax is paid on the first $7,000 in wages paid annually to a rail employee.

Reasons for change.—The loan repayment tax contained in the 1983 Railroad Retirement Solvency Act is not sufficient to repay the loans made to the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Account and to meet current and projected unemployment insurance benefit payments. The committee believes that an increase in the repayment tax, combined with a surcharge on new borrowing and a temporary one percent diversion of railroad retirement taxes to the Railroad Unemployment Account, will help avert an impending cash-flow crisis and strengthen the system's financial condition in the long run.

Explanation of provision.—The loan repayment tax, scheduled to begin on July 1, 1986 at a 2 percent rate with increases of 0.3% a year, is increased under the bill as follows:

[Tax rate (%)]

	Calendar year
	1986	1987	1988	1989	1990
Current law	2.0	2.3	2.6	2.9	3.2
Proposed rate	4.3	4.7	6.0	2.9	3.2

The bill also extends the RRUI Account's authority to borrow from the Railroad Retirement Account, effective October 1, 1985. Under the bill, an automatic surcharge of 3.5 percent on an annual wage base of $7,000 will be levied if the RRUI Account has to borrow from the retirement account. The surcharge will be used to repay such loans.

Also, effective January 1, 1986, a portion of the tier 2 railroad retirement tax on employees equal to one percent of the payroll subject to the tax is directed under the bill from the railroad retirement account to the railroad unemployment insurance account. These revenues would then be returned to the railroad retirement account to help repay the loans (plus accumulated interest) which the railroad retirement account made to the unemployment account in the past. The diversion will end on April 1, 1990.

Effective date.—These provisions are effective October 1, 1985, except as otherwise noted above.

14. Termination of Repayable Advances to Black Lung Disability Trust Fund

Present law.—A manufacturers excise tax is imposed on domestically mined coal (other than lignite) that is sold or used by the producer of the coal. The rate of tax is $1 per ton for coal from underground mines and 50 cents per ton for coal from surface mines, but the tax cannot exceed four percent of the price for which the coal is sold.[7]

Status of Black Lung Disability Trust Fund.—The following table shows the receipts and expenses (in millions of dollars) of the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund for fiscal years 1978–1984.

	[393] Receipts			Expenses
Fiscal year	Coal excise tax	Interest	Advances from general fund (deficit)	Benefit payments	Administrative expenses	Interest on advances
1978	92.1	1.2	18.9	76.8	35.3	....
1979	221.6	.1	400.8	582.0	32.1	7.7
1980	272.3	....	535.8	721.7	34.2	52.5
1981	236.6	....	554.8	644.3	35.6	109.5
1982	490.7	.3	283.0	578.2	35.8	160.6
1983	493.7	.3	357.8	623.1	34.8	193.3
1984	518.5	.4	346.1	594.2	36.6	234.5
Total	2,325.5	2.3	2,497.2	3,820.5	244.6	748.1

Source: Fourth Annual Report on the Financial Condition and Results of Operations of the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund (Department of Treasury, Sept. 30, 1981) and Budget of the U.S. Government Appendixes for fiscal years 1984, 1985, and 1986.

At the end of the fiscal year 1984, the Trust Fund had a cumulative deficit of approximately $2.5 billion; this amount represents advances from the general revenues which are repayable with interest. The Department of Labor estimates that, under present law, this deficit could reach $30 billion by 2010.[8]

Reasons for change.—The committee is concerned with the growing total of general revenue advances to the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund, which aggregated $2.5 billion at the end of fiscal 1984.

The committee, in its version of the Black Lung Benefits Revenue Act of 1981 (S. 1957, 97th Cong.), had included a provision to terminate the borrowing authority of the Trust Fund after fiscal year 1985, in light of the doubling of the coal excise tax which the committee had approved as part of that bill. The Department of Labor had projected that the "temporary" doubling of the excise tax in 1981, together with changes recommended by DOL in the program's eligibility standards, would eliminate the need for advances from the Treasury after fiscal 1985. Instead, the current deficit is estimated by the Department of Labor to reach $30 billion by 2010.

The committee concluded that the Trust Fund is operating in a manner not anticipated or intended by the Congress, in that the level of expenditures continues to necessitate advances from general revenues with no reasonable prospect (according to DOL projections) of repaying principal and interest. Accordingly, the committee agreed to terminate the borrowing authority of the Trust Fund as of September 30, 1986. This delayed effective date will enable the Congress to examine the black lung benefit program and its financing.

Explanation of provision.—The bill terminates, as of September 30, 1986, the authorization under Code section 9501(c) of appropriations to the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund, as repayable advances, of such sums as from time to time are necessary to make the expenditures described in section 9501(d). Thus, no advance out of general revenues is to be made to the Trust Fund after September 30, 1986. Under the provision, the Trust Fund may not borrow prior to October 1, 1986 amounts to be used to make expenditures after September 30, 1986 or during post-1986 years.

The provision does not affect the automatic appropriation to the Trust Fund of amounts equal to the revenues collected from the coal excise tax and from certain excise taxes applicable with respect to black lung benefit trusts, either before or after October 1, 1986.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on the date of enactment. The section 9501(c) authorization would terminate as of September 30, 1986.

15. Certain Permanent Exemptions From the Federal Unemployment Tax Act

a. Remuneration paid to certain fishing boat crew members

Present law.—For purposes of social security taxes and income tax withholding, members of the crew on a boat in a fishing operation engaged in catching fish or other forms of aquatic animal life are considered to be self-employed if (1) their remuneration is a share of the boat's catch (or cash proceeds from the sale of a share of the catch and no other cash remuneration is provided), (2) their share depends on the amount of the boat's catch, and (3) the crew of the boat normally is made up of fewer than ten individuals. If these requirements are met, remuneration paid to these crew members is exempt from the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) tax and income tax withholding, and is subject to the Self-Employment Contributions Act (SECA) tax (Code secs. 3121(b)(20), 3401(a)(17), and 1402(c)(2)(F)).

Prior to the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 (ERTA), remuneration paid to fishing boat crew members generally was exempt from tax under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA), except that the exemption did not apply with respect to the services performed in connection with catching halibut or salmon for commercial purposes or services performed on a vessel of more than ten net tons (sec. 3306(c)(17)).

Section 822 of ERTA amended the definition of employment for purposes of FUTA taxes to exempt from FUTA taxes remuneration paid during 1981 to fishing boat crew members who were treated as self-employed for social security tax purposes and thus exempt from FICA (sec. 3306(c)(18)). Section 203 of the Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1982 (P.L. 97–362) amended ERTA to provide that the exemption from FUTA taxes also was effective for remuneration paid in 1982.

[7] On the earlier of January 1, 1996, or any January 1 after 1981 on which there is no balance of repayable advances to the Trust Fund and no unpaid interest on such advances, the tax rates are scheduled to return to the pre-1982 rates, which were one-half the current rates (i.e., 50 cents/ton for underground mines and 25 cents/ton for surface mines, limited to two percent of the price for which the coal was sold).

[8] Testimony of Susan Meisinger, Deputy Undersecretary for Employment Standards, Department of Labor, before the House Committee on Ways and Means, June 19, 1985.

Section 1074 of the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 (P.L. 98–369) extended the exemption from FUTA for remuneration paid to fishing boat crew members who are exempt from FICA to remuneration paid in 1983 and 1984.

[395] Reasons for change.—For reasons of simplicity and administrative convenience, the committee believes that fishing boat crew members who are treated as self-employed for purposes of the social security and income tax withholding should also be treated as self-employed for purposes of the unemployment tax. The committee believes that experience with this FUTA exemption since 1981 supports making the exemption permanent.

Explanation of provision.—The FUTA exemption relating to remuneration paid to certain fishing boat crew members, first enacted in section 822(b) of ERTA, is made permanent. Therefore, fishing boat crew members who are treated as self-employed for social security tax and income tax purposes are also to be treated as self-employed for purposes of the Federal Unemployment Tax Act. The bill also provides that spouses or children employed by such a fishing boat crew member (who is their spouse or parent) are not subject to the SECA tax.

Effective date.—The amendments made by the provision apply to remuneration paid after December 31, 1980.

b. Remuneration paid to certain camp counselors

Prior law.—In section 276(b) of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (P.L. 97–248), the Congress enacted a one-year FUTA exemption for remuneration paid to full-time students for employment by certain summer camps.

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that work performed by a full-time student in a summer camp does not involve the kind of employment relationship that should be covered by the unemployment insurance system. Therefore, the committee believes that wages paid for such employment should not be taxable under the Federal unemployment compensation law.

Explanation of provision.—The exemption from FUTA set forth in section 276(b) of P.L. 97–248 is reinstated on a permanent basis.

Effective date.—The provision applies to remuneration paid after September 19, 1985.

c. Remuneration for services of certain nonresidential farmworkers

Present law.—FUTA generally applies to remuneration paid by farm operators who employ 10 or more agricultural workers in 20 weeks, or have a quarterly payroll for agricultural services of at least $20,000. However, an exemption applies for wages paid for agricultural labor performed by aliens admitted to the United States pursuant to sections 214(c) and 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Code sec. 3306(c)(1)(B)). This exemption from FUTA is scheduled to expire on December 31, 1985.

Reasons for change.—Sections 214(c) and 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act pertain to residents of foreign countries who do not intend to abandon such residency and who are admitted to the United States to work for a temporary period of time during peak agricultural crop seasons. They are admitted only after the Secretary of Labor has determined and certified to the Secretary of State and to the Attorney General that there are not sufficient workers in the United States who are available to do the specific work the nonresident workers are admitted to perform. These farmworkers return to their countries and, therefore, are not able to collect unemployment compensation to which they might be entitled as a result of their employment in the United States. [396] Accordingly, the committee believes that remuneration paid to such workers should not be subject to unemployment taxes.

Explanation of provision.—The bill makes permanent the FUTA exemption in Code section 3306(c)(1)(B) for remuneration paid to certain alien farm workers.

Effective date.—The provision is effective on enactment.

[397] 18. Limitations on Awarding of Court Costs and Certain Fees Modified

Present law.—Under present law, a taxpayer who prevails over the Federal Government in a civil tax action in the U.S. Tax Court, the U.S. Claims Court, or any other Federal court may be awarded reasonable litigation costs, including attorneys' fees, at the discretion of the court (Code sec. 7430). An award is available only if the taxpayer shows that the position of the Government in the case was unreasonable. The amount of the award may not exceed $25,000.

Section 7430 was enacted in the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982, effective for proceedings commenced after February 28, 1983. Under present law, the provision will not apply to tax proceedings commenced after December 31, 1985.

Reasons for change.—The committee believes that the Code provision allowing awards of court costs and fees in certain circumstances should be continued, with modifications intended to carry out more effectively the objectives of the provision and to achieve greater conformity with statutory provisions governing awards of court costs and fees in Federal nontax cases.

Explanation of provision.—The bill makes permanent the authorization of court costs and fees under Code section 7430, and makes the following modifications to that provision:

(1) Where it is determined that the taxpayer prevailed in litigation, the burden of proof in an awards request rests on the Federal Government to show that its position was substantially justified or that special circumstances exist which make an award of litigation costs unjust;

(2) The "substantially justified" standard is applicable to the administrative action or inaction by the Federal Government upon which such proceeding is based;

(3) No award is allowed to a prevailing party who unreasonably protracted the proceedings; and

(4) The $25,000 cap is eliminated.

Also, the bills limits the amount recoverable as attorneys' fees to $75 per hour unless the court determines that a higher rate is justified on the basis of an increase in the cost of living, or special [398] factors such as the limited availability of qualified attorneys for the particular proceeding.

As under present law, only reasonable litigation costs are recoverable by the taxpayer. The bill specifies that prevailing market rates are to be applied to determine reasonable attorneys' fees, reasonable expenses of expert witnesses, and reasonable costs of any study, analysis, or other project necessary for the preparation of the taxpayer's case. The bill also provides that amounts awarded for expert witness fees cannot exceed the highest rate of compensation for expert witnesses paid by the Federal Government.

Effective date.—The modifications to section 7430 apply to actions commencing after December 31, 1985.

Conference Report No. 99–453
1st Session
[Bracketed numerals indicate official report page numbers]

CONSOLIDATED OMNIBUS BUDGET RECONCILIATION ACT OF 1985

December 19, 1985

Mr. Gray of Pennsylvania, from the committee on conference, submitted the following conference report to accompany H.R. 3128[1]

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the amendment of the Senate to the text of the bill (H.R. 3128) to make changes in spending and revenue provisions for purposes of deficit reduction and program improvement, consistent with the budget process, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following: SHORT TITLE

Section 1.—This Act may be cited the "Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985".

[561] Title X— Continued Health Coverage

a. Employers required to provide continuation coverage; sanction for noncompliance

Present law

There is no requirement in the Internal Revenue Code or other Federal law that an employer-provided group health plan must include continuation or conversion options in order for favorable tax rules to apply or in order to comply with other statutory requirements.

House bill

H. R. 3128—Covered Employers—The bill amends the Internal Revenue Code to require that an employer-provided group health plan must provide continuation coverage for qualified beneficiaries. Although the bill includes no explicit exclusions for churches, or tax-exempt or governmental employers, the applicable sanction—denial of the employer's tax deduction—has no impact on such employers.

H. R. 3500—This bill amends the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA), rather than the Internal Revenue Code, to cover all employee welfare benefit plans. Although the bill includes no explicit exclusions for churches or governmental employers, its amendment of ERISA effectively excludes churches (but not other tax-exempt entities), as well as Federal, State and local governments.

[562] Sanction for Noncompliance—If any group health plan maintained by an employer fails to provide continuation coverage, H.R. 3128 denies a tax deduction for employer contributions to any health plan; and H.R. 3500 permits employees, beneficiaries and the Secretary of Labor to sue the employer to enforce compliance. In addition, an employer may be liable under ERISA for certain monetary penalties.

Senate amendment

Covered Employers—Title VII of the Senate amendment generally follows H.R. 3128 by amending the Internal Revenue Code although it does include tax-exempt employers because of the additional sanction imposed on highly compensated employees. However, this provision of the Senate amendment provides explicit exclusions for churches, Federal, State, and local governments and small employers. For this purpose, a small employer is defined as an employer that normally employs 25 or fewer employees.

Title IX of the Senate amendment amends the Public Health Services Act to require that each employer subject to the Fair Labor Standards Act must provide continuation coverage. This title provides explicit exclusions generally following Title VII of the Senate amendment. Despite the exclusion, no State or political subdivision with more than 25 employees could receive Federal funds under certain public health service programs unless plans maintained by such entities provide continuation coverage.

Sanction for Noncompliance—In addition to following H.R. 3128, Title VII of the Senate amendment denies an income exclusion to any highly compensated employee. An employee is considered highly compensated if the employee is one of the 5 highest paid officers, a 10-percent shareholder, or among the highest paid 25 percent of all employees.

Title IX generally permits suits for injunctive relief and imposes civil penalties on employers who fail to provide continuation coverage.

Conference agreement

Covered Employers—The conference agreement generally follows the House bill and the Senate amendment, by amending ERISA, the Code, and the Public Health Service Act. Under the agreement, the changes to the Code and ERISA do not apply to churches, Federal, State and local governments, and small employers. Small employers are defined as those with fewer than 20 employees. In addition, the amendments to the Public Health Service Act apply only with respect to State and local governments (other than those with fewer than 20 employees.)

To avoid the issuance of duplicate and perhaps inconsistent regulations, the conferees authorized the Secretary of Labor to promulgate regulations implementing the disclosure and reporting [563] requirements, and the Secretary of the Treasury to issue regulations defining required coverage, deductions, and income inclusions. The Secretary of Health and Human Services is to issue regulations regarding the requirement that State and local governments provide continuation coverage for qualified beneficiaries. The conferees intend that any regulations issued by the Secretary of Health and Human Services will conform (in terms of actual requirements) with those regulations issued by the Secretary of the Treasury and Labor. Under the agreement, enforcement of the requirements imposed through the Public Health Service Act will be through suits for equitable relief filed by qualified beneficiaries. Of course, as under present law, all affected agencies will have the opportunity to comment before regulations are issued.

Sanctions for Noncompliance—Any regulations issued pursuant to these changes are to be effective after the date of issuance. However, pending the promulgation of regulations, employers are required to operate in good faith compliance with a reasonable interpretation of these substantive rules, notice requirements etc.

The conference agreement generally follows H.R. 3500 and the Senate amendment except that the only sanction imposed on covered State and local governments under the Public Health Service Act are suits for equitable relief.

b. Required coverage

Present law Otherwise deductible expenses paid or incurred by an employer for a group health plan are disallowed if the plan differentiates in benefits between individuals having end stage renal (kidney) disease and other individuals (Code sec. 162(i)).

[1] Public Law 99–272, page 4.

House bill

Qualified beneficiaries—Both H.R. 3128 and H.R. 3500 provide that qualified beneficiaries include widows, divorced spouses and persons whose spouse becomes eligible for Medicare, as well as dependent children of such beneficiaries.

Type of benefit coverage

House bill Both H.R. 3128 and H.R. 3500 require that the continuation coverage for which a qualified beneficiary must be offered an election is coverage identical to the coverage provided under the plan to similarly situated beneficiaries.

Period of coverage—Both H.R. 3128 and H.R. 3500 require that continuation coverage be provided for 5 years. However, no coverage need be provided [564] after the qualified beneficiary becomes eligible for coverage under another plan as a result of reemploymernt or remarriage.

Cost of coverage—Both H.R. 3128 and H.R. 3500 provide that some or all of the cost of continuation coverage could be charged to the qualified beneficiary, whether or not the employer otherwise subsidizes some or all of the premiums for covered employees. However, in no event may the cost charged to the qualified beneficiary exceed the total applicable premium. The applicable premium is defined as the cost to the plan for the period of coverage for a similarly situated beneficary with respect to whom a qualifying event has not occurred (without regard to whether such cost is paid by the employer or employee).

Senate amendment

Qualified beneficiaries—In addition to those classes of qualified beneficiaries described in the House bill, Title VII of the Senate amendment provides that (1) employees are qualified beneficiaries upon termination of employment (voluntary and involuntary) and (2) dependent children are also separately considered to be qualified beneficiaries when they cease to be covered as dependents under the plan.

Title IX of the Senate amendment further expands the classes of qualified beneficiaries listed to include employees whose hours are reduced, resulting in a loss of coverage. It provides that no coverage is required for employees who are terminated for cause.

Title VII of the Senate amendment requires that the continuation coverage for which a qualified beneficiary must be offered an election is coverage identical to the coverage provided immediately before the qualifying event. In addition, if the plan otherwise permits employees and beneficiaries to modify coverage, the qualified beneficiary must be entitled to modify coverage, the qualified beneficiary must be entitled to modify coverage at the same time and in the same manner as other similarly situated beneficiaries.

Title IX of the Senate amendment follows the House bill.

Duration of coverage—Title VII of the Senate amendment provides that continuation coverage must be provided for 18 months.

Title IX of the Senate amendment provides that continuation coverage must be provided for 3 years (18 months with respect to terminated employees and reduced hour workers), and provides cutoff dates similar to those in the House bill.

Cost of coverage—Although Title IX of the Senate amendment follows the House bill, Title VII provides that the cost must not exceed 102 percent of the applicble premium and provides specific rules for calculating the "cost" of the applicable premium in self-insured plans.

[565] Conference agreement

Qualified Beneficiaries—The conference agreement generally follows the House bill and the Senate amendment except that no continuation coverage is required for terminated employees if the termination occurs by reason of the employee's gross misconduct.

Type of benefit coverage—The conference agreement generally follows the House bill with a modification so that the type of benefit coverage is identical, as of the time the coverage is being provided, to the coverage provided under the plan to similarly situated beneficiaries under the plan with regard to whom a qualifying event has not occurred.

Duration of Coverage—The conference agreement generally follows Title IX of the Senate amendment, requiring that continuation coverage provided to widows, divorced spouses, spouses of Medicare-eligible employees, and dependent children who become ineligible for coverage under the plan be provided for 3 years, while coverage for terminated employees and employees with reduced hours must be provided for 18 months. The agreement provides that the coverage period begins with the date of the qualifying event. As under the House bill and Title IX of the Senate amendment, no coverage need be provided after (1) failure to make timely payment under the plan, (2) the qualified beneficiary is covered under another group health plan as a result of employment, reemployment, or remarriage, and (3) the qualified beneficiary becomes entitled to Medicare benefits. In addition, as under the House bill and Title VII of the Senate amendment, no coverage need be provided after the employer ceases to maintain any group health plan.

Cost of Coverage—The conference agreement generally follows Title VII of the Senate amendment. For a self-insured plan, the conferees agreed that the "applicable" premium for any year generally is equal to a reasonable estimate of the cost of providing coverage for such period for a similarly situated beneficiary. The cost is to be determined on an actuarial basis and takes into account such factors as the Secretary may prescribe in regulations. Alternatively, unless there has been a significant change affecting a self-insured plan (e.g., a modification of covered benefits, a significant change in the number or composition of the covered workforce, etc.), the employer may elect to use as the applicable premium, the cost for a similarly situated beneficiary for the preceding year, adjusted to reflect cost-of-living increases as measured by the GNP deflator.

In general, similarly situated individuals are those individuals defined by the plan (consistent with Treasury regulations) to be similarly situated and with respect to which no qualifying event has occurred. The Secretary of the Treasury is to define similarly situated individuals by taking into account the plan under which the coverage is provided (e.g., high or low option), the type of coverage (single or family coverge) and, if appropriate, regional differences in health costs. The conferees do not intend that similarly situated mean medically identical (for example, all employees with heart problems); nor do the conferees intend that plans can define similarly situated beneficiaries by reference to classifications that are in violation of Title VII of the Equal Pay Act.

In addition, the conferees intend that Treasury regulations defining a plan should preclude an employer from grouping employees to inappropriately increase the cost of continuation coverage for qualified beneficiaries who are rank-and-file employees (or their beneficiaries).

c. Notice requirements; election period

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Both H.R. 3128 and H.R. 3500 require that notice of the option to continue health coverage be provided in the summary plan description. In addition, the bills require that notice of a qualifying event be given to the plan administrator (1) by the employer, in the event of the employee's death; (2) by the employee, in the event that the employee is divorced, separated, or becomes eligible for Medicare.

Under both bills, the period during which a qualified beneficiary may elect continuation coverage does not expire before 60 days after the later of (1) the termination date of coverage, or (2) the date the beneficiaries receive notice of the right to elect.

Senate amendment

Title VII of the Senate amendment provides that the Secretary of the Treasury is to prescribe notice requirements pursuant to regulations and establishes a 60-day notice period commencing with the qualifying event.

Title IX

Title IX of the Senate amendment provides that the Secretary of Health and Human Services is to prescribe notice requirements pursuant to regulations. Such regulations are to prescribe notice consistent with that required by the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the House bill. Thus, notice of the option to continue health coverage must be provided in the summary plan description. In addition, in the event of an employee's death, separation from service, or Medicare eligibility, the employer is required to notify the plan administrator within 30 days of the qualifying event who will in turn notify the qualified beneficiary within 14 days.

In the event of other qualifying events (e.g., divorce, legal separation, or the child's becoming ineligible) the employee or qualified beneficiary affected by that event is required to notify the plan administrator. Unless the qualified beneficiary is the party providing notice, the plan administrator is in turn required to notify the qualified beneficiary. The election period begins not later than the later of (1) the date on which coverage terminates, or (2) the date on which the qualified beneficiary receives notice of the right to elect continuation coverage. Any election by a qualified beneficiary is con sidered an election by other qualified beneficiaries who would otherwise lose coverage by reason of the same qualifying event.

The conferees intend that the Secretary of Labor will issue regulations defining what notice will be adequate for this provision. The conferees intend that notice by mail to the qualified beneficiary's last known address is to be adequate; however, mere posting is not to be adequate. In addition, in applying these requirements to multiemployer plans, the conferees intend the the Secretary of Labor should take into account the special problems faced by those plans.

d. Conversion option

Present law

No provision.

House bill

Both H.R. 3128 and H.R. 3500 require that a conversion option be offered to qualified beneficiaries if under the plan the conversion option is otherwise available.

Senate amendment

Although Title IX of the Senate amendment follows the House bill, Title VII does not require that a conversion option be offered.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the House bill and Title IX of the Senate amendment. Under the agreement, a qualified beneficiary must be offered a conversion option from any plan (including a self-insured plan) only if such an option is otherwise available under the plan to other participants.

Effective Date.—These provisions are effective for plan years beginning after June 30, 1986. In the case of a group health plan maintained pursuant to one or more collective bargaining agreements, the bill does not apply to plan years beginning before the later of (1) the date the last of the collective bargainning agreements terminate, or (2) January 1, 1987.

Title XI.—Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation Provision

1. Insurance Premiums

Present law

A private defined benefit provision plan must generally pay to the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation ("PBGC") an annual [568] perparticipant premium of $2.60. The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) permits the PBGC to provide for a risk-related premium (within limits).

House bill—H.R. 3128.

The premium is increased to $8.00 for plan years beginning after December 31, 1985, and before January 1, 1989. For plan years beginning after December 31, 1988, the premium level returns to $2.60. The bill also provides for a study by the Treasury Department with respect to risk-related premiums.

House bill—H.R. 3500

The premium is increased to $8.50 for all plan years beginning after December 31, 1985.

Senate amendment—Title VII

The premium is increased to $8.10 for all plan years beginning after December 31, 1985. The bill also provides for a study by the Department of Labor (DOL) with respect to risk-related premiums.

Senate amendment—Title IX

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows H.R. 3500 except that the conferees agreed generally to require the PBGC to study the premium structure (including the feasibility of a risk-related premium) and make recommendations for change, if necessary. An advisory group appointed by the Chairman of the House Committees on Education and Labor and Ways and Means and the Senate Committees on Labor and Human Resources and Finance is required to analyze and critique the study. The study is to be filed with the Congress no later than one year from the date of enactment and the advisory group's report is due no later than six months after the PBGC submits its report to the Advisory Council.

2. Single Employer Pension Plan Amendment Act

a. Clarification of authority to freeze plans

Present law

Under present law, a plan may be amended to freeze future benefit accruals and to freeze other factors used to calculate benefits, such as compensation taken into account. In the absence of a contractual obligation, an employer is not required to provide participants with advance notice of a freeze.

House bill—H.R. 3128

No provision.

[569] House bill—H.R. 3500

Under the bill, an amendement freezing accruals is not effective unless, subsequent to the adoption of the amendment and at least 60 days prior to the effective date of the amendment, the plan administrator gives written notice to each affected party. The term "affected party" is defined under the bill as each participant in the plan, each beneficiary of a deceased participant, each beneficiary who is an alternate payee under a qualified domestic relations order, and each employee organization representing participants in the plan and the PBGC.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title IX

Although the bill contains no specific provisions covering plan freezes, the proposed first stage of plan termination covers similar situations (see Voluntary plan terminations—Senate amendment).

Conference agreement

The conference agreement provides that an amendment to reduce significantly future benefit accruals under a plan is not effective unless, subsequent to the adoption of the amendment and at least 15 days prior to the effective date of the amendment, the plan administrator gives written notice of the reduction of each participant in the plan, each beneficiary under the plan who is beneficiary of a deceased participant, each beneficiary who is an alternate payee under a qualified domestic relations order, and each employee organization representing participants in the plan. This notice does not apply to any amendment (or portion thereof) to retroactively reduce plan benefits (Sec. 412(c)(8) of the Code and Section 302(c)(8) of ERISA).

The conference agreement does not affect the requirements for qualification of a plan under the Code. For example, the agreement does not change the requirement of minimum benefit accruals under a frozen top-heavy plan.

b. Voluntary plan terminations

Present law

Restrictions on plan termination.—Under present law, an employer's continued maintenance of a defined benefit pension plan is not required by statute. Thus, subject to contractual obligations, the employer generally may terminate a plan at any time upon satisfaction of the procedural requirements described below.

Employer liability under a terminated plan.—If a single-employer defined benefit pension plan is terminated with assets sufficient to pay benefits at the level guaranteed by the PBGC (described below), the employer has no further liability to the PBGC.

If a single-employer defined benefit pension plan is terminated with insufficient assests to pay benefits at the level guaranteed by the PBGC, then the employer is liable to the PBGC for the insufficiency. However, the employer's liability is limited to 30 percent of [570] the employer's net worth (determined as of date of termination). The 30-percent limit applies whether or not the employer remains in business after the plan is terminated. All trades or businesses under common control are treated as a single employer.

In computing the extent to which assets are insufficient to pay guaranteed benefits, the value of any accumulated funding deficiency or outstanding waived liability under the minimum funding standard of the plan (discounted for likelihood of payment) is treated as a receivable of the plan and, thus, as a plan asset. An employer' liability for amounts due to the plan under the minimum funding standards of ERISA is not limited to 30 percent of net worth.

The full amount of the employer's liability to the PBGC is generally due and payable as of the date of plan termination. However, the PBGC, in its descretion, may grant deferred payment terms for employer liability.

PBGC guaranteed benefits.—Subject to limits, the PBGC guaranteed basic benefits under a plan. Basic benefits consist of nonforfeitable retirement benefits other than those benefits that become nonforfeitable solely on account of the termination of the plan. Guaranteed benefits are limited to basic benefits of $750 per month adjusted for inflation since 1974 ($1,687.50 for 1985).

Guarantees do not apply with respect to benefits in effect for fewer then 60 months at the time of plan termination unless the PBGC finds substantial evidence that the plan was terminated for a reasonable business purpose and not for the purpose of securing increased guaranteed benefits for participants. In cases in which they apply, guaranteed benefits are phased in at the rate of $20 per month or 20 percent per year (whichever is greater) for (1) basic benefits that have been in effect for less than 60 months at the time the plan terminates, or (2) any increase in the amount of basis benefits under a plan resulting from a plan amendment within 60 months before the date of the plan termination.

Notice of termination.—Under present law, an employer must file a Notice of Intent to Terminate (NOIT) a plan with the PBGC not less than 10 days prior to the proposed date of termination. Participants and beneficiaries must be notified of the termination no later than the date that the NOIT is filed with the PBGC.

Distribution.—Under present law, at least 30 days prior to the proposed date of distribution, the plan administrator must submit projected asset and liability data demonstrating that the plan holds sufficient assets to pay guaranteed benefits as of the propose date of distribution. Under certain circumstances, the plan administrator also has the option of establishing the plan's sufficiency by certification of an enrolled actuary.

Within 90 days after the proposed termination date, the PBGC is to notify the plan administrator as to whether plan assets are sufficient to satisfy plan obligations. This period may be extended by mutual agreement of the plan administrator and the PBGC. The plan administrator may distribute plan assets 30 days after the notice of sufficiency is issued. If the PBGC fails to issue a notice of sufficiency during the 90-day statutory period and the [1] Note: H.R. 3500 as passed by the House was added as an amendment to H.R. 3128 as amended by the Senate. The PBGC provisions of both H.R. 3128 and H.R. 3500 as passed by the House are mentioned separately to indicate the legislative background of the separate House bill provisions.

---

parties fail to agree to extend the 90-day period, the employer may distribute plan assest upon the expiration of the 90-day period.

[571] Post-distribution audit.—Within 60 days of the date of distribution, the plan administrator must certify to the PBGC that plan assets have been allocated and distributed in accordance with the requirements of ERISA. The PBGC may, in its discretion, conduct a post-distribution audit of a terminated plan.

House bill—H.R. 3128

Restrictions on plan termination.—No provision.

Employer liability upon plan termination.—Unless the employer terminating a plan goes out of business, the employer is liable to the PBGC for (1) the full amount of any funding deficiency, plus (2) the full amount of any unfunded guaranteed benefits (determined by treating any funding deficiency as an available plan asset of the terminated plan). A funding deficiency consists of any accumulated funding deficiency and the outstanding balance of any waived funding deficiency. If an employer goes out of business, its liability for the unfunded guaranteed benefits described in (2) is limited to 30 percent of the employer's net worth.

The bill also provides that the liability of an employer to the PBGC upon plan termination is the joint and several liability of all members of the controlled group of the employer. "Controlled group" is defined as all persons who are treated as a single employer under subsections (b), (c), (m) or (o) of section 414 of the Internal Revenue Code ("Code").

The bill generally provides that the full amount of the liability to the PBGC is normally due and payable as of the date of plan termination, unless the employer elects a deferred payment schedule. An employer may pays it liability to the PBGC (1) in a lump sum payment, (2) over a period of five years, or (3) over a period of 15 years. If the employer elects deferred payments over a 5- or 15-year period, liability payments include interest. Security is required in the 15-year schedule is elected and can be required if the 5-year schedule is elected. In addition, as under present law, the employer and the PBGC may agree to a special schedule of payments. The schedule may, for example, reflect the ability of the employer to pay the liability, as well as the hazards of litigation.

Procedural requirements.—No provision.

House bill—H.R. 3500

Restrictions on plan termination.—Under the bill, an employer may only terminate a single-employer defined benefit pension plan under which benefits are guaranteed by the PBGC in a "standard termination" or in a "distress termination." A standard termination is permitted only if the plan holds assets sufficient to pay all benefit entitlements.

Under the bill, "benefit entitlements" include all guaranteed benefits and all benefits that would be guaranteed but for the insurance limits on the amount or value of the benefit, or the length of time that the benefit has been in effect. In addition, benefit entitlements include certain addition benefits for which a participant has satisfied all conditions of entitlement prior to termination, irrespective of whether those benefits are guaranteed. These additional benefits are (1) early retirement supplements or subsidies, (2) plant closing benefits, and (3) death benefits. The general definition of [572] benefit entitlements excludes those benefits have become nonforfeitable solely by virtue of the plan's termination.

A plan with assests insufficient to provide benefit entitlements may be terminated in a "distress termination" only if the PBGC determines that (1) funding waivers have been granted with respect to the termination date, and such a waiver has been granted to each other single employer plan maintained by each contributing sponsor (as that term is defined in the bill) of the terminating plan and each substantial member (as defined in the bill) of each contributing sponsor's controlled group in any one of the three plan years preceding the termination date; (2) a petition has been filed in bankruptcy or state insolvency proceedings seeking liquidation of each contributing sponsor of the plan and each substantial member of their controlled groups, and has not been dismissed or converted to a petition for reorganization; (3) unless a distress termination occurs, each contributing sponsor of the plan and each substantial member of each contributing sponsor's controlled group will be unable to pay its debts when due and will be unable to continue in business; or (4) as a result of the decline in the number of employees covered as participants under all of the plans maintained by the contributing sponsor's controlled group, the costs of providing pension coverage have become unreasonably burdensome. The bill contains an objective test of "burdensomeness" relating to plan costs, payroll costs, and gross income level of contributing sponsors and members of their controlled groups.

Employer liability under a terminated plan.—If an employer terminates a plan pursuant to a standard termination, with assets sufficient to fund all benefit entitlements, the employer has no further liability to the PBGC or plan participants.

Liability to the PBGC.—If a plan is terminated pursuant to a distress termination (or if the termination is instituted by the PBGC), each contributing sponsor of the plan and each member of the controlled group of a contributing sponsor is jointly and severally liable to the PBGC for (1) any unfunded guaranteed benefits, plus (2) the full amount of any funding deficiency. A funding deficiency consists of any accumulated funding deficiency and the balance of any waived funding deficiency.

Under the bill, the full amount is normally due and payable to the PBGC as of the date of plan termination. However, where the amount of unfunded guaranteed benefits exceeds 30 percent of the collective net worth of the persons subject to liability, liability for the excess amount may be satisfied by payments to the PBGC each year, over a 10-year period (specified in the bill) following the plan's termination. The required payment in any year is 10 percent of the sum of the individual annual pretax profits (if any) of all persons subject to liability in connection with the plan termination. Liability to the PBGC ceases after the earlier of the tenth annual payment or the time when the liability to the PBGC is paid in full.

Liability to participants.—If a plan has assets insufficient to fund nonguaranteed benefit entitlements, each contributing sponsor to the plan and each member of the contributing sponsor's controlled group is jointly and severally liable for payments for a 10-year [573] period (specified in the bill) following the plan's termination, of 5 percent of the sum of the individual annual pretax profits (if any) of all persons subject to liability in connection with the plan termination. They payments are to be made to a special trustee appointed by the PBGC. Employer liability to the special trustee ceases after the earlier of the tenth annual payment or the time when the nonguaranteed benefits are fully funded. The special trust makes benefit payments to participants and beneficiaries.

Notice of termination.—Not less than 60 days prior to a proposed plan termination date, a plan administrator is required to give written notice of the proposed termination to the PBGC, plan participants and beneficiaries and unions representing the participants.

Related adjudicatory proceeding.—If, during the period between the date notice is given and the proposed termination date, the plan administrator learns of a "related adjudicatory proceeding" (as defined in the bill), the plan administrator is required to suspend the termination or to structure the termination so that the plan could be restored if it were later determined that the termination violated the contractural or statutory right of any affected person. The payment of benefits is restricted during the suspension period.

Distribution.—As soon as practicable after the proposed termination date, the plan administrator is required to provide the PBGC with certification by an enrolled actuary of the plan's sufficiency as of the plan's proposed date of distribution.

The plan administrator is permitted to distribute plan assets upon the expiration of the 60-day period following the date the certification of sufficiency is filed with the PBGC, provided that the PBGC has not issued a notice of noncompliance with respect to the plan, and the parties have not agreed to extend that period. The plan administrator is also required to notify each participant and beneficiary of such person's benefit entitlement at least 60 days prior to the plan's proposed date of distribution.

Post-distribution audit.—The plan administrator is required, within 30 days after the final distribution of assests, to file a notice with the PBGC certifying that assets have been allocated and distributed in accordance with the requirements of ERISA.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title IX

Restrictions on plan termination.—Under the bill, an employer may only terminate a single employer defined benefit pension plan under which benefits are guaranteed by the PBGC in a "standard termination" or in a "distress termination."

A standard termination consists of two distinct stages: (1) a cessation of accruals stage, and (2) a liquidation or "closeout" stage. If the plan has sufficient assets to fund all "final benefit obligations" of the plan, the two stages may occur simultaneously If assets are insufficient to fund final benefit obligations the plan may not complete the second stage until such obligations are fully funded or the plan qualifies for liquidation under the distress termination rules. [574] A plan in the first stage of termination is a frozen plan to which the present-law rules regarding vesting apply. The bill also provides that the required annual contribution, during the stage-one period, is an amount not less than benefits currently due.

Under the bill, final benefit obligations include all "benefit entitlements" as defined under H.R. 3500, plus (1) benefits which come nonforfeitable solely by virtue of the plan's termination, and (2) certain ancillary benefits for which a participant satisfies the conditions of entitlement subsequent to the plan's termination.

In order to terminate a plan in a distress termination, a plan administrator is required to demonstrate that (1) a petition in bankruptcy or other State insolvency proceedings has been filed seeking liquidation of each contributing sponsor (as defined in the bill) of the plan and each substantial member (as defined in the bill) of the contributing sponsors' controlled groups, and that the petition has not been dismissed or converted to one seeking reorganization; (2) a petition in a bankruptcy or State insolvency proceeding has been filed seeking reorganization of each contributing sponsor of the plan and each substantial member of their controlled groups, and the bankruptcy court has approved the plan termination; or (3) unless a distress termination occurs, each of the contributing sponsors and the substantial members of their controlled groups will be unable to pay its debts when due, and will be unable to continue in business.

Employer liability under a terminated plan.—These provisions of the bill are substantially the same as H.R. 3500, except that the contributing sponsors and members of their controlled groups are liable to plan participants for unfunded nonguaranteed "final benefit obligations" rather than benefit entitlements, and payment of those benefits is made directly by the employer to plan participants and beneficiaries, rather than through a special termination trust.

Notice.—Not less than 10 days prior to a "stage one" termination, a plan administrator is required to give written notice of the termination to the PBGC, plan participants and beneficiaries, and unions representing the participants.

Notice to the same parties is required at least 30 days prior to the second, closeout stage. If stages one and two occur simultaneously, the 30-day notice applies. In any event, if the plan is maintained pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement, the plan administrator is required to notify unions representing participants at least 30 days prior to a stage one freeze or a stage two closeout filing.

Related adjudicatory proceeding.—No provision.

Distribution.—At least 30 days prior to the distribution of plan assets, the plan administrator is required to provide the PBGC with certification by an enrolled actuary of the plan's sufficiency as of the plan's proposed date of distribution. The plan administrator is permitted to distribute plan assets upon the expiration of the 30-day period, provided that the PBGC has not issued during that period a notice of noncompliance with respect to the plan.

Notice of benefit computations to participants.—At the same time as the plan administrator notifies each participant or beneficiary of the benefits to which the participant or beneficiary is entitled, the plan administrator must also notify the participant or beneficiary [575] of the information used in computing the amount of such benefits, including (1) the length of service, (2) the age of the participant or beneficiary, (3) wages, and (4) such other information as the PBGC may require.

Post-distribution audit.—The PBGC is required to audit annually all participants in terminated plans after the final distribution of assets.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the structure of H.R. 3500.

Restrictions on terminations.—Under the agreement, as under H.R. 3500, an employer may only terminate a single-employer defined benefit pension plan under which benefits are guaranteed by the PBGC in a standard termination or in a distress termination. An employer is permitted to terminate a plan in a standard termination only if the plan holds sufficient assets to pay all "benefit commitments" under the plan. Benefit commitments are defined under the conference agreement as all guaranteed benefits (including qualified preretirement survivor annuities) and all benefits that would be guaranteed but for the insurance limits on the amounts or value of the benefit, or the length of time that the benefit has been in effect. In addition, benefit commitments include certain additional benefits for which a participant has satisfied all conditions of entitlement prior to termination. These additional benefits, irrespective of whether they are guaranteed, are (1) early retirement supplements or subsidies, and (2) plant closing benefits.

With respect to the circumstances under which an employer may terminate a plan in a distress termination, the bill generally follows Title IX of the Senate amendment except that it provides an additional criteria permitting "distress" termination if pension costs become unreasonably burdensome due to a declining workforce. In addition, the conference agreement makes it clear that different members of a controlled group may separately satisfy different criteria for distress termination.

As under present law, to the extent a pension plan is an executory contract included within the scope of Section 365 (11 USC 365) or is included within the scope of Section 1113 of the Bankruptcy Code (11 USC 1113), these Bankruptcy Code Provisions are applicable to the court's decision on whether to approve the termination of the pension plan. The distress termination criteria are not intended to make any substantive changes in the bankruptcy laws. The conferees take no position on when or whether a pension plan is an executory contract.

Employer liability under a terminated plan.—Upon the termination of a plan, pursuant to a standard termination in which all benefit commitments are fully funded, the employer has no further liability to the PBGC or to plan participants.

Liability to PBGC.—Upon the termination of a plan pursuant to a distress termination, if the PBGC determines that plan assets are insufficient to fund guaranteed benefits, the PBGC is required to institute trusteeship proceedings for the plan. Each contributing sponsor of the plan and each member of the controlled group of each contributing sponsor is jointly and severally liable to the [576] PBGC for the sum of (1) the total amount of all unfunded guaranteed benefits, up to 30 percent of the collective net worth of those persons liable to the PBGC; (2) an amount equal to the excess (if any) of (a) 75 percent of the total amount of all unfunded guaranteed benefits over (b) the amount described in (1); and (3) interest on the amount due calculated from the termination date. The total amount of unfunded guaranteed benefits is computed by treating any accumulated funding deficiency and the balance of any waived funding deficiency as a receivable of the plan and, thus, as a plan asset.

The full amount of the liability to the PBGC is generally due and payable as of the date of plan termination. However, if the liability to the PBGC for unfunded guaranteed benefits exceeds 30 percent of the collective net worth of the parties that are liable to the PBGC, the payment of that excess amount is to be made under commercially reasonable terms prescribed by the PBGC. The parties are to make a reasonable effort to reach agreement on such terms. Under the conference agreement, any terms prescribed by the PBGC must provide for the deferral of 50 percent of any amount of liability otherwise payable for any year if the PBGC determines that no person subject to such liability has individual pretax profits for the fiscal year ending during such year.

If a plan terminates pursuant to a distress termination and is subject to PBGC trusteeship proceedings, then each contributing sponsor and each member of their controlled groups is liable to the PBGC for the sum of (1) the outstanding balance of any accumulated funding deficiency, and (2) the balance of the amount of any waived funding deficiencies. The full amount of such liability is due and payable to the PBGC as of the date of plan termination.

The conferees take no position with respect to the treatment in bankruptcy of PBGC claims and liens. Deletion of the amendments to section 4068 that appeared in S. 1730 is not intended to express any view on the meaning of the present language in section 4068. Section 4068 has been amended, however, to assure that it applies only to the liability that was covered by section 4068 prior to these amendments, i.e., the value of unfunded guaranteed benefits up to 30 percent of the employer's net worth. Section 4068 does not apply to liability being added to section 4062 by these amendments for amounts in excess of the 30 percent of net worth cap.

Liability to participants.—If the PBGC determines that there is an outstanding amount of benefit commitments, the PBGC is required to appoint a fiduciary with respect to the termination trust. The fiduciary must be independent of the contributing sponsors (and members of a controlled group including sponsors) and generally is subject to the fiduciary requirements of ERISA (other than the prohibited transaction rules). The "outstanding amount of benefit commitments" under a plan is defined as the excess of (1) the actuarial present value of the benefit commitments of each participant and beneficiary over (2) the actuarial present value of the benefits of each participant and beneficiary that are guaranteed by the PBGC or to which assets of the plan have been allocated under the distribution procedures of section 4044 of ERISA. Each contributing sponsor of the plan and each member of the controlled group of a contributing sponsor is jointly and severally liable to the [577] termination trust for the lesser of (1) 75 percent of the total amount of outstanding benefit commitments under the plan, or (2) 15 percent of the total amount of benefit commitments under the plan. The termination trust generally will be administered by the PBGC except in cases in which PBGC determines that delegation of this responsibility is cost effective.

Under the conference agreement, payment of liability is to be made under commercially reasonable terms prescribed by the fiduciary of the termination trust. The parties are required to make a reasonable effort to reach agreement on such terms. In addition, the conference agreement provides that if liability to the termination trust is less than $100,000, the payment of liability to the trust over 10 years in equal annual installments (with interest at the applicable rate determined under sec. 6621(b) of the Code) will satisfy this requirement even if the terms are not commercially reasonable. The PBGC is permitted to increase, by regulation, the $100,000 ceiling. To phase in this $100,000 rule, the conference agreement provides that no payment under this provision is required before January 1, 1989.

The conference agreement also provides that any payment schedule is to provide for the deferral of 75 percent of the liability otherwise payable to the termination trust for any year if no person subject to liability to the termination trust has any individual pre-tax profits for such person's fiscal year ending during such year. However, the conferees intend that the fact that one person has minimal profits should not make the benefits of deferral totally unavailable. The required payments in any year should not exceed 50 percent of the otherwise payable amount plus profits. The amount of liability so deferred is payable only after payment of any liability to the PBGC arising in connection with the terminated plan.

The conference agreement provides rules governing the allocation and distribution of assets of the termination trust to participants and beneficiaries.

Under the conference agreement, a participant or beneficiary who receives distributions from a termination trust is, subject to certain requirements, permitted to roll over the distributions to an IRA or qualified plan.

Deductibility of payments.—The conference agreement provides rules as to the deductibility of payments to the PBGC and the termination trust.

Notice.—The conference agreement follows H.R. 3500.

Related adjudicatory proceedings.—The conference agreement contains no provision dealing with related adjudicatory proceedings. However, the conference agreement provides that the PBGC is not to proceed with the voluntary termination of a plan if the termination would violate the terms and conditions of a collective bargaining agreement.

Distributions.—The conference agreement generally follows H.R. 3500. As under H.R. 3500, the conference agreement provides that the assets of a terminated plan may be distributed if the PBGC fails to issue a notice of noncompliance within 60 days after receipt of a NOIT. As under H.R. 3500, the conference agreement provides that the 60-day period may be extended by PBGC and the plan administrator and that the extension may be subject to conditions to [578] which they have agreed. The conference agreement does not change the rules of the Code for determining the qualified status of a plan (or of a trust forming a part of a plan), or the application of the minimum funding standard to a plan. Accordingly, the conference agreement does not authorize the PBGC to waive, or otherwise modify, the requirements of the Code.

Notice of benefit computations to participants.—The conference agreement generally follows Title IX of the Senate amendment except that, in adddition to the other information specified in the Senate amendment, the plan administrator must supply to participants and beneficiaries the actuarial assumptions used in computing plan benefits (including, but not limited to, the interest rate assumption).

Post-distribution audit.—The conference agreement generally follows H.R. 3500. In addition, under the conference agreement the PBGC is required to perform annually an audit of a statistically significant sample of terminated plans to determine whether participants and beneficiaries have received the benefits to which they are entitled. For each plan selected for audit, the benefits of a statistically significant sample of participants and beneficiaries are to be verified.

In addition, the conference agreement authorizes the Comptroller General of the General Accounting Office to examine certain plan documents. Any information gathered under this authority shall not be available to the public.

3. Involuntary plan termination

Present law

Under present law, the PBGC is permitted, but not required, to commence proceedings to terminate a plan under a variety of circumstances including the inability of the plan to pay benefits when due.

House bill—H.R. 3128

No provision.

House bill—H.R. 3500

Under the bill, the PBGC is required to commence termination proceedings if the plan does not have assets available to pay benefits that are currently due under the terms of the plan.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title IX

As under present law, the PBGC is permitted, but not required, to terminate a plan under certain circumstances. In addition, the PBGC may appoint a temporary receiver if the plan fails to meet minimum funding requirements, is not able to pay current benefits when due, or has been abandoned.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows H.R. 3500.

[579] 4. Waiver of funding standard

Present law

Present law authorizes the Internal Revenue Service to waive the requirements of the minimum funding standard no more frequently than 5 times in any 15-year period. In addition, the amortization period for liabilities under defined benefit pension plans may be extended, and a waiver previously granted by the IRS may be modified.

The IRS may grant a waiver on condition that appropriate requirements are met.

House bill—H.R. 3128

The IRS is authorized to require that security be provided as a condition of granting a waiver of the minimum funding standard, an extension of an amortization period and modifications of a previously granted waiver. The IRS is required to notify the PBGC before granting a waiver and is to consider the comments of the PBGC. The PBGC has a 15-day comment period after the date of receipt of notice.

The new provisions apply to waivers, extensions, and modifications granted on or after the date of enactment of the bill.

House bill—H.R. 3500

The bill is similar to H.R. 3128, except that (1) a "reasonable period" rather than a 15-day comment period is provided, and (2) the security, notice, and comment provisions do not apply to cases involving less than $1 million of outstanding waived liability. The bill requires that an employer that submits a request for a waiver of the minimum funding standard notify each affected party. The term "affected party" is defined under the bill as a plan participant, a beneficiary of a deceased participant, a beneficiary that has been designated as an alternate payee pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order, an employee organization representing participants in the plan and the PBGC.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title IX

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement clarifies that the IRS is authorized to require that security be provided as a condition of granting a waiver of the minimum funding standard, the extension of an amortization period, or modification of a previously granted waiver of the minimum funding standard with respect to a single employer defined benefit plan. The conference agreement requires that, before granting an application for a waiver, extension or modification to a single employer defined benefit plan, the IRS notify the PBGC of the receipt of a completed application for a waiver, extension, or modification, and consider the views of any interested party, including the PBGC, submitted in writing. The PBGC has a [580] 30-day period after the date of receipt of notice to submit to the IRS comments on the application.

The conference agreement provides that the notice of the application and any other information or materials relating to the application that is sent to the PBGC by the IRS constitutes tax return information and is subject to the safeguarding and reporting requirements of section 6103(p) of the Code.

Under the conference agreement, the security, notice, and comment provisions do not apply if, with respect to the plan for which a waiver is requested, the sum of (a) the accumulated funding deficiencies (including the amount of any increase in the accumulated funding deficiency that would result if the request for a waiver were denied); (b) the outstanding balance of any previously waived funding deficiencies; and (c) the outstanding balance of any decreases in the minimum funding standard allowed under section 303 of ERISA, is less than $2 million. As under current law, the mere creation of a security interest at the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury as a condition for granting a waiver does not by itself constitute a prohibited transaction. The provisions of the conference agreement relating to security are intended by the conferees to provide appropriate rules for the future. The conferees intend that no inference is to be drawn from this provision with respect to the application of present law to such transactions.

The conference agreement also contains an amendment to the Code requiring that if the IRS grants a request for a waiver, extension, or modification, the interest on the waived amount must be computed by using a rate prescribed in section 6621(b) of the Code.

Finally, under the conference agreement, an employer that submits an application for a waiver of the minimum funding standard is required to notify any employee organization representing participants in the plan of the application.

5. Special enforcement rules

House bill—H.R. 3128

A nondeductible excise tax applies if termination liability payments are not made as required.

The initial tax is 5 percent of any payment not made when due. The tax increases by an additional 5 percent of any portion of such payment that is not made within 90 days of the payment's due date, and increases by an additional 5 percentage points for each 30-day period thereafter that the amount remains unpaid. The total additional tax imposed on any unmade payment is limited to the amount of such payment that has not been made within 90 days of the payment's due date.

There is allowed as a credit against the excise tax (up to the amount of the excise tax) any amount paid by the employer to the PBGC, with respect to the employer's termination liability, no later than two years after the final determination of that liability. Liability for the excise tax is the joint and several liability of the controlled group.

[581] House bill—H.R. 3500

The bill adds a new section to ERISA that would expressly confer, upon an adversely affected plan fiduciary, employer, employee organization representing plan participants, contributing sponsor, participant or beneficiary, a private right of action to enjoin certain acts or practices of any party in violation of the employer liability provisions. Other appropriate equitable relief could also be provided by a court.

Under the bill, district courts have exclusive jurisdiction over these actions. A plan could be sued as an entity under these provisions. The bill also provides for venue and for awards of attorney's fees and expenses under certain circumstances.

A copy of the complaint in any action under these provisions would be served on the PBGC. The PBGC could intervene in the action.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title IX

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows H.R. 3500.

6. Evasion of employer liability

House bill—H.R. 3128

Certain transactions undertaken by a person would not be treated as transferring employer liability away from that person or any member of a controlled group including that person. This treatment would apply to transactions undertaken within 10 years before the date of termination of single-employer defined benefit pension plan if a principal purpose of the transaction was to fraudulently evade any employer liability to the PBGC.

House bill—H.R. 3500

If a principal purpose of any person in entering into any transaction is to evade employer liability in connection with the termination of a single-employer defined benefit pension plan, and the transaction becomes effective within 5 years before the termination date, then that person and the members of that person's controlled group (determined as of the termination date) are subject to employer liability in connection with the termination as if that person were a contributing sponsor of the terminated plan as of the termination date. Post-transaction benefit increases or improvements would not be taken into account in computing the liability of such an entity.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

[582] Senate amendment—Title IX

Rules would be provided for tracing liability in the case of certain corporate reorganizations.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows H.R. 3500, except that the conference agreement provision is effective only with respect to transactions occurring on or after the earlier January 1, 1986, or the date of enactment. The provisions of the conference agreement relating to evasive transactions are intended by the conferees to provide appropriate rules for the future. The conferees intend that no inference is to be drawn from these provisions with respect to the application of present law to such transactions. In addition, the conference agreement makes it clear that only contributing sponsors (and members of a controlled group including the contributing sponsors) are affected by this provision.

7. Special rule for pending cases

House bill—H.R. 3128

No provision.

House bill—H.R. 3500

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title IX

In the case of an employer that (1) had filed an NOIT with the PBGC prior to the date of enactment and had not yet recieved a notice of sufficiency or (2) files an NOIT in a standard termination subsequent to the date of enactment and prior to March 1, 1986, the bill requires that the processing of the plan be delayed if the lesser of 10 or 10 percent of plan participants file complaints with respect to the termination.

The plan administrator of such a plan is not permitted to distribute plan assets until final benefit obligations are fully funded and the PBGC issues a notice of sufficiency with respect to the plan. The PBGC generally is not permitted to issue a notice of sufficiency to the plan until 90 days subsequent to the date that the PBGC determines the plan to be sufficient, except if the employer demonstrates that it is experiencing substantial business hardship. During this additional 90-day period, the PBGC is required to consider and respond to participants' complaints. (Under a special rule, the processing of a plan can be delayed no more than 14 days if the PBGC was previously granted an extension of the period in which to determine the plan's sufficiency because of circumstances wholly within the control of the PBGC.)

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows Title IX of the Senate amendment, except that (1) the processing of a plan is delayed only if the employer is to receive a reversion of surplus [583] assets in excess of $1 million, and the lesser of 200 or 10 percent of plan participants file complaints with respect to the termination; and (2) the PBGC is not permitted to issue a notice of sufficiency for 90 days after the plan is determined to have assets sufficient to fund all benefit commitments, even if an extension period within which PBGC must determine the plan's sufficiency was granted at the request of the PBGC and because of circumstances wholly within the control of the PBGC.

8. Plan assets

Present law

As a general rule, the assets of an employee benefit plan must be held in trust for the exclusive benefit of plan participants. Those individuals or entities with discretion over the management and disposition of plan assets are subject to a number of fiduciary duties enumerated in ERISA. In addition, ERISA prohibits any transaction in which the assets of a plan inure to the benefit of the employer, plan fiduciaries or other interested parties enumerated in ERISA.

Proposed regulations issued by DOL define plan assets for purposes of the fiduciary duty and prohibited transactions rules of ERISA. Under the regulations, if a plan acquires an equity interest in certain types of entities, the investing plan's assets are considered to include both its investment and an undivided interest in each of the underlying assets of the entity. The regulation is effective for purposes of identifying plan assets on or after 90 days after publication of the final regulation.

House bill—H.R. 3128

House bill—H.R. 3500

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title IX

The bill provides to certain publicly held real estate entities transitional relief from final regulations, to be issued by DOL, defining "plan assets."

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows Title IX of the Senate amendment. Except as a defense, no rule or regulation adopted after date of enactment that defines the term plan assets for purposes of ERISA shall apply to any asset of certain public real estate programs if investments by plan investors in such programs occur prior to the expiration of a specified period of time following the issuance of such rule or regulation. A plan investor is any plan, account, or arrangement (including an individual retirement account).

[584] The conference agreement does not contain a substantive amendment to ERISA but, rather, provides transitional relief in connection with plan asset regulations that are to be issued under ERISA. This will enable public real estate programs to avoid the disruption of normal business arrangements during the development of final regulations by the DOL.

The transitional relief provided in the conference agreement for certain real estate entities is limited to regulations which the DOL currently has under consideration. The conferees have instructed, and expect, the Secretary to adopt final regulations pursuant to the proposal by December 31, 1986.

The transitional relief provided applies to a real estate program that meets certain conditions, including the requirement that the economic rights of ownership with respect to a security issued by such program are "freely transferable." Whether a particular security is "freely transferable" is to be determined based upon all the facts and circumstances; however, the conference agreement also lists several kinds of restrictions which, absent unusual circumstances, will not (either alone or in any combination) cause a security to fail to be freely transferable. The categories are based upon restrictions commonly found in public offerings of securities of real estate entities which are imposed in order to comply with State and Federal laws, to assure continued eligibility for favorable tax treatment, and to avoid certain practical administrative problems. The conferees understand that such restrictions do not, alone or in combination, present any substantial impediment to the ability of investors to readily dispose of their investments and do not prevent such securities from being described as "freely transferable" in prospectuses required under the Federal securities laws. Such a description need not be included in a prospectus in order for a security offered or acquired thereunder to be considered "freely transferable" for purposes of this section.

One of the factors listed is the requirement that transfer or administrative fees be reasonable. It is intended that a fee will not be unreasonable if it does not exceed the cost of effecting transfers of interest on the program's books and the cost of complying with State filing requirements.

It is the intention of the conferees that the requirement that every interest in a real estate entity must be registered under Federal securities laws shall not apply to interest issued to initial limited partners solely for partnership organizational purposes in compliance with State limited partnership laws, provided that such interests are nominal in amount when compared to all other interests in the partnership as of the date of the completion of the offering of such entity, and such partnership was organized prior to enactment. Generally, an interest will be considered nominal if the interest has a value as of the date of issue of less than $20,000 and represents less than one percent of the total interests outstanding as of the completion of the offering period.

Although this section only covers certain public real estate entities, no inference should be drawn concerning the status of any other entity.

House bill—H.R. 3128

No provision.

House bill—H.R. 3500

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title VII

No provision.

Senate amendment—Title IX

The bill requires that DOL conduct a study of terminations of overfunded pension plans. DOL is required to submit a report on the study, together with any recommendations for statutory changes, to the House Committee on Education and Labor, the Senate Finance Committee, and the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources by February 1, 1986.

The bill also requires that the PBGC conduct a study on the purchase of insurance contracts from an insurer in satisfaction of all final benefit obligations under ERISA. THE PBGC is required to submit a report on the study to various committes of Congress by one year from the date of enactment.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement requires the Secretary of Labor to conduct a study of terminations of overfunded pension plans. The report, together with any recommendations for statutory change, must be submitted to the Committees named above by February 1, 1986.

10. Effective dates

The provisions of the conference agreement relating to amendments to reduce significantly future benefit accruals apply to amendments adopted on or after the earlier of January 1, 1986, or the date of enactment.

The provisions of the conference agreement relating to voluntary plan terminations apply to terminations for which a NOIT is filed on or after the earlier of January 1, 1986, or the date of enactment. The provisions relating to involuntary plan terminations apply to terminations for which termination proceedings are instituted on or after the earlier of January 1, 1986, or the date of enactment.

The provisions relating to waivers of the minimum funding standard apply to applications for waivers, extensions of an amortization period, and modifications of a previously granted waiver, submitted to the IRS on or after the earlier of January 1, 1986, or the date of enactment.

The provisions of new ERISA section 4070 relating to enforcement apply to actions filed on or after the earlier of January 1, 1986, or the date of enactment.

As noted above, the provisions of the conference agreement relating to evasion of liability apply to transactions becoming effective on or after the earlier of January 1, 1986, or the date of enactment.

[586] Special effective dates, as described above, are provided for the provisions of the conference agreement relating to PBGC premiums, the special processing rule for pending cases, the DOL plan asset regulations, and the studies authorized.

[590] (j) State Coverage Agreements (Section 769 of the Senate amendment)

Present law

Coverage of State and local employees under social security is, in most cases, effective on the date that an agreement is mailed by the State to the Secretary of Health and Human Services. However, for workers paid on a fee basis and for those whose coverage is retroactive, the agreement becomes effective on the date it is signed by both parties, which may result in complications and loss of coverage for some employees.

House bill

No provision.

[591] Senate amendment

Makes all agreements and modifications of agreements effective on the date the agreement is mailed or delivered by other means to the Secretary.

Effective date.—For agreements or modifications mailed or delivered on or after the date of enactment.

Outlay effect.—None.

Conference agreement

House recedes to the Senate amendment.

(k) Effect of Early Delivery of Benefit Checks (Section 769A of the Senate amendment)

Present law

When the normal delivery date for social security benefits (the thrid day of the month) falls on a Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday, checks must be delivered on the nearest preceding banking day. This may result in checks being delivered in the previous month. If this situation arises at the end of a year, it could cause distortion of year-end trust fund balances, possibly making them low enough to trigger the stabilizer provision, which could effect the amount of cost-of-living increases. This could also result in exaggerated beneficiary tax liability in the earlier year and reduced tax liability in the later year.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Eliminates these problems by providing that, for purposes of asset-expenditure ratio calculations and taxation of benefits, Social Security benefits delivered prior to their scheduled delivery date would be deemed to have been paid on the regular delivery date.

Effective date.—For benefit checks issued for months ending after the date of enactment.

Outlay effect.—None.

Conference agreement

House recedes to the Senate amendment.

2. Exemption from Social Security coverage for retired Federal judges on active duty (Section 769C of the Senate amendment)

Present law

The 1983 Social Security Amendments (Public Law 98-21) provided that the wages of all active Federal judges would be subject to Social Security taxes beginning January 1, 1984. This provision applied to both current and future judges. P.L. 98-21 also specifically provided that amounts received by judges who achieve senior (retired) status but who continue on active duty would be subject to Social Security taxes on so much of their pay as was attributable to periods when they were performing judicial services. Those earnings would also cause reductions in the judges' benefits under the [592] social security retirement test. (Subsequently, P.L. 98-118 delayed the effective date of this provision until January 1, 1986.)

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Excludes, from the definition of wages for Social Security purposes, the amounts received by Federal judges who meet the criteria for retirement on salary (e.g., age 65 with 15 years of service or 70 with 10 of service), who retire, and who perform active duty. The effect of this exclusion would be to exempt their pay from Social Security taxes and to preclude it from being counted for Social Security earnings test purposes.

Effective date.—Effective for services performed after December 31, 1983.

Outlay effect.—None.

Conference agreement

House recedes to the Senate amendment.

[593] 5. Coverage of Connecticut State police (Section 769H of the Senate amendment)

Present law

Under the Social Security Act, only States specifically listed in the Act may extend social security coverage to policemen who are [594] covered under other retirement programs. Connecticut is not listed. Listed States may only extend coverage in one of two ways: (1) by covering all current and future employees of the affected group; or (2) by covering all future employees and those current employees who desire coverage.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Allows Connecticut, if the Governor so requests, to cover State police hired on or after May 8, 1984 without conducting a referendum.

Effective date.—Applies to individuals hired on or after May 8, 1984 who are members of the Tier II plan of the Connecticut State Employee Retirement System, with respect to services performed after enactment of this Act.

Revenue effect (in millions):

Fiscal years:
1986	([1])
1987	$1
1988	1
3-year total	2

[1] Less than $500,000.

[631] 1. Railroad unemployment repayment tax

Present law

Loan authority.—The railroad unemployment insurance (RRUI) program, which provides unemployment and sickness benefits, is funded by unemployment taxes paid by rail employers. The RRUI program can borrow from the railraod retirement program as needed to pay benefits. Such loans are repaid when the Railroad Retirement Board determines that the RRUI account has sufficient funds to make such a repayment. The program's authority to borrow additional funds from the railroads retirement program is scheduled to expire after December 19, 1985.

Loan repayment tax.—The Railroad Retirement Solvency Act of 1983 established a repayment tax scheduled to begin on July 1, 1986 and to expire on September 30, 1990 (Code secs. 3321-3323). The present-law tax rate, applicable to the first $7,000 in wages paid annually to a rail employee, is as follows (sec. 3321):

	Percent
1986	2.0
1987	2.3
1988	2.6
1989	2.9
1990	3.2

House bill

Loan authority.—The House bill makes permanent the authority of the RRUI program to borrow from the railroad retirement program.

Loan repayment tax.—The rate of the present-law loan repayment tax is modified under the House bill to be as follows, beginning July 1, 1986 and expiring September 30, 1990:

	Percent
1986	4.3
1987	4.7
1988	6.0
1989	2.9
1990	3.2

Loan surtax.—Under the House bill, an automatic surcharge of 3.5 percent on the loan repayment tax base will be levied if the RRUI program must borrow from the retirement program. The surtax proceeds are to be used to repay such loans made after September 30, 1985, and is in effect for any year if on September 30 of [632] the prior year any principal or interest from a loan after September 30, 1985 remains unpaid.

Effective date.—The tax provisions will apply to remuneration paid after June 30, 1986. The extension of borrowing authority is effective on enactment.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment includes the same provisions on loan authority, loan repayment tax, and loan surtax as in the House bill.

In addition, under the Senate amendment a portion of the tier 2 railroad retirement tax equal to one percent of the payroll subject to that tax will be diverted from the railroad retirement program to the RRUI program. These revenues would then be returned to the railroad retirement program to help repay the principal and interest on loans made prior to October 1, 1985. This diversion provision will apply effective January 1, 1986 and will terminate on April 1, 1990.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement is the same as the House bill.

2. Extension of Medicare coverage, hospital insurance tax to State and local government employees

Present law

State and local government employees are covered for social security and Medicare benefits, and such employees and their employers are subject to the FICA tax (including the hospital insurance portion), only pursuant to voluntary agreement between the State and the Secretary of Health and Human Services (Code sec. 3121(b)(7)). Governmental units whose employees have such coverage pursuant to voluntary agreement may not later withdraw their employees from coverage.

Medicare coverage (and the corresponding hospital insurance payroll tax) is mandatory for Federal employees.

For wages paid after 1985, the employer-employee hospital insurance tax rate will be 2.9 percent of the first $42,000 of wages (sec. 3101, 3111, and 3121(a)).

House bill

The House bill extends Medicare coverage on a mandatory basis to State and local government employees hired after December 31, 1985, for service performed after that date. These employees and their employers will be liable for the hospital insurance portion of the FICA tax.

Under the House bill, Medicare coverage and the hospital insurance tax are not extended to individuals hired by a State or political subdivision to relieve unemployment; patients or inmates working in a hospital, home, or other institution; temporary workers hired for certain emergencies; or certain students working in District of Columbia hospitals.

The House bill makes technical changes relating to payment of hospital insurance taxes and definition of Medicare-qualified government employment.

[633] Senate amendment

The Senate amendment extends Medicare coverage on mandatory basis to all current and new State and local government employees, effective for service performed after September 30, 1986. These employees and their employers will be liable for the hospital insurance portion of the FICA tax. Under the Senate amendment, employees who perform State or local government service during and before October 1986 will be given credit toward Medicare eligibility for such past State or local government employment.

The Senate amendment provides that hospital insurance taxes for Medicare qualified State or local government employment are to be collected in the same manner as in the case of such taxes paid by nongovernmental employers.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that a State may extend Medicare coverage (without extending coverage under social security cash benefits) to State and local government employees hired prior to 1986 by voluntary agreement with the Secretary of Health and Human Services. Such employees and their employers would also be liable for the hospital insurance portion of the FICA tax. Under this provision, the collection of Medicare contributions for State and local government employees who are newly covered by this bill will be carried out by the State social security office in cases where the local jurisdiction (or State government) currently has in effect an agreement covering some employees of the jurisdiction under social security. Those jurisdictions (e.g., a city, county, or other government subdivision) within a State that have no employees currently covered under a section 218 agreement will be required to make their payments for Medicare coverage of their employees under the same procedures as private employers currently follow.

3. Tobacco excise tax provisions

a. Extension of present cigarette excise tax rates

Present law

A manufacturers' excise tax equal to $8 per thousand is imposed on small cigarettes; this produces a tax of 16 cents on a pack of 20 cigarettes. Large cigarettes (those weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand) are taxed at $16.80 per thousand. These tax rates are scheduled to decrease by one-half after December 19, 1985.

House bill

The House bill makes permanent the present cigarette excise tax rates (e.g., 16 cents per pack of 20 small cigarettes).

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment is the same as the House bill.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill and the Senate amendment.

[634] b. Exise taxes on smokeless tobacco

Present law

Present law does not impose any excise taxes on smokeless tobacco products (e.g., chewing tobacco and snuff).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment imposes an excise tax of 8 cents per pound on chewing tobacco and 24 cents per pound on snuff, effective for taxable products removed after September 30, 1985.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with a modification providing that the excise taxes on chewing tobacco and snuff are effective for taxable products removed after March 31, 1986.

c. Tobacco Equalization Trust Fund

Present law

Revenues from the cigarette excise tax are deposited in the Treasury as part of general revenues.

House bill

The House bill dedicates a portion of the cigarette excise tax revenues to a new trust fund to assist in defraying the costs of the tobacco price support program, through September 30, 1990.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

4. Coal excise tax; Black Lung Disability Trust Fund repayable advances

a. Coal excise tax

Present law

A manufacturers excise tax is imposed on domestically mined coal (other than lignite) sold or used by the producer (Code secs. 4121, 4218).

The tax rate is the lesser of (1) $1 per ton for coal from underground mines and 50 cents per ton for coal from surface mines, or (2) four percent of the price for which the coal is sold. These rates are to revert to pre-1982 rates (50 cents/25 cents per ton; two percent ceiling) on January 1, 1996, or, if earlier, on the January 1 as of which all principal and interest owed the Treasury by the Trust Fund have been paid.

[635] House bill

The House bill increases the coal excise tax rate and sales price ceiling as follow, effective for sales of taxable coal on or after January 1, 1986:

For calendar years 1986–1990, the tax on underground coal will be $1.50 per ton, the tax on surface coal will be $0.75 per ton, and the ceiling will be six percent of the sales price.

For calendar years 1991–1995, the tax on underground coal will be $1.60 per ton, the tax on surface coal will be $0.80 per ton, and the ceiling will be 6.4 percent of the sales price.

For 1996 and later years, the tax on underground coal will be $1.50 per ton, the tax on surface coal will be $0.75 per ton, and the ceiling will be six percent of the sales price. However, the 1985 rates ($1/0.50 per ton; four percent ceiling) will be reinstated for 1996 or any later calendar year if throughout the two most recent fiscal years ending before the beginning of such calendar year there was no balance of repayable advances made to the Trust Fund, and no unpaid interest on such advances.

Senate agreement

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement will increase the coal excise tax rate, effective January 1, 1986 through December 31, 1995, to the lesser of (1) $1.10 per ton for coal from underground mines and 55 cents per ton for coal from surface mines, or (2) 4.4 percent of the sales price.

b. Black Lung Disability Trust Fund repayable advances

Present law

Amounts equal to the coal excise tax revenues are automatically appropriated to the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund. The Trust Fund pays black lung disability benefits to coal miners (or their survivors) who have been totally disabled by black lung disease in cases where no coal mine operator is found responsible for the individual miner's disease.

Present law includes an unlimited authorization for advances, repayable with interest, from general revenues to the Trust Fund (sec. 9501(c)).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Under the Senate amendment, no further advances from general revenue to the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund may be made after September 30, 1986. Under the provision, the Trust Fund may not borrow prior to October 1, 1986, amounts to be used to make expenditures after September 30, 1986, or during post-1986 years.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill, except that a one-time, five-year forgiveness of the current interest payments on the cumulative indebtedness of the Trust Fund is provided.

6. Certain exemptions from FUTA tax

a. Certain nonresident farm workers

Present law

An exemption from FUTA is provided for wages paid for agricultural labor performed by aliens admitted to the United States pursuant to section 214(c) and 101(a)(15)(H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Code sec. 3306(c)(1)(B)). This exemption is scheduled to expire on December 31, 1985.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The FUTA exemption for certain nonresident farm workers is extended on a permanent basis for wages paid on or after January 1, 1986.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except that the FUTA exemption is extended only for wages paid before January 1, 1988.

b. Summer camp counselors

Present law

A one-year exemption from FUTA was provided for wages paid for 1983 by certain summer camps for employees who were full-time students (sec. 276(b) of P.L. 97–248).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides a permanent FUTA exemption for wages paid to summer camp counselors who are full-time students, effective for wages paid after September 19, 1985.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

c. Fishing boat crew members

Present law

An exemption from FUTA was allowed for remuneration paid during 1981–84 to certain fishing boat crew members. This exemption applied only if the remuneration depended on the boat's catch [637] and the crew normally consisted of fewer than 10 members (sec. 822(b) of P.L. 97–34).

House bill

No provision.

Senate Amendment

The Senate amendment provides a permanent FUTA exemption for wages paid to certain fishing boat crew members, effective for wages paid after December 31, 1980.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

7. Tax treatment of railroad retirement benefits

Present law

Under present law (Code sec. 86), a portion of Railroad Retirement system benefits computed by using the social security benefit formula (tier 1) is subject to Federal income tax in the same manner as social security benefits, i.e., for individuals whose incomes exceed certain levels (generally, $25,000 for unmarried individuals and $32,000 for married individuals filing a joint return). These benefits may be available at an earlier age under the Railroad Retirement system than under the social security system. Other benefits under the Railroad Retirement system are subject to Federal income tax for all recipients to the extent the payments exceed the amount of the individual's previously taxed contributions to the plan.

House bill

The portion of tier 1 Railroad Retirement benefits that is taxable in the same manner as social security benefits will be limited to the portion of tier 1 benefits that equals the social security benefits to which the individual would have been entitled if all of the individual's employment on which the annuity is based had been employment for social security benefit purposes. In addition, a minimum monthly annuity benefit (described in sec. 3(f)(3) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974) will be taxed in the same manner as social security benefits. Other tier 1 Railroad Retirement benefits will be taxed under the rules that apply to all other payments under the Railroad Retirement system.

These provisions will be effective for monthly benefits for which the generally applicable payment date is after December 31, 1985.

Senate amendment

No provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill. The conferees expect that the IRS will exercise its authority to waive penalties for failure to make estimated tax payments for 1986, to the extent such failure is solely attributable to increased tax liability of the taxpayer resulting from the amendments made by this provision, [638] in light of the short time between enactment of this bill and the effective date of this provision.

8. Income averaging for former full-time students

Present law

An individual whose income in a year is more than 40 percent higher than his or her average income during the prior three years may use income averaging to reduce tax liability (Code sec. 1301).

To be eligible for income averaging, the individual must have been self-supporting during each of the prior three years. Subject to this requirement, an individual beginning full-time employment after completing college or graduate school is eligible for income averaging.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that an individual is not eligible for income averaging for a year if he or she was a full-time student during any of the prior three years.

This rule does not apply to a married individual who files a joint return if 25 percent or less of the adjusted gross income of the return is attributable to that individual. Thus, income averaging will remain available where one spouse had been a full-time student during the base period, but did not contribute substantially to the current-year income to be averaged.

This provision is effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1985.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

9. Fringe benefit provisions

a. Parents of airline employees-airline affiliate employees

Present law

Under the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984, the value of "no-additional-cost" services provided by an employer for use by the employee, or the employee's spouse or dependent children, is excluded from income and wages if certain conditions are met, including a line-of-business limitation (Code sec. 132).

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Parents.—Under the Senate amendment, the value of the use of free or discounted airline passes by parents of an airline employee is excluded from the employee's income and wages on the same basis as where such benefits are used by the employee's spouse or dependent children, effective January 1, 1985.

[639] Airline affiliates.—The Senate amendment excludes from income and wages the value of the use of airline passes by certain individuals who are directly engaged in providing airline-related services. This treatment applies to employees of a corporation predominantly engaged in airline-related services that is a member of an affiliated group which includes an airline. The exclusion applies on the same basis as in the case of employees of the airline corporation who perform airline services. The term airline-related service means (i) catering; (ii) baggage handling; (iii) ticketing and reservations; (iv) flight planning and weather analysis; (v) restaurants located at an airport; (vi) gift shops located at an airport; and (vii) such other similar services provided to and directly benefiting airlines as may be prescribed by Treasury regulations.

Also, a grandfather exception is provided to the line-of-business limitation for tax-free treatment of airline passes furnished (after 1984) to individuals employed, as of September 12, 1984, by Pan American World Services, Inc.

These provisions relating to certain airline affiliate employees are effective January 1, 1985.

Conference agreement

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, with a modification to reflect the House airline affiliate technical corrections provisions (in H.R. 3838).

b. Faculty housing

Present law

Several court cases have held that on-campus housing furnished to faculty or other employees by an educational institution does not qualify for the exclusion under Code section 119 (certain lodging furnished for the convenience of the employer), and that therefore the rental value of the housing (less any amounts paid by the employee) is includible in income and wages.

The Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 prohibits Treasury from issuing, prior to 1986, regulations treating as income the excess of the value of qualified campus lodging over the greater of (1) the operating cost paid in furnishing the lodging, or (2) the rent received, in the case of such lodging furnished in 1984 or 1985.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that the rental value of qualified campus lodging for a year may not be treated as greater than five percent of the appraised value for the year of the lodging, provided that an independent appraisal is obtained by a qulaified appraiser. Thus, the value of the lodging will be excluded from the employee's income and wages if the rent paid by him or her to the educational institution equals or exceeds (on an annualized basis) five percent of the appraised value. Also, rents charged by an educational institution to nonemployees for comparable lodging may be used to define fair rental value.

This safe-harbor valuation rule will apply for post-1985 taxable years. For prior years, the IRS also is to follow the valuation rule, except that the assessed valuation of the property for local real estate tax purposes would be treated as meeting the requirement of a qualified appraisal.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill.

10. Minimum tax on certain capital gains of insolvent individuals

Present law

Individuals are subject to an alternative minimum tax (Code sec. 55), applying at a 20 percent rate to a base determined by adding certain preferences to the taxpayer's regular taxable income (in addition to certain other adjustments). The minimum tax preference items include the portion of net capital gain excluded for regular tax purposes under section 1202.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment provides that an insolvent individual who transfers real property used in the active conduct of a trade or business of the taxpayer is not required to treat certain capital gain on the transfer as a minimum tax preference if the transfer was made to a creditor in cancellation of indebtedness or to a third party under threat of foreclosure. The amount of the capital gain exclusion that is not treated as a preference item pursuant to the new rule may not exceed the amount of the individual's insolvency immediately prior to the transfer.

The amendment is effective for transfers of real property occurring after December 31, 1981.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment, except that the provision will apply only to farmers and not to other taxpayers. For this purpose, a farmer is defined as an individual more than 50 percent of whose gross income over the past three years was derived from farming. In addition, the provision applies only to transfers of farmland, not of all real property.

11. Tax-exempt bonds for a regional pollution control authority

Present law

Tax-exempt industrial development bonds (IDBs) generally may not be used to acquire a facility, if a substantial user of the facility before acquisition remains as such thereafter (Code sec. 103). Additionally, under a rule enacted in the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984, IDBs may not be used to acquire any existing facilities unless a rehabilitation requirement is satisfied.

[641] A provision enacted in 1982 permitted the Gulf Coast Waste Disposal Authority to acquire certain existing air or water pollution control facilities with the proceeds of IDBs.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment authorizes up to $200 million of IDBs for acquisition of 23 specific pollution control facilities for the Gulf Coast Waste Disposal Authority. This provision perfects the authorization for these bonds as originally enacted in 1982.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

12. Netting of gains and losses by cooperatives

Present law

Cooperatives may exclude from their taxable income amounts distributed to patrons in the form of patronage dividends, and certain other amounts paid or allocated to patrons, to the extent of the net earnings of the cooperative from business done with or for patrons, provided that there is a pre-existing obligation to distribute such amounts (Code sec. 1382). Cooperatives that qualify as tax-exempt farmers' cooperatives also may exclude such amounts from income to the extent of all net income, and also may deduct to a limited extent dividends paid on common stock (sec. 521).

The Code does not contain any explicit provisions regarding whether a cooperative may offset the earnings and losses of its various allocation units in computing its net earnings for the purpose of determining the amounts to be distributed or allocated to patrons, or providing that a cooperative that so computes its net earnings may qualify as a tax-exempt farmers' cooperative. Under present law, the Code does not require a cooperative to notify its patrons that it has offset earnings and losses of its various allocation in computing its net earnings.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

Netting.—The Senate amendment provides that a cooperative is not ineligible for treatment as a tax-exempt farmers' cooperative if it offsets certain earnings and losses in determining any amount available for distribution to patrons. For this purpose, the losses that are attributable to one or more allocation untis (including a loss that is carried over from another year) may be offset against earnings of one or more other allocation units, but only to the extent such earnings and losses are derived from business done with or for patrons. Such patronage earnings and losses may be offset without regard to whether the allocation units whose earnings or losses are offset are functional, divisional, departmental, geographic, or otherwise.

[642] The Senate amendment also provides that the offsetting of earning and losses may be used, at the option of the cooperative, for computing its net earnings in determining the amount of patronage dividends to be paid or allocated to patrons. In addition, the Senate amendment provides that if a cooperative acquires the assets of another cooperative in a transaction specified in section 381(a) and exercises its option to offset earnings and losses, the acquiring cooperative may not, in computing its net earnings for taxable years ending after the date of acquisition, offset losses of one or more of the allocation units of the acquiring or acquired cooperative against earnings of the acquired or acquiring cooperative, respectively, to the extent that (a) the earnings that are offset are not properly allocable to periods after the date of acquisition, and (b) such earnings and losses could not have been offset if derived from allocation units of the same cooperative.

The provisions relating to netting generally are effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1962.

Notice requirement.—Cooperatives that engage in the practice of offsetting earnings and losses are required to notify their members that the amount of the member's distribution or allocation may have been affected by the cooperative's netting, effective for taxable years beginning after the date of enactment of the bill. The notice also must specify the identity of the allocation units whose earnings and losses have been offset, as well as what additional information the member is entitled to under governing law.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment with modifications.

The conference agreement clarifies that if a cooperative acquires the assets of another cooperative in a transaction described in section 381(a) and exercises its option to offset earnings and losses, the acquiring cooperative may, in computing its net earnings for taxable years ending after the date of acquisition, offset losses of one or more allocation units of the acquiring or acquired cooperative against earnings of the acquired or acquiring cooperative, respectively, but only to the extent that (a) such earnings are properly allocable to periods after the date of acquisition,[1] and (b) such earnings could have been offset by such losses if such earnings and losses had been derived from allocation units of the same cooperative.

13. Extension of moratorium on application of research and experimental expense allocation regulation

Present law

The foreign tax credit is limited so that it cannot offset U.S. tax on U.S. source taxable income. In general, the Code requires allocation of all expenses between U.S. and foreign source gross income to determine U.S. and foreign source taxable income. A Treasury Regulation (sec. 1.861–8) rule generally requires taxpayers with foreign source income from products in a product area in which the taxpayers do U.S. research to allocate part of their U.S. research and experimental expense against their foreign source income. In 1981, the Congress suspended this rule for two years, so that research expenditures made for research conducted in the United States were allocated against U.S. source gross income only. In 1984, the Congress extended the moratorium for two additional years. The moratorium generally expired for taxable years beginning after August 1, 1985.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment effectively extends for one year the moratorium on the application of the research and experimental expense allocation rules of Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861–8. For taxable years beginning on or before August 1, 1986, all of a taxpayer's research and experimental expenditures attributable to research activities conducted in the United States will be allocated to U.S. source gross income for purposes of computing U.S. source and foreign taxable income and taxable income from sources partly within and partly without the United States. The extension of the moratorium applies only to the allocation of research expenses for the purpose of geographic sourcing of income. It does not apply for other purposes, such as the computation of combined taxable income of a FSC (or DISC) and its related supplier.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

15. Awards of attorneys fees and other court costs in tax litigation

Present law

Attorneys fees for tax litigation and other court costs of up to $25,000 may be awarded to a taxpayer who prevails in the litigation in a Federal court if the taxpayer shows that the Government's position in the litigation was unreasonable (Code sec. 7430). Under present law, this provision will not apply to court proceedings commenced after December 31, 1985.

House bill

No provision.

Senate amendment

The Senate amendment makes permanent the authorization of attorneys fees and other court costs for tax litigation under section 7430. Also, the Senate amendment makes the following modifications which would apply to court proceedings commencing after December 31, 1985:

(1) If it is determined that the taxpayer prevailed in the tax litigation, the burden is on the Government to show that its position was substantially justified or that special circumstances exist that make an award of litigation costs unjust;

(2) Whether an award is made is determined based upon a "substantially justified" standard;

(3) No award is allowd to a prevailing party who unreasonably protracted the proceedings;

(4) The $25,000 cap of present law is eliminated (as under present law, recoverable costs would not include costs of the administrative process); and

(5) Limits are imposed on hourly charges by attorneys and expert witness fees recoverable under the provision.

Conference agreement

The conference agreement follows the House bill (i.e., contains no provision).

Announcement of the Disbarment, Suspension, or Consent to Voluntary Suspension of Attorneys, Certified Public Accountants, Enrolled Agents and Enrolled Actuaries from Practice Before the Internal Revenue Service

Under 31 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 10, an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, in order to avoid the institution or conclusion of a proceeding for his disbarment or suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, may offer his consent to suspension from such practice. The Director of Practice, in his discretion, may suspend an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary in accordance with the consent offered.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents, and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify practitioners under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and addresses of practitioners who have been suspended from such practice, their designation as attorneys, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date or period of suspension. This announcement will appear in the weekly Bulletin at the earliest practicable date after such action and will continue to appear in the weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks or for as many weeks as is practicable for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

The following individuals have been placed under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Henry L. Creel	Cleveland, OH	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from May 15, 1986
J. Thomas Jones	Augusta, GA	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from June 1, 1986
Michael D. Sherman	Pound Ridge, NY	Enrolled Agent	Indefinite from May 27, 1986
Trevor Adel	Silver Spring, MD	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from June 2, 1986
John H. Peimann	Ottawa, KS	Certified Public Accountant	Twenty-One Months from June 1, 1986
John D. Raikos	Indianapolis, IN	Attorney	Indefinite from May 20, 1986
Vernon Rubel	Hickory, NC	Enrolled Agent	Indefinite from May 28, 1986

Under Section 330, Title 31 of the United States Code (1970 ed.), the Secretary of the Treasury, after due notice and opportunity for hearing, is authorized to suspend or disbar from practice before the Internal Revenue Service any attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent, or enrolled actuary who has violated the rules and regulations governing such practice.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify such disbarred or suspended practitioners, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and address of practitioners who have been disbarred or suspended from such practice, their designation as attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date of disbarment or period of suspension. This announcement will continue to appear in the Weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended or disbarred and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

After due notice and opportunity for hearing, the following individual has been disbarred from further practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Effective Date
Earl M. Walker	Port Neches, TX	Certified Public Accountant	May 19, 1986

Definition of Terms

Revenue rulings and revenue procedures (hereinafter referred to as "rulings") that have an effect on previous rulings use the following defined terms to describe the effect:

Amplified describes a situation where no change is being made in a prior published position, but the prior position is being extended to apply to a variation of the fact situation set forth therein. Thus, if an earlier ruling held that a principle applied to A, and the new ruling holds that the same principle also applies to B, the earlier ruling is amplified. (Compare with modified, below).

Clarified is used in those instances where the language in a prior ruling is being made clear because the language has caused, or may cause, some confusion. It is not used where a position in a prior ruling is being changed.

Distinguished describes a situation where a ruling mentions a previously published ruling and points out an essential difference between them.

Modified is used where the substance of a previously published position is being changed. Thus, if a prior ruling held that a principle applied to A but not to B, and the new ruling holds that it applies to both A and B, the prior ruling is modified because it corrects a published position. (Compare with amplified and clarified, above).

Obsoleted describes a previously published ruling that is not considered determinative with respect to future transactions. This term is most commonly used in a ruling that lists previously published rulings that are obsoleted because of changes in law or regulations. A ruling may also be obsoleted because the substance has been included in regulations subsequently adopted.

Revoked describes situations where the position in the previously published ruling is not correct and the correct position is being stated in the new ruling.

Superseded describes a situation where the new ruling does nothing more than restate the substance and situation of a previously published ruling (or rulings). Thus, the term is used to republish under the 1954 Code and regulations the same position published under the 1939 Code and regulations. The term is also used when it is desired to republish in a single ruling a series of situations, names, etc., that were previously published over a period of time in separate rulings. If the new ruling does more than restate the substance of a prior ruling, a combination of terms is used. For example, modified and superseded describes a situation where the substance of a previously published ruling is being changed in part and is continued without change in part and it is desired to restate the valid portion of the previously published ruling in a new ruling that is self contained. In this case the previously published ruling is first modified and then, as modified, is superseded.

Supplemented is used in situations in which a list, such as a list of the names of countries, is published in a ruling and that list is expanded by adding further names in subsequent rulings. After the original ruling has been supplemented several times, a new ruling may be published that includes the list in the original ruling and the additions, and supersedes all prior rulings in the series.

Suspended is used in rare situations to show that the previous published rulings will not be applied pending some future action such as the issuance of new or amended regulations, the outcome of cases in litigation, or the outcome of a Service study.

INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

The Introduction on page 3 describes the purpose and content of this publication. The weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin is sold on a yearly subscription basis by the Superintendent of Documents. Current subscribers are notified by the Superintendent of Documents when their subscriptions must be renewed.

CUMULATIVE BULLETINS

The contents of the weekly Bulletin are consolidated semiannually into a permanent, indexed, Cumulative Bulletin. These are sold on a single copy basis and are not included as part of the subscription to the Internal Revenue Bulletin. Subscribers to the weekly Bulletin are notified when copies of the Cumulative Bulletin are available. Certain issues of Cumulative Bulletins are out of print and are not available. Persons desiring available Cumulative Bulletins, which are listed on the reverse, may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents.

BULLETIN INDEX-DIGEST SYSTEM

The Bulletin Index-Digest System provides a fast and easy way to research Revenue Rulings, Revenue Procedures, Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and other matters of a permanent nature published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin, or Cumulative Bulletin from 1953 on. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date research tool that requires no filing or other clerical maintenance. The current revision consists of four Services, available on a subscription basis, each including a basic volume that covers the period 1953-1983/1984 and a cumulative supplement covering material published in subsequent Bulletins for the following two-year period. Cumulative supplements are issued quarterly for the Income Tax Service and semiannually for the Estate and Gift, Employment, and Excise Tax Service.

HOW TO ORDER

Check the publications and/or subscription(s) desired on the reverse, complete the order blank, enclose the proper remittance, detach entire page, and mail to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Please allow two to six weeks, plus mailing time, for delivery.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THIS ISSUE

These synopses are intended only as aids to the reader in identifying the subject matter covered. They may not be relied upon as authoritative interpretations.

INCOME TAX

Rev. Rul. 86-92, page 5.
Investment trust; tax classification. A limited power to substitute certain investment contracts for contracts that fail during the first 90 days of an investment trust is not a power to vary the beneficiaries investment; accordingly, such power will not cause the trust to be classified as an association taxable as a corporation.

Announcement 86-85, page 7.
This Bulletin contains a list of organizations that no longer qualify as organizations contributions to which are deductible under section 170(c)(2) of the Code.

EMPLOYEE PLANS

Announcement 86-86, page 7.
In accordance with Section 12 of Rev. Proc. 84-23, set forth is a list of master and prototype plans closed or disposed of by the National Office of the Internal Revenue Service between April 1, 1986, and June 30, 1986, and a list of plans inadvertently omitted from Announcement 85-99.

EXEMPT ORGANIZATIONS

Announcement 86-89, page 17.
A list is given of organizations now classified as private foundations and organizations that are not private operating foundations.

EXCISE TAXES

Rev. Rul. 86-91, page 5.
Alcohol used in fuels; application of partial exemption to ethanol derived from ethane. The partial exemption for alcohol fuels provided under section 4041(m)(1)(A) of the Code applies to ethanol produced through the process of thermally cracking ethane that is a constituent of natural gas. Rev. Rul. 85-18 clarified.

ADMINISTRATIVE

Announcement 86-87, page 16.
Publication 560, Self-Employed Retirement Plans, has been revised and is now available from the Service.

Announcement 86-88, page 16.
A new form, Form 1041S, U.S. Fiduciary Income Tax Return for Nontaxable Simple Trusts, has been developed for use by trusts that have no capital gains or losses and have an income distribution deduction that is equal to the amount of income that the trust is required to distribute currently. This form will be available in January 1987.

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing our Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

Introduction

The Internal Revenue Bulletin is the authoritative instrument of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for announcing official rulings and procedures of the Internal Revenue Service and for publishing Treasury Decisions, Executive Orders, Tax Conventions, legislation, court decisions, and other items of general interest. It is published weekly and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. Bulletin contents of a permanent nature are consolidated semiannually into Cumulative Bulletins, which are sold on a single-copy basis.

It is the policy of the Service to publish in the Bulletin all substantive rulings necessary to promote a uniform application of the tax laws, including all rulings that supersede, revoke, modify, or amend any of those previously published in the Bulletin. All published rulings apply retroactively unless otherwise indicated. Procedures relating solely to matters of internal management are not published; however, statements of internal practices and procedures that affect the rights and duties of taxpayers are published.

Revenue rulings represent the conclusions of the Service on the application of the law to the pivotal facts stated in the revenue ruling. In those based on positions taken in rulings to taxpayers or technical advice to Service field offices, identifying details and information of a confidential nature are deleted to prevent unwarranted invasions of privacy and to comply with statutory requirements.

Rulings and procedures reported in the Bulletin do not have the force and effect of Treasury Department Regulations, but they may be used as precedents. Unpublished rulings will not be relied on, used, or cited as precedents by Service personnel in the disposition of other cases. In applying published rulings and procedures, the effect of subsequent legislation, regulations, court decisions, rulings, and procedures must be considered, and Service personnel and others concerned are cautioned against reaching the same conclusions in other cases unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same.

The Bulletin is divided into four parts as follows:

Part I.—1954 Code.

This part includes rulings and decisions based on provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Part II.—Treaties and Tax Legislation.

This part is divided into two subparts as follows: Subpart A, Tax Conventions, and Subpart B, Legislation and Related Committee Reports.

Part III.—Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous.

To the extent practicable, pertinent cross references to these subjects are contained in the other Parts and Subparts.

Part IV.—Items of General Interest.

With the exception of the disbarment and suspension list included in this part, none of these announcements is consolidated in the Cumulative Bulletins.

The first Bulletin for each month includes an index for the matters published during the preceding month. These monthly indexes are cumulated on a quarterly and semiannual basis, and are published in the first Bulletin of the succeeding quarterly and semi-annual period, respectively.

The Bulletin Index-Digest System, a research and reference service supplementing the Bulletin, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. It consists of four Services: Service No. 1, Income Tax; Service No. 2, Estate and Gift Taxes; Service No. 3, Employment Taxes; Service No. 4, Excise Taxes. Each Service consists of a basic volume and a cumulative supplement that provide (1) finding lists of items published in the Bulletin, (2) digests of revenue rulings, revenue procedures, and other published items, and (3) indexes of Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and Tax Conventions.

The contents of this publication are not copyrighted and may be reprinted freely. A citation of the Internal Revenue Bulletin as the source would be appropriate.

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Prices: Domestic—$1.75 a single copy, $82.00 a year subscription. Foreign—$2.19 a single copy, $102.50 a year for subscription.

Announcement Relating to Decisions of the Tax Court

It is the policy of the Internal Revenue Service to announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin at the earliest practicable date the determination of the commissioner to acquiesce or not acquiesce in a decision of the Tax Court which disallows a deficiency in tax determined by the Commissioner to be due.

Notice that the Commissioner has acquiesced or nonacquiesced in a decision of the Tax Court relates only to the issue or issues decided adversely to the Government.

Actions of acquiescences in adverse decisions shall be relied on by Revenue officers and others concerned as conclusions of the Service only to the application of the law to the facts in the particular case. Caution should be exercised in extending the application of the decision to a similar case unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same, and consideration should be given to the effect of new legislation, regulations, and rulings as well as subsequent court decisions and actions thereon.

Acquiescence in a decision means acceptance by the Service of the conclusion reached, and does not necessarily mean acceptance and approval of any or all of the reasons assigned by the Court for its conclusions.

No announcements are made in the Bulletin with respect to memorandum opinions of the Tax Court.

The announcement published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletins are consolidated semiannually and annually. The semiannual consolidation appears in the first Bulletin for July and in the Cumulative Bulletin for the first half of the year and the annual consolidation appears in the first Bulletin for the following January and in the Cumulative Bulletin for the last half of the year.

[1] Acquiescence in result relating to whether taxpayer's surrender of an annuity contract held with one insurance company followed by the reinvestment of the proceeds thereof in an annuity contract with another company was a nontaxable exchange under section 1035 of the Code. Acquiescence "in result" means acceptance of the Court but disagreement with some or all the reasons assigned for the decision.

[2] Nonacquiescence relating to whether, for purposes of section 513(a)(1) of the Code, "uncompensated labor" exception from the definition of "unrelated trade or business," Catholic brothers subject to vows of poverty and obedience who receive room, board, and various benefits while operating a large farm are performing services without compensation.

Part I. Rulings and Decisions Under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954

Section 4041.—Imposition of Tax

26 CFR 48.4041-18: Fuels containing alcohol.

Alcohol used in fuels; application of partial exemption to ethanol derived from ethane. The partial exemption for alcohol fuels provided under section 4041(m)(1)(A) of the Code applies to ethanol produced through the process of thermally cracking ethane that is a constituent of natural gas. Rev. Rul. 85–18 clarified.

Rev. Rul. 86–91

Section 4041(a)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code imposes a tax of 9 cents a gallon on the sale or use of certain special motor fuels. Section 4041(b)(2) exempts from the tax imposed by section 4041(a) qualified methanol or ethanol fuel, which is defined as any liquid at least 85 percent of which consists of methanol, ethanol, or other alcohol produced from a substance other than petroleum or natural gas.

Rev. Rul. 85–18, 1985–1 C.B. 15, holds that since the ethanol by-product of the ethylcellulose manufacturing process described therein is derived from ethane (a constituent of natural gas) or crude oil, the ethanol does not qualify as alcohol for purposes of the alcohol fuels provisions of sections 40, 4041(b)(2), 4041(k) and 4081(c) of the Code.

Under section 4041(m)(1)(A) of the Code, as added by section 913(a) of the Tax Reform Act of 1984, 1984–3 (Vol. 1) C.B. 1, 516, effective August 1, 1984, the sale or use of any "partially exempt methanol or ethanol fuel" will be subject to a tax per gallon of 4½ cents rather than 9 cents under section 4041(a)(2). The term "partially exempt methanol or ethanol fuel" is defined in section 4041(m)(2) as meaning any liquid at least 85 percent of which consists of methanol, ethanol, or other alcohol produced from natural gas.

Thus, to the extent that the ethanol described in Rev. Rul. 85–18 is produced through the process of thermally cracking ethane that is a constituent of natural gas, the ethanol is produced from natural gas and qualifies for the partial exemption provided under section 4041(m)(1)(A) of the Code, effective August 1, 1984.

EFFECT ON OTHER REVENUE RULINGS

Rev. Rul. 85–18 is clarified.

Section 7701.—Definitions

26 CFR 301.7701-4: Trusts.

Investment trust; tax classification. A limited power to substitute certain investment contracts for contracts that fail during the first 90 days of an investment trust is not a power to vary the beneficiaries investment; accordingly, such power will not cause the trust to be classified as an association taxable as a corporation.

Rev. Rul. 86–92

ISSUE

If contracts to purchase certain bonds are deposited in an investment trust and, in the event the specified bonds cannot be obtained, the trust agreement permits the sponsor of the trust to provide instead different bonds of the same character and quality as those specified in the contracts or to provide no bonds at all, then for purposes of section 301.7701–4(c) of the Regulations on Procedure and Administration, does the sponsor possess a power to vary the investment of the certificate holders?

FACTS

A securities broker, as sponsor, formed an investment trust with a bank as trustee. The sponsor deposited in the trust certain tax-exempt bonds and contracts to purchase tax-exempt bonds (contracts to purchase). In exchange for these contributions, the sponsor received certificates representing a single class of undivided beneficial ownership in the assets of the trust. The sponsor then sold all of the certificates to investors.

The contracts to purchase permit the trust to purchase bonds on a "when, as, and if issued" basis. The contracts to purchase provide that all bonds subject to the contracts must be transferred to the trust within 90 days of the creation of the trust. If bonds subject to the contracts to purchase are not transferred to the trust within the 90-day period and if this failure is due to reasons beyond the control of the sponsor or the trustee, the sponsor has 20 days within which to transfer to the trust different bonds of substantially the same character and quality as those covered by the "failed" contracts to purchase. If the sponsor does not do so, the trustee must refund to the certificate holders on the next payment date that portion of the sales charge, principal, and accrued interest attributable to the failed contracts to purchase.

Any bond acquired to replace a bond in a "failed" contract to purchase (1) must be tax-exempt, (2) must have a fixed maturity date no later than the date of maturity of the bond it replaces, (3) must have a fixed interest rate not less than that of the bond it replaces and a yield to maturity at least equal to that of the bond it replaces, (4) must have a rating at least equal to the bond it replaces, (5) must have a purchase price no greater than the principal attributable to the bond it replaces, and (6) must not be a "when, as, and if issued" bond.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

Section 301.7701–4(c) of the regulations provides that an investment trust will not be classified as a trust if there is a power under the trust agreement to vary the investment of the certificate holders. See Commissioner v. North American Bond Trust, 122 F.2d 545 (2d Cir. 1941), cert. denied, 314 U.S. 701 (1942). An investment trust with a single class of ownership interests, representing undivided beneficial interests in the assets of the trust, will be classified as a trust and not as an association taxable as a corporation if there is no power under the trust agreement to vary the investment of the certificate holders.

A power to vary the investment of the certificate holders exists if there is a managerial power under the trust instrument that enables a trust to take advantage of market variations to improve the investment of the investors. See North American Bond Trust, 122 F.2d at 546; Rev. Rul. 75–192, 1975–1 C.B. 384; and Rev. Rul. 78–149, 1978–1 C.B. 448.

Under the trust agreement in the present revenue ruling, neither the trustee nor the sponsor has the power to take advantage of market variations to improve the investment of the certificate holders. The trustee may only accept bonds specified in the contracts to purchase or bonds of substantially the same character and quality selected by the sponsor, and even the latter may be done only if bonds are not furnished under one of the contracts to purchase. Should a contract to purchase fail, the sponsor has only the power to provide bonds of the same character and quality as those specified in the failed contract to purchase, or simply to fail to provide some bonds. In the latter case, the trustee must refund to the certificate holders that portion of the sales charge, principal, and accrued interest that is attributable to the failed contract. The powers at issue here are unlike those in Rev. Rul. 78–149, where reinvestment was used to take advantage of variations in the market over a twenty-year period. The powers in the present case are merely incidental to the organization of the trust during its first 110 days and do not constitute a power to vary the investment of the certificate holders. Once the bonds are placed in the trust, there is no change in the make-up of the trust corpus and no additional investment.

HOLDING

For purposes of section 301.7701–4(c) of the regulations, an investment trust agreement does not contain a power to vary the investment of the certificate holders solely because the governing instrument of an investment trust provides that, in the event of a contract failure, the sponsor may provide bonds of substantially the same character and quality as those bonds specified in the contracts to purchase that were deposited in the trust. Accordingly, under the facts set forth above, the trust is classified for federal income tax purposes as a trust and not as an association taxable as a corporation.

Part IV. Items of General Interest

Deletions from Cumulative List of Organizations Contributions to Which Are Deductible Under Section 170 of the Code

Announcement 86-85

The names of organizations that no longer qualify as organizations described in section 170(c)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 are listed below.

Generally, the Service will not disallow deductions for contributions made to a listed organization on or before the date of announcement in the Internal Revenue Bulletin that an organization no longer qualifies. However, the Service is not precluded from disallowing a deduction for any contributions made after an organization ceases to qualify under section 170(c)(2) if the organization has not timely filed a suit for declaratory judgment under section 7428 and if the contributor (1) had knowledge of the revocation of the ruling or determination letter, (2) was aware that such revocation was imminent, or (3) was in part responsible for or was aware of the activities or omissions of the organization that brought about this revocation.

If on the other hand a suit for declaratory judgment has been timely filed, contributions from individuals and organizations described in section 170(c)(2) that are otherwise allowable will continue to be deductible. Protection under section 7428(c) would begin on July 28, 1986, and would end on the date the court first determines that the organization is not described in section 170(c)(2) as more particularly set forth in section 7428(c)(1). For individual contributors, the maximum deduction protected is $1,000, with a husband and wife treated as one contributor. This benefit is not extended to any individual who was responsible, in whole or in part, for the acts or omissions of the organization that were the basis for revocation.

Lists of Master and Prototype Plans Closed or Otherwise Disposed of between April 1, 1986 and June 30, 1986, and Plans Inadvertently Omitted from Announcement 85-99

Announcement 86-86

This Announcement contains two lists of master and prototype (M&P) pension, annuity or profit-sharing plans submitted to the National Office of the Internal Revenue Service during 1984 by sponsoring organizations and mass submitters.

The first list (List A) includes those M&P plans that were timely submitted under Revenue Procedure 84-23, 1984-1 C.B. 457, by December 31, 1984, and were closed or otherwise disposed of by the Service between April 1, 1986, and June 30, 1986.

List A contains the names and addresses of the plans' sponsoring organization or mass submitter, symbols indicating the type of plan, and file folder number. It also shows the date of disposition of the plan and the type of disposition as follows: (1) favorable opinion letter(F), (2) unfavorable/nonopinion letter(U), (3) withdrawal letter(W), or (4) other(O).

Employers that adopted an approved M&P plan and, if appropriate, requested a determination letter on or before March 19, 1984, and received a favorable determination letter, retained reliance on their favorable letter under the provisions of Section 12 of Rev. Proc. 84-23. Other adopting employers will have the provisions of Section 12 of Rev. Proc. 84-23 applied to them also, provided the conditions outlined in Announcement 86-60, 1986-19 I.R.B. 17 are met. In either case, if the approved plan is included in List A, the employer must take further action in order to have continued reliance and to meet the compliance date described in Announcement 86-60.

If List A shows that the plan adopted by the employer received a favorable opinion letter, the employer must, within 12 months after the sponsor received the favorable letter, either (1) amend its existing plan by adopting the sponsor's M&P plan as approved by the Service, or (2) adopt an M&P plan of another sponsor on List A or another quarterly list, that has received a favorable letter (See Announcement 85-130, 1985-36 I.R.B. 58).

If List A shows that the plan was closed other than by issuance of a favorable opinion letter, such employer must either (1) make all amendments required by Section 5 of Rev. Proc. 84-23, including amendments to conform with the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (TEFRA) Pub. L. 97-248, 1982-2 C.B. 462, the Tax Reform Act of 1984 (TRA) Pub. L. 98-369, 1984-3 (Vol. 1) C.B. 1, and the Retirement Equity Act of 1984 (REA) Pub. L. 98-397, 1984-2 C.B. 433, and submit a request for a determination letter to the appropriate key district office, or (2) adopt an approved M&P plan of a sponsor that has received a favorable opinion letter and is listed in either Announcement 85-99, 1985-28 I.R.B. 4, or List B of this or the following Announcements: 85-165, 1985-47 I.R.B. 4; 86-43, 1986-14 I.R.B. 13, or 86-70, 1986-21 I.R.B. 33. In order to be afforded continued reliance and to meet the compliance date described in Announcement 86-60 the employer must adopt the amended plan by January 31, 1987.

After amending its existing plan or adopting another M&P plan, an employer must request a determination letter from the appropriate key district office in order to rely on the plan's qualification unless the employer adopts a standardized or paired plans within the meaning of Section 6.01 of Rev. Proc. 84-23.

The second list in this Announcement (List B) includes those M&P plans that were inadvertently omitted from the list published in Announcement 85-99. See Announcement 85-99 regarding when these plans must be adopted.

Publication 560 Self-Employed Retirement Plans, Revised

Announcement 86–87

An updated edition (revised June 1986) of Publication 560, Self-Employed Retirement Plans, is now available from the Internal Revenue Service. The publication discusses retirement plans for self-employed persons, including certain partners in partnerships. These plans are sometimes called Keogh or H.R. 10 plans.

The publication has been revised to cover tax rule changes, including those made by the Tax Reform Act of 1984 and the Retirement Equity Act of 1984.

The publication may be ordered by calling the "Federal Tax Forms Only" number listed in the telephone book under "United States Government, Internal Revenue Service."

New Form 1041S, U.S. Fiduciary Income Tax Return for Nontaxable Simple Trusts

Announcement 86–88

New Form 1041S, U.S. Fiduciary Income Tax Return for Nontaxable Simple Trusts, has been developed for use by trusts that have no capital gains or losses and have an income distribution deduction that is equal to the amount of income the trust is required to distribute currently. A copy of the new form follows.

Use of the Form 1041S, rather than the longer Form 1041, is optional. However, filing the Form 1041S will substantially reduce the reporting burden for simple trusts that are eligible to file the form.

Form 1041S and related instructions will be available in many Internal Revenue Service offices beginning in January 1987. It may be filed for tax years beginning in 1986.

If an organization listed above submits information that warrants the renewal of its classification as a public charity or as a private operating foundation, the Internal Revenue Service will issue a ruling or determination letter with the revised classification as to foundation status. Grantors and contributors may thereafter rely upon such ruling or determination letter as provided in section 1.509(a)-7 of the Income Tax Regulations. It is not the practice of the Service to announce such revised classification of foundation status in the Internal Revenue Bulletin.

The following organizations, which have been treated as private operating foundations described in section 4942(j)(3) of the Code, have now been classified as organizations that are not private operating foundations. Grantors and contributors may no longer rely upon rulings or determinations that these organizations are private operating foundations. The organizations are:

American Heritage Ministries, Inc., The, Long Beach, CA
Camellia Information Fund, Inc., Los Angeles, CA
Historical Research Institute, San Diego, CA
Humanity International Foundation, Los Angeles, CA
Loma Linda Institute of Medical Research, Relands, CA
Vox Foundation, The, Riverside, CA

Announcement of the Disbarment, Suspension, or Consent to Voluntary Suspension of Attorneys, Certified Public Accountants, Enrolled Agents and Enrolled Actuaries from Practice Before the Internal Revenue Service

Under 31 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 10, an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, in order to avoid the institution or conclusion of a proceeding for his disbarment or suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, may offer his consent to suspension from such practice. The Director of Practice, in his discretion, may suspend an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary in accordance with the consent offered.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents, and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify practitioners under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and addresses of practitioners who have been suspended from such practice, their designation as attorneys, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date or period of suspension. This announcement will appear in the weekly Bulletin at the earliest practicable date after such action and will continue to appear in the weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks or for as many weeks as is practicable for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

The following individuals have been placed under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Trevor Adel	Silver Spring, MD	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from June 2, 1986
John H. Peimann	Ottawa, KS	Certified Public Accountant	Twenty-One Months from June 1, 1986
John D. Raikos	Indianapolis, IN	Attorney	Indefinite from May 20, 1986
Vernon Rubel	Hickory, NC	Enrolled Agent	Indefinite from May 28, 1986

Definition of Terms

Revenue rulings and revenue procedures (hereinafter referred to as "rulings") that have an effect on previous rulings use the following defined terms to describe the effect:

Amplified describes a situation where no change is being made in a prior published position, but the prior position is being extended to apply to a variation of the fact situation set forth therein. Thus, if an earlier ruling held that a principle applied to A, and the new ruling holds that the same principle also applies to B, the earlier ruling is amplified. (Compare with modified, below).

Clarified is used in those instances where the language in a prior ruling is being made clear because the language has caused, or may cause, some confusion. It is not used where a position in a prior ruling is being changed.

Distinguished describes a situation where a ruling mentions a previously published ruling and points out an essential difference between them.

Modified is used where the substance of a previously published position is being changed. Thus, if a prior ruling held that a principle applied to A but not to B, and the new ruling holds that it applies to both A and B, the prior ruling is modified because it corrects a published position. (Compare with amplified and clarified, above).

Obsoleted describes a previously published ruling that is not considered determinative with respect to future transactions. This term is most commonly used in a ruling that lists previously published rulings that are obsoleted because of changes in law or regulations. A ruling may also be obsoleted because the substance has been included in regulations subsequently adopted.

Revoked describes situations where the position in the previously published ruling is not correct and the correct position is being stated in the new ruling.

Superseded describes a situation where the new ruling does nothing more than restate the substance and situation of a previously published ruling (or rulings). Thus, the term is used to republish under the 1954 Code and regulations the same position published under the 1939 Code and regulations. The term is also used when it is desired to republish in a single ruling a series of situations, names, etc., that were previously published over a period of time in separate rulings. If the new ruling does more than restate the substance of a prior ruling, a combination of terms is used. For example, modified and superseded describes a situation where the substance of a previously published ruling is being changed in part and is continued without change in part and it is desired to restate the valid portion of the previously published ruling in a new ruling that is self contained. In this case the previously published ruling is first modified and then, as modified, is superseded.

Supplemented is used in situations in which a list, such as a list of the names of countries, is published in a ruling and that list is expanded by adding further names in subsequent rulings. After the original ruling has been supplemented several times, a new ruling may be published that includes the list in the original ruling and the additions, and supersedes all prior rulings in the series.

Suspended is used in rare situations to show that the previous published rulings will not be applied pending some future action such as the issuance of new or amended regulations, the outcome of cases in litigation, or the outcome of a Service study.

INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

The Introduction on page 3 describes the purpose and content of this publication. The weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin is sold on a yearly subscription basis by the Superintendent of Documents. Current subscribers are notified by the Superintendent of Documents when their subscriptions must be renewed.

CUMULATIVE BULLETINS

The contents of the weekly Bulletin are consolidated semiannually into a permanent, indexed, Cumulative Bulletin. These are sold on a single copy basis and are not included as part of the subscription to the Internal Revenue Bulletin. Subscribers to the weekly Bulletin are notified when copies of the Cumulative Bulletin are available. Certain issues of Cumulative Bulletins are out of print and are not available. Persons desiring available Cumulative Bulletins, which are listed on the reverse, may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents.

BULLETIN INDEX-DIGEST SYSTEM

The Bulletin Index-Digest System provides a fast and easy way to research Revenue Rulings, Revenue Procedures, Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and other matters of a permanent nature published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin, or Cumulative Bulletin from 1953 on. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date research tool that requires no filing or other clerical maintenance. The current revision consists of four Services, available on a subscription basis, each including a basic volume that covers the period 1953-1983/1984 and a cumulative supplement covering material published in subsequent Bulletins for the following two-year period. Cumulative supplements are issued quarterly for the Income Tax Service and semiannually for the Estate and Gift, Employment, and Excise Tax Service.

HOW TO ORDER

Check the publications and/or subscription(s) desired on the reverse, complete the order blank, enclose the proper remittance, detach entire page, and mail to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Please allow two to six weeks, plus mailing time, for delivery.

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing cur Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

Introduction

The Internal Revenue Bulletin is the authoritative instrument of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for announcing official rulings and procedures of the Internal Revenue Service and for publishing Treasury Decisions, Executive Orders, Tax Conventions, legislation, court decisions, and other items of general interest. It is published weekly and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. Bulletin contents of a permanent nature are consolidated semiannually into Cumulative Bulletins, which are sold on a single-copy basis.

It is the policy of the Service to publish in the Bulletin all substantive rulings necessary to promote a uniform application of the tax laws, including all rulings that supersede, revoke, modify, or amend any of those previously published in the Bulletin. All published rulings apply retroactively unless otherwise indicated. Procedures relating solely to matters of internal management are not published; however, statements of internal practices and procedures that affect the rights and duties of taxpayers are published.

Revenue rulings represent the conclusions of the Service on the application of the law to the pivotal facts stated in the revenue ruling. In those based on positions taken in rulings to taxpayers or technical advice to Service field offices, identifying details and information of a confidential nature are deleted to prevent unwarranted invasions of privacy and to comply with statutory requirements.

Rulings and procedures reported in the Bulletin do not have the force and effect of Treasury Department Regulations, but they may be used as precedents. Unpublished rulings will not be relied on, used, or cited as precedents by Service personnel in the disposition of other cases. In applying published rulings and procedures, the effect of subsequent legislation, regulations, court decisions, rulings, and procedures must be considered, and Service personnel and others concerned are cautioned against reaching the same conclusions in other cases unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same.

The Bulletin is divided into four parts as follows:

Part I.—1954 Code.

This part includes rulings and decisions based on provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Part II.—Treaties and Tax Legislation.

This part is divided into two subparts as follows: Subpart A, Tax Conventions, and Subpart B, Legislation and Related Committee Reports.

Part III.—Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous.

To the extent practicable, pertinent cross references to these subjects are contained in the other Parts and Subparts.

Part IV.—Items of General Interest.

With the exception of the disbarment and suspension list included in this part, none of these announcements is consolidated in the Cumulative Bulletins.

The first Bulletin for each month includes an index for the matters published during the preceding month. These monthly indexes are cumulated on a quarterly and semiannual basis, and are published in the first Bulletin of the succeeding quarterly and semi-annual period, respectively.

The Bulletin Index-Digest System, a research and reference service supplementing the Bulletin, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. It consists of four Services: Service No. 1, Income Tax; Service No. 2, Estate and Gift Taxes; Service No. 3, Employment Taxes; Service No. 4, Excise Taxes. Each Service consists of a basic volume and a cumulative supplement that provide (1) finding lists of items published in the Bulletin, (2) digests of revenue rulings, revenue procedures, and other published items, and (3) indexes of Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and Tax Conventions.

The contents of this publication are not copyrighted and may be reprinted freely. A citation of the Internal Revenue Bulletin as the source would be appropriate.

Special Rules Relating to Nuclear Decommissioning Costs

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Temporary regulations.

SUMMARY: This document contains temporary regulations relating to the Federal income tax treatment of nuclear decommissioning costs. The text of the temporary regulations set forth in this document also serves as the text of the proposed regulations for the notice of proposed rulemaking [page 22, this Bulletin]. Changes to the applicable law were made by the Tax Reform Act of 1984. The regulations affect all taxpayers that include nuclear decommissioning costs in cost of service for ratemaking purposes.

DATES: The regulations are effective on July 18, 1984, and apply with respect to taxable years ending on or after such date.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

BACKGROUND

This document amends the Income Tax Regulations (26 CFR Part 1) and the Table of OMB Control Numbers (26 CFR Part 602) to provide rules under sections 88 and 468A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. Section 88 was added to the Code by section 91(f) of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 (Pub. L. 98–369, 98 Stat. 607) and section 468A was added to the Code by section 91(c) of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 (Pub. L. 98–369, 98 Stat. 604).

EXPLANATION OF PROVISIONS

Section 88 requires taxpayers that are engaged in the furnishing or sale of electric energy generated by a nuclear power plant to include in gross income the amount of nuclear decommissioning costs that are included in cost of service for ratemaking purposes for any taxable year. The regulations clarify that the amount of nuclear decommissioning costs directly or indirectly charged to the customers of a taxpayer, whether paid to the taxpayer, a nuclear decommissioning fund or other entity, must be included in the gross income of such taxpayer in the same manner as amounts charged for electric energy, even though the taxpayer does not control the investment or current expenditure of the amount. In addition, the regulations provide general guidance on the effective date of section 88.

Section 468A provides an elective method for taking into account nuclear decommissioning costs for Federal income tax purposes. In general, an eligible taxpayer that elects the application of section 468A is allowed a deduction for the amount of cash payments made to a nuclear decommissioning fund during any taxable year. Taxpayers using an accrual method of accounting that do not elect the application of section 468A are not allowed a deduction for nuclear decommissioning costs prior to the taxable year in which economic performance occurs with respect to such costs (see section 461(h)).

Section 468A(b) limits the amount of deductible cash payments that can be made to a nuclear decommissioning fund during any taxable year to the lesser of (1) the amount of nuclear decommissioning costs allocable to the fund that is included in the taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes for such taxable year, or (2) the ruling amount applicable to the fund for such taxable year. Cash payments made to a nuclear decommissioning fund during any taxable year that exceed the limitation are not deductible by the taxpayer and may cause a disqualification of the fund.

Section 468A(d) provides that a taxpayer must request and receive a schedule of ruling amounts from the Internal Revenue Service in order for amounts paid to a nuclear decommissioning fund to be allowed as a deduction. The schedule of ruling amounts is a schedule of annual amounts that the Internal Revenue Service determines to be necessary to fund, at a rate no more rapid than level funding, the portion of the total estimated cost of decommissioning that is attributable to the remaining estimated useful life of the nuclear power plant as of the date the nuclear decommissioning fund is established. The schedule of ruling amounts is required to be reviewed by the Internal Revenue Service at least once during the estimated useful life of the nuclear power plant or more frequently at the request of the taxpayer.

Section 468A(e)(1) provides that a nuclear decommissioning fund is to be established by the taxpayer for each nuclear power plant to which the section 468A election applies. The assets of a nuclear decommissioning fund are to be used exclusively (1) to satisfy, in whole or in part, the liability of the electing taxpayer for decommissioning costs of the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates, (2) to pay administrative costs and other incidental expenses of the nuclear decommissioning fund, and (3) to the extent that the assets of the nuclear decommissioning fund are not required for the aforementioned purposes, to invest in public debt securities of the United States, obligations of a State or local government, or time or demand deposits. In addition, section 468A(e)(5) and (6) contains special rules to discourage acts of self-dealing between the nuclear decommissioning fund and certain disqualified persons. If a nuclear decommissioning fund fails to comply with the qualification requirements or engages in an act of self-dealing, it may be disqualified by the Internal Revenue Service and treated as having distributed its assets on the date of disqualification.

Section 468A(e)(2) provides that the gross income of a nuclear decommissioning fund is subject to tax at the maximum rate in effect under section 11(b). In determining the gross income of a nuclear decommissioning fund for purposes of this tax, the amount of any payment to the fund that is deductible by the taxpayer under section 468A is excluded from the gross income of the fund and the amount of administrative costs and other incidental expenses of the fund paid by the fund to any person other than the taxpayer is deductible by the fund if such amount would be deductible in determining the taxable income of a corporation. Finally, for purposes of subtitle F of the Code (relating to procedure and administration), a nuclear decommissioning fund is treated as a corporation and any tax imposed on the income of the nuclear decommissioning fund is treated as a tax imposed by section 11.

In general, the amount of any actual distribution from a nuclear decommissioning fund must be included in the gross income of the taxpayer for the taxable year in which the distribution occurs. Thus, the amount of any distribution from a nuclear decommissioning fund used to satisfy, in whole or in part, any liability for the decommissioning of a nuclear power plant must be included in gross income of the taxpayer. The amount of an actual distribution from a nuclear decommissioning fund to pay administrative costs or other incidental expenses of the nuclear decommissioning fund is not included in the gross income of the taxpayer, however, unless such amount is paid to the taxpayer. In addition, the amount of any deemed distribution must be included in the gross income of the taxpayer for the taxable year in which the deemed distribution occurs. A deemed distribution from a nuclear decommissioning fund generally occurs upon the disqualification of the fund, a disposition of an interest in the nuclear power plant to which the fund relates or the substantial completion of the decommissioning of the nuclear power plant to which the fund relates.

The regulations under section 468A specify those taxpayers that are eligible for, and the manner of making, the election under section 468A. In addition, the regulations provide specific guidance on the manner of requesting a schedule of ruling amounts and the factors to be taken into account in determining a schedule of ruling amounts. Finally, the regulations provide guidance on the nuclear decommissioning fund qualification requirements, the consequences if a nuclear decommissioning fund is disqualified, the treatment of the selling and purchasing taxpayer in the case of a disposition of an interest in a nuclear power plant, the effective date of section 468A and the transitional rules applicable to taxpayers that elect section 468A for taxable years beginning before January 1, 1987.

EXECUTIVE ORDER 12291, REGULATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT AND PAPERWORK REDUCTION ACT

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that this temporary rule is not a major rule as defined in Executive Order 12291 and that a Regulatory Impact Analysis therefore is not required. A general notice of proposed rulemaking is not required by 5 U.S.C. 553 for temporary regulations. Accordingly, the temporary regulations do not constitute regulations subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 6).

The collection of information requirements contained in this regulation have been approved by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) under Section 3507 of the Paperwork Reduction Act.

DRAFTING INFORMATION

The principal author of these regulations is C. Scott McLeod of the Legislation and Regulations Division of the Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service. However, personnel from other offices of the Internal Revenue Service and Treasury Department participated in developing the regulations on matters of both substance and style.

Amendments to the regulations

The amendments to 26 CFR Part 1 and Part 602 are as follows:

INCOME TAX REGULATIONS
(26 CFR Part 1)

Paragraph 1. The authority for Part 1 is amended by adding the following citation:

Authority: 26 U.S.C. 7805. * * * Section 1.468A-5T also issued under 26 U.S.C. 468A(e)(5).

Par. 2. The following new section is added immediately after §1.85–1 to read as follows:

§1.88–1T Nuclear decommissioning costs (temporary)

(a) In general. Section 88 provides that the amount of nuclear decommissioning costs directly or indirectly charged to the customers of a taxpayer that is engaged in the furnishing or sale of electric energy generated by a nuclear power plant must be included in the gross income of such taxpayer in the same manner as amounts charged for electric energy. For this purpose, amounts payable to any other person (such as a trust or State government) shall be treated as if payable to the taxpayer. Thus, the amount of nuclear decommissioning costs directly or indirectly charged to the customers of a taxpayer, whether paid to the taxpayer, a nuclear decommissioning fund or other entity, is required to be included in gross income under section 88 and this section, even though the taxpayer does not control the investment or current expenditure of the amount and the amount will not be paid to the taxpayer at the time decommissioning costs are incurred.

(b) Example. The following example illustrates the application of the principles of paragraph (a) of this section:

Example. X corporation, an accrual method taxpayer engaged in the sale of electric energy generated by a nuclear power plant owned by X, is authorized by the public utility commission of State A to collect nuclear decommissioning costs from ratepayers residing in State A. With respect to the sale of electric energy, X includes in income amounts that have been billed to customers as well as estimated unbilled amounts that relate to energy provided by X after the previous billing but before the end of the taxable year ("accrued unbilled amounts"). The decommissioning costs are included in the monthly bills provided by X to its ratepayers and the entire amount billed is remitted directly to X. Under paragraph (a) of this section, the decommissioning costs must be included in the gross income of X in the same manner as amounts charged for electric energy (i.e., by including in income decommissioning costs that relate to amounts billed as well as decommissioning costs that relate to accrued unbilled amounts). The same rule would apply if the decommissioning costs charged to ratepayers were separately billed and the amounts billed were remitted to State A to be held in trust for the purpose of decommissioning the nuclear power plant owned by X. In that case, X must include in gross income decommissioning costs that relate to amounts billed as well as decommissioning costs that relate to accrued unbilled amounts.

(c) Cross reference. For special rules relating to the deduction for amounts paid to a nuclear decommissioning fund, see §1.468A–1T through §1.468A–8T.

(d) Effective date. (1) Section 88 and this section apply to nuclear decommissioning costs directly or indirectly charged to the customers of a taxpayer on or after July 18, 1984, and with respect to taxble years ending on or after such date.

(2) If the amount of nuclear decommissioning costs directly or indirectly charged to the customers of a taxpayer before July 18, 1984, is includible in gross income in a different manner than amounts charged for electric energy, such amount must be included in gross income for the taxable year in which includible in gross income under the method of accounting of the taxpayer that was in effect when such amount was charged to customers.

Par. 3. The following new sections are added in the appropriate places:

§1.468A-1T Nuclear decommissioning costs; general rules (temporary)

(a) Introduction. Section 468A provides an elective method for taking into account nuclear decommissioning costs for Federal income tax purposes. In general, an eligible taxpayer that elects the application of section 468A pursuant to the rules contained in §1.468A-7T is allowed a deduction (as determined under §1.468A-2T) for the taxable year in which the taxpayer makes a cash payment to a nuclear decommissioning fund. Taxpayers using an accrual method of accounting that do not elect the application of section 468A are not allowed a deduction for nuclear decommissioning costs prior to the taxable year in which economic performance occurs with respect to such costs (see section 461(h)).

(b) Definitions. The following terms are defined for purposes of §§1.468A-1T through 1.468A-8T:

(1) The term "eligible taxpayer" means any taxpayer that possesses a direct ownership interest in a nuclear power plant (including a nuclear power plant that is under construction). Such term includes a taxpayer that owns an interest in a nuclear power plant as a tenant in common or joint tenant, but does not include a taxpayer that owns stock in a corporation which owns a nuclear power plant or a taxpayer that is a partner in a partnership which owns a nuclear power plant. Thus, in the case of a partnership that owns a nuclear power plant, the election under section 468A must be made by the partnership and not by the partners. In the case of an unincorporated organization described in §1.761-2(a)(3) that elects under section 761(a) to be excluded from the application of subchapter K, each taxpayer that is a co-owner of the nuclear power plant is eligible to make a separate election under section 468A.

(2) The term "nuclear decommissioning fund" means a fund that satisfies the requirements of §1.468A-5T.

(3) The term "nuclear power plant" means any nuclear power reactor that is used predominantly in the trade or business of the furnishing or sale of electric energy, if the rates for such furnishing or sale, as the case may be, have been established or approved by a public utility commission. Each unit (i.e., nuclear reactor) located on a multi-unit site is a separate nuclear power plant.

(4) The term "nuclear decommissioning costs" or "decommissioning costs" means all otherwise deductible expenses to be incurred in connection with the entombment, decontamination, dismantlement, removal and disposal of the structures, systems and components of a nuclear power plant that has permanently ceased the production of electric energy. Such term includes all otherwise deductible expenses to be incurred in connection with the preparation for decommissioning, such as engineering and other planning expenses, and all otherwise deductible expenses to be incurred after the actual decommissioning occurs, such as physical security and radiation monitoring expenses. Such term does not include otherwise deductible expenses to be incurred in connection with the disposal of spent nuclear fuel under the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-425). An expense is otherwise deductible for purposes of this paragraph (b)(4) if it would be deductible under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code without regard to section 280B.

(5) The term "public utility commission" means any State or political subdivision thereof, any agency, instrumentality or judicial body of the United States, or any judicial body, commission or other similar body of the District of Columbia or of any State or any political subdivision thereof that establishes or approves rates for the furnishing or sale of electric energy.

§1.468A-2T Treatment of electing taxpayer (temporary)

(a) In general. An eligible taxpayer that elects the application of section 468A pursuant to the rules contained in §1.468A-7T (an "electing taxpayer") is allowed a deduction for the taxable year in which the taxpayer makes a cash payment (or is deemed to make a cash payment as provided in paragraph (c) of this section) to a nuclear decommissioning fund. The amount of the deduction for any taxable year equals the total amount of cash payments made (or deemed made) by the electing taxpayer to a nuclear decommissioning fund (or nuclear decommissioning funds) during such taxable year. A payment may not be made (or deemed made) to a nuclear decommissioning fund before the first taxable year in which all of the following conditions are satisfied:

(1) The construction of the nuclear power plant has commenced.

(2) Nuclear decommissioning costs of the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates are included in the taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes (see paragraph (b) of this section).

(3) A ruling amount is applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund (see §1.468A-3T).

(b) Limitation on payments to a nuclear decommissioning fund—(1) In general. For purposes of paragraph (a) of this section, the maximum amount of cash payments made (or deemed made) to a nuclear decommissioning fund during any taxable year shall not exceed the lesser of—

(i) The cost of service amount applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund for such taxable year (as defined in paragraph (b)(2) of this section); or

(ii) The ruling amount applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund for such taxable year (as determined under §1.468A-3T).

If the amount of cash payments made (or deemed made) to a nuclear decommissioning fund during any taxable year exceeds the limitation of this paragraph (b)(1), the excess is not deductible by the electing taxpayer. In addition, see paragraph (c) of §1.468A-5T for rules which provide that the Internal Revenue Service may disqualify a nuclear decommissioning fund if the amount of cash payments made (or deemed made) to a nuclear decommissioning fund during any taxable year exceeds the limitation of this paragraph (b)(1).

(2) Cost of service amount. (i) For purposes of section 468A and the regulations thereunder, the "cost of service amount applicable to a nuclear decommissioning fund for a taxable year" is the amount of decommissioning costs included in the electing taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes for such taxable year that is properly allocable to the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates. The allocation of the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service to each of the nuclear power plants of the electing taxpayer must be performed on a reasonable and consistent basis taking into account the assumptions and determinations, if any, used by the public utility commission(s) in establishing or approving the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service.

(ii) Decommissioning costs shall generally not be considered included in cost of service for purposes of this section unless—

(A) The order or opinion of the applicable public utility commission identifies the amount of decommissioning costs that is included in cost of service for ratemaking purposes; or

(b) The written records of the ratemaking proceeding clearly and unambiguously indicate the amount of decommissioning costs that is included in cost of service of ratemaking purposes.

(c) Deemed payment rules. (1) The amount of any cash payment made by an electing taxpayer to a nuclear decommissioning fund on or before the 15th day of the third calendar month after the close of any taxable year (the "deemed payment deadline date") shall be deemed made during such taxable year if the electing taxpayer irrevocably designates the amount as relating to such taxable year on its timely filed Federal income tax return for such taxable year (see paragraph (b) (4) (iv) of §1.468A–7T for rules relating to such designation).

(2) The amount of any cash payment made by a customer of an electing taxpayer to a nuclear decommissioning fund of such electing taxpayer shall be deemed made by the electing taxpayer if the amount is included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer in the manner prescribed by section 88 and §1.88–1T.

(d) Treatment of distributions—(1) In general. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (d)(2) of this section, the amount of any actual or deemed distribution from a nuclear decommissioning fund shall be included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer for the taxable year in which the distribution occurs. A distribution from a nuclear decommissioning fund shall include an expenditure from the fund or the use of the fund's assets—

(i) To satisfy, in whole or in part, the liability of the electing taxpayer for decommissioning costs of the nuclear power plant to which the fund relates; or

(ii) To pay administrative costs and other incidental expenses of the fund.

See paragraphs (c) and (d) of §1.468A–5T for rules relating to the deemed distribution of the assets of a nuclear decommissioning fund in the case of a disqualification or termination of the fund. In addition, see paragraph (a) of §1.468A–6T for rules relating to the deemed distribution of the assets of a nuclear decommissioning fund in the case of a disposition of an interest in a nuclear power plant.

(2) Exceptions to inclusion in gross income—(i) Payment of administrative costs and incidental expenses. The amount of any payment by a nuclear decommissioning fund for administrative costs or other incidental expenses of such fund (as defined in paragraph (a)(3)(ii)(A) of §1.468A–5T) shall not be included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer unless such amount is paid to the electing taxpayer (in which case the amount of the payment is included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer under section 61).

(ii) Withdrawals of excess contributions. The amount of a withdrawal of an excess contribution (as defined in paragraph (c)(2)(ii) of §1.468–5T) by an electing taxpayer pursuant to the rules of paragraph (c)(2) of §1.468A–5T shall not be included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer. See paragraph (b)(1) of this section, which provides that the payment of such amount of the nuclear decommissioning fund is not deductible by the electing taxpayer.

(iii) Actual distributions of amounts included in gross income as deemed distributions. If the amount of a deemed distribution is included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer for the taxable year in which the deemed distribution occurs, no further amount is required to be included in gross income when the amount of the deemed distribution is actually distributed by the nuclear decommissioning fund. The amount of a deemed distribution is actually distributed by a nuclear decommissioning fund as the first actual distributions are made by the nuclear decommissioning fund on or after the date of the deemed distribution.

(iv) Distributions upon substantial completion of decommissioning. The amount of a deemed distribution of the assets of a nuclear decommissioning fund upon termination of the fund (see paragraph (d) of §1.468A–5T) shall not be included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer for the taxable year in which the termination occurs to the extent that the amount is refunded to ratepayers within one calendar year after the termination of the fund. Thus, an amended return may be required if an amount is refunded within the one-year period but after the filing of the original return for the taxable year in which the termination occurs.

(e) Deduction when economic performance occurs. An electing taxpayer using an accrual method of accounting is allowed a deduction for nuclear decommissioning costs no earlier than the taxable year in which economic performance occurs with respect to such costs (see section 461(h)(2)). The amount of nuclear decommissioning costs that is deductible under this paragraph (e) is determined without regard to section 280B (see paragraph (b)(4) of §1.468A–1T). A deduction is allowed under this paragraph (e) whether or not a deduction was allowed with respect to such costs under section 468A(a) and paragraph (a) of this section for an earlier taxable year (see paragraph (a)(2) of §1.468A–8T, however, for the effective date applicable to this paragraph (e)).

(f) Effect of interim rate orders and retroactive adjustments to such orders—(1) In general. (i) The amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for any taxable year that ends before the date of a retroactive adjustment to an interim rate order or interim determination of a public utility commission shall include amounts authorized pursuant to such interim rate order or interim determination unless a taxpayer elects the application of paragraph (f)(2) of this section for such taxable year.

(ii) If a retroactive adjustment to an interim rate order or interim determination reduces the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for one or more taxable years ending before the date of the adjustment, the amount of such reduction shall be subtracted from the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service (as determined under paragraph (b)(2) of this section) for one or more taxable years ending on or after the date of the adjustment. For this purpose, the amount of such reduction shall be taken into account in the following manner:

(A) If the retroactive order reduces the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for one taxable year ending before the date of the adjustment, the total amount of the reduction shall be taken into account for the taxable year that includes the date of the adjustment.

(B) If the retroactive order reduces the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for two taxable years ending before the date of the adjustment, one-half of the total amount of the reduction shall be taken into account for each of the first two taxable years ending on or after the date of the adjustment.

(C) If the retroactive order reduces the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for three or more taxable years ending before the date of the adjustment, one-third of the total amount of the reduction shall be taken into account for each of the first three taxable years ending on or after the date of the adjustment.

(2) Special rule permitting withdrawal of excess contribution that results from retroactive adjustment to interim rate order. (i) If a retroactive adjustment that reduces the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for a taxable year occurs on or before the date prescribed by law (including extensions) for filing the return of the nuclear decommissioning fund for such taxable year, a taxpayer may elect the application of this paragraph (f)(2) for such taxable year by—

(A) Including in the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of services for such taxable year only the amount of decommissioning costs authorized for such taxable year under the retroactive ajustment; and

(B) Withdrawing any excess contribution that results from such treatment in accordance with the rules of paragraph (c)(2) of §1.468A-5T.

(ii) If a taxpayer elects the application of this paragraph (f)(2) for any taxable year, the retroactive adjustment shall not be treated for purposes of paragraph (f)(1)(ii) of this section as a reduction in the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for such taxable year.

(3) Revised schedule of ruling amounts. If the rules provided in this paragraph (f) result in a cost of service amount applicable to a nuclear decommissioning fund for any taxable year that is less than the cost of service amount applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund for the immediately preceding taxable year, the taxpayer is generally required to request a revised schedule of ruling amounts for the period beginning with the taxable year in which the taxpayer's request must be filed (see paragraph (i)(1)(iii)(C) of §1.468A-3T). If a taxpayer has made an election under paragraph (f)(2) of this section and is required to request a revised schedule of ruling amounts by reason of the cost of service limitation described in paragraph (f)(2)(i)(A) of this section, the taxpayer must file a request for a revised schedule on or before the 90th day following the date that the excess contribution is withdrawn from the nuclear decommissioning fund.

(4) Example. The following example illustrates the application of the principles of this paragraph (f):

Example. X corporation is a calendar year, accrual method taxpayer engaged in the sale of electric energy generated by a nuclear power plant owned by X. During 1989, X is authorized pursuant to an interim rate order issued by the public utility commission of State A to collect nuclear decommissioning costs of $500,000 per year beginning on January 1, 1990. On July 1, 1992, the public utility commission of State A issues a final rate order that authorizes X to collect decommissioning costs of $400,000 per year as of January 1, 1990. The excess decommissioning costs of $250,000 collected between January 1, 1990, and July 1, 1992, must be refunded to the ratepayers of State A by X.

If X elects the application of paragraph (f)(2) of this section for the 1991 taxable year, the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost or service for such taxable year is $400,000. If X made a contribution of $500,000 to a nuclear decommissioning fund for the 1991 taxable year, X must withdraw $100,000 from the nuclear decommissioning fund on or before the date prescribed by law (including extensions) for filing the return of the nuclear decommissioning fund for the 1991 taxable year (see paragraph (c)(2) of §1.468A-5T).

In addition, under paragraph (f)(1)(i) of this section, the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for the 1990 taxable year is $500,000, and, under paragraph (f)(1)(ii) of this section, the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for the 1992 taxable year is $300,000. Because the cost of service amount for the 1991 taxable year ($400,000) is less than the cost of service amount for the 1990 taxable year ($500,000) (and because the Internal Revenue Service was not notified of the decrease in the taxpayer's most recent request for a schedule of ruling amounts), paragraph (i)(1)(iii)(C) of §1.468A-3T applies and X must file a request for a revised schedule of ruling amounts for the period beginning with the 1992 taxable year on or before the 90th day following the date that the excess contribution for 1991 is withdrawn from the nuclear decommissioning fund.

Alternatively, if X does not elect the application of paragraph (f)(2) of this section for the 1991 taxable year, under paragraph (f)(1)(i) of this section, the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for the 1990 and 1991 taxable years is $500,000, and, under paragraph (f)(1)(ii) of this section, the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for the 1992 and 1993 taxable years is $300,000. Because the cost of service amount for the 1992 taxable year ($300,000) is less than the cost of service amount for the 1991 taxable year ($500,000) (and because the Internal Revenue Service was not notified of the decrease in the taxpayer's most recent request for a schedule of ruling amounts), paragraph (i)(1)(iii)(C) of §1.468A-3T applies and X must file a request for a revised schedule of ruling amounts for the period beginning with the 1993 taxable year on or before June 29, 1993.

§1.468A-3T Ruling amount (temporary)

(a) In general. (1) An electing taxpayer is allowed a deduction under section 468A(a) for the taxable year in which the taxpayer makes a cash payment (or is deemed to make a cash payment) to a nuclear decommissioning fund only if the taxpayer has received a schedule of ruling amounts for the nuclear decommissioning fund that includes a ruling amount for such taxable year. A schedule of ruling amounts for a nuclear decommissioning fund ("schedule of ruling amounts") is a ruling (within the meaning of paragraph (a)(2) of §601.201) specifying the annual payments ("ruling amounts") that, over the taxable years remaining in the "funding period" as of the date the schedule first applies, will result in a projected balance of the nuclear decommissioning fund as of the last day of the funding period equal to (and in no event greater than) the "amount of decommissioning costs allocable to the fund." The projected balance of a nuclear decommissioning fund as of the last day of the funding period shall be calculated by taking into account the fair market value of the assets of the fund as of the first day of the first taxable year to which the schedule of ruling amounts applies and the estimated rate of return to be earned by the assets of the fund after payment of the estimated administrative costs and incidental expenses to be incurred by the fund (as defined in paragraph (a)(3)(ii)(A) of §1.468A-5T), including all Federal, State and local income taxes to be incurred by the fund (the "after-tax rate of return"). See paragraph (c) of this section for a definition of funding period and paragraph (d) of this section for guidance with respect to the amount of decommissioning costs allocable to a fund.

(2) To the extent consistent with the principles and provisions of this section, each schedule of ruling amounts shall be based on the reasonable assumptions and determinations used by the applicable public utility commission(s) in establishing or approving the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for ratemaking purposes. Thus, for example, each schedule of ruling amounts shall be based on the public utility commission's reasonable assumptions concerning the after-tax rate of return to be earned by the nuclear decommissioning fund and the reasonable assumptions concerning the total estimated cost of decommissioning the nuclear power plant.

(3) The Internal Revenue Service shall provide a schedule of ruling amounts that is identical to the schedule of ruling amounts proposed by the taxpayer in connection with the taxpayer's request for a schedule of ruling amounts (see paragraph (h)(2)(viii) of this section), but no schedule of ruling amounts shall be provided unless the taxpayer's proposed schedule of ruling amounts is consistent with the principles and provisions of this section. If a proposed schedule of ruling amounts is not consistent with the principles and provisions of this section, the taxpayer may propose an amended schedule of ruling amounts that is consistent with such principles and provisions.

(4) The Internal Revenue Service may, in its discretion, provide a schedule of ruling amounts that is determined on a basis other than the rules of paragraphs (a) through (g) of this section if—

(i) In connection with its request for a schedule of ruling amounts, the taxpayer explains the need for special treatment and sets forth an alternative basis for determining the schedule of ruling amounts; and

(ii) The Internal Revenue Service determines that special treatment is consistent with the purpose of section 468A.

(b) Level funding limitation—(1) The ruling amount specified in a schedule of ruling amounts for any taxable year in the level funding limitation period shall not be less than the ruling amount specified in such schedule for any earlier taxable year.

(2) For purposes of this section, the level funding limitation period for a nuclear decommissioning fund is the period that—

(i) Begins on the first day of the first taxable year for which a deductible payment is made (or deemed made) to such nuclear decommissioning fund (see paragraph (a)(1) of §1.468A-2T for rules relating to the first taxable year for which a payment may be made (or deemed made) to a nuclear decommissioning fund); and

(ii) Ends on the last day of the taxable year that includes the estimated date on which the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes (see paragraph (e)(2) of this section).

(3) The ruling amount specified in a schedule of ruling amounts for a taxable year after the end of the level funding limitation period may be less than the ruling amount specified in such schedule for an earlier taxable year.

(c) Funding period—(1) General rule. For purposes of this section, the funding period for a nuclear decommissioning fund is that period that—

(i) Begins on the first day of the first taxable year for which a deductible payment is made (or deemed made) to such nuclear decommissioning fund (see paragraph (a)(1) of §1.468A-2T for rules relating to the first taxable year for which a payment may be made (or deemed made) to a nuclear decommissioning fund); and

(ii) Ends on the later of—

(A) The last day of the taxable year that includes the estimated date on which decommissioning costs of the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates will no longer be included in the taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes (see paragraph (e)(1) of this section); or

(B) The last day of the taxable year that includes the estimated date on which the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes (see paragraph (e)(2) of this section).

(2) Examples. The following examples illustrate the application of the principles of paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section:

Example (1). (i) X corporation is a calendar year, accrual method taxpayer engaged in the sale of electric energy generated by power plants owned by X. On March 15, 1995, X commences the construction of a nuclear power plant in State A. On May 15, 1995, the public utility commission of State A issues a final rate order for the four-year period beginning on January 1, 1995, that authorizes X to collect decommissioning costs from ratepayers residing in State A. For the 1995 taxable year, X is authorized to collect decommissioning costs of $500,000, and, for each taxable year during the remainder of the period to which the rate order applies, X is authorized to collect decommissioning costs in an amount equal to 105 percent of the amount authorized to be collected for the preceding taxable year.

In determining the amount of decommissioning costs to be collected from ratepayers residing in State A, the public utility commission assumes that (A) decommissioning costs will be included in cost of service for each taxable year in the period that begins with 1995 and ends with 2025 and (B) decommissioning costs collected pursuant to subsequent rate orders will increase in the same manner as amounts collected pursuant to the rate order issued on May 15, 1995. In addition, in determining the rate of return to be earned by X with respect to the nuclear power plant, the public utility commission assumes that the nuclear power plant will be included in rate base for each year in the period that begins with 2000 and ends with 2025.

(ii) X requests a schedule of ruling amounts in accordance with the rules of paragraph (h) of this section for the period beginning with the 1995 taxable year. In determining the level funding limitation period and the funding period, the Internal Revenue Service shall assume that a deductible payment will be made to a nuclear decommissioning fund for the 1995 taxable year. Thus, under paragraph (b) of this section, the level funding limitation period begins on January 1, 1995, and ends on December 31, 2025. Under paragraph (c)(1) of this section, the funding period begins on January 1, 1995, and ends on December 31, 2025.

(iii) In its request for a schedule of ruling amounts, X proposes a ruling amount for each taxable year in the funding period that corresponds to the projected cost of service amount for such taxable year. If (A) the assumptions and determinations used by the public utility commission in establishing the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service are reasonable and (B) the amounts collected pursuant to the proposed schedule, combined with the after-tax earnings on such amounts, will result in a projected balance of the nuclear decommissioning fund as of December 31, 2025, equal to the amount of decommissioning costs allocable to the fund, then, under paragraph (a)(3) of this section, each ruling amount in the initial schedule of ruling amounts shall equal the ruling amount proposed by X in connection with its request for a schedule of ruling amounts. Thus, the ruling amount for the 1995 taxable year would be $500,000, and the ruling amount for each subsequent taxable year would be 105 percent of the ruling amount for the preceding taxable year.

Example (2). (i) Assume the same facts as in Example (1), except that on May 15, 1995, the public utility commission of State A issues a final rate order for the four-year period beginning on January 1, 1995, that authorizes X to collect decommissioning costs of $600,000 per year from ratepayers residing in State A. In determining the amount of decommissioning costs to be collected from ratepayers residing in State A, the public utility commission assumes that decommissioning costs of $600,000 will be collected for each taxable year in the period that begins with 1995 and ends with 2004 and that decommissioning costs of $200,000 will be collected for each taxable year in the period that begins with 2005 and ends with 2025.

(ii) X requests a schedule of ruling amounts in accordance with the rules of paragraph (h) of this section for the period beginning with the 1995 taxable year. In determining the level funding limitation period and the funding period, the Internal Revenue Service shall assume that a deductible payment will be made to a nuclear decommissioning fund for the 1995 taxable year. Thus, under paragraph (b) of this section, the level funding limitation period begins on January 1, 1995, and ends on December 31, 2025. Under paragraph (c)(1) of this section, the funding period begins on January 1, 1995, and ends on December 31, 2025.

(iii) In its request for a schedule of ruling amounts, X proposes a ruling amount for each taxable year in the funding period that corresponds to the projected cost of service amount for such taxable year. A schedule of ruling amounts based on the projected cost of service amount would be inconsistent with the level funding limitation of paragraph (b) of this section because the projected cost of service amount for 2025 is less than the projected cost of service amount for 2004. Consequently, under paragraph (a)(3) of this section, no schedule of ruling amounts shall be provided to X unless X proposes an amended schedule of ruling amounts that is consistent with the level funding limitation and the other principles and provisions of this section.

(iv) Assume that X proposes an amended schedule of ruling amounts that provides for ruling amounts of $400,000 for each taxable year in the funding period. If (A) the schedule of ruling amounts proposed by X is based on the reasonable assumptions and determinations used by the public utility commission in establishing the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service and (B) the amounts collected pursuant to the proposed schedule, combined with the after-tax earnings on such amounts, will result in a projected balance of the nuclear decommissioning fund as of December 31, 2025, equal to the amount of decommissioning costs allocable to the fund, then, under paragraph (a)(3) of this section, each ruling amount in the initial schedule of ruling amounts shall equal the ruling amount proposed by X in connection with its request for a schedule of ruling amounts. Thus, the ruling amount for the 1995 taxable year and for each subsequent taxable year through 2025 would be $400,000.

(v) Under section 468A(b) and paragraph (b)(1) of §1.468A–2T, the maximum amount of cash payments that X can make to a nuclear decommissioning fund for any taxable year shall not exceed the lesser of (A) the cost of service amount for such taxable year or (B) the rulng amount for such taxable year. If the projected cost of service amount that was assumed in determining rates under the rate order that was issued on May 15, 1995, is the actual cost of service amount for each taxable year in the funding period and the ruling amounts provided in the initial schedule of ruling amounts are not changed by a subsequent schedule of ruling amounts, then X would be allowed to make a deductible contribution of $400,000 to a nuclear decommissioning fund for each taxable year in the period that begins with 1995 and ends with 2004 and to make a deductible contribution of $200,000 to such nuclear decommissioning fund for each taxable year in the period that begins with 2005 and ends with 2025.

Example (3). (i) Y corporation is a calendar year, accrual method taxpayer engaged in the sale of electric energy generated by power plants owned by Y. On June 1, 1990, a nuclear power plant owned by Y began commercial operations in State B. In the first ratemaking proceeding in which the nuclear power plant was included in rate base, the public utility commission of State B assumed that the nuclear power plant would be included in rate base for each year in the period that began with 1990 and ended with 2020. In addition, for each taxable year in the period that began with 1990 and ended with 2017, Y made a deductible contribution of $750,000 to a nuclear decommissioning fund established by Y. The $750,000 contribution equalled the cost of service amount and the ruling amount for each taxable year in the 27-year period.

(ii) On August 30, 2017, the public utility commission of State B issues a final rate order for the six-year period beginning on January 1, 2018, that authorizes Y to collect decommissioning costs of: (A) $500,000 for 2018, 2019, and 2020; (B) $1,500,000 for 2021; (C) $1,000,000 for 2022; and (D) $750,000 for 2023. In determining the amount of decommissioning costs to be collected from ratepayers residing in State B, the public utility commission assumes that decommissioning costs will no longer be included in cost of service after 2023. In addition, in determining the rate of return to be earned by Y with respect to the nuclear power plant, the public utility commission assumes that the nuclear power plant will no longer be included in rate base after 2020.

(iii) Under paragraph (i)(1) of this section, Y is required to request a revised schedule of ruling amounts on or before June 29, 2018. Assume that on March 15, 2018, Y requests a revised schedule of ruling amounts in accordance with the rules of paragraph (h) of this section. In its request, Y proposes a ruling amount for each taxable year in the period that begins with 2018 and ends with 2023 that corresponds to the amount of decommissioning costs to be included in cost of service under the rate order of August 30, 2017.

(iv) Under paragraph (b) of this section, the level funding limitation period begins on January 1, 1990, and ends on December 31, 2020. Under paragraph (c)(1) of this section, the funding period begins on January 1, 1990, and ends on December 31, 2023.

(v) If (A) the assumptions and determinations used by the public utility commission in establishing the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service are reasonable and (B) the projected balance of the nuclear decommissioning fund as of December 31, 2023 (taking into account the fair market value of the assets of the fund as of January 1, 2018, and the estimated after-tax rate of return to be earned by the assets of the fund) will equal the amount of decommissioning costs allocable to the fund, then, under paragraph (a)(3) of this section, each ruling amount in the revised schedule of ruling amounts shall equal the ruling amount proposed by Y in connection with its request for a schedule of ruling amounts. Thus, the ruling amount for 2018, 2019 and 2020 would be $500,000, the ruling amount for 2021 would be $1,500,000, the ruling amount for 2021 would be $1,500,000, the ruling amount for 2022 would be $750,000. Although the ruling amount specified in the revised schedule of ruling amounts for 2018, 2019, and 2020 is less than a ruling amount specified in a prior schedule of ruling amounts for years prior to 2018, the revised schedule of ruling amounts is consistent with the level funding limitation. Under paragraph (i)(3) of this section, a ruling amount specified in a revised schedule of ruling amounts for any taxable year in the level funding limitation period can be less than one or more ruling amounts specified in a prior schedule of ruling amounts for a prior taxable year. In addition, although the ruling amount specified in the revised schedule of ruling amounts for 2021, 2022 and 2023 is less than a ruling amount specified in such schedule for a prior taxable year, the revised schedule of ruling amounts is consistent with the level funding limitation because the level funding limitation period ends on December 31, 2020.

(d) Decommissioning costs allocable to a fund. The amount of decommissioning costs allocable to a nuclear decommissioning fund is determined for purposes of this section by applying the following rules and definitions:

(1) General rule. The amount of decommissioning costs allocable to a nuclear decommissioning fund is the taxpayer's share of the total estimated cost of decommissioning the nuclear power plant to which the fund relates, multiplied by the qualifying percentage.

(2) Total estimated cost of decommissioning. (i) The total estimated cost of decommissioning a nuclear power plant is the reasonably estimated cost of decommissioning used by the applicable public utility commission in establishing or approving the amount of decommissioning costs included in cost of service for ratemaking purposes. If the estimated costs used by the applicable public utility commission are expected to be paid in any taxable year other than the taxable year that includes the last day of the funding period or the immediately succeeding taxable year, such costs must be adjusted (decreased or increased, as the case may be) by discounting or compounding such costs at the assumed after-tax rate of return from the date such costs are expected to be paid to the last day of the funding period.

(3) Taxpayer's share. The taxpayer's share of the total estimated cost of decommissioning a nuclear power plant equals the total estimated cost of decommissioning such nuclear power plant multiplied by the percentage of such nuclear power plant that is directly owned by the taxpayer (see paragraph (b)(1) of §1.468A–1T for circumstances in which a taxpayer possesses a direct ownership interest in a nuclear power plant).

(4) Qualifying percentage. (i) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b)(5)(i) of §1.468A–8T (relating to a special transitional rule), the qualifying percentage for any nuclear decommissioning fund is equal to the fraction, the numerator of which is the number of taxable years in the estimated period for which the nuclear decommissioning fund is to be in effect and the denominator of which is the number of taxable years in the estimated useful life of the applicable nuclear power plant.

(ii) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b)(5)(ii) of §1.468A–8T (relating to a special transitional rule), the estimated period for which a nuclear decommissioning fund is to be in effect—

(A) Begins on the later of—

(1) The first day of the first taxable year for which a deductible payment is made (or deemed made) to such nuclear decommissioning fund; or

(2) The first day of the taxable year that includes the date that the nuclear power plant to which such nuclear decommissioning fund relates begins commercial operations; and

(B) Ends on the last day of the taxable year that includes the estimated date on which the nuclear power plant to which such nuclear decommissioning fund relates will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes (see paragraph (e)(3) of this section).

(iii) The estimated useful life of a nuclear power plant—

(A) Begins on the first day of the taxable year that includes the date that the nuclear power plant begins commercial operations; and

(B) Ends on the last day of the taxable year that includes the estimated date on which the nuclear power plant will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes (see paragraph (e)(3) of this section).

(e) Determination of estimated dates.

(1) For purposes of paragraph (c)(1)(ii)(A) of this section (relating to the funding period), the estimated date on which decommissioning costs of the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates will no longer be included in the taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes is determined under the ratemaking assumptions that were used to determine the last rates (whether interim or final) that were established or approved by the applicable public utility commission prior to the filing of the current request for a schedule of ruling amounts.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (b)(2)(ii) and (c)(1)(ii)(B) of this section (relating to the level funding limitation period and the funding period), the estimated date on which the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes is determined under the ratemaking assumptions that were used to determine the last rates (whether interim or final) that were established or approved by the applicable public utility commission prior to the filing of the current request for a schedule of ruling amounts.

(3) For purposes of paragraph (d)(4)(ii)(B) of this section (relating to the qualifying percentage), the estimated date on which the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes is determined under the ratemaking assumptions used by the applicable public utility commission in establishing or approving rates during the first ratemaking proceeding in which the nuclear power plant was included in the taxpayer's rate base.

(f) Special rules in the case of rates established or approved by two or more public utility commissions. If two or more public utility commissions establish or approve rates for electric energy generated by a single nuclear power plant, the following rules shall apply in determining the schedule of ruling amounts for the nuclear decommissioning fund that relates to such nuclear power plant:

(1) A schedule of ruling amounts shall be separately determined pursuant to the rules of paragraphs (a) through (e) of this section for each public utility commission that has determined the amount of decommissioning costs to be included in cost of service for ratemaking purposes with respect to such nuclear power plant (see paragraph (g) of this section).

(2) The separate determination with respect to a public utility commission shall be based on the reasonable assumptions and determinations used by such public utility commission and shall take into account only that portion of the total estimated cost of decommissioning the nuclear power plant that is properly allocable to the ratepayers whose rates are established or approved by such public utility commission.

(3) The ruling amount applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund for any taxable year is the sum of the ruling amounts for such taxable year determined under the separate schedules of ruling amounts.

(4) The schedule of ruling amounts for the nuclear decommissioning fund is the schedule of the ruling amounts determined under paragraph (f)(3) of this section.

(g) Requirement of determination by public utility commission of decommissioning costs to be included in cost of service. The Internal Revenue Service will not provide a taxpayer with a schedule of ruling amounts for any nuclear decommissioning fund unless a public utility commission that establishes or approves rates for electric energy generated by the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates has determined the amount of decommissioning costs of such nuclear power plant to be included in the taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes.

(h) Manner of requesting schedule of ruling amounts—(1) In general. (i) In order to receive a ruling amount for any taxable year, a taxpayer must file a request for a schedule of ruling amounts that complies with the requirements of this paragraph (h), the applicable procedural rules set forth in paragraph (e) of §601.201 (Statement of Procedural Rules) and the requirements of any applicable revenue procedure that is in effect on the date the request is filed.

(ii) A separate request for a schedule of ruling amounts is required for each nuclear decommissioning fund established by a taxpayer (see paragraph (a) of §1.468A-5T for rules relating to the number of nuclear decommissioning funds that a taxpayer can establish).

(iii) A request for a schedule of ruling amounts must not contain a request for a ruling on any other issue, whether the issue involves section 468A or another section of the Internal Revenue Code.

(iv) A request for a schedule of ruling amounts must be mailed or delivered to the Internal Revenue Service, Associate Chief Counsel (Technical), Attention CC:C:E, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20224.

(v) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b)(1) of §1.468A-8T, the Internal Revenue Service shall not provide a taxpayer with a ruling amount applicable to any taxable year that ends before the taxable year in which a request for a schedule of ruling amounts is filed. In addition, except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b)(1) of §1.468A-8T, a taxpayer should file a request for a schedule of ruling amounts on or before the 180th day of a taxable year to assure receipt of the schedule of ruling amounts on or before the deemed payment deadline date (within the meaning of paragraph (c)(1) of §1.468A-2T) applicable to such taxable year. If a request for a schedule of ruling amounts (other than a request required by reason of an election under paragraph (f)(2) of §1.468A-2T) is filed after the 180th day of a taxable year, the Internal Revenue Service may be unable to provide the taxpayer with a schedule of ruling amounts on or before the deemed payment deadline date applicable to such taxable year. In determining the date when a request is filed, the principles of sections 7502 and 7503 shall apply.

(vi) Except as provided in paragraph (h)(1)(vii) of this section, a request for a schedule of ruling amounts shall be considered filed only if such request complies substantially with the requirements of this paragraph (h).

(vii) If a request does not comply substantially with the requirements of this paragraph (h), the Internal Revenue Service shall notify the taxpayer of this fact. If the information or materials necessary to comply substantially with the requirements of this paragraph (h) are provided to the Internal Revenue Service within 60 days after such notification, the request shall be considered filed on the date of original submission. If the information or materials necessary to comply substantially with the requirements of this paragraph (h) are not provided within 60 days after such notification, the request shall be considered filed on the date that all information or materials necessary to comply substantially with the requirements of this paragraph (h) are provided.

(2) Information required. A request for a schedule of ruling amounts must contain the following information:

(i) The taxpayer's name, address and taxpayer identification number.

(ii) Whether the request is for an initial schedule of ruling amounts, a mandatory review of the schedule of ruling amounts (see paragraph (i)(1) of this section) or an elective review of the schedule of ruling amounts (see paragraph (i)(2) of this section).

(iii) The name and location of the nuclear power plant with respect to which a schedule of ruling amounts is requested.

(iv) A description of the taxpayer's ownership interest in the nuclear power plant and the percentage of such nuclear power plant that is directly owned by the taxpayer.

(v) An identification of each public utility commission that establishes or approves rates for the furnishing or sale by the taxpayer of electric energy generated by the nuclear power plant and, for each public utility commission identified—

(A) Whether the public utility commission has determined the amount of decommissioning costs to be included in the taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes; and

(B) Whether a proceeding is pending before the public utility commission that may result in an increase or decrease in the amount of decommissioning costs included in the taxpayer's cost of service.

(vi) For each public utility commission that has determined the amount of decommissioning costs to be included in the taxpayer's cost of service for ratemaking purposes—

(A) The amount of decommissioning costs that are to be included in the taxpayer's cost of service for each taxable year under the current determination;

(B) A description of the assumptions, estimates and other factors that were used in determining the amounts described in paragraph (h)(2)(vi)(A) of this section, including each of the following if applicable—

(1) A description of the proposed method of decommissioning the nuclear power plant (for example, prompt removal/dismantlement, safe storage entombment with delayed dismantlement, or safe storage mothballing with delayed dismantlement);

(2) The estimated year in which substantial decommissioning costs will first be incurred;

(3) The estimated year in which the decommissioning of the nuclear power plant will be substantially complete (see paragraph (d)(2) of §1.468A–5T for a definition of substantial completion of decommissioning);

(4) The total estimated cost of decommissioning expressed in current dollars (i.e., based on price levels on the date that the request for a schedule of ruling amounts is made);

(5) The total estimated cost of decommissioning expressed in future dollars (i.e., based on anticipated price levels when expenses are expected to be paid);

(6) For each taxable year in the period that begins with the year specified in paragraph (h)(2)(vi)(B)(2) of this section ("the estimated year in which substantial decommissioning costs will first be incurred") and ends with the year specified in paragraph (h)(2)(vi)(B)(3) of this section ("the estimated year in which the decommissioning of the nuclear power plant will be substantially complete"), the estimated cost of decommissioning expressed in future dollars;

(7) A description of the methodology used in converting the estimated cost of decommissioning expressed in current dollars to the estimated cost of decommissioning expressed in future dollars;

(8) The assumed after-tax rate of return to be earned by the amounts collected for decommissioning;

(9) The proposed period over which decommissioning costs will be included in the cost of service of the taxpayer and the projected amount that will be included in cost of service for each taxable year in the proposed period;

(10) The estimated date on which the nuclear power plant will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes as determined under the ratemaking assumptions that were used to determine the last rates (whether interim or final) that were established or approved by the applicable public utility commission prior to the filing of the current request for a schedule of ruling amounts; and

(11) The estimated date on which the nuclear power plant will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes as determined under the ratemaking assumptions that were used by the applicable public utility commission in establishing or approving rates during the first ratemaking proceeding in which the nuclear power plant was included in the taxpayer's rate base.

(C) A copy of the public utility commission's most recent determination that includes decommissioning costs in cost of service; and

(D) A copy of each engineering or cost study that was relied on or used by the taxpayer or the public utility commission in determining the amount of decommissioning costs to be included in the taxpayer's cost of service under the current determination.

(vii) For each proceeding pending before a public utility commission that may result in an increase or decrease in the amount of decommissioning costs included in the taxpayer's cost of service—

(A) A description of the stage of the proceeding;

(B) The amount of decommissioning costs that are proposed to be included in the taxpayer's cost of service for each taxable year;

(C) A description of the assumptions, estimates and other factors that were used in determining the amount of decommissioning costs that are proposed to be included in the taxpayer's cost of service for each taxable year, including each of the items described in paragraph (h)(2)(vi)(B) of this section if applicable; and

(D) A copy of each engineering or cost study that was relied on or used by the taxpayer or the public utility commission in determining the amount of decommissioning costs that are proposed to be included in the taxpayer's cost of service.

(viii) A proposed schedule of ruling amounts for each taxable year remaining in the funding period as of the date the schedule of ruling amounts will first apply.

(ix) A description of the assumptions, estimates and other factors that were used in determining the proposed schedule of ruling amounts, including each of the following—

(A) The level funding limitation period (as such term is defined in paragraph (b)(2) of this section);

(B) The funding period (as such term is defined in paragraph (c) of this section);

(C) The assumed after-tax rate of return to be earned by the assets of the nuclear decommissioning fund;

(D) The fair market value of the assets (if any) of the nuclear decommissioning fund as of the first day of the first taxable year to which the schedule of ruling amounts will apply;

(E) The amount expected to be earned by the assets of the nuclear decommissioning fund (based on the after-tax rate of return applicable to the fund) over the period that begins on the first day of the first taxable year to which the schedule of ruling amounts will apply and ends on the last day of the funding period;

(F) The amount of decommissioning costs allocable to the nuclear decommissioning fund (as such term is defined in paragraph (d) of this section);

(G) The total estimated cost of decommissioning (as such term is defined in paragraph (d)(2) of this section);

(H) The taxpayer's share of the total estimated cost of decommissioning (as such term is defined in paragraph (d)(3) of this section);

(I) The qualifying percentage (as such term is defined in paragraph (d)(4)(i) of this section);

(J) The estimated period for which the nuclear decommissioning fund is to be in effect (as such term is defined in paragraph (d)(4)(ii) of this section); and

(K) The estimated useful life of the nuclear power plant (as such term is defined in paragraph (d)(4)(iii) of this section).

(x) If applicable, an explanation of the need for a schedule of ruling amounts determined on a basis other than the rules of paragraphs (a) through (g) of this section and a description of an alternative basis for determining a schedule of ruling amounts (see paragraph (a)(3) of this section).

(xi) Any other information required by the Internal Revenue Service that may be necessary or useful in determining the schedule of ruling amounts.

(3) Administrative procedures. The Internal Revenue Service may prescribe administrative procedures that supplement the provisions of paragraphs (h)(1) and (h)(2) of this section. In addition, the Internal Revenue Service, in its discretion, can waive the requirements of paragraph (h)(1) and (h)(2) under appropriate circumstances.

(i) Review and revision of schedule of ruling amounts—(1) Mandatory review. (i) Any taxpayer that has obtained a schedule of ruling amounts pursuant to paragraph (h) of this section must file a request for a revised schedule of ruling amounts on or before the 180th day of the 10th taxable year following the close of the taxable year in which the most recent schedule of ruling amounts was received. In addition, if any of the events specified in paragraph (i)(1)(iii) of this section occurs, the taxpayer must file a request for a revised schedule of ruling amounts on or before the 180th day of the taxable year following the taxable year in which the event occurs. See paragraph (f)(3) of §1.468A–2T for an exception to the 180-day requirement in the case of certain retroactive adjustments to interim rate orders. See, also, paragraph (a)(2) of §1.468A–6T for rules requiring a revised schedule of ruling amounts in the case of a sale, exchange or other disposition of a portion of an electing taxpayer's direct ownership interest in a nuclear power plant.

(ii) A request for a schedule of ruling amounts required by paragraph (i)(1)(i) of this section must be made in accordance with the rules of paragraph (h) of this section. If a taxpayer does not properly file a request for a revised schedule of ruling amounts by the date provided in paragraph (i)(1)(i) of this section or paragraph (f)(3) of §1.468A–2T, the taxpayer's ruling amount for the taxable year that includes such date and for all succeeding taxable years until a new schedule is obtained shall be zero unless, in its discretion, the Internal Revenue Service provides otherwise in such new schedule of ruling amounts.

(iii) A taxpayer is required to request a revised schedule of ruling amounts in accordance with the rules of paragraph (h) of this section if—

(A) Any public utility commission that establishes or approves rates for the furnishing or sale of electric energy generated by a nuclear power plant to which a nuclear decommissioning fund relates increases the proposed period over which decommissioning costs of such nuclear power plant will be included in cost of service for ratemaking purposes and the Internal Revenue Service was not notified of the increase in the taxpayer's most recent request for a schedule of ruling amounts;

(B) Any public utility commission that establishes or approves rates for the furnishing or sale of electric energy generated by a nuclear power plant to which a nuclear decommissioning fund relates adjusts the estimated date on which such nuclear power plant will no longer be included in the taxpayer's rate base for ratemaking purposes and the Internal Revenue Service was not notified of the adjustment in the taxpayer's most recent request for a schedule of ruling amounts; or

(C) The cost of service amount applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund for any taxable year (as defined in paragraph (b)(2) of §1.468A–2T) is less than the cost of service amount applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund for the immediately preceding taxable year and the Internal Revenue Service was not notified of the decrease in the taxpayer's most recent request for a schedule of ruling amounts.

(2) Elective review. Any taxpayer that has obtained a schedule of ruling amounts pursuant to paragraph (h) of this section can request a revised schedule of ruling amounts. Such a request must be made in accordance with the rules of paragraph (h) of this section; thus, the Internal Revenue Service generally will not provide a revised ruling amount applicable to any taxable year that ends before the taxable year in which the request for a revised schedule of ruling amounts is filed (see paragraph (h)(1)(v) of this section).

(3) Determination of revised schedule of ruling amounts. A revised schedule of ruling amounts for a nuclear decommissioning fund shall be determined under this section without regard to any schedule of ruling amounts for such nuclear decommissioning fund that was issued prior to such revised schedule. Thus, a ruling amount specified in a revised schedule of ruling amounts for any taxable year in the level funding limitation period can be less than one or more ruling amounts specified in a prior schedule of ruling amounts for a prior taxable year.

§1.468A–4T Treatment of nuclear decommissioning fund (temporary)

(a) In general. A nuclear decommissioning fund is subject to tax on all of its modified gross income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section) for any taxable year at a single rate equal to the maximum rate in effect under section 11(b) (determined without regard to the amendment to section 11(b) made by the Tax Reform Act of 1984). Such tax is in lieu of any other tax that may be imposed under subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code on the income earned by the assets of the nuclear decommissioning fund.

(b) Modified gross income. For purposes of this section, the term "modified gross income" means gross income as defined under section 61 computed with the following modifications:

(1) The amount of any payment to the nuclear decommissioning fund with respect to which a deduction is allowed under section 468A(a) is excluded from gross income.

(2) A deduction is allowed for the amount of administrative costs and other incidental expenses of the nuclear decommissioning fund (including taxes, legal expenses, accounting expenses, actuarial expenses and trustee expenses, but not including decommissioning costs) that are otherwise deductible and that are paid by the nuclear decommissioning fund to any person other than the electing taxpayer. An expense is otherwise deductible for purposes of this paragraph (b)(2) if it would be deductible under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code in determining the taxable income of a corporation. For example, because Federal income taxes are not deductible under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code in determining the taxable income of a corporation, the tax imposed by section 468A(e)(2) and paragraph (a) of this section is not deductible in determining the modified gross income of a nuclear decommissioning fund. Similarly, because certain expenses allocable to tax-exempt interest income are not deductible under section 265 of the Internal Revenue Code in determining the taxable income of a corporation, such expenses are not deductible in determining the modified gross income of a nuclear decommissioning fund.

(3) A deduction is allowed for the amount of otherwise deductible losses that are sustained by the nuclear decommissioning fund in connection with the sale, exchange or worthlessness of an investment described in paragraph (a)(3)(i)(C) of §1.468A-5T. A loss is otherwise deductible for purposes of this paragraph (b)(3) if such a loss would be deductible by a corporation under section 165(f) or (g) and sections 1211(a) and 1212(a).

(4) A deduction is allowed for the amount of an otherwise deductible net operating loss of the nuclear decommissioning fund. For purposes of this paragraph, the net operating loss of a nuclear decommissioning fund for a taxable year is the amount by which the deductions allowable under paragraph (b)(2) and (3) of this section exceed the gross income of the nuclear decommissioning fund computed with the modification described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section. A net operating loss is otherwise deductible for purposes of this paragraph (b)(4) if such a net operating loss would be deductible by a corporation under section 172(a).

(c) Special rules—(1) Period for computation of modified gross income. The modified gross income of a nuclear decommissioning fund must be computed on the basis of the taxable year of the electing taxpayer. If an electing taxpayer changes its taxable year, each nuclear decommissioning fund of the electing taxpayer must change to the new taxable year. See section 442 and §1.442-1 for rules relating to the change to a new taxable year.

(2) Recognition of gain or loss upon distribution of property by a fund. A distribution of property by a nuclear decommissioning fund (whether an actual distribution or a deemed distriubtion) shall be considered a disposition of property by the nuclear decommissioning fund for purposes of section 1001. In determining the amount of gain or loss from such disposition, the amount realized by the nuclear decommissioning fund shall be the fair market value of the property on the date of disposition. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b)(3) of this section, a nuclear decommissioning fund must include in modified gross income the amount of any gain or loss realized on the disposition of the property notwithstanding any provision of the Internal Revenue Code that provides that the gain or loss is not realized or recognized.

(3) Denial of credits against tax. The tax imposed on the modified gross income of a nuclear decommissioning fund under paragraph (a) of this section is not to be reduced or offset by any credits against tax provided by part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code other than the credit provided by section 31(c) for amounts withheld under section 3406 (back-up withholding).

(4) Other corporate taxes inapplicable. Although the modified gross income of a nuclear decommissioning fund is subject to tax at a rate equal to the maximum rate in effect under section 11(b) (determined without regard to the amendment to section 11(b) made by the Tax Reform Act of 1984), a nuclear decommissioning fund is not subject to the other taxes imposed on corporations under subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. For example, a nuclear decommissioning fund is not subject to the corporate minimum tax imposed by section 56, the accumulated earnings tax imposed by section 531, the personal holding company tax imposed by section 541, and the alternative tax imposed on a corporation under section 1201(a).

(d) Treatment as corporation for purposes of subtitle F. For purposes of subtitle F of the Internal Revenue Code and the regulations thereunder, a nuclear decommissioning fund is to be treated as if it were a corporation and the tax imposed by section 468A(e)(2) and paragraph (a) of this section is to be treated as a tax imposed by section 11. Thus, for example, the following rules apply:

(1) A nuclear decommissioning fund must file a return with respect to the tax imposed by section 468A(e)(2) and paragraph (a) of this section for each taxable year (or portion thereof) that the fund is in existence even though no amount is included in the gross income of the fund for such taxable year. The return is to be made on Form 1120-ND. For purposes of this paragraph (d)(1), a nuclear decommissioning fund is in existence for the period that—

(i) Begins on the date that the first deductible payment is actually made to such nuclear decommissioning fund; and

(ii) Ends on the date of termination (see paragraph (d) of §1.468A-5T), the date of disqualification (see paragraph (c) of §1.468A-5T) or the date that the electing taxpayer disposes of its entire direct ownership interest in the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates (see paragraph (a) of §1.468A-6T), whichever is applicable.

(2) For each taxable year of the nuclear decommissioning fund, the return described in paragraph (d)(1) of this section must be filed on or before the 15th day of the third month following the close of such taxable year unless the nuclear decommissioning fund is granted an extension of time for filing under section 6081. If such an extension is granted for any taxable year, the return for such taxable year must be filed on or before the extended due date for such taxable year. In no event will the filing of the initial return of a nuclear decommissioning fund be required before January 7, 1987.

(3) A nuclear decommissioning fund must provide its employer identification number on returns, statements and other documents as required by the forms and instructions relating thereto. The employer identification number is obtained by filing a Form SS-4 in accordance with the instructions relating thereto.

(4) A nuclear decommissioning fund must make payments of estimated tax during its taxable year as provided in section 6154(b) if its estimated tax for such taxable year can reasonably be expected to be $40 or more. For purposes of section 6154 and this section, the estimated tax of a nuclear decommissioning fund for any taxable year is the amount that the nuclear decommissioning fund estimates as the amount of tax imposed by section 468A(e)(2) and paragraph (a) of this section for such taxable year.

(5) A nuclear decommissioning fund must deposit all payments of tax imposed by section 468A (e)(2) and paragraph (a) of this section (including any payments of estimated tax) with an authorized government depositary in accordance with §1.6302-1.

(6) A nuclear decommissioning fund is subject to the addition to tax imposed by section 6655 in case of a failure to pay estimated income tax. For purposes of section 6655 and this section—

(i) The tax with respect to which the amount of the underpayment is computed in the case of a nuclear decommissioning fund is the tax imposed by section 468A(e)(2) and paragraph (a) of this section; and

(ii) A nuclear decommissioning fund is to be considered a large corporation under section 6655(i) if such nuclear decommissioning fund had modified gross income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section) of $1,000,000 or more for any taxable year during the testing period.

§1.468A-5T Nuclear decommissioning fund qualification requirements; prohibitions against self-dealing; disqualification of nuclear decommissioning fund; and termination of fund upon substantial completion of decommissioning (temporary)

(a) Qualification requirements—(1) In general. A nuclear decommissioning fund must be a trust established or organized and maintained at all times in the United States for the exclusive purpose of providing funds for the decommissioning of a nuclear power plant. A separate nuclear decommissioning fund is required for each electing taxpayer and for each nuclear power plant with respect to which an electing taxpayer possesses a direct ownership interest. An electing taxpayer can maintain only one nuclear decommissioning fund for each nuclear power plant with respect to which the taxpayer elects the application of section 468A.

(2) Limitation on contributions. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b)(1)(ii) of §1.468A-6T (relating to the acquisition of an interest in a nuclear power plant from a taxpayer that maintained a nuclear decommissioning fund with respect to such nuclear power plant), a nuclear decommissioning fund is not permitted to accept any contributions in cash or property other than cash payments with repect to which a deduction is allowed under section 468A(a) and paragraph (a) of §1.468A-2T. Thus, for example, securities may not be contributed to a nuclear decommissioning fund even if the taxpayer or a fund established by the taxpayer previously held such securities for the purpose of providing funds for the decommissioning of a nuclear power plant.

(3) Limitation on use of fund—(i) In general. The assets of a nuclear decommissioning fund are to be used exclusively—

(A) To satisfy, in whole or in part, the liability of the electing taxpayer for decommissioning costs of the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates;

(B) To pay administrative costs and other incidental expenses of the nuclear decommissioning fund; and

(C) To the extent that the assets of the nuclear decommissioning fund are not currently required for the purposes described in paragraph (a)(3)(i)(A) or (B) of this section, to invest in—

(1) Public debt securities of the United States;

(2) Obligations of a State or local government that are not in default as to principal or interest; or

(3) Time or demand deposits in a bank (as defined in section 581) or an insured credit union (within the meaning of section 101(6) of the Federal Credit Union Act, 12 U.S.C. 1752 (7) (1982)), located in the United States.

(ii, Terms defined. For purposes of paragraph (a)(3)(i) of this section:

(A) The term "administrative costs and other incidental expenses of a nuclear decommissioning fund" means all ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in connection with the operation of the nuclear decommissioning fund. Such term includes the tax imposed by section 468A(e)(2) and paragraph (a) of §1.468A-4T, any State or local tax imposed on the income or the assets of the fund, legal expenses, accounting expenses, actuarial expenses and trustee expenses. Such term does not include decommissioning costs. Such term also does not include the excise tax imposed on the trustee or other disqualified person under section 4951 or the reimbursement of any expenses incurred in connection with the assertion of such tax unless such expenses are considered reasonable and necessary under section 4951(d)(2)(C) and it is determined that the trustee or other disqualified person is not liable for the excise tax.

(B) The term "public debt securities of the United States" means obligations that are taken into consideration for purposes of the public debt limit.

(C) The term "obligations of a State of local government" means the obligations of a State or local governmental unit the interest on which is exempt from tax under section 103(a).

(D) The term "time or demand deposits" includes checking accounts, savings accounts, certificates of deposit or other time or demand deposits. The term does not include common or collective trust funds, such as a common trust fund as defined in section 584.

(b) Prohibitions against self-dealing—(1) In general. Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph (b), the excise taxes imposed by section 4951 shall apply to each act of self-dealing between a disqualified person and a nuclear decommissioning fund.

(2) Self-dealing defined. For purposes of this paragraph (b), the term "self-dealing" means any act described in section 4951(d), except—

(i) A payment by a nuclear decommissioning fund for the purpose of satisfying, in whole or in part, the liability of the electing taxpayer for decommissioning costs of the nuclear power plant to which the nuclear decommissioning fund relates;

(ii) A withdrawal of an excess contribution by the electing taxpayer pursuant to the rules of paragraph (c)(2) of this section;

(iii) A payment of amounts remaining in a nuclear decommissioning fund to the electing taxpayers after the termination of such fund (as determined under paragraph (d) of this section); or

(iv) Any act described in section 4951(d)(2)(B) or (C).

(3) Disqualified person defined. For purposes of this paragraph (b), the term "disqualified person" includes each person described in section 4951(e)(4) and paragraph (d) of §53.4951–1.

(c) Disqualification of nuclear decommissioning fund—(1) In general. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (c)(2) of this section, if at any time during a taxable year of a nuclear decommissioning fund—

(i) The nuclear decommissioning fund does not satisfy the requirements of paragraph (a) of this section, or

(ii) The nuclear decommissioning fund and a disqualified person engage in an act of self-dealing (as defined in paragraph (b)(2) of this section), the Internal Revenue Service may, in its discretion, disqualify all or any portion of the fund as of the date that the fund does not satisfy the requirements of paragraph (a) of this section or the date on which the act of self-dealing occurs, whichever is applicable, or as of any subsequent date ("date of disqualification"). The Internal Revenue Service shall notify the electing taxpayer of the disqualification of a nuclear decommissioning fund and the date of disqualification by registered or certified mail to the last known address of the electing taxpayer (the "notice of disqualification").

(2) Exception to disqualification—(i) In general. A nuclear decommissioning fund will not be disqualified under paragraph (c)(1) of this section by reason of an excess contribution or the withdrawal of such excess contribution by an electing taxpayer if the amount of the excess contribution is withdrawn by the electing taxpayer on or before the date prescribed by law (including extensions) for filing the return of the nuclear decommissioning fund for the taxable year to which the excess contribution relates.

(ii) Excess contribution defined. For purposes of this section, an excess contribution is the amount by which cash payments made (or deemed made) to a nuclear decommissioning fund during any taxable year exceed the payment limitation contained in section 468A(b) and paragraph (b) of §1.468A–2T.

(iii) Taxation of income attributable to an excess contribution. The income of a nuclear decommissioning fund attributable to an excess contribution is required to be included in the gross income of the nuclear decommissioning fund under paragraph (b) of §1.468A–4T.

(3) Effect of disqualification. If all or any portion of a nuclear decommissioning fund is disqualified under paragraph (c)(1) of this section, the portion of the nuclear decommissioning fund that is disqualified is treated as distributed to the electing taxpayer on the date of disqualification. Such a distribution shall be treated for purposes of section 1001 as a disposition of property held by the nuclear decommissioning fund (see paragraph (c)(2) of §1.468A–4T). In addition, the electing taxpayer must include in gross income for the taxable year that includes the date of disqualification an amount equal to the product of—

(i) The fair market value of the assets of the fund determined as of the date of disqualification, reduced by—

(A) The amount of any excess contribution that was not withdrawn before the date of disqualification if no deduction was allowed with respect to such excess contribution; and

(B) The amount of any deemed distribution that was not actually distributed before the date of disqualification (as determined under paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of §1.468A–2T) if the amount of the deemed distribution was included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer for the taxable year in which the deemed distribution occurred;

and

(ii) The fraction of the nuclear decommissioning fund that was disqualified under paragraph (c)(1) of this section.

Contributions made to a disqualified fund after the date of disqualification are not deductible under section 468(a) and paragraph (a) of §1.468A–2T, or, if the fund is disqualified only in part, are deductible only to the extent provided in the notice of disqualification. In addition, if any assets of the fund that are deemed distributed under this paragraph (c)(3) are held by the fund after the date of disqualification (or if additional assets are acquired with nondeductible contributions made to the fund after the date of disqualification), the income earned by such assets after the date of disqualification must be included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer (see section 671) to the extent that such income is otherwise includible under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code. An electing taxpayer can establish a nuclear decommissioning fund to replace a fund that has been disqualified in its entirely only if the Internal Revenue Service specifically consents to the establishment of a replacement fund in connection with the issuance of an initial schedule of ruling amounts for such replacement fund.

(d) Termination of nuclear decommissioning fund upon substantial completion of decommissioning—(1) In general. Upon substantial completion of the decommissioning of a nuclear power plant to which a nuclear decommissioning fund relates, such nuclear decommissioning fund shall be considered terminated and treated as having distributed all of its assets on the date the termination occurs. Such a distribution shall be treated for purposes of section 1001 as a disposition of property held by the nuclear decommissioning fund (see paragraph (c)(2) of §1.468A–4T). In addition, unless the exception provided in paragraph (d)(2)(iv) of §1.468A–2T applies, the electing taxpayer shall include in gross income for the taxable year in which the termination occurs an amount equal to the fair market value of the assets of the fund determined as of the date of termination. Contributions made to a nuclear decommissioning fund after the termination date are not deductible under section 468A(a) and paragraph (a) of §1.468A–2T. In addition, if any assets are held by the fund after the termination date, the income earned by such assets after the termination date must be included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer (see section 671) to the extent that such income is otherwise includible under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code. Finally, an electing taxpayer using an accrual method of accounting is allowed a deduction for nuclear decommissioning costs that are incurred during any taxable year (see paragraph (e) of §1.468A–2T) even if such costs are incurred after substantial completion of decommissioning (e.g., expenses incurred to monitor or safeguard the plant site).

(2) Substantial completion of decommissioning defined. (i) For purposes of this paragraph (d), the substantial completion of the decommissioning of a nuclear power plant occurs at the time that the maximum acceptable radioactivity levels mandated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (or its successor) with respect to a decommissioned nuclear power plant are satisified.

(ii) The Internal Revenue Service may prescribe administrative procedures that clarify the definition of substantial completion of decommissioning to take into account technological change or amendments to the rules issued by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (or its successor).

§1.468A–6T Disposition of an interest in a nuclear power plant (temporary)

(a) Treatment of selling taxpayer—(1) In general. In the case of any sale, exchange or other disposition of any portion of a direct ownership interest in a nuclear power plant with respect to which the taxpayer maintains a nuclear decommissionng fund, the portion of the nuclear decommissioning fund that relates to the direct ownership interest sold, exchanged or otherwise disposed of is treated as distributed to the taxpayer on the date of such disposition. (Such a distribution shall be treated for purposes of section 1001 as a disposition of property held by the nuclear decommissioning fund (see paragraph (c)(2) of §1.468A–4T)). In addition, the electing taxpayer must include in gross income for the taxable year in which the disposition of the interest in the nuclear power plant occurs an amount equal to the product of—

(i) The fair market value of the assets of the fund determined as of the date of disposition, reduced by—

(A) The amount of any excess contribution that was not withdrawn before the date of disposition if no deduction was allowed with respect to such excess contribution; and

(B) The amount of any deemed distribution that was not actually distributed before the date of disposition (as determined under paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of §1.468A–2T) if the amount of the deemed distribution was included in the gross income of the electing taxpayer for the taxable year in which the deemed distribution occurred;

and

(ii) The fraction of the taxpayer's direct ownership interest sold, exchanged or otherwise disposed of in such transaction.

Such amount must be included in gross income even if no gain was recognized or realized on the sale, exchange or other disposition of the interest in the nuclear power plant. Thus, for example, such amount must be included in gross income even if the exchange of the interest in the nuclear power plant is described in section 351, 368, 721 or 1031. In addition, if any assets of the fund that are deemed distributed under this paragraph (a)(1) are held by the fund after the date of disposition, the income earned by such assets after the date of disposition must be included in the gross income of the taxpayer (see section 671) to the extent that such income is otherwise includible under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code.

(2) Revised schedule of ruling amounts required. If the taxpayer retains a direct ownership interest in the nuclear power plant after the sale, exchange or other disposition of a portion of its former direct ownership interest and does not file a request for a revised schedule of ruling amounts on or before the 90th day after the date of disposition, the ruling amount applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund to which the nuclear power plant relates for the taxable year in which such disposition occurs and all succeeding taxable years until a new schedule is obtained shall be zero unless, in its discretion, the Internal Revenue Service provides otherwise in such new schedule of ruling amounts.

(b) Treatment of purchasing taxpayer—(1) In general. (i) A taxpayer that purchases or otherwise acquires a direct ownership interest in a nuclear power plant (a "purchasing taxpayer") from a taxpayer that on the date of acquisition maintains a nuclear decommissioning fund with respect to such nuclear power plant can elect to make a deductible contribution to a nuclear decommissioning fund established by the purchasing taxpayer in an amount not greater than the amount included in the gross income of the selling taxpayer under paragraph (a)(1) of this section. Such contribution must be made (or deemed made under paragraph (c)(1) of §1.468A–2T) during the purchasing taxpayer's taxable year in which the date of acquisition occurs. The amount of any contribution made to a nuclear decommissioning fund pursuant to this paragraph (b)(1)(i) is not taken into account in applying the payment limitation of paragraph (b) of §1.468A–2T and the taxpayer is not required to obtain a ruling amount with respect to such contribution.

(ii) A deductible contribution made by a purchasing taxpayer under paragraph (b)(1)(i) of this section may be made in cash. In addition, for purposes of paragraph (b)(1)(i) of this section only, a purchasing taxpayer may contribute property described in paragraph (a)(3)(i)(C) of §1.468A–5T to a nuclear decommissioning fund established by the purchasing taxpayer if the property—

(A) Was owned by the nuclear decommissioning fund of the selling taxpayer immediately before the sale, exchange or other disposition of an interest in the nuclear power plant;

(B) Was distributed to the selling taxpayer under paragraph (a)(1) of this section; and

(C) Was acquired by the purchasing taxpayer as part of the same transaction in which the interest in the nuclear power plant was acquired.

If the purchasing taxpayer contributes property to a nuclear decommissioning fund under this paragraph (b)(1)(ii), the amount of the contribution (and the basis of the property to the nuclear decommissioning fund) shall equal the fair market value of the property on the date that the property was distributed to the selling taxpayer under paragraph (a)(1) of this section and no gain or loss shall be recognized by the purchasing taxpayer with respect to the transfer of the property to the nuclear decommissioning fund. In addition, no gain or loss shall be recognized by the selling taxpayer with respect to the transfer of such property to the purchasing taxpayer, even if the purchasing taxpayer does not contribute the property to a nuclear decommissioning fund. The nuclear decommissioning fund of the selling taxpayer shall recognize gain or loss on the distribution of such property by the fund (see paragraph (a)(1) of this section). Finally, if the purchasing taxpayer does not contribute the property to a nuclear decommissioning fund under this paragraph (b)(1)(ii), the basis of the property to the purchasing taxpayer shall be the fair market value of the property on the date that the property was distributed to the selling taxpayer under paragraph (a)(1) of this section.

(iii) Except as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(i) of this section, a purchasing taxpayer is allowed a deduction under section 468A(a) for the taxable year in which the taxpayer makes a cash payment (or is deemed to make a cash payment) to a nuclear decommissioning fund only if the taxpayer has received a schedule of ruling amounts for the nuclear decommissioning fund that includes a ruling amount for such taxable year (see §1.468A–3T).

(2) Manner of making election. A purchasing taxpayer is allowed a deduction under paragraph (b)(1)(i) of this section only if the Election Statement (as required by §1.468A–7T) for the taxable year in which the acquisition occurs indicates that an election is made under paragraph (b) of §1.468A–6T. In addition, the Election Statement must include—

(i) The name, address and taxpayer identification number of the selling taxpayer;

(ii) The date of the sale, exchange or other disposition;

(iii) The amount included in the gross income of the selling taxpayer under paragraph (a) of this section;

(iv) The amount of the cash payment made (or deemed made) to the nuclear decommissioning fund pursuant to this paragraph (b); and

(v) The fair market value of the property contributed to the nuclear decommissioning fund pursuant to paragraph (b)(1)(ii) of this section determined as of the date that the property was distributed to the selling taxpayer.

§1.468A–7T Manner of and time for making election (temporary)

(a) In general. An eligible taxpayer is allowed a deduction for the taxable year in which the taxpayer makes a cash payment (or is deemed to make a cash payment) to a nuclear decommissioning fund only if the taxpayer elects the application of section 468A. A separate election under section 468A is required for each nuclear power plant and for each taxable year with respect to which a deductible cash payment is made to a nuclear decommissioning fund. The election under section 468A for any taxable year is irrevocable and must be made by attaching a statement ("Election Statement") and a copy of the schedule of ruling amounts provided pursuant to the rules of §1.468A–3T to the taxpayer's Federal income tax return for such taxable year. Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b)(3) of §1.468A–8T, the return to which the Election Statement and a copy of the schedule of ruling amounts is attached must be filed on or before the time perscribed by law (including extensions) for filing the return for the taxable year with respect to which section 468A is to apply.

(b) Required information. The Election Statement must include the following information:

(1) The legend "Election Under Section 468A" typed or legibly printed at the top of the first page.

(2) The taxpayer's name, address and taxpayer identification number.

(3) The taxable year for which the election is made.

(4) For each nuclear power plant with respect to which an election is made—

(i) The name and location of the nuclear power plant;

(ii) The name and employer identification number of the nuclear decommissioning fund;

(iii) The total amount of actual cash payments made to the nuclear decommissioning fund during the taxable year that were not treated as deemed cash payments under paragraph (c)(1) of §1.468A–2T for a prior taxable year;

(iv) The total amount of cash payments deemed made to the nuclear decommissioning fund under paragraph (c)(1) of §1.468A–2T for the taxable year; and

(v) The cost of service amount for the taxable year (see paragraph (b)(2) of §1.468A–2T).

§1.468A–8T Effective date and transitional rules (temporary)

(a) Effective date—(1) In general. Section 468A and §1.468A–1T through §1.468A–8T are effective on July 18, 1984, with respect to taxable years ending on or after such date.

(2) Cut-off method applicable to electing taxpayers. Any amount of nuclear decommissioning costs taken into account before July 18, 1984, for a taxable year beginning before such date, is not allowable as a deduction after July 17, 1984, under section 468A(c)(2) and paragraph (e) of §1.468A–2T.

(b) Transitional rules—(1) Time for filing request for schedule of ruling amounts. If a taxpayer files a request for a schedule of ruling amounts under paragraph (h) of §1.468A–3T on or before July 10, 1987, and the requirement of paragraph (g) of §1.468A–3T is satisfied before the date the request is filed, the limitations contained in paragraph (h)(1)(v) of §1.468A–3T shall not apply with respect to, and the Internal Revenue Service will provide a ruling amount for, any taxable year that ends on or after July 18, 1984, and begins before January 1, 1987.

(2) Time for making payment to a nuclear decommissioning fund. The amount of any cash payment to a nuclear decommissioning fund that relates to a taxable year that ends on or after July 18, 1984, and begins before January 1, 1987, shall be deemed made during such taxable year if—

(i) The taxpayer makes such payment on or before the 30th day after the date the taxpayer receives a ruling amount applicable to such taxable year; and

(ii) The taxpayer irrevocably designates the amount of such payment as relating to such taxable year on the Election Statement attached to its Federal income tax return (or amended return) for such taxable year.

(3) Manner of and time for making election. A taxpayer can elect the application of section 468A for a taxable year that ends on or after July 18, 1984, and begins before January 1, 1987, by attaching the Election Statement and a copy of the schedule of ruling amounts to an amended return for such taxable year that is filed on or before the 90th day after the date that the taxpayer receives a ruling amount for such taxable year.

(4) Determination of cost of service limitation. For purposes of section 468A(b)(1) and paragraph (b)(2) of §1.468A–2T, the cost of service amount applicable to a nuclear decommissioning fund for the taxable year that includes July 18, 1984, is the amount determined under paragraph (b)(2) of §1.468A–2T multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the amount of nuclear decommissioning costs that is directly or indirectly charged to customers in such taxable year and that is included in the taxable income of the taxpayer for such taxable year and the denominator of which is the amount of nuclear decommissioning costs that is directly or indirectly charged to customers in such taxable year and that would have been includible in the gross income of the taxpayer if such amount was taken into account by the taxpayer in the same manner as amounts charged for electric energy (see §1.88–1T). Under the preceding sentence, an amount of decommissioning costs is included in the taxable income of a taxpayer for the taxable year that includes July 18, 1984, if the amount is included in gross income for such taxable year and no deduction (other than a deduction allowed under section 468A(a) and paragraph (a) of §1.468A–2T) is claimed with respect to such amount for such taxable year.

(5) Determination of qualifying percentage. (i) In the case of a nuclear power plant that began commercial operations before July 18, 1984, and whose estimated useful life for ratemaking purposes was adjusted by a public utility commission before July 18, 1984—

(A) If a taxpayer requests a schedule of ruling amounts for such nuclear power plant on or before July 10, 1987, the qualifying percentage equals the percentage of total depreciation costs (determined without regard to capitalized decommissioning costs) with respect to the nuclear power plant that remains to be recovered for ratemaking purposes as of the first day of the taxable year that includes July 18, 1984; or

(B) If a taxpayer does not request a schedule of ruling amounts for such nuclear power plant on or before July 10, 1987, the qualifying percentage equals the percentage of total depreciation costs (determined without regard to capitalized decommissioning costs) with respect to the nuclear power plant that remains to be recovered for ratemaking purposes as of the first day of the first taxable year for which a deductible payment is made to the nuclear decommissioning fund that relates to such nuclear power plant.

(ii) In the case of a nuclear power plant that began commercial operations on or before July 10, 1986 (other than a plant described in paragraph (b)(5)(i) of this section (i.e., a plant that began such operations, and whose estimated useful life was adjusted, before July 18, 1984)), if a taxpayer requests a schedule of ruling amounts for such nuclear power plant on or before July 10, 1987, the estimated period for which the nuclear decommissioning fund to which the nuclear power plant relates is to be in effect for purposes of paragraph (d)(4)(ii) of §1.468A–3T begins on the later of—

(A) The first day of the taxable year that includes the date that the nuclear power plant began commercial operations; or

(B) The first day of the taxable year that includes July 18, 1984.

(6) Limitation on payments to a nuclear decommissioning fund—(i) The limitation on payments to a nuclear decommissioning fund (see section 468A(b) and paragraph (b) of §1.468A–2T) for a taxable year that ends on or after July 18, 1984, and begins before January 1, 1987, shall be determined under paragraph (b)(6)(ii) of this section if—

(A) The electing taxpayer receives a ruling amount applicable to such taxable year after the deemed payment deadline date for such taxable year; and

(b) The requirements of paragraph (b)(6)(iii) of this section are satisfied.

(ii) If the limitation on payments to a nuclear decommissioning fund for a taxable year is determined under this paragraph (b)(6)(ii), the maximum amount of cash payments made (or deemed made) to the nuclear decommissioning fund during such taxable year shall not exceed the sum of—

(A) The amount determined under section 468A(b) and paragraph (b) of §1.468A–2T (i.e., the lesser of the cost of service amount or the ruling amount) after application of the transitional rules contained in paragraph (b)(4) and (5) of this section; and

(b) The amount of after-tax earnings that would have accumulated to the date of actual payment to the nuclear decommissioning fund if the amount described in paragraph (b)(6)(ii)(A) of this section had been contributed to the nuclear decommissioning fund on the deemed payment deadline date for such taxable year.

In determining the after-tax earnings that would have accumulated to the date of payment, an electing taxpayer must use the after-tax rate of return of the nuclear decommissioning fund that was used in determining the schedule of ruling amounts.

(iii) In order to compute the payment limitation under paragraph (b)(6)(ii) of this section, an electing taxpayer must—

(A) Indicate on the Election Statement for the taxable year that the amount of the deductible payment is greater than the amount determined under section 468A(b) and paragraph (b) of §1.468A–2T because paragraph (b) (6) of §1.468A–8T applies; and

(b) Not claim any interest under section 6611 with respect to any overpayment of tax that is attributable to a deduction allowed with respect to such payment (see paragraph (b)(7) of this section).

(iv) The following example illustrates the application of the principles of paragraph (b)(6) of this section:

Example. X corporation is a calendar year, accrual method taxpayer engaged in the sale of electric energy generated by a nuclear power plant owned by X. On September 15, 1986, X receives a schedule of ruling amounts from the Internal Revenue Service that includes a ruling amount of $1,000,000 for the 1985 taxable year. For purposes of this example, assume that the cost of service amount applicable to the nuclear decommissioning fund for the 1985 taxable year is also $1,000,000 and that the after-tax rate of return of the nuclear decommissioning fund that was used in determining the schedule of ruling amounts is 10 percent compounded semi-annually. On September 15, 1986, X makes a contribution of $1,050,000 to a nuclear decommissioning fund established by X. Under paragraph (b)(6)(ii) of this section, this contribution does not exceed the limitation on payments for the 1985 taxable year and the entire amount of the contribution is deductible for such year. The additional $50,000 deductible payment that is allowed under this paragraph (b)(6) reflects the foregone earnings of the fund for the six-month period beginning on the deemed payment deadline date for the 1985 taxable year (March 15, 1986) and ending on the date of the contribution (September 15, 1986).

(7) Denial of interest on overpayment. If a deduction is allowed by reason of paragraph (b)(2) of this section for the amount of any payment made after the 15th day of the third calendar month after the close of the taxable year to which such payment relates, no interest shall be allowed or paid under section 6611 with respect to any overpayment attributable to such deduction for any period before the date the amended return claiming the deduction is filed.

(Also Sections 280G, 467, 468, 7872)

Rev. Rul. 86–94

For purposes of section 1274(d) of the Internal Revenue Code, the short-term, mid-term, and long-term applicable federal rates (AFR) for the month of August 1986 are as follows:

	Period for Compounding
	Annual	Semiannual	Quarterly	Monthly
Short-Term
AFR	6.79%	6.68%	6.63%	6.59%
110% AFR	7.49%	7.35%	7.28%	7.24%
120% AFR	8.18%	8.02%	7.94%	7.89%
Mid-Term
AFR	7.44%	7.31%	7.24%	7.20%
110% AFR	8.20%	8.04%	7.96%	7.91%
120% AFR	8.96%	8.77%	8.68%	8.61%
Long-Term
AFR	7.51%	7.37%	7.30%	7.26%
110% AFR	8.27%	8.11%	8.03%	7.96%
120% AFR	9.04%	8.84%	8.74%	8.68%

As described in Rev. Rul. 86–17, 1986–6 I.R.B. 26, for purposes of section 7872(e)(2) of the Code, the "blended annual rate" for 1986 is 7.77 percent.

Section 4051.—Imposition of Tax on Heavy Trucks and Trailers Sold at Retail

Whether a cost comparison formula may be used to determine the amount of the tire exclusion for purposes of computing the taxable sale price of a highway vehicle under section 4052(b)(1)(B)(iii) of the Code. See. Rev. Rul. 86–93, this page.

Section 4052.—Definitions and Special Rules

26 CFR 145.4052–1: Special rules and definitions.
(Also Section 4051.)

Sale price of truck; tire exclusion; use of cost comparison formula. For purposes of computing the taxable sale price of a highway vehicle under section 4052(b) of the Code, a cost comparison formula may be used to determine the amount that may be excluded as the fair market value at retail of the tires.

Rev. Rul. 86–93

ISSUE

For purposes of the retailers excise tax on heavy trucks and trailers imposed by section 4051(a) of the Internal Revenue Code, may a dealer, in computing taxable sale price, exclude as the fair market value at retail of the tires an amount determined under a cost comparison formula?

FACTS

X, a vehicle dealer, sells at retail trucks and truck trailers that are subject to the tax imposed by section 4051(a)(1) of the Code. X mounts on some of these vehicles tires purchased from tire manufacturers Y and Z. X does not ordinarily make separate sales of Y or Z tires. In accordance with Federal Trade Commission (FTC) rules under 16 C.F.R. section 228.16 (1985), pertaining to the advertising of tire warranties, Y publishes a predetermined price list that reflects the average selling price for which its dealers sell Y tires. Z does not publish a predetermined price list under the FTC rules, and neither Y nor Z publishes manufacturers suggested retail price lists.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

Section 4051(a)(1) of the Code imposes on the first retail sale of certain truck and trailer chassis and bodies (including in each case parts or accessories sold on or in connection therewith or with the sale thereof) a tax of 12 percent of the amount for which the article is so sold.

Section 4052(b)(1)(B)(iii) of the Code provides that in determining the price for which an article is sold, there shall be excluded the fair market value (including any tax imposed by section 4071) at retail of any tires (not including any metal rim or rim base).

Section 145.4052–1(d)(2)(iii) of the Temporary Excise Tax Regulations, as amended by T.D. 8050, 50 Fed. Reg. 37350, 37351 (1985), provides that the fair market value at retail of tires shall be determined by the lowest established price for which the vehicle retailer would sell such tires at retail in the ordinary course of trade. The lowest established price is the lowest price for which the vehicle retailer sells, or offers to sell, a single tire to an independent purchaser who would not ordinarily be expected to buy more than one. If the vehicle retailer has no lowest established price, the Commissioner will accept any price, provided that, under the facts and circumstances, such price is not unreasonable. For vehicles sold on or after April 1, 1983, and before October 15, 1985, a price will not be considered unreasonable if it is no more than an amount equal to 50 percent of the manufacturer's suggested retail price.

X does not ordinarily make separate sales of Y or Z tires and thus does not have, within the meaning of section 145.4052–1(d)(2)(iii) of the temporary regulations, a lowest established price for which it sells, or offers to sell, such tires to independent purchasers. In the case of X's sale of Y tires mounted on X's trucks, the Commissioner will accept as the fair market value at retail of the tires Y's predetermined price as computed under 16 C.F.R. section 228.16(b)(3). See Rev. Rul. 86–28, 1986–8 I.R.B. 22.

In those instances in which X purchases competitive tires of a comparable size from manufacturers Y and Z and only Y publishes a predetermined price list, X may use the amount determined under the following formula as the fair market value at retail (FMV) of Z tires:

$$\text{FMV } Z = \frac{\text{Cost } Z \times \text{FMV } Y}{\text{Cost } Y}$$

This formula is based on the assumption that the percentage mark-up from cost to fair market value is the same for both the Y and the Z tires. In other words, the ratio that the actual cost to X of a Z tire bears to the actual cost to X of a comparable Y tire is assumed to be the same as the ratio that the fair market value at retail of a Z tire bears to the fair market value at retail (predetermined price under 16 C.F.R. section 228.16(b)(3)) of a Y tire. For example, if the actual cost to X of a Y tire is $300, the actual cost to X of a Z tire is $280, and the fair market value at retail of a Y tire is $320, the fair market value of a Z tire can be determined to be $298.67, as seen below.

$$\text{FMV } Z = \frac{$280 \times $320}{$300} = $298.67$$

HOLDING

For purposes of determining the taxable sale price of a highway vehicle under section 4052(b) of the Code, X may exclude an amount for the fair market value at retail of the tires as determined under the cost comparison formula set forth above.

Section 7872.—Treatment of Loans with Below-market Interest Rates

The "blended annual rate" is set forth for 1986. See Rev. Rul. 86–94, page 20.

Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Special Rules Relating to Nuclear Decommissioning costs

LR–18–85

SUMMARY: * * * [T]he Internal Revenue Service is issuing temporary regulations that provide special rules relating to nuclear decommissioning costs. The text of the temporary regulations also serves as the comment document for this notice of proposed rulemaking.

DATES: Written comments and requests for a public hearing must be delivered or mailed by SEPTEMBER 8, 1986. The regulations are proposed to take effect on July 18, 1984, and to apply with respect to taxable years ending on or after such date.

ADDRESS: Send comments and requests for a public hearing to: Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: CC:LR:T (LR–18–85), Washington, D.C. 20224.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: C. Scott McLeod of the Legislation and Regulations Division, Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washintgon, D.C. 20224 (Attention: CC:LR:T), (202) 566-3288 (not a toll-free call).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION

BACKGROUND

The temporary regulations (designated by a "T" following the section citation) in the Rules and Regulations section of this issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER amend Parts 1 and 602 of Title 26 of the Code of Federal Regulations to provide rules relating to sections 88 and 468A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as added by subsections 91 (c) and (f) of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 (Pub. L. 98–369, 98 Stat. 604, 607). This document proposes to adopt those temporary regulations as final regulations; accordingly, the text of the temporary regulations serves as the comment document for this notice of proposed rulemaking. In addition, the preamble to the temporary regulations provides a discussion of the proposed and temporary rules.

For the text of the temporary regulations, see * * * [T.D. 8094, page 4, this bulletin].

SPECIAL ANALYSES

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has determined that this proposed rule is not a major rule as defined in Executive Order 12291 and that a regulatory impact analysis therefore is not required. Although this document is a notice of proposed rulemaking that solicits public comment, the Internal Revenue Service has concluded that the regulations proposed herein are interpretative and that the notice and public procedure requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 do not apply. Accordingly, these proposed regulations do not constitute regulations subject to the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. chapter 6).

COMMENTS AND REQUESTS FOR A PUBLIC HEARING

Before these proposed regulations are adopted, consideration will be given to any written comments that are submitted (preferably eight copies) to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. All comments will be available for public inspection and copying. A public hearing will be held upon written request to the Commissioner by any person who has submitted written comments. If a public hearing is held, notice of the time and place will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

The collection of information requirements contained in this notice of proposed rulemaking have been submitted to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) for review under section 3504 (h) of the Paperwork Reduction Act. Comments on these requirements should be sent to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs of OMB, Attention: Desk Officer for Internal Revenue Service, New Executive Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20503. The Internal Revenue Service requests that persons submitteing comments on these requirements to OMB also send copies of those comments to the Service.

DRAFTING INFORMATION

The principal author of these proposed regulations is C. Scott McLeod of the Legislation and Regulations Division of the Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service. However, personnel from other offices of the Internal Revenue Service and Treasury Department participated in developing the regulations on matters of both substance and style.

If an organization listed above submits information that warrants the renewal of its classification as a public charity or as a private operating foundation, the Internal Revenue Service will issue a ruling or determination letter with the revised classification as to foundation status. grantors and contributors may thereafter rely upon such ruling or determination letter as provided in section 1.509(a)-7 of the Income Tax Regulations. It is not the practice of the Service to announce such revised classification of foundation status in the Internal Revenue Bulletin.

Average Area Purchase Price Safe Harbor Limitations

Announcement 86–81

Issuers of mortgage subsidy bonds may continue to rely on the "average area purchase price" safe harbor limitations contained in Rev. Proc. 85–42, 1985–2 C.B. 496, until new safe harbor limitations are published.

Section 103(a) of the Internal Revenue Code provides that gross income does not include interest on (1) the obligations of a state or its political subdivisions, and (2) qualified scholarship funding bonds. Section 103A(a) provides, with certain exceptions, that any mortgage subsidy bond will be treated as an obligation not described in section 103(a)(1) or (2). Thus, the interest on mortgage subsidy bonds ordinarily is not excluded from gross income by section 103(a). A mortgage subsidy bond is an obligation that is issued as part of an issue a significant portion of the proceeds of which is to be used to provide mortgages on owner-occupied residences. However, under section 103A(b)(2)(A), a "qualified mortgage bond" will not be treated as a mortgage subsidy bond, and the interest on qualified mortgage bonds will be excluded from gross income.

In order to qualify as a qualified mortgage bond, certain requirements must be satisfied. One requirement is that the acquistion cost of each residence to be financed with the proceeds of qualified mortgage bonds may not exceed a certain percentage of the average area purchase price for the residence. The average area purchase price is the average purchase price of single-family residences (in the statistical area in which the residence is located) that were purchased during the most recent 12-month period for which sufficient statistical information is available. Under section 6a.103A-2(g)(6)(iii) of the Temporary Income Tax Regulations, for purposes of meeting the average area purchase price requirement, an issuer may rely on the average area purchase price safe harbor limitations published by the Department of the Treasury for the statistical area in which the residence is located. The safe harbor limitations are effective during the period stated at the time of publication. An issuer may use a limitation different from the published safe harbor limitations if the issuer has more accurate and comprehensive data.

Rev. Proc. 85–42 stated that the list of safe harbor limitations published in that procedure could be relied on for the period beginning August 2, 1985, and ending August 1, 1986. The Internal Revenue Service will release new safe harbor limitations to replace those listed in Rev. Proc. 85–42 as soon as new statistical information is available. After August 1, 1986, issuers of mortgage subsidy bonds may rely on the safe harbor limitations in Rev. Proc. 85–42, until new safe harbor limitations are published.

Announcement of the Disbarment, Suspension, or Consent to Voluntary Suspension of Attorneys, Certified Public Accountants, Enrolled Agents and Enrolled Actuaries from Practice Before the Internal Revenue Service

Under 31 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 10, an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, in order to avoid the institution or conclusion of a proceeding for his disbarment or suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, may offer his consent to suspension from such practice. The Director of Practice, in his discretion, may suspend an attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary in accordance with the consent offered.

Attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents, and enrolled actuaries are prohibited in any Internal Revenue Service matter from directly or indirectly employing, accepting assistance from, being employed by or sharing fees with, any practitioner disbarred or under suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

To enable attorneys, certified public accountants, enrolled agents and enrolled actuaries to identify practitioners under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service, the Director of Practice will announce in the Internal Revenue Bulletin the names and addresses of practitioners who have been suspended from such practice, their designation as attorneys, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary, and the date or period of suspension. This announcement will appear in the weekly Bulletin at the earliest practicable date after such action and will continue to appear in the weekly Bulletin for five successive weeks or for as many weeks as is practicable for each attorney, certified public accountant, enrolled agent or enrolled actuary so suspended and will later be consolidated and published in the Cumulative Bulletin.

The following individuals have been placed under consent suspension from practice before the Internal Revenue Service:

Name	Address	Designation	Term of Suspension
Tevor Adel	Silver Springs, MD	Certified Public Accountant	Indefinite from June 2, 1986
John H. Peimann	Ottawa, KS	Certified Public Accountant	Twenty-One Months from June 1, 1986
John D. Raikos	Indianapolis, IN	Attorney	Indefinite from May 20, 1986
Vernon Rubel	Hickory, NC	Enrolled Agent	Indefinite from May 28, 1986
Wayne Boyer	Southfield, MI	Enrolled Agent	Eight Months from May 12, 1986
Thomas McPhee	McAllen, TX	Enrolled Agent	Indefinite from June 15, 1986
Glen R. Verber	Houston, TX	Certified Public Accountant	Ninety Days from May 19, 1986
Beverly Worth	Winona Lake, IN	Enrolled Agent	Five Years from June 17, 1986

Definition of Terms

Revenue rulings and revenue procedures (hereinafter referred to as "rulings") that have an effect on previous rulings use the following defined terms to describe the effect:

Amplified describes a situation where no change is being made in a prior published position, but the prior position is being extended to apply to a variation of the fact situation set forth therein. Thus, if an earlier ruling held that a principle applied to A, and the new ruling holds that the same principle also applies to B, the earlier ruling is amplified. (Compare with modified, below).

Clarified is used in those instances where the language in a prior ruling is being made clear because the language has caused, or may cause, some confusion. It is not used where a position in a prior ruling is being changed.

Distinguished describes a situation where a ruling mentions a previously published ruling and points out an essential difference between them.

Modified is used where the substance of a previously published position is being changed. Thus, if a prior ruling held that a principle applied to A but not to B, and the new ruling holds that it applies to both A and B, the prior ruling is modified because it corrects a published position. (Compare with amplified and clarified, above).

Obsoleted describes a previously published ruling that is not considered determinative with respect to future transactions. This term is most commonly used in a ruling that lists previously published rulings that are obsoleted because of changes in law or regulations. A ruling may also be obsoleted because the substance has been included in regulations subsequently adopted.

Revoked describes situations where the position in the previously published ruling is not correct and the correct position is being stated in the new ruling.

Superseded describes a situation where the new ruling does nothing more than restate the substance and situation of a previously published ruling (or rulings). Thus, the term is used to republish under the 1954 Code and regulations the same position published under the 1939 Code and regulations. The term is also used when it is desired to republish in a single ruling a series of situations, names, etc., that were previously published over a period of time in separate rulings. If the new ruling does more than restate the substance of a prior ruling, a combination of terms is used. For example, modified and superseded describes a situation where the substance of a previously published ruling is being changed in part and is continued without change in part and it is desired to restate the valid portion of the previously published ruling in a new ruling that is self contained. In this case the previously published ruling is first modified and then, as modified, is superseded.

Supplemented is used in situations in which a list, such as a list of the names of countries, is published in a ruling and that list is expanded by adding further names in subsequent rulings. After the original ruling has been supplemented several times, a new ruling may be published that includes the list in the original ruling and the additions, and supersedes all prior rulings in the series.

Suspended is used in rare situations to show that the previous published rulings will not be applied pending some future action such as the issuance of new or amended regulations, the outcome of cases in litigation, or the outcome of a Service study.

INTERNAL REVENUE BULLETIN

The Introduction on page 3 describes the purpose and content of this publication. The weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin is sold on a yearly subscription basis by the Superintendent of Documents. Current subscribers are notified by the Superintendent of Documents when their subscriptions must be renewed.

CUMULATIVE BULLETINS

The contents of the weekly Bulletin are consolidated semiannually into a permanent, indexed, Cumulative Bulletin. These are sold on a single copy basis and are not included as part of the subscription to the Internal Revenue Bulletin. Subscribers to the weekly Bulletin are notified when copies of the Cumulative Bulletin are available. Certain issues of Cumulative Bulletins are out of print and are not available. Persons desiring available Cumulative Bulletins, which are listed on the reverse, may purchase them from the Superintendent of Documents.

BULLETIN INDEX-DIGEST SYSTEM

The Bulletin Index-Digest System provides a fast and easy way to research Revenue Rulings, Revenue Procedures, Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and other matters of a permanent nature published in the weekly Internal Revenue Bulletin, or Cumulative Bulletin from 1953 on. It is a comprehensive and up-to-date research tool that requires no filing or other clerical maintenance. The current revision consists of four Services, available on a subscription basis, each including a basic volume that covers the period 1953-1983/1984 and a cumulative supplement covering material published in subsequent Bulletins for the following two-year period. Cumulative supplements are issued quarterly for the Income Tax Service and semiannually for the Estate and Gift, Employment, and Excise Tax Service.

HOW TO ORDER

Check the publications and/or subscription(s) desired on the reverse, complete the order blank, enclose the proper remittance, detach entire page, and mail to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Please allow two to six weeks, plus mailing time, for delivery.

Department of the Treasury
Internal Revenue Service

T 22.23:

Mission of the Service

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenues at the least cost to the public, and in a manner that warrants the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness. To achieve that purpose, we will:

—Encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance in accordance with the tax law and regulations;

—Advise the public of their rights and responsibilities;

—Determine the extent of compliance and the causes of noncompliance;

—Do all things needed for the proper administration and enforcement of the tax laws;

—Continually search for and implement new, more efficient and effective ways of accomplishing our Mission.

Statement of Principles of Internal Revenue Tax Administration

The function of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer the Internal Revenue Code. Tax policy for raising revenue is determined by Congress.

With this in mind, it is the duty of the Service to carry out that policy by correctly applying the laws enacted by Congress; to determine the reasonable meaning of various Code provisions in light of the Congressional purpose in enacting them; and to perform this work in a fair and impartial manner, with neither a government nor a taxpayer point of view.

At the heart of administration is interpretation of the Code. It is the responsibility of each person in the Service, charged with the duty of interpreting the law, to try to find the true meaning of the statutory provision and not to adopt a strained construction in the belief that he or she is "protecting the revenue." The revenue is properly protected only when we ascertain and apply the true meaning of the statute.

The Service also has the responsibility of applying and administering the law in a reasonable, practical manner. Issues should only be raised by examining officers when they have merit, never arbitrarily or for trading purposes. At the same time, the examining officer should never hesitate to raise a meritorious issue. It is also important that care be exercised not to raise an issue or to ask a court to adopt a position inconsistent with an established Service position.

Administration should be both reasonable and vigorous. It should be conducted with as little delay as possible and with great courtesy and considerateness. It should never try to overreach, and should be reasonable within the bounds of law and sound administration. It should, however, be vigorous in requiring compliance with law and it should be relentless in its attack on unreal tax devices and fraud.

Introduction

The Internal Revenue Bulletin is the authoritative instrument of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for announcing official rulings and procedures of the Internal Revenue Service and for publishing Treasury Decisions, Executive Orders, Tax Conventions, legislation, court decisions, and other items of general interest. It is published weekly and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. Bulletin contents of a permanent nature are consolidated semiannually into Cumulative Bulletins, which are sold on a single-copy basis.

It is the policy of the Service to publish in the Bulletin all substantive rulings necessary to promote a uniform application of the tax laws, including all rulings that supersede, revoke, modify, or amend any of those previously published in the Bulletin. All published rulings apply retroactively unless otherwise indicated. Procedures relating solely to matters of internal management are not published; however, statements of internal practices and procedures that affect the rights and duties of taxpayers are published.

Revenue rulings represent the conclusions of the Service on the application of the law to the pivotal facts stated in the revenue ruling. In those based on positions taken in rulings to taxpayers or technical advice to Service field offices, identifying details and information of a confidential nature are deleted to prevent unwarranted invasions of privacy and to comply with statutory requirements.

Rulings and procedures reported in the Bulletin do not have the force and effect of Treasury Department Regulations, but they may be used as precedents. Unpublished rulings will not be relied on, used, or cited as precedents by Service personnel in the disposition of other cases. In applying published rulings and procedures, the effect of subsequent legislation, regulations, court decisions, rulings, and procedures must be considered, and Service personnel and others concerned are cautioned against reaching the same conclusions in other cases unless the facts and circumstances are substantially the same.

The Bulletin is divided into four parts as follows:

Part I.—1954 Code.

This part includes rulings and decisions based on provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

Part II.—Treaties and Tax Legislation.

This part is divided into two subparts as follows: Subpart A, Tax Conventions, and Subpart B, Legislation and Related Committee Reports.

Part III.—Administrative, Procedural, and Miscellaneous.

To the extent practicable, pertinent cross references to these subjects are contained in the other Parts and Subparts.

Part IV.—Items of General Interest.

With the exception of the disbarment and suspension list included in this part, none of these announcements is consolidated in the Cumulative Bulletins.

The first Bulletin for each month includes an index for the matters published during the preceding month. These monthly indexes are cumulated on a quarterly and semiannual basis, and are published in the first Bulletin of the succeeding quarterly and semi-annual period, respectively.

The Bulletin Index-Digest System, a research and reference service supplementing the Bulletin, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents on a subscription basis. It consists of four Services: Service No. 1, Income Tax; Service No. 2, Estate and Gift Taxes; Service No. 3, Employment Taxes; Service No. 4, Excise Taxes. Each Service consists of a basic volume and a cumulative supplement that provide (1) finding lists of items published in the Bulletin, (2) digests of revenue rulings, revenue procedures, and other published items, and (3) indexes of Public Laws, Treasury Decisions, and Tax Conventions.

The contents of this publication are not copyrighted and may be reprinted freely. A citation of the Internal Revenue Bulletin as the source would be appropriate.

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Prices: Domestic—$1.75 a single copy, $82.00 a year subscription. Foreign—$2.19 a single copy, $102.50 a year for subscription.

Part I. Rulings and Decisions Under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954

Section 501.—Exemption from Tax on Corporations, Certain Trusts, Etc.

26 CFR 1.501(c)(3)–1: Organizations organized and operated for religious, charitable, scientific, testing for public safety, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals.

Exemption; public forums; congressional candidates. The conduct of public forums involving qualified congressional candidates in the manner described, by an organization otherwise exempt under section 501(c)(3) of the Code, will not constitute participation or intervention in any political campaign within the meaning of section 501(c)(3). Rev. Rul. 86–95

ISSUE

Would the conduct of public forums involving qualified congressional candidates by an organization otherwise described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, in the manner described below, constitute participation or intervention in any political campaign within the meaning of section 501(c)(3)?

FACTS

The organization is an educational membership organization exempt from federal income tax under section 501(c)(3) of the Code. As one of its programs, the organization monitors and reports on legislative, judicial, administrative, and other governmental activities and developments considered to be of important interest to its members.

The organization proposes to conduct a series of public forums. These forums will be conducted in congressional districts during congressional election campaigns. All legally qualified candidates for the House of Representatives from the congressional districts in question will be invited to participate in a forum.

The agenda at each of the forums will cover a broad range of issues, including, but not limited to, those issues considered to be of important educational interest to the organization's members. Questions to forum participants will be prepared and presented by a nonpartisan, independent panel of knowledgeable persons composed of representatives of the media, educational organizations, community leaders, and other interested persons. Each candidate will be allowed an equal opportunity to present his or her views on each of the issues discussed. The organization will select a moderator for each forum whose sole function will be limited to assuring that the general ground rules are followed. At both the beginning and end of each forum, the moderator will state that the views expressed are those of the candidates and not those of the organization and that the sponsorship of the forum is not intended as an endorsement of any candidate.

LAW AND ANALYSIS

Section 501(c)(3) of the Code provides for the exemption from federal income tax of organizations organized and operated exclusively for charitable or educational purposes, no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting to influence legislation, (except as otherwise provided in section 501(h)), and which do not participate in, or intervene in (including the publishing or distributing of statements), any political campaign on behalf of any candidate for public office.

Section 1.501(c)(3)–1(c)(3)(i) of the Income Tax Regulations states that an organization is not operated exclusively for one or more exempt purposes if it is an "action" organization. Section 1.501(c)(3)–1(c)(3)(iii) defines an "action" organization as an organization that participates or intervenes, directly or indirectly, in any political campaign on behalf of or in opposition to any candidate for public office. The regulations further provide that activities that constitute participation or intervention in a political campaign on behalf of or in opposition to a candidate include, but are not limited to, the publication or distribution of written statements or the making of oral statements on behalf of or in opposition to such a candidate.

Rev. Rul. 66–256, 1966–2 C.B. 210, holds that a nonprofit organization formed to conduct public forums at which lectures and debates on social, political, and international matters are presented qualifies for exemption from federal income tax under section 501(c)(3) of the Code.

Rev. Rul. 74–574, 1974–2 C.B. 160, holds that a section 501(c)(3) organization operating a broadcast station is not participating in political campaigns on behalf of public candidates by providing reasonable amounts of air time equally available to all legally qualified candidates for election to public office in compliance with the reasonable access provisions of the Communications Act of 1934, 47 U.S.C. §312(a)(7), (1982).

Whether an organization is participating or intervening, directly or indirectly, in any political campaign on behalf of or in opposition to any candidate for public office depends upon all of the facts and circumstances of each case. For example, certain "voter education" activities conducted in a non-partisan manner may not constitute prohibited political activities under section 501(c)(3) of the Code. Other so-called "voter education" activities may be proscribed by the statute. Rev. Rul. 78–248, 1978–1 C.B. 154, contrasts several situations illustrating when an organization that publishes a compilation of a candidate's position or voting record has or has not engaged in prohibited political activities based on whether the questionnaire or voting guide in content or structure shows a bias or preference with respect to the views of a particular candidate. See also Rev. Rul. 80–282, 1980–2 C.B. 178, that amplified Rev. Rul. 78–248 regarding the timing and distribution of voter education materials.

The presentation of public forums or debates is a recognized method of educating the public. See Rev. Rul. 66–256. Providing a forum for candidates is not, in and of itself, prohibited political activity. See Rev. Rul. 74–574. However, a forum for candidates could be operated in a manner that would show a bias or preference for or against a particular candidate. This could be done, for example, through biased questioning procedures. On the other hand, a forum held for the purpose of educating and informing the voters, which provides fair and impartial treatment of candidates, and which does not promote or advance one candidate over another, would not constitute participation or intervention in any political campaign on behalf of or in opposition to any candidate for public office.

The facts and circumstances of this case establish that both the format and content of the proposed forums will be presented in a neutral manner. All legally qualified congressional candidates will be invited to participate in the forum. The questions will be prepared and presented by a nonpartisan, independent panel. The topics discussed will cover a broad range of issues of interest to the public, notwithstanding that the issues discussed may include issues of particular importance to the organization's members. Each candidate will receive an equal opportunity to present his or her views on each of the issues discussed. Finally, the moderator selected by the organization will not comment on the questions or otherwise make comments that imply approval or disapproval of any of the candidates. In view of these facts, the organization will not be considered to be engaged in prohibited political activity.

This conclusion is based on the totality of the circumstances described. The presence or absence of a particular fact here in other similar situations is not determinative of other cases but would have to be considered in light of all the surrounding factors in that case.

HOLDING

The conduct of public forums involving qualified congressional candidates in the manner described above, by an organization otherwise described in section 501(c)(3) of the Code, will not constitute participation or intervention in any political campaign within the meaning of section 501(c)(3).

EFFECT ON OTHER REVENUE RULINGS

Rev. Rul. 66-256 is amplified.

Section 4121.—Imposition of Tax

26 CFR 48.4121-1: Imposition and rate of tax on coal.

Coal; effect of moisture content on tonnage determination. The Service will allow a calculated reduction of the taxable weight of coal for the weight of excess moisture. Rev. Rul. 82-222 modified.

Rev. Rul. 86-96

Rev. Rul. 82-222, 1982-2 C.B. 295, holds that the federal excise tax imposed by section 4121 of the Internal Revenue Code on a producer's sale of coal applies to the full amount of coal sold by the producer. This amount was to be determined at the point of sale with no reduction for moisture content.

In A.J. Taft Coal Co. v U.S., 605 F. Supp. 366 (N.D. Ala. 1984), aff'd without opinion, 760 F.2d 280 (11th Cir. 1985), the court held that, for purposes of section 4121 of the Code, the term "coal" does not include water that is in excess of the coal's inherent moisture content and that is reasonably measurable.

For purposes of the tax imposed by section 4121 of the Code, the Internal Revenue Service will follow the Taft Coal Co. decision regarding the moisture content of coal. The Service will allow a calculated reduction of the taxable weight of coal for the weight of excess moisture, but only where the taxpayer can demonstrate through competent evidence that there is a reasonable basis for its determination of the existence, and amount, of excess moisture.

NOTE: THIS REVENUE PROCEDURE MAY ONLY BE USED TO PREPARE 5¼ INCH MAGNETIC DISKETTE SUBMISSIONS FOR TAX YEAR 1986 RETURNS. UPDATED COPIES ARE PUBLISHED EACH YEAR. PLEASE READ THIS PUBLICATION CAREFULLY. PERSONS REQUIRED TO FILE MAY BE SUBJECT TO PENALTIES FOR FAILURE TO FOLLOW THE INSTRUCTIONS IN THIS REVENUE PROCEDURE. THESE INCLUDE PENALTIES OF $50 PER DOCUMENT FOR EACH DOCUMENT SUBMITTED WITHOUT A TAXPAYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBER (TIN) OR WITH AN INCORRECT TIN. YOU MAY ALSO BE SUBJECT TO AN ADDITIONAL $50 PENALTY PER DOCUMENT FOR EACH DOCUMENT NOT SUBMITTED ON MAGNETIC MEDIA IF YOU ARE REQUIRED TO FILE THIS WAY OR IF YOU FILE LATE. THE MAXIMUM PENALTY IS $50,000 (THERE IS NO MAXIMUM FOR CERTAIN FORMS 1099–INT, 1099–DIV, 1099–OID, 1099–PATR, 5498 OR IF THE FAILURE TO FILE IS DUE TO INTENTIONAL DISREGARD OF THE FILING REQUIREMENTS). IRS STRONGLY ENCOURAGES FILERS TO REVIEW THEIR DATA FOR ACCURACY BEFORE SUBMISSION TO PREVENT ERRONEOUS NOTICES TO PERSONS FOR WHOM REPORTS ARE FILED.

PART A.—GENERAL

SECTION 1. PURPOSE

.01 The purpose of this revenue procedure is to provide the requirements and conditions for filing information return Forms 1098, 1099, 5498, and W–2G on 5¼ inch magnetic diskette. Other revenue procedures provide instructions for filing on magnetic tape, 8 inch magnetic diskette, and cassette or mini-disk. THIS REVENUE PROCEDURE IS TO BE USED FOR THE PREPARATION OF TAX YEAR 1986 INFORMATION RETURNS ONLY. THIS PROCEDURE IS UPDATED YEARLY TO REFLECT NECESSARY CHANGES. PLEASE READ THIS PUBLICATION CAREFULLY. Specifications for filing the following forms are contained in this procedure:

(a) Form 1098, Mortgage Interest Statement.

(b) Form 1099–A, Information Return for Acquisition or Abandonment of Secured Property.

(c) Form 1099–B, Statement for Recipients of Proceeds from Broker and Barter Exchange Transactions.

(d) Form 1099–DIV, Statement for Recipients of Dividends and Distributions.

(e) Form 1099–G, Statement for Recipients of Certain Government Payments.

(f) Form 1099–INT, Statement for Recipients of Interest Income.

(g) Form 1099–MISC, Statement for Recipients of Miscellaneous Income.

(h) Form 1099–OID, Statement for Recipients of Original Issue Discount.

(i) Form 1099–PATR, Statement for Recipients (Patrons) of Taxable Distributions Received From Cooperatives.

(j) Form 1099–R, Statement for Recipients of Total Distributions From Profit-Sharing, Retirement Plans, Individual Retirement Arrangements, Insurance Contracts, Etc.

(k) Form 5498, Individual Retirement Arrangement Information.

(l) Form W–2G, Statement for Recipients of Certain Gambling Winnings.

Specifications for filing Forms 1042S, 6248, 8027, W–2 and W–2P are contained in separate publications.

.02 Section 1.6045–1(1) of the Income Tax Regulations requires brokers and barter exchanges to use magnetic media to report ALL Form 1099–B data to IRS. THIS REQUIREMENT APPLIES TO BOTH ORIGINAL AND CORRECTED RETURNS. Section 6011(e) of the Internal Revenue Code as amended by the Interest and Dividend Tax Compliance Act of 1983, Pub. L. 98–67, 1983–2 C.B. 352, 359, requires that any person, including corporations, partnerships, individuals, estates and trusts, required to file more than 50 information returns in the aggregate for payments of certain interest (Forms 1099–INT and 1099–OID), dividends (Form 1099–DIV), or patronage dividends (Form 1099–PATR), for any calendar year, must file such returns on magnetic media. THIS REQUIREMENT APPLIES TO BOTH ORIGINAL AND CORRECTED RETURNS. For example, if you must file 30 Forms 1099–DIV and 25 Forms 1099–INT, filing on magnetic media is required whether these are original or corrected returns. In addition, for returns filed in 1987 (for tax year 1986), magnetic media reporting is required if you file 500 or more of each of the following forms: Forms W–2, W–2P, W–2G, 1098, 1099–A, 1099–G, 1099–MISC, 1099–R, 5498, 1042S, 6248 and 8027. THIS REQUIREMENT APPLIES TO BOTH ORIGINAL AND CORRECTED RETURNS. Form W–2c is not included in these filing requirements. The 500 or more requirement for these forms will drop to 250 or more for returns (original or corrected) filed in 1988 (for tax year 1987) and later years. Forms W–2 and W–2P are filed with Social Security Administration (SSA), NOT the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). At this time, corrected returns filed on Form W–2c with SSA are not required on magnetic media. The requirements shall not apply if you establish that it will cause you undue hardship. Refer to Part A, Sec. 5.

.03 This procedure also provides the requirements and specifications for magnetic diskette filing under the Combined Federal/State Filing Program. Refer to Part A, Sec. 14.

.04 The following revenue procedures and publications provide more detailed filing procedures for certain information returns:

(a) 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W–2G" provide further information on filing returns with IRS. These instructions are available at IRS offices.

(b) Rev. Proc. 84–24, 1984–1 C.B. 465, regarding preparation of transmittal documents (Forms 1096 and 4804) for information returns.

(c) Rev. Proc. 84–33, 1984–1 C.B. 502, regarding the optional method for agents to report and deposit backup withholding.

(d) Publication 1179, Specifications for Paper Substitutes for Forms 1096, 1098, 1099, 5498, and W–2G.

.05 Refer to Part A, Sec. 15 for definitions of terms used in this publication.

SEC. 2. BACKGROUND—PRIOR YEAR CHANGES (TAX YEAR 1985)

TAX YEAR 1986 IS THE FIRST YEAR THAT A REVENUE PROCEDURE HAS BEEN PUBLISHED FOR SUBMITTING INFORMATION RETURNS ON 5¼ INCH DISKETTE. IN FUTURE TAX YEARS, THIS SECTION WILL CONTAIN CHANGES THAT OCCURRED IN THE PRIOR YEAR.

SEC. 3. NATURE OF CHANGES—CURRENT YEAR (TAX YEAR 1986)

.01 The following information must be incorporated into your programs for tax year 1986. Tax year 1986 is the first year that a revenue procedure has been published for submitting information returns on 5¼ inch diskette. If you have filed on other types of magnetic media or if this is the first time that you have filed on magnetic media, this section will list the changes that have occurred between tax year 1985 and 1986.

.02 GENERAL CHANGES ARE AS FOLLOWS:

(a) The note on the cover and which follows the table of contents will alert filers that their data should be reviewed for accuracy before submission to prevent erroneous notices to the person for whom reports are filed.

(b) Part A, Sec 1.01 lists the forms described in this revenue procedure that must be filed on magnetic media. THESE REQUIREMENTS APPLY TO BOTH ORIGINAL AND CORRECTED RETURNS. Corrected returns filed on Form W–2c with SSA are not required at this time on magnetic media.

(c) A note in Part A, Sec. 4.01 alerts filers that applications to file Forms W–2 and W–2P on magnetic media are requested from SSA; however, requests for magnetic media related undue hardship waivers and extensions of time to file Forms W–2 and W–2P on magnetic media are requested from the IRS National Computer Center. Waiver requests for these forms must be filed by June 30 for the tax year requested.

(d) Transmitter Control Codes may be alpha/numeric. This has been noted in several places within the publication.

(e) The dates for submission of "test" files have changed. Part A, Sec. 5 indicates that "test" files should be submitted between August 15 and December 15 each year. Also, "test" data for the "A" Record must be actual data, not fictitious information.

(f) Part A, Sec. 5.04 alerts filers that a transmittal Form 4804, 4802 or computer generated substitute must accompany "test" files. The transmittal Form 4804 and 4802 have been updated for 1986. Agencies who produce a computer generated substitute must follow the format of the updated forms. The Form 4804 now includes a Checkbox 1 to indicate the type of file (e.g., original, correction, replacement, test).

(g) Part A, Sec. 5 includes new information concerning undue hardship waiver requests. Filers are now required to submit Form 8508, Request for Waiver From Filing Information Returns on Magnetic Media. THIS REQUIREMENT APPLIES TO BOTH ORIGINAL AND CORRECTED RETURNS WITH THE EXCEPTION OF FORM W–2c.

(h) Part A, Sec. 6 includes the retention requirements for information returns and the new affidavit requirements for transmittal documents.

(i) For documents filed on paper with the appropriate service center, it is no longer necessary to note on the transmittal Form 1096 that a portion of the returns are being filed on magnetic media.

(j) Part A, Sec. 6.08 indicates that reports from different branches for one payer, if submitted on the same file, must be consolidated under one "A" Record for each type of information return.

(k) Part A, Sec. 7 indicates that Form 5498 is used to report amounts contributed during or after the calendar year but not later than April 15.

(l) Part A, Sec. 8 (h) informs persons who file extension requests for multiple payers that the request must include a list of all payers and their TINs (SSN or EIN).

(m) Part A, Sec. 10 alerts filers that the magnetic media filing requirements apply to both original and corrected returns with the exception of Form W–2c filed with SSA. Refer to Part A, Sec. 1 for the filing requirements. Corrected returns should be aggregated and submitted as soon as possible but not later than October 1 of each year. Also, corrections should be submitted only for the returns filed in error, not the entire file.

(n) Part A, Sec. 10.01 indicates that diskette position 6 is the corrected return indicator. Sec. 10, Guidelines, also reflects this information.

(o) Transmittal Form W–3G is now obsolete. This form was used to transmit paper Forms 1099–R and W–2G. These two forms are now to be transmitted to the service center with Form 1096. References to Form W–3G have been deleted from all publications.

(p) Two new charts were added to the publications last year to provide instructions for filing corrections on magnetic media and on paper forms. Chart 2, Guidelines for Filing Corrected Returns on Paper Forms, has been deleted. The instructions for filing corrections on paper forms are now available in the 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W–2G."

(q) Part A, Sec. 10 Guidelines have been revised. If a return was filed with NO Payee TIN (SSN or EIN), or the return was filed with an incorrect Payee TIN, only one transaction is now necessary to make the correction.

(r) Part A, Sec. 12 has been completely revised. Refer to this section for specific changes.

(s) Service center addresses have been deleted from these publications. They are available in the 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W–2G."

(t) Part A, Sec. 14.02 informs filers of the authorization to sign consent Form 6847. Filers who have received approval to file on the Combined Federal/State Program in prior years may be required to resubmit a consent Form 6847 signed by each payer. Refer to Part A, Sec. 14.02 for specific information.

(u) The dollar criteria in Table 2 of Part A, Sec. 14 has changed. For the state of Minnesota, Form 5498 must now be reported. Also, two footnotes for Minnesota have now been deleted: $10.01 for Savings and Loan Associations and Credit Unions; and $600.01 for Rents and Royalties.

(v) Acceptable foreign country codes are listed in Part A, Sec. 16 to assist you in developing the address field.

(w) A note appears in Part B, Sec. 1.02 concerning the consistency in the use of recording codes and density.

(x) Part B, Sec. 1.05 indicates changes made to the external media labels. Form 5064 is the external media label and has been updated for tax year 1986. You must use the updated label for 1986. These will be included in your magnetic media reporting packages.

.03 THE FOLLOWING CHANGES HAVE BEEN MADE TO THE PAYER/TRANSMITTER "A" RECORD.

(a) A note in Part B, Sec. 3.03 indicates that all alpha characters should be uppercase.

(b) Diskette positions 3-5 contain the Diskette Sequence Number. The description of this field has been clarified.

(c) Form 1099–MISC, Amount Code "8", Direct Sales Indicator, NOTE 1, has been clarified.

(d) Form 1099–OID, the title of Amount Code 2 has been changed from "Stated interest" to "Other periodic interest."

(e) Form 1099–R, the term "Insurance Contracts" have been added to the title of the form and insurance premiums has been added to Amount Code "5.".

(f) Amount Code "7" has been added to Form 1099–R to report "State income tax withheld."

(g) A note has been added for reporting distributions from KEOGH plans on Form 1099–R.

(h) Form 5498, Amount Code "1" has been changed to report "Regular SEP contributions made in 1986 and 1987 for 1986." The regular SEP contributions have been deleted from Amount Code "3" and now appear separately as Amount Code "1."

(i) Form 5498, the title of Amount Code "4" has been changed to "Life insurance cost included in codes 1 or 3 (for endowment contracts only)."

(j) Amount Code "3" has been added for Form W–2G to report "State income tax withheld."

(k) The First Payer Name Line has been clarified for those reporting on Form 1098, "Mortgage Interest Statement." Refer to the First Payer Name Line field description for specific information.

.04 THE FOLLOWING CHANGES HAVE BEEN MADE TO THE PAYEE "B" RECORD:

(a) A note has been added to Part B, Sec. 5.03 concerning invalid addresses.

(b) A note in Part B, Sec. 5.08 indicates that all alpha characters should be uppercase.

(c) The Document Specific Code field length has been increased from 1 to 2 positions. Diskette positions 4-5 represent this coding. This change was necessary due to multiple coding required in certain cases for Form 1099–R.

(d) Additional coding and clarification appear in the Document Specific Code for Form 1099–R. A Code "9" represents PS 58 Costs; Code "P" represents excess contributions refunded plus earnings on such excess contributions taxable in 1985; Code "A" represents distributions that qualify for 10-year averaging; Code "B" represents distributions that qualify for the death benefit exclusion; and Code "C" indicates that the distribution qualifies for both "A" and "B."

(e) The Document Specific Code, Direct Sales indicator has been clarified.

(f) Diskette position 6 is the corrected return indicator.

(g) Examples have been added to assist you in the development of the Name Control Field.

(h) The Type of TIN indicator field has been clarified for those accounts that are questionable. Code "9" has been deleted.

(i) The Payer's Account Number for the Payee field has been clarified.

(j) The First Payee Name Line field description has been clarified for those reporting Form 1098, "Mortgage Interest Statement." Refer to the First Payee Name Line field description for specific information.

(k) The Payee City, Payee State, and Payee ZIP Code are three separate fields.

If the payee lives outside of the United States, insert a "1" in position "241" of the Payee City field and spell out the name in the remaining positions. Use the appropriate Country Code as shown in Part A, Sec. 16 in the Payee State field. Some foreign countries utilize alpha characters in the ZIP Code. The use of alpha characters is only acceptable if there is a "1" in position "241" of the Payee City field.

.05 THE FOLLOWING CHANGES HAVE BEEN MADE TO THE END OF PAYER "C" RECORD:

(a) Part B, Sec. 13.03 clarifies the totals required in the "C" Record.

(b) Part B, Sec. 13.04 provides instructions to assist you in the development of the "C" Record.

.06 THE FOLLOWING CHANGES HAVE BEEN MADE TO THE END OF TRANSMISSION "F" RECORD:

(a) The Number of Payers field name and description has been reworded.

(b) The Number of Reels field description has been reworded.

SEC. 4. WAGE AND PENSION INFORMATION FILED WITH SSA

.01 Section 8(b), Pub. L. 94–202, 1976–1 C.B. 503, enacted in January 1976, authorized the combined reporting of FICA detailed information in one consolidated annual W–2 (Copy A) to the Federal government. AS A RESULT, FORMS W–2 and W–2P ARE TO BE FILED WITH SSA, NOT WITH IRS. Applications to file Forms W–2 and W–2P on magnetic media are to be mailed to SSA; however, undue hardship waivers and extensions of time to file Forms W–2 and W–2P are to be requested from the IRS National Computer Center, NOT from SSA. Requests for undue hardship exemption for these two forms must be filed with the IRS National Computer Center by July 31, 1986, for tax year 1986, for returns to be filed in 1987. Refer to Part A, Sec. 13 for the address and Part A, Sec. 5.08 and Sec. 8 for the required information.

.02 SSA will accept magnetic media filing of Forms W–2 and W–2P and has issued the following concerning this: TIB–4a, "Magnetic Tape Reporting, Submitting FICA Wage and Tax Data to the Social Security Administration; TIB–4b, "Magnetic Tape Reporting, Submitting Annuity, Pension, Retired Pay or IRA Payment to the Social Security Administration"; and TIB–4c, "Diskette Reporting, Submitting FICA Wage and Tax Data to the Social Security Administration." Applications for filing Forms W–2 and W–2P on magnetic media appear in TIBs–4a, 4b, and 4c.

.03 Copies of Social Security Administration publications TIB–4a, 4b, and 4c are available from any local Social Security Administration office or the SSA Regional Magnetic Media Coordinators.

SEC. 5. APPLICATION FOR MAGNETIC MEDIA REPORTING AND REQUESTS FOR UNDUE HARDSHIP WAIVERS

.01 For purposes of this revenue procedure, the PAYER includes the person making payments, a recipient of mortgage interest payments, a broker, a barter exchange, a trustee or issuer of an IRA, SEP or DEC, or a lender who acquires an interest in secured property or who has reason to know that the property has been abandoned. The TRANSMITTER is the organization preparing the magnetic diskette file. The payer and transmitter may be the same organization. Payers or their transmitters are required to complete Form 4419, Application for Magnetic Media Reporting of Information Returns. A copy of this form, for your use, can be found at the end of this publication. Requests for additional information or forms related to magnetic media processing should be addressed to the National Computer Center. Beginning January 1, 1986, magnetic media processing was centralized at the National Computer Center. The address is listed in Part A, Sec. 13.

.02 Applications should be filed with the National Computer Center before "test" files are submitted. ("Test" files must be submitted between August 15 and December 15 each year.) IRS will act on an application and notify the applicant, in writing, of authorization to file. A five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code will be assigned and included in an acknowledgement letter within 30 days of receipt of the application. Magnetic diskette returns may not be filed with IRS until the application has been approved. Do not enter blanks in the "A" Record Transmitter Control Code field; enter the five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code that is assigned to you by IRS after you have filed an application and it has been approved. Applications for approval to file Forms W–2 and W–2P on magnetic media must be filed with SSA, not with IRS. Refer to Part A, Sec. 4.

.03 After you have received approval to file on magnetic media, you do not need to reapply each year; however, notify IRS in writing if:

(a) there are hardware or software changes that would affect the characteristics of the magnetic media submission (e.g., changing from diskette to tape filing or vice versa), a new Transmitter Control Code may be necessary or,

(b) you discontinue filing on magnetic media for a year (your five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code may be reassigned).

If either of these conditions applies to you, you should contact IRS for clarification. In ALL correspondence, refer to your current five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code to assist IRS in locating your files.

.04 IRS will assist new filers with their initial magnetic diskette submission by reviewing "test" files submitted in advance of the filing season. The "test" data should be actual data, for the "A" Record, not fictitious information. This applies to all records submitted in the "test" file. Approved payers or transmitters should submit "test" files to the National Computer Center. You MUST submit a "test" file in order to participate in the Combined Federal/State Program; however, you are encouraged to submit "test" files if you are a new filer on magnetic media. As a guideline, IRS prefers that all "test" files be submitted between August 15 and December 15 each year. Refer to Part A, Sec. 13 for the address. Do not submit "test" files after December 15. If you are unable to submit your "test" file by this date, you may only send a sample hardcopy printout or diskette dump to the National Computer Center that shows a sample of each type of record (A, B, C, K, and F) used. Clearly mark the hardcopy printout or diskette dump as "TEST DATA" and include identifying information such as name, address, and telephone number of someone familiar with the "test" print or diskette dump who may be contacted to discuss its acceptability. With all "test" data, include a transmittal Form 4804, 4802 or computer generated substitute marked as "TEST DATA" that identifies your five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code and total record and money amounts. The transmittal Form 4804 and 4802 have been updated for tax year 1986. Agencies that produce a computer generated substitute must include the additional information required on these forms. The Form 4804 now includes a Checkbox 1 to indicate the type of file (e.g., original, correction, replacement, test). The "test" data must be a sample of actual data coded according to the proper revenue procedure.

.05 If your magnetic media files have been prepared for you in the past by a service agency, and you now have computer equipment compatible with that of IRS and wish to prepare your own files, you must request your own five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code by filing an application, Form 4419, as described above.

.06 If you as an individual or organization are an approved filer on magnetic media and you change the name of your organization, please notify the National Computer Center, in writing, so that your file may be updated to reflect the proper name.

.07 In accordance with section 1.6041-7(b) of the Income Tax Regulations, payments to providers of medical and health care services from separate departments of a health care carrier may be reported as separate returns on magnetic media. In this case, the headquarters office will be considered to be the transmitter, and the individual departments of the company filing reports will be considered to be payers. A single application form covering all the departments that will be filing on magnetic diskette should be submitted. One five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code may be used for all departments.

.08 Any person required to file original or corrected returns on magnetic media may request a waiver from the filing requirements by submitting Form 8508, Request for Waiver From Filing Information Returns on Magnetic Media, with the IRS National Computer Center if filing on magnetic media would be an undue hardship. Requests for waivers for Forms W-2 and W-2P are due by July 31, 1986, for tax year 1986, for returns filed in 1987. For all other returns required to be filed on magnetic media, waiver requests must be filed at least 90 days before the returns are due. This waiver, if approved, will only provide exemption from magnetic media filing for one tax year. Filers may not apply for a waiver for more than one tax year at a time. You must reapply each year that a waiver is necessary. Copies of Form 8508 may be obtained from the IRS National Computer Center. See Part A, Sec. 13 for the address.

.09 Section 1.6045-1(1) of the Income Tax Regulations requires brokers and barter exchanges to use magnetic media in reporting ALL Form 1099-B data to IRS. THIS REQUIREMENT APPLIES TO BOTH ORIGINAL AND CORRECTED RETURNS. Generally, NEW brokers and NEW barter exchanges may request an undue hardship exemption by filing a request for waiver from the IRS National Computer Center, by the end of the second month following the month in which they became a broker or barter exchange.

.10 All requests for magnetic media related undue hardship exemptions should be submitted to the IRS National Computer Center at least 90 days before the due date of the return except as stated in Sec. 5.09. All magnetic media related undue hardship requests for Forms W-2 and W-2P are to be filed with the IRS National Computer Center, not SSA and must be filed by July 31, 1986, for tax year 1986, for returns filed in 1987. Refer to Part A, Sec. 13 for the address.

.11 If you request a waiver from filing on magnetic media and it is approved, do not send a copy of the approved waiver to the service center where you file your paper returns. Keep the waiver for your records. Do not staple, paperclip or use rubberbands on any scannable forms. Paper information returns are read by an optical scanner (OCR) at the service centers.

.12 Waivers are granted on a case-by-case basis and may be approved at the discretion of the National Computer Center.

.13 If you are required to file on magnetic media but fail to do so, and you do not have an approved waiver on record, you may be subject to a failure to file penalty. Refer to Sec. 6.01 below.

.14 An approved waiver from filing information returns on magnetic media does not provide exemption from filing; you MUST still file your information returns on acceptable paper forms.

.15 A magnetic media reporting package, which includes all the necessary transmittals, labels, and instructions will be mailed to the last known address of all approved filers each year.

SEC. 6. FILING OF MAGNETIC MEDIA REPORTS AND RETENTION REQUIREMENTS

.01 If you do not file your returns on time, you may be subject to a $50 per document failure to file penalty. If you file without following the instructions in this revenue procedure, you may also be subject to a $50 per document failure to file penalty. The maximum penalty is $50,000. However, there is no maximum penalty for returns of 1099-INT, 1099-OID, 1099-DIV, 1099-PATR, 5498 or if the failure to file is due to intentional disregard of the filing requirements.

.02 Generally, you are now subject to a $50 penalty for each failure to include the payee's correct TIN on an information return unless the payer can demonstrate that the payer met the due diligence requirements. Refer to Part A, Sec. 11.

.03 Rev. Proc. 84-24, 1984-1 C.B. 465, gives detailed information on preparing transmittal documents (Forms 1096 and 4804) for information returns and is available at IRS offices. Specific guidelines are given on how to report the payer's name, address, and TIN on transmittal documents and information returns. Instructions for multiple transmittals and the submission of transmittals by service bureaus or agents are also covered.

.04 THE MAGNETIC DISKETTE RECORDS ARE TO BE SUBMITTED TO THE NATIONAL COMPUTER CENTER; HOWEVER, PAPER INFORMATION RETURNS ARE TO CONTINUE TO BE FILED WITH THE SERVICE CENTERS. Form 4804, Transmittal of Information Returns Reported on Magnetic Media, must accompany magnetic diskette submissions. If you file for multiple payers and have the authority to sign the affidavit on Form 4804, you should also submit Form 4802, Transmittal for Multiple Magnetic Media Reporting. For IRS to ensure that your actual data records were formatted following THIS revenue procedure, include a hardcopy printout, fast print or diskette dump of the first five and last five blocks of the data that shows a sample of each type of record (A, B, C, K and F) used on the diskette. This will be reviewed prior to actual processing to ensure that the data is in the proper format. Be sure to include Form 4804, 4802 or computer generated substitute with your diskette shipment. DO NOT MAIL THE DISKETTES AND THE TRANSMITTAL DOCUMENTS SEPARATELY. IRS encourages the use of a computer generated Form 4804 which includes all necessary information requested on the actual form.

Paper information returns must be transmitted to the appropriate service center using Form 1096, Annual Summary and Transmittal of U.S. Information Returns. Do not send information returns filed on paper forms to the National Computer Center.

.05 The affidavit for Form 4804 should be signed by the payer; however, the transmitter, service bureau, paying agent, or disbursing agent may sign the affidavit on behalf of the payer if all of the following conditions are met:

(a) It has the authority to sign the affidavit under an agency agreement (either oral, written, or implied) that is valid under the state law.

(b)(i) It has the responsibility (either oral, written or implied) conferred on it by the payer to request the TINs of recipients (or others for whom information is being reported),

OR

(ii) If the return of more than one payer is included in a single diskette submission, covered by a single Form 4804, each payer has attested by affidavit to the transmitter, service bureau, paying agent, or disbursing agent that the payer has complied with the law in attempting to secure correct TINs.

(c) It signs the affidavit and adds the caption "For: (name of payer)."

.06 Although a duly authorized agent signs the affidavit, the payer is held responsible for the accuracy of the Form 4804, and the payer will be liable for penalties for failure to comply with filing requirements.

.07 DO NOT REPORT THE SAME INFORMATION ON PAPER FORMS THAT YOU REPORT ON MAGNETIC MEDIA. IF YOU REPORT PART OF YOUR RETURNS ON PAPER AND PART ON MAGNETIC MEDIA, BE SURE THAT DUPLICATE RETURNS, WITH THE SAME INFORMATION, ARE NOT INCLUDED ON BOTH. This does not mean that corrected documents are not to be filed. If a return has been prepared and submitted improperly, you must file a corrected return as soon as possible. Refer to Part A, Sec. 10 for requirements and instructions on filing corrected returns.

.08 Reports from different branches or locations for one payer, if submitted on the same file, MUST be consolidated under one Payer/Transmitter "A" Record for each type of information return. For example, all Forms 1099-INT for the same payer on a single file must be sorted together under one Payer/Transmitter "A" Record followed by the appropriate "B" Records and one "C" Record.

.09 Payers are required to retain a copy of the information returns filed with IRS or the ability to reconstruct the data for at least three years.

.10 Before submitting magnetic media files, include the following:

(a) A signed Form 4804 or computer generated substitute.

(b) A Form 4802 (if you transmit for multiple payers).

(c) A hard copy printout or listing of the first five and last five blocks of your file. The listing should show a sample of each type of record (A, B, C, K, and F) used on the magnetic media being submitted.

(d) The magnetic media with an external identifying label as described in Part B, Sec. 1.

(e) On the outside of the shipping container, include a Form 4801 or a substitute for the form which reads "DELIVER UNOPENED TO TAPE LIBRARY—MAGNETIC MEDIA REPORTING—BOX ■ of ■." If there is only one container, mark the outside as Box 1 of 1. For multiple containers, include the sequence (e.g., Box 1 of 33, 2 of 33, etc.).

(f) If you were granted an extension, include a copy of the approval letter with the magnetic media shipment.

.11 IRS will not pay or accept "Collect on Delivery" or "Charged to IRS" shipments of reportable tax information that an individual or organization is legally required to submit.

.12 Files returned to you due to coding or format errors are to be corrected and returned to IRS within 30 days of your receipt or the payer may be subject to a failure to file penalty.

SEC 7. FILING DATES

.01 The dates prescribed for filing paper returns with IRS also apply to magnetic media filing. Magnetic media reporting to IRS for Forms 1098, 1099, and W-2G must be on a calendar year basis. Form 5498 is used to report amounts contributed during or after the calendar year but not later that April 15.

.02 Information returns filed on magnetic media for Forms 1098, all types of Forms 1099, and W-2G must be submitted to IRS and postmarked by February 28. The due date for furnishing the required copy or statement to the recipient is January 31.

.03 Information returns filed on magnetic media for Form 5498 must be submitted to IRS and postmarked by May 31. Copies of this form or statements are due to the participant by May 31 for contributions made to IRAs and SEPs for the prior calendar year; however, participant copies or statements for DECs are due at the time the contribution is made or January 31, whichever is later. Form 5498 is filed for contributions to be applied to 1986 that are made between January 1, 1986, and April 15, 1987.

SEC. 8. EXTENSIONS OF TIME TO FILE

.01 If a payer or transmitter of returns on magnetic media filed with IRS or SSA is unable to submit their magnetic media file by the dates prescribed in Sec. 7.02 and 7.03 above, submit a letter requesting an extension of up to 30 days to file, as soon as you are aware that an extension will be necessary. In order to be considered, the request MUST be filed before the due date of the return; otherwise, you will be subject to a late filing penalty. The letter should be sent to the attention of the Magnetic Media Reporting Program at the IRS National Computer Center. See Part A, Sec. 13 for the address. The request should include:

(a) The filer's (or transmitter's, if filing for multiple payers) name and address.

(b) The filer's Taxpayer Identification Number (SSN or EIN).

(c) The tax year for which the extension of time is requested: tax year 1986.

(d) The name and telephone number of a person to contact who is familiar with the request.

(e) The type of returns and expected volume (e.g., 5000 Forms 1099-INT).

(f) The five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code assigned to the organization or individual requesting the extension (if a number has been assigned).

(g) The reason for the delay and date that you will be able to file.

(h) If you file for multiple payers, the request must include a list of all payers and their TINs (SSN or EIN).

An approved extension for magnetic media filing does not provide additional time for supplying a copy to the payee.

02. If an extension of time to file on magnetic media is granted by the National Computer Center, a copy of the letter granting the extension MUST be attached to the transmittal Form 4804 or computer generated substitute when the file is submitted.

SEC. 9. PROCESSING OF MAGNETIC MEDIA RETURNS

01. All data received at the National Computer Center for processing will be given the same protection as individual returns (1040), and will be returned to the originator after processing. Files that are received timely by the National Computer Center will be returned to the filers by August 15 of the year in which submitted.

.02 Due to the volume of input received and the cost to return special containers, special shipping containers should not be used for transmitting data to the National Computer Center since IRS cannot guarantee return of such containers.

.03 Files will be returned to you for correction if they are unprocessable due to format or coding errors, or by the request of the filer. Unprocessable files must be corrected and returned to the National Computer Center within 30 days of your receipt or the payer may be subject to a failure to file penalty. The corrected files will be returned to the filer by the National Computer Center within 6 months of receipt. PLEASE BE SURE THAT YOUR FORMAT AND CODING COMPLY WITH THIS REVENUE PROCEDURE. THIS REVENUE PROCEDURE IS TO BE USED FOR THE PREPARATION OF TAX YEAR 1986 INFORMATION RETURNS ONLY. LEGISLATIVE AND FORMS CHANGES AFFECTING INFORMATION RETURNS MAY OCCUR EACH YEAR. THESE PROCEDURES ARE UPDATED TO REFLECT NECESSARY CHANGES. PLEASE READ THIS PUBLICATION CAREFULLY.

SEC. 10. HOW TO FILE CORRECTED RETURNS

.01 The filing requirements listed in Part A, Sec. 1 apply to both original and corrected returns. Corrections should be aggregated and filed as soon as possible but not later than October 1 of each year. ALL FIELDS OR BOXES MUST BE COMPLETED WITH THE CORRECT INFORMATION, NOT JUST THE DATA FIELDS NEEDING CORRECTION. Submit corrections only for the returns filed in error, not the entire file. If your complete file is in error, contact the National Computer Center immediately. There are numerous types of errors. It may require more than one transaction to properly correct the initial error. In prior years, position 5 of the "B" Record was used as the corrected return indicator. This has now been changed to position 6. You are strongly encouraged to read this ENTIRE section before attempting to make ANY correction. If the initial return was filed as an aggregate, you must consider this in filing the corrected return.

.02 Corrected returns submitted to IRS on magnetic media, using a "G" coded Payee "B" Record, may be submitted on the same diskette as those returns submitted without the "G" code; however, they must be submitted using a separate "A" Record. Corrected returns for different tax years may not be submitted on the same file. Corrected returns are to be identified as corrections on the transmittal document and the EXTERNAL affixed label of the file.

.03 The instructions that follow will provide information on how to file corrected returns on magnetic media. The 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W–2G" provide more specific instructions for filing corrections on paper forms and are available from IRS.

.04 If you are not required to file your corrections on magnetic media and you file them on paper forms, do not submit the paper returns to the National Computer Center. All paper returns, whether original or corrected, must be filed with the appropriate service center. Corrected returns filed on magnetic media must be filed with the National Computer Center. Refer to Part A, Sec. 13 for the address.

.05 Statements to the recipient or participant should be identified as "CORRECTED" and should be provided to them as soon as possible.

.06 If you file corrected returns on paper forms, use IRS forms or acceptable OCR scannable paper substitutes. Pinhole feeds on the forms are not acceptable. Always submit Copy A to the appropriate service center. NOTE: Form W–2G is not required to be in OCR scannable format. Publication 1179, "Specifications for Paper Substitutes for Forms 1096, 1098, 1099, 5498, and W-2G" provides requirements and instructions.

.07 For instructions on filing information returns with IRS, refer to the 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W–2G." If these instructions are not included in your magnetic media reporting packages, request a copy from IRS.

.08 Type or machine print in black carbon based ink all information on returns filed on paper. Print money amounts without dollar signs ($), ampersands (&), asterisks (*), commas(,), or other special characters. Use decimal points (.) to indicate dollars and cents on paper forms only, not on magnetic media.

.09 Use the proper form. If you are in doubt, review the instructions noted in .07 above or contact IRS.

.10 Use only the boxes provided on the paper forms. Do not add additional boxes.

.11 Do not change the title of any box on any forms and do not insert data in the untitled shaded areas.

.12 Use the same name and TIN (SSN or EIN) for the filer on the Form 1096 transmittal form and all related forms that follow.

.13 A separate transmittal Form 1096 is required for each type of paper information return filed in the 1098, 5498. W–2G, and 1099 series. DO NOT USE THE SAME TRANSMITTAL DOCUMENT TO FILE ORIGINAL AND CORRECTED RETURNS WHETHER ON PAPER FORMS OR MAGNETIC MEDIA. A transmittal Form 4804 or computer generated substitute is used to transmit magnetic media. A Form 4802 is a continuation form for a Form 4804. Please utilize a Form 4802 if you file on magnetic media for multiple payers and are an authorized agent for the payers.

.14 Do not cut, staple, fold, paperclip, tape, or use rubberbands on any paper information returns filed with IRS. This could impair the OCR scanning process. No photocopies of any forms are allowable.

.15 Use the correct tax year's forms to file information returns with IRS (i.e., do not submit tax year 1986 returns using 1985 forms). The same is true for magnetic media filing. You must submit your returns filed on magnetic media using the revenue procedure for the tax year of the returns. Forms and revenue procedures are normally updated each year to include necessary changes.

.16 Most information returns contain a "VOID" box and a "CORRECTED" box. The "VOID" box is used only if you make an error while typing or printing the paper forms. Mark this box ONLY when you wish the return to be disregarded or passed over. The OCR scanner at the service centers will not read a "VOID" return; it will pass over it a go to the next form if the "VOID" box is marked. Do not confuse the "VOID" box and the "CORRECTED" box.

.17 On magnetic media files, the Payee "B" Record provides space to enter a Payer's Account Number for the Payee.

This same account number may be provided on paper forms. In order to properly file corrected returns, this number will help identify the appropriate incorrect return. DO NOT ENTER A TIN (SSN OR EIN). A PAYER'S ACCOUNT NUMBER FOR THE PAYEE MAY BE A CHECKING ACCOUNT NUMBER, SAVINGS ACCOUNT NUMBER, SERIAL NUMBER OR ANY OTHER NUMBER ASSIGNED TO THE PAYEE BY THE PAYER, THAT WILL DISTINGUISH THE SPECIFIC ACCOUNT. THIS NUMBER MUST APPEAR ON THE INITIAL RETURN AND ON THE CORRECTED RETURN IN ORDER TO IDENTIFY AND PROCESS THE CORRECTION PROPERLY.

.18 REVIEW THE GUIDELINES THAT FOLLOW. The types of errors made will normally fall under one of the three categories listed. Next to each type of error made, you will find a list of instructions to tell you how to properly file the corrected return for that type of error. READ ALL OF THE INSTRUCTIONS LISTED AND FOLLOW THEM FOR THE TYPE OF ERROR MADE ON THE INITIAL RETURN. IN SOME CASES TWO TRANSACTIONS ARE REQUIRED TO PROPERLY FILE CORRECTIONS. IF THE ORIGINAL RETURN WAS FILED AS AN AGGREGATE, YOU MUST CONSIDER THIS IN FILING CORRECTED RETURNS.

SEC. 11. TAXPAYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBERS

.01 Under section 6109 of the Internal Revenue Code, recipients of all reportable payments on information returns are required to furnish taxpayer identification numbers (TINs) to the payer. The number must be furnished to the payer whether or not the payee is required to file a tax return or is covered by social security. Refer to Part A, Sec. 15 for a definition of taxpayer identification number (TIN).

.02 The recipient's TIN is used to associate and verify amounts reported to IRS with corresponding amounts on tax returns. Therefore, it is particularly important that correct social security and employer identification numbers for payees be provided on magnetic media or paper forms submitted to IRS. DO NOT ENTER HYPHENS, ALPHA CHARACTERS, ALL 9s OR ALL ZEROS.

.03 Under section 6676 of the Internal Revenue Code, a $50 penalty applies for each failure to furnish a TIN to another person who is required to file an information return, and for each failure to include a TIN on an information return. The penalty applies unless the failure to comply is due to reasonable cause and not willful neglect.

.04 With respect to all payers of interest and dividends, section 6676 of the Internal Revenue Code provides that the payer must self-assess a $50 penalty for each failure to include a payee's TIN or each inclusion of an incorrect TIN on an information return, unless the payer can demonstrate that the payer met the due diligence requirements in attempting to acquire correct TINs for payees. Use Form 8210, Self-Assessed Penalties Return.

.05 For any reportable payment, if the payee fails to provide a TIN to the payer then backup withholding must be instituted for that payee. If the payer receives another TIN in the manner required from the payee within 30 days of notice from IRS, no backup withholding is required. If the payee has applied for a TIN, the payee may certify to this on Form W–9 by noting "Applied For" in the TIN block and by signing the form. This form then becomes an "awaiting-TIN certificate." If the TIN is not received and certified, if required, within 60 days, begin withholding and continue until you receive a TIN in the manner required.

.06 The TIN to be furnished to IRS depends primarily upon the manner in which the account is maintained or set up on the payer's record. The TIN to be provided must be that of the owner of the account. If the account is recorded in more than one name, furnish the TIN and name of one of the owners of the account. The TIN provided must be associated with the name of the payee provided in the first name line of the Payee "B" Record. For individuals, including sole proprietors, the payee TIN is the payee's social security number. For other entities, the payee TIN is the payee's employer identification number.

.07 Sole proprietors who are payers should show their employer identification number in the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. However, sole proprietors who are not otherwise required to have an employer identification number should use their social security number.

.08 Sole proprietors' social security numbers must be used in the Payee "B" Record.

.09 The charts below will help you determine the number to be furnished to IRS for recipients of reportable payments (payees).

SEC. 12. EFFECT ON PAPER RETURNS

.01 Magnetic diskette reporting of the information returns listed in Part A, Sec. 1 applies only to the original (Copy A).

.02 For payments of dividends or interest (reported on Forms 1099–DIV, 1099–PATR, 1099–INT or 1099–OID), the payer is required to furnish an official Form 1099 to a payee either in a separate mailing by First-Class mail or in person. These forms may not be combined or mailed with other information furnished to the recipient except Forms W–8, W–9, or other Forms 1099. The payer may use substitute Forms 1099 if they utilize the proper language, are substantially similar to the official forms and if the payer complies with all revenue procedures relating to substitute Forms 1099 in effect at the time (see Publication 1179). Copy B (For Recipient) of the substitute forms must contain the statement "This is important tax information and is being furnished to IRS. If you are required to file a return, a negligence penalty will be imposed on you if this income is taxable and IRS determines that it has not been reported." The substitute form must contain instructions substantially similar to those on the back of Copy B of the official form.

.03 Statements to recipients for Forms 1098, 1099–A, 1099–B, 1099–G, 1099–MISC (except for substitute payments in lieu of dividends and tax-exempt interest), 1099–R, 5498 or W–2G need not be a copy of the paper form filed with IRS. It is important that income items be properly classified for Federal tax purposes on the statement the payer gives to recipients. The message "This information is being furnished to IRS" must appear on the statements. In addition, Form 1098 statements must contain the message, "The amount shown is deductible by you for Federal income tax purposes only to the extent it was actually paid by you and not reimbursed by another person." The space provisions on official paper forms do not agree with those used in magnetic media. The amount of space on paper forms is less than that allowed on magnetic media. Filers may wish to seek a substitute form for Copy B (For Recipient) that accommodates the space provisions used in magnetic media. Payers are permitted considerable flexibility in designing Copy B of the information return to be furnished to the payee. The payer may combine the information return data with other reports or financial or commercial notices so long as all required information is present and worded properly and the payee's copy is conducive to proper reporting of income on tax returns. (This does not apply to Forms 1099–INT, 1099–OID, 1099–DIV, and 1099–PATR. See .02 above for the requirements for these four forms.) However, when information not requested on the official form is included on these substitute statements, they can no longer be mailed with recipient copies of Form 1099–DIV, INT, OID, or PATR without violating the separate mailing requirements.

.04 If a portion of the returns is reported on magnetic diskette and the remainder is reported on paper forms, those returns not submitted on magnetic diskette (including corrected returns) may require a waiver depending on the type of return and volume. Returns filed on paper must be filed on official forms or on acceptable paper substitutes meeting the specifications in Publication 1179.

Do not submit proposed substitutes of Copy A to the National Computer Center.

Your proposed substitutes must comply to the official form and the specifications outlined in Publication 1179. Do not submit any substitutes for approval. Only those forms that comply with the official form and the specifications in Publication 1179 are acceptable.

SEC. 13. TO CONTACT THE IRS NATIONAL COMPUTER CENTER

.01 Effective January 1, 1986, magnetic media processing for all service centers was centralized at the IRS National Computer Center. Please direct all requests for IRS magnetic media related publications, information, undue hardship waivers, extensions or forms to the following addresses (if Postal Service or land carrier):

Magnetic Media Reporting
Internal Revenue Service
National Computer Center
Post Office Box 1359
Martinsburg, WV 25401-1359

or

Magnetic Media Reporting
Internal Revenue Service
National Computer Center
Route 9 & Needy Road
Martinsburg, WV 25401

Hours of operation at this address will be 8:30 A.M. until 8:00 P.M. Eastern Time Zone. The telephone number is (304) 263-8700.

Requests for paper returns, publications or forms not related to magnetic media processing should be requested from local IRS offices or by calling the toll-free number in your area.

.02 The National Computer Center will process returns filed on magnetic media only. All information returns, including corrections, filed on paper forms should be submitted to the appropriate service center, not the National Computer Center. Organizations that file their information returns on magnetic media but that submit their corrected returns on paper forms, refer to the 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W–2G" for the service center addresses.

SEC. 14. COMBINED FEDERAL/STATE FILING

.01 The Combined Federal/State Program was established to simplify information returns filing for the taxpayer. IRS will accept, upon prior approval, magnetic diskette files containing state reporting information only for those states listed in Table 1 in this section. FORMS 1098, 1099–A, 1099–B, AND W–2G CANNOT BE FILED UNDER THE COMBINED FEDERAL/STATE FILING PROGRAM.

.02 To request approval to participate in the Combined Federal/State Program, a "test" file, coded for this program, must be submitted by the transmitter to the IRS National Computer Center between August 15 and December 15 using the revenue procedure that will be used for the actual data files. Blanket approval will not be given to software packages. The "test" file is only required for the first year. Once you are approved, you do not need to resubmit "tests" each year, except when notified by IRS. Refer to Part A, Sec. 13 for the address. See Part A, Sec. 5.04 for general guidelines on submission of "test" files. Each record, both in the "test" file and actual data file, must be 360 positions in length, and the file must conform exactly to the revenue procedure for the tax year of the actual data. Combined Federal/State records must be coded using each state's dollar criteria from Table 2 of this section for each type of return.

If the "test" file is determined to be acceptable, IRS will return it to the filer with Form 6847, Consent for Internal Revenue Service to Release Tax Information. The payer must complete Form 6847. The five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code must be included on the form. The form should then be returned to IRS before IRS will release tax information to any of the participating states.

Form 6847 must be signed by one of the individuals listed at the bottom of the form. If the form is signed by an attorney-in-fact, the written consent from the taxpayer to the attorney-in-fact must be included with the Form 6847. This consent by language and/or scope must clearly indicate that the attorney-in-fact is empowered to authorize release of the information document returns to the state(s). A separate Form 6847 is required for each payer. A transmitter may not combine payers on one Form 6847 even though acting as attorney-in-fact for several payers. Form 6847 may be photocopied if you receive an insufficient number of the form. If you have filed on this program in the past and have not met these requirements, you must resubmit the Form 6847 with the proper signatures as specified. If you file for multiple payers, only code the records to go to the state(s) for those payers that participate and have properly submitted Form 6847. Do not submit actual data records coded for the Combined Federal/State Program without prior approval from IRS.

.03 States that participate in this program and the valid state code assigned to each are listed in Table 1 of this section. If the state that you wish information released to does not participate in the program, do not code your records for that state. If the state participates, if you have received prior approval, and if all other conditions are met, IRS will forward the tax information to the participating state at no charge to the filer. You do not need to reapply each year.

.04 IF CORRECTIONS MUST BE MADE, IRS WILL NOT TRANSMIT CORRECTED RETURNS TO THE STATES; THIS WILL BE THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE FILER.

.05 IRS will make no attempt to process files with any deviations. Approval to participate in the Combined Federal/State Program will be revoked if any files are submitted that do not totally conform.

.06 IRS is acting as a forwarding agent ONLY. Some participating states require separate notification that you are filing in this manner. It is your responsibility to contact the appropriate state(s) for further information.

.07 The appropriate state code should be entered for those documents which meet that state's filing requirements. It is the filer's responsibility to determine the state code to be used and to obtain the filing requirements from the appropriate state(s).

.08 If you meet all of the requirements for this program, you must provide the state totals from the "K" Record on a separate Form 4804, Transmittal of Information Returns on Magnetic Media (or Form 4802, Transmittal For Multiple Magnetic Media Reporting) or computer generated substitute for each state, or you must include a listing which identifies each state and the "K" Record totals for each.

.09 If you have met ALL of the above conditions:

(a) You must submit all records using 360 positions which indicate the appropriate coding related to this program.

(b) The "C" Record must be followed by a "K" Record for each state. The "K" Record indicates the number of payees being reported to each particular state.

(c) Payment amount totals and the valid participating state code(s) must be included in the state totals "K" Record(s). Refer to Part B, Sec. 7 for a description for the "K" Record.

(d) The "K" Record is followed by an end of transmission "F" Record (if this is the last record of the entire file).

.10 Only those states listed in Table 1 below will receive information from IRS. It is the filer's responsibility to file information returns with states that do not participate in this program.

SEC. 15. DEFINITIONS OF TERMS

Element	Description
b	Denotes a blank position. Enter blank(s) when this symbol is used (do not enter the letter "b"). This appears in numerous areas throughout the record descriptions.
Coding Range	Indicates the allowable codes for a particular type of statement.
EIN	Employer Identification Number that has been assigned by IRS.
Excess Golden Parachute Payment	Parachute payments (also called "golden parachutes") are certain payments in the nature of compensation that corporations make to key individuals, often in excess of their usual compensation, in the event that ownership or control of the corporation changes.
File	For purposes of this procedure, a file consists of all magnetic diskette records submitted by a Payer or Transmitter.
Payee	Person(s) or organization(s) receiving payments from the Payer, or for whom an information return must be filed.
Payer	Includes the person making payments, a recipient of mortgage interst payments, a broker, a barter exchange, a trustee or issuer of an IRA, SEP or DEC, or a lender who acquires an interest in secured property or who has reason to know that the property has been abandoned. The Payer will be held responsible for the completeness, accuracy and timely submission of magnetic diskette files.
Special Character	Any character that is not a numeral, a letter or a blank.
SSA	Social Security Administration.
SSN	Social Security Number.
Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)	May be either an EIN or SSN.
Transfer Agent	The transfer agent or paying agent is the entity (Paying Agent) who has been contracted or authorized by the payer to perform the services of paying and reporting backup withholding (Form 941). The payer must submit to IRS a Form 2678, Employer Appointment of Agent under section 3504, which notifies IRS of the transfer agent relationship.
Transmitter	Person or organization preparing magnetic diskette file(s). May be Payer or agent of Payer.
Transmitter Control Code (TCC)	A five character alpha/numeric number assigned by IRS to the transmitter prior to actual filing on magnetic media. This number is inserted in the "A" Record of your files and must be present before the file can be processed. An application Form 4419 must be filed with IRS to receive this number. See Part A, Sec. 5. (Abbreviation for this term is TCC.)

SEC. 16. U.S. POSTAL SERVICE STATE AND COUNTRY ABBREVIATIONS

.01 You MUST use the following U.S. Postal Service state abbreviations and foreign country codes when developing the state code portion of address fields. (This table provides state abbreviations only and does not represent those states participating in the Combined Federal/State Program. For a list of states that participate in the Combined Federal/State Program, refer to Part A, Sec. 14.10.)

PART B. 5¼ INCH DISKETTE SPECIFICATIONS

SECTION 1. GENERAL

.01 The specifications contained in this part of the revenue procedure define the required format and contents of the records to be included in the diskette file. These specifications must be adhered to unless deviations have been specifically granted by IRS.

.02 To be compatible, a diskette file must meet the following specifications:

(a) 5¼ inches in diameter

(b) data must be recorded in standard ASCII code

(c) records must be fixed length, 360 bytes per record

(d) delimiter characters comma (,) and carriage return/feed (cr/lf) must not be used

(e) diskettes must meet one of the following specifications:

Capacity	Tracks	Sides/Density	Sector Size	Operating System
1.2 mb	96tpi	ds/dd	512	MS/PC-DOS 3.0
360 kb	48tpi	ds/dd	512	MS/PC-DOS 2.X
320 kb	48tpi	ds/dd	512	MS/PC-DOS 1.X
180 kb	48tpi	ss/dd	512	MS/PC-DOS 2.X
160 kb	48tpi	ss/dd	512	MS/PC-DOS 1.X

NOTE: If you use a 5¼ inch diskette format not listed above but feel it may be compatible, see Part A, Sec. 5.04 for instructions on sending a "test" diskette to IRS. No effort will be made to convert and process non-compatible diskettes. An IBM PC/XT, PC/AT, 3270 PC or compatible PC equipment should produce an acceptable diskette.

.03 Deviations from the prescribed formats will not be acceptable. Under no circumstances may diskettes deviating from the specifications in this revenue procedure be submitted without prior approval from IRS. If you file under the Combined Federal/State Program, your files must conform totally to this revenue procedure.

.04 An external affixed label, Form 5064, must appear on each diskette submitted for processing. The following information is needed:

(a) The transmitter's name.

(b) The five character alpha/numeric Transmitter Control Code.

(c) State of sender (e.g., NY).

(d) Tape density (for magnetic tape filers only).

(e) Checkbox (for magnetic tape filers only).

(f) Track (for magnetic tape filers only).

(g) Recording code (enter ASCII).

(h) The tax year of the data (e.g., 1986).

(i) Document types (e.g., 1099-INT).

(j) The total number of "B" Records after each "A" Record (this figure is taken from the "C" Records).

(k) A number assigned by the transmitter to the diskette.

(l) The sequence of each diskette (e.g., 001 of 008).

.05 The external media label, Form 5064, was updated for tax year 1986. You must use the updated label. This information will assist IRS in processing the file or in locating a file, should the transmitter request that it be returned due to errors. IRS advises that special shipping containers not be used for transmitting data since it cannot be guaranteed that they will be returned.

SEC. 2. DISKETTE HEADER LABEL

.01 The header label on the diskette must be formatted as shown in the following layout:

HDR1	BLANK	DATA SET NAME (FOR TRANSMITTER'S USE)	BLANK	SECTOR LENGTH	BLANK	BEGINNING OF EXTENT (BOE)
(a)	(b)	(c)	(b)	(d)	(b)	(e)
1-4	5	6-13	14-22	23-27	28	29-33

BLANK	END OF EXTENT (EOE)	BLANK	BYPASS DATA SET	DATA SET ACCESSIBILITY	WRITE PROTECT	BLANK
(b)	(f)	(b)	(g)	(h)	(i)	(b)
34	35-39	40	41	42	43	44

MULTI-VOLUME	BLANK	EXPIRATION DATE YYMMDD	VERIFY MARK	BLANK	END OF DATA
(j)	(b)	(k)	(l)	(b)	(m)
45	46-66	67-72	73	74	75-79

(a) Header 1—Positions 1 through 4; enter HDR1.

(b) Unused—Any field marked blank is unused and should contain only blanks.

(c) Data Set Name—Positions 6 through 13; you can use this field to identify your data set.

(d) Sector Length—Positions 23 through 27; enter the sector length 512, right-justify and fill positions 23 and 24 with zeros.

(e) Beginning of Extent (BOE)—Positions 29–33; enter the five-digit address designated for the first record of this data set. For example, if the first record is to go in track 01, sector 02, enter 01002, or xx0yy where xx is the track number and yy is the sector number.

(f) End of Extent (EOE)—Positions 35 through 39; enter the five-digit address of the last position of the disk reserved for this data set. For example, to reserve the entire disk for a data set, enter 73026.

(g) Bypass Data Set—Position 41; enter B if you want to bypass this data set; otherwise, enter a blank.

(h) Data Set Accessibility—Position 42, enter a blank. Any other character in this field causes the equipment to refuse the disk.

(i) Write Protect—Position 43; this field defines the protected status of the associated data set. P = read only; blank = read/write. With P in this position, you can only select the Update (U) mode.

(j) Multi-Volume—Position 45; this field indicates whether a complete data set is on a disk. Blank = data set complete; C = data set continued on another disk; L = last disk of a multi-disk data set.

(k) Expiration Date—Positions 67 through 72; may be used to contain the date that the data set expires. The format is YYMMDD where YY is the year; MM is the month and DD is the day.

(l) Verify Mark—Position 73; this single character field shows if the data set is verified. If it is, enter V, if it is not verified, enter a blank.

(m) End of Data (EOD)—Positions 75–79; enter the track number in positions 75 and 76, enter a "0" (zero) in position 77 and enter the sector number in positions 78 and 79.

SEC. 3. PAYER/TRANSMITTER "A" RECORD

.01 Identifies the payer and transmitter of the diskette file and provides parameters for the succeeding Payee "B" Records. IRS computer programs rely on the absolute relationship between the parameters and data fields in the "A" Record and the data fields in the "B" Records to which they apply.

.02 The number of "A" Records appearing on a diskette will depend on the number of payers and the different types of returns being reported. After the header label on the diskette, the first record appearing in the file must be an "A" Record. For magnetic diskette filing, the actual record lengths for the "A" and "B" Records must be 360 positions. A transmitter may include Payee "B" Records for more than one payer on a diskette; however, each GROUP of Payee "B" Records must be preceded by an "A" Record. A single diskette may also contain different types of returns, but the types of returns must not be intermingled. A separate "A" Record is required for each payer and each type of return being reported.

.03 All alpha characters entered in the "A" Record should be uppercase.

.04 WHEN REPORTING FORM 1098, "MORTGAGE INTEREST STATEMENT," THE "A" RECORD WILL REFLECT THE NAME OF THE RECIPIENT OF THE INTEREST. THE "B" RECORD WILL REFLECT THE INDIVIDUAL PAYING THE INTEREST AND THE AMOUNT PAID.

RECORD NAME: PAYER/TRANSMITTER "A" RECORD

Diskette Position	Field Title	Length	Description and Remarks
1	Record Type	1	REQUIRED. Enter "A".
2	Payment Year	1	REQUIRED. Must be the right most digit of the year for which information is being reported. (e.g., if payments were made in 1986, enter "6".) Must be incremented each year.
3-5	Diskette Sequence Number	3	REQUIRED. The diskette sequence number incremented by 1, for each diskette on the file starting with 001 (Blanks are acceptable or all zeros.)
6-14	Payer's Federal EIN	9	REQUIRED. Must be the valid 9-digit number assigned to the payer by IRS. DO NOT ENTER HYPHENS, ALPHA CHARACTERS, ALL 9s OR ALL ZEROS. (Also see Part A, Sec. 11.07.)
15	Blank	1	REQUIRED. Enter Blank.

RECORD NAME: PAYER/TRANSMITTER "A" RECORD—Continued

16	Combined Federal/State Filer	1	REQUIRED. Enter the appropriate code from the table below. Prior approval is required. A consent Form 6847 must be submitted to IRS before tax information will be released to the states. Refer to Part A, Sec. 14.11 for money criteria. Not all states participate in this program. If the Payer/Transmitter is not participating in the Combined Federal/State Filing Program, enter blanks. (Refer to Part A, Sec. 14 for the requirements that must be met prior to actual participation in this program.) Forms 1098, 1099–A, 1099–B, and W–2G cannot be filed on this program. Filers who participate in this program must incorporate state totals into corresponding "K" Records as described in Part B, Sec. 15. Code — Meaning 1 — Participating in the Combined Federal/State Filing Program. Blank — Not participating.
17	Type of Return	1	REQUIRED. Enter appropriate code from table below: Type of Return — Code 1098 — 3 1099–A — 4 1099–B — B 1099–DIV — 1 1099–G — F 1099–INT — 6 1099–MISC — A 1099–OID — D 1099–PATR — 7 1099–R — 9 5498 — L W–2G — W
18-26	Amount Indicators	9	REQUIRED. In most cases, the boxes or Amount Indicators on paper information returns correspond with the Amount Codes used to file on magnetic media; however, should you notice discrepancies between this revenue procedure and paper forms, please disregard them and program according to this revenue procedure for your returns filed on magnetic media. For specific instructions on information to be reported in each Amount Code, refer to the 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W–2G." The amount indicators entered for a given type of return indicate type(s) of payment(s) which were made. For each Amount Code entered in this field, a corresponding payment amount must appear in the Payee "B" Record. Example: If position 17 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record is "7" (for 1099–PATR) and positions 18-26 are "247bbbbbb," this indicates that 3 actual payment amounts are present in all of the following Payee "B" Records. The first payment amount in the Payee "B" Record will represent Nonpatronage distributions, the second will represent Federal income tax withheld, and the third will repre-Energy investment credit.
	Amount Indicators (continued)		Enter the Amount Indicators in ASCENDING SEQUENCE (i.e., 247bbbbbb), left-justify, filling unused positions with blanks. For any further clarification of the Amount Indicator codes, you may contact the National Computer Center.

NOTE 1: Use Amount Code "8" to report that direct sales of consumer products of $5,000 or more to the payee on a buy-sell, deposit-commission, or any other basis for resale were made. (Do not use this indicator for sales of less than $5,000.) The use of Amount Code "8" actually reflects an indicator of direct sales and not an actual payment amount or amount code. The corresponding payment amount field in the Payee "B" Record MUST be reflected as 0000000100. This does not mean that a payment of $1.00 was made or is being reported. The use of Amount Code "8" relates directly to diskette position "4," Document Specific Code and NOTE 2 of the Payment Amount Field in the Payee "B" Record. (If you use Amount Code "8" in the "A" Record, you will enter a "1" in diskette position "4" of the "B" Record. For any other 1099–MISC Amount Codes, you will enter a "0" (zero) in diskette position "4" of the "B" Record.)

NOTE 2: Brokers are subject to a reporting requirement for payments received after 1984. Brokers who transfer securities of a customer for use in a short sale must use Amount Code 9 to report the aggregate payments received in lieu of dividends or tax-exempt interest on behalf of a customer while the short sale was open. Generally, for substitute payments in lieu of dividends, a broker is required to file a Form 1099–MISC for each affected customer who is not an individual. Refer to the 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W-2G" for detailed information. The instructions are available from IRS offices.

NOTE 3: If you are reporting Excess Golden Parachute Payments, use paper forms 1099–MISC. Do not report these payments on magnetic media. See Part A, Sec. 15 for a definition of an Excess Golden Parachute Payment.

SEC. 5. PAYEE "B" RECORD—GENERAL FIELD DESCRIPTIONS

.01 The Payee "B" Record contains the payment information from the individual statements. When filing information documents on 5 ¼ inch diskette(s), the format for the Payee "B" Records will remain constant. There are nine payment amount fields in the "B" Record. In those amount fields where no money amount is to be reported, enter zeros. For example, if you are reporting 1099-PATR, position 17 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record will be coded with a "7". If the Amount Indicators used to report these dividends are Amount Codes "2," "4," and "7," then diskette positions 18-26 of the "A" Record will be coded "247bbbbbb" (b represents a blank position). To correspond with Amount Indicators "2," "4," and "7," of the "A" Record, the "B" Record will contain three actual payment amounts. Diskette positions 31-40 of the "B" Record will contain the payment amount to be reported for Amount Code "2" (Nonpatronage distributions); diskette positions 41-50 of the "B" Record would contain the payment amount to be reported for Amount Code "4" (Federal income tax withheld); and diskette positions 51-60 of the "B" Record would contain the payment amount to be reported for Amount Code "7" (Energy investment credit). Positions 61 through 120 must be zero filled. The First Payee Name Line will always begin in diskette position 121.

.02 All records must be a fixed length of 360 positions.

.03 All payee records must contain correct payee name and address information entered in the fields prescribed in this section. Records containing an invalid TIN (SSN or EIN) and having no address data present may be returned for correction. In searching for a payee address, if your efforts fail and you know that the address is invalid, supply the invalid address rather than leave the field blank.

.04 IRS must be able to identify the surname associated with the TIN (SSN or EIN) furnished on a statement. The specifications below include a field in the payee records called "Name Control" in which the first four alphabetic characters of the payee's surname or last name are to be entered by the payers. The surname or last name should appear first in the First Payee Name Line of all Payee "B" Records; however, if your records have been developed using the first name first, IRS programs will accept this but a blank must appear between the first and last name.

.05 If payers are unable to provide the first four characters of the surname, the Name Control Field may be left blank; however, compliance with the following will facilitate IRS computer programs in generating the Name Control.

(a) The surname of the payee whose TIN (SSN or EIN) is shown in the Payee "B" Record should always appear first. If, however, you enter the first name first, you must leave a blank space between the first and last name.

(b) In the case of multiple payees, only the surname of the payee whose TIN (SSN or EIN) is shown in the Payee "B" Record, must be present in the First Payee Name Line. Surnames of any other payees in the record must be entered in the Second Payee Name Line.

.06 Provision is also made in these specifications for data entries required by state or local governments. This should minimize the Payer/Transmitter's programming burden should payers desire to report on diskette to state or local governments. See Part A, Sec. 14, for the Combined Federal/State filing requirements.

.07 For those filers participating in the Combined Federal/State Filing Program, positions 359 and 360 in the Payee "B" Records must contain the appropriate state code for the state to receive the information. The file should also meet the money criteria described in Part A, Sec. 14.11. Do not code for the states unless prior approval to participate has been granted by IRS. See Part A, Sec. 14 for a list of the valid participating state codes. FORMS 1098, 1099–A, 1099–B, AND W–2G CANNOT BE FILED UNDER THE COMBINED FEDERAL/STATE FILING PROGRAM. Your files must meet all of the requirements specified in Part A, Sec. 14.10 in order to participate in this progam.

.08 All alpha characters entered in the "B" Record should be upper-case.

.09 IRS STRONGLY ENCOURAGES FILERS TO REVIEW THEIR DATA FOR ACCURACY BEFORE SUBMISSION TO PREVENT ERRONEOUS NOTICES TO PERSONS FOR WHOM REPORTS ARE FILED. FILERS SHOULD BE ESPECIALLY CAREFUL THAT THEIR TAXPAYER NAMES, SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS (SSNs), ACCOUNT NUMBERS, TYPES OF INCOME, AND INCOME AMOUNTS ARE CORRECT. ALTHOUGH IRS ENCOURAGES PAYERS TO FILL IN THE PAYER'S ACCOUNT NUMBER FOR THE PAYEE FIELD, THEY SHOULD NOT INCLUDE EXTRANEOUS DIGITS AS THIS FIELD IS LIMITED, IN MAGNETIC MEDIA FILING, TO 10 POSITIONS.

.10 WHEN REPORTING FORM 1098 "MORTGAGE INTEREST STATEMENT," THE "A" RECORD WILL REFLECT THE NAME OF THE RECIPIENT OF THE INTEREST. THE "B" RECORD WILL REFLECT THE INDIVIDUAL PAYING THE INTEREST AND THE AMOUNT PAID.

RECORD NAME: PAYEE "B" RECORD

Diskette Position	Field Title	Length	Description and Remarks
1	Record Type	1	REQUIRED. Enter "B".
2-3	Payment Year	2	REQUIRED. Must be the last two digits of the year for which payments are being reported (e.g., if payments were made in 1986 enter "86"). Must be incremented each year.
4-5	Document Specific Code (In prior years, position 5 was used as a corrected return indicator. This position was needed for the Document Specific Code. Position 6 now represents a corrected return.)	2	REQUIRED for Forms 1099–R, 1099–MISC, 1099–G, and W–2G. For Form 1099–R, enter the appropriate code for the Category of Total Distribution. For Form 1099–MISC, enter the appropriate code for Direct Sales. For Form 1099–G, enter the year of income tax refund. For Form W–2G enter the Type of Wager. FOR ALL OTHER FORMS, ENTER BLANK. If only one code is used, left-justify and blank fill.
	Category of Total Distribution (Form 1099–R only)		Use only for reporting on Form 1099–R to identify the Category of Total Distribution. You may select two codes except when using Code 9. Enter the applicable code from the table below. Code 7 below is not required for Amount Indicators 1, 2 and 3. A "0" (zero) is not a valid code for Form 1099–R. If you are reporting a distribution from a KEOGH plan, or from any other distribution, to which the following codes do not apply, enter blanks in this field.

			NOTE: PS 58 Costs may be reported on Form 1099–R; however, Form W–2P (filed with SSA) is preferable. Since this is not actually a total distribution, a separate "B" Record is required to report PS 58 Costs. These costs may not be reported in combination with a total distribution. Refer to the 1986 "Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, 5498, 1096, and W–2G," available from IRS offices.
	Direct Sales (Form 1099–MISC only)		Use only for direct sales reporting on Form 1099–MISC. If sales to the recipient of consumer products on a buy-sell, deposit-commission, or any other basis for resale, have amounted to $5,000 or more, ENTER "1". If you are filing 1099–MISC, with an Amount Indicator of "8" in the "A" Record, you must enter a code "1" in this field. For all other 1099–MISC Amount Codes in the "A" Record enter a "0" (zero) in this field. In Part B, Sec. 3, information concerning the direct sales indicator can be found under Amount Indicators, Form 1099–MISC, NOTE 1 in the "A" Record. This code should appear in position 4. Position 5 will be blank.
	Refund is for Tax Year (Form 1099–G only)		Use only for reporting the tax year for which the refund was issued. If the payment amount field associated with Amount Indicator 2, Income Tax Refunds, contains a refund, credit or offset that is attributable to an income tax that applies exclusively to income from a trade or business and is not of general application, then enter the ALPHA equivalent of the year of refund from the table below. Otherwise, enter the NUMERIC Year for which the Refund was issued. This code should appear in position 4. Position 5 will be blank. Year for which Refund was Issued Alpha Equivalent 1 A 2 B 3 C 4 D 5 E 6 F 7 G 8 H 9 I 0 J where there is any other legitimate cause for not having an identification number, enter blanks. Refer to Part A, Sec. 11. DO NOT ENTER HYPHENS, ALPHA CHARACTERS, ALL 9s OR ALL ZEROS. Any record containing an invalid identifying number in this field will be returned for correction.

21-30	Payer's Account Number for Payee	10	REQUIRED. Payer may use this field to enter the payee's account number. The use of this item will facilitate easy reference to specific records in the payer's file should any questions arise. DO NOT ENTER A TAXPAYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBER IN THIS FIELD. An account number can be any account number assigned by the payer to the payee (i.e., checking account, savings account, etc.). THIS NUMBER WILL HELP TO DISTINGUISH THE INDIVIDUAL PAYEE'S ACCOUNT WITH YOU AND SHOULD BE UNIQUE TO IDENTIFY THE SPECIFIC TRANSACTION MADE WITH THE ORGANIZATION, SHOULD MULTIPLE RETURNS BE FILED. This information will be particularly necessary if you need to file a corrected return. You are strongly encouraged to use this field. You may use any number that will help identify the particular transaction that you are reporting. If a number is not determinable, enter blanks. If fewer than ten characters are required, right-justify filling the remaining positions with blanks.
	Payment Amount Fields (Must be numeric)		The number of actual payment amounts is dependent upon the number of Amount Indicators present in positions 18-26 of the "A" Record. For example, if you are reporting 1099–INT and you used only Amount Indicator "3" in position 18 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record, then you will actually enter one, ten position, right-justified payment amount in Payment Amount 1, positions 31-40 of the "B" Record. The remaining eight, ten position payment amounts, Payment Amounts 2 through 8, will be zero filled. The First Payee Name Line will always begin in position 121. Each payment field must contain 10 numeric characters (see NOTE 1). Enter zeros in the payment amount field when the corresponding Amount Indicator in the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record is blank. Each payment amount must be entered in dollars and cents. Do not enter dollar signs, commas, decimal points, or NEGATIVE PAYMENTS (except those items that reflect a loss on Form 1099–B and must be negative overpunched in the units position). Example: If the Amount Indicators are reflected as "247bbbbbb," the Payee "B" Records will have only 3 actual payment amounts entered in Payment Amount 1, 2 and 3. The remaining 6 payment amounts, Payment Amounts 4 through 9, will be zeros. If Amount Indicators in the "A" Record are reflected as "12367bbbb," the "B" Records will have only 5 actual payment amounts in Payment Amounts 1 through 5. The remaining 4 payment amounts, Payment Amount 6 through 9, will be zeros. Payment amounts MUST be right-justified and unused positions MUST be zero filled. Federal income tax withheld is not reported as a negative amount. NOTE 1: If any one payment amount exceeds "9999999999" (dollars and cents), as many SEPARATE Payee "B" Records as necessary to contain the total amount MUST be submitted for the Payee.

			NOTE 2: If you file 1099–MISC and use Amount Code "8" in the Amount Indicator field of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record, you must enter 0000000100 in the corresponding Payment Amount Field. This will not represent an actual money amount; this is an indicator of direct sales. (Refer to Part B, Sec. 3, NOTE 1, of the Amount Indicators, Form 1099–MISC, for clarification.)
31-40	Payment Amount 1	10	This amount is identified by the indicator in position 18 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. This amount must always be present.
41-50	Payment Amount 2	10	This amount is identified by the indicator in position 19 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. If position 19 is blank, enter zeros for this payment amount.
51-60	Payment Amount 3	10	This amount is identified by the indicator in position 20 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. If position 20 is blank, enter zeros for this payment amount.
61-70	Payment Amount 4	10	This amount is identified by the indicator in position 21 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. If position 21 is blank, enter zeros for this payment amount.
71-80	Payment Amount 5	10	This amount is identified by the indicator in position 22 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. If position 22 is blank, enter zeros for this payment amount.
81-90	Payment Amount 6	10	This amount is identified by the indicator in position 23 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. If position 23 is blank, enter zeros for this payment amount.
91-100	Payment Amount 7	10	This amount is identified by the indicator in position 24 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. If position 24 is blank, enter zeros for this payment amount.
101-110	Payment Amount 8	10	The amount is identified by the indicator in position 25 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. If position 25 is blank, enter zeros for this payment amount.
111-120	Payment Amount 9	10	This amount is identified by the indicator in position 26 of the Payer/Transmitter "A" Record. If position 26 is blank, enter zeros for this payment amount.
121-160	First Payee Name Line	40	REQUIRED. Do not enter address information in this field. Enter the name of the payee (preferably surname first) whose Taxpayer Identification Number appears in positions 12-20 above. If fewer than 40 characters are required, left-justify and fill unused positions with blanks. If more space is required for the name, utilize the Second Payee Name Line field below. If there are multiple payees, only the name of the payee whose Taxpayer Identification Number has been provided should be entered in this field. The names of the other payees should be entered in the Second Payee Name Line field. NOTE: WHEN REPORTING FORM 1098, "MORTGAGE INTEREST STATEMENT," THE "A" RECORD WILL REFLECT THE NAME OF THE RECIPIENT OF THE INTEREST. THE "B" RECORD WILL REFLECT THE INDIVIDUAL PAYING THE INTEREST AND THE AMOUNT PAID.
161-200	Second Payee Name Line	40	REQUIRED. If the payee name requires more space than is available in the First Payee Name Line, enter the remaining portion of the name only in this field. If there are multiple payees, (e.g., partners or joint owners) this field may be used for those payees' names who are not associated with the Taxpayer Identification Number provided in positions 12-20 above. Do not enter

SEC. 13. END OF PAYER "C" RECORD

.01 The Control Total fields have been expanded from 12 to 15 positions.

.02 The End of Payer "C" Record is a summary record for a type of return for a given payer. It MUST be 360 positions in length.

.03 The "C" Record will contain the total number of payees and the totals of the payment amount fields filed by a given payer. The "C" Record must be written after the last Payee "B" Record for each type of return for a given payer. For each "A" Record and group of "B" Records on the file, there must be a corresponding "C" Record.

.04 In developing the "C" Record, for example, if you used Amount Codes 1, 3 and 6 in the "A" Record, the totals from the "B" Records will appear in Control Totals, 1, 2, and 3 of the "C" Record. Positions 53-142 would be zero filled and positions 143-360 would be blank filled.

.05 Payers/Transmitters must verify the accuracy of the totals in the "C" Record and must enter the totals on the transmittal, Form 4804, 4802 or computer generated substitute, which will accompany the shipment. The lines used on Forms 4804 and 4802 to record payment amounts correspond with the Amount Codes used in the "A" Record. These forms have been updated for 1986.
